The Electric Power Company is a corporation which controlls practically all the plants for the generation and distribution of power in Central Ontario, reaching Lindsay on the northwest, Oshawa on the southwest and Napanee on the east, having a practical monopoly of electric power distribution in the towns named and in Bowmanville, Cobourg, Port Hope, Peterborough, Belleville, Trenton, Brighton, Campbellford, Colborne, Tweed and other towns and villages. The requirements of this district are very different from those of a compact population in any city such as Toronto or Ottawa. The customers are scatterd through a number of towns, a few hundred horse power being taken in one place, a few hundred in another place and so on. To build transmission lines to connect all these scattered places is very expensive and it is reasonable that the interests of the entire district would be best served by having one system which would supply all; for, to duplicate the transmission lines and sub-stations, would increase the cost needlessly.

THE COST

The amount of power which can be used in any one town is a large factor in determining the cost at which that town can be supplied. If, for example, the case of a town which can use five hundred horse power is taken, it evident that that power can be supplied more cheaply in one block of five hundred by one company than in two blocks of two hundred and fifty each by two companies with duplicate plants. At present this field is served by the Electric Power Company, which reaches practically every town in the district, and which, moreover, has the decided advantage of owning a number of separate generating stations and having their lines so tied together that if anything should go wrong at one generating station, the others can supply power to the whole system without delay or inconvenience to the public. This company, moreover, has been charging very low rates, which cannot, we believe, be bettered by the Hydro-Electric Commission, and the public throughout the district are well satisfied. The company have expressed entire willingness to allow their rates to be subject to regulation by the Hydro-Eelectric Commission itself. The franchise of Peterboro, for instance, requires that the rates may be readjusted every five years, and the Electric Power Company is perfectly content to allow the rates which it may charge, to be regulated in the way stated. The Hydro-electric Commission, however, does not favor this policy of regulation, but proposes to extend its system to Central Ontario in the same way as it has done in Western Ontario.

ONE SYSTEM

The shareholders of the Electric Power Company, apparently have no desire to block the policy of the Hydro-Electric Commission. They recognize that the interests of the district can be best served by one system, and if the Hydro-Electric Commission is not willing that the company should be the distributers, subject to regulation of its rates, they are willing that the company should sell out to the Hydro-Electric Commission, and let it be the sole distributor. Parliamentary negotiations to this end have been undertaken, but nothing definite has yet been done. The representatives of the company have expressed a willingness to sell on fair and reasonable terms, and consider that the best way of deciding what would be fair and reasonable can best be settled by arbitration, one arbitrator to be chosen by the Hydro Commission, one by the Electric Power Company, and these two to agree upon a third. This commission of experts could examine the property and books of the company, and decide what, in their judgment, would be a fair price, and whatever their decision is, the owners of the Electric Power Company, we understand, pledge themselves to accept. The absolute fairness of this proposition can hardly be questioned.

WORK AT DAMS.

Even if the Commission decides to go ahead with development work at dams No. 4 and 8, there are two factors to remember. In the first place, the amount of power which can be developed there is only seven or eight thousand horse power which amount will not begin to supply the demans of Central Ontario, and would in fact soon be absorbed in Peterborough and northern towns, leaving the rest of the country unsupplied by the Hydro Commission. The Electric Power Company is already selling fifteen thousand horse power, and has about sixteen thousand horse power more in process of development.

The second point is, that construction work at the dams from which the Commission would derive its power, has not been yet commenced, and at best, therefore, it will be two years before the Commission could supply power. It may, of course use energy temporarily from the Otonabee company's present dam, if it should expropriate that system, but the whole of the output of the Otonabee plant is already sold to consumers in Peterborough, so that there would be no practical gain. Competition from the Hydro-Electric Commission is therefore practically impossible until at least two years have elapsed. The Electric Power Company is strongly entrenched, and its position will certainly not become weaker during the next two years.

Considering the modern and substantial construction of the Electric Power Company's system, their facilities for providing continuity of service their recognized fair treatment of the municipalities they serve, their willingness to arbitrate the sale of their entire equipment and not least, their ability to hold their own in any kind of fair competition the Commission can institute against them we believe the Government would be entirely ill-advised in expending large sums of the province's money in a duplicate system.

A Sheriff's Bill.

Greatness is an expensive luxury, and a Lord Mayor of London who only spends £10,000 out of his private purse, in addition to his official £10,000 for his year of office, may consider himself lucky. The sheriffs, too, have an expensive time of it. A former sheriff's account, which has now been disclosed, shows a total of £4,077 6s. 11d., made up as follows:

Two carriages and four horses, £648 2s. 4d.; half-cost of sheriffs' breakfast, £86 14s. 4d.; quarter cost of banquet and expenditure, 9th November, 1892, £874 13s. 6d.; state servants, liveries, wages, etc., £440 5s. 5d.; robes, dresses, and chain, £526 18s. 7d.; charities, £256 4s.; Old Bailey expenses, £392 16s. 8d.; under-sheriff, £723 16s. 2d.; sundries, £127 12s. 11d.

Straight Talk In Court.

Judge Cluer, like his predecessor, Judge Bacon, has spoken out strongly against the perjury he has to listen to at the Whitechapel (Eng.) County Court. On one occasion Judge Bacon when examining the books of a creditor who had sent his son, who was also his bookkeeper, to represent him, he found that the figures in the account had been tampered with. Judge Bacon promptly gave judgment for the defendant.

Later in the day the father appeared and applied for a new trial. "Certainly not," said the judge. "My only regret is that I did not send the books to the Treasury." "But," said the plaintiff, "my son would not commit perjury for the world." "No," retorted the judge, "he did it for threepence-halfpenny. Go away."

Dear Tea.

The earliest mention of tea by an English-speaking writer is probably that contained in a letter from Wickham, an agent of the East India Co., written from Firando, Japan, on June 27, 1615, to Eaton, another agent of the company resident at Macao, asking for a pot of the "best sort of chaw." It was not till 1650 or thereabouts that the English began to use tea to any considerable extent—and with reason, the price of tea in England ranging from $30 to $50 per pound.

THE TIPPER

He travelled round the country and he tipped wher'er he went,
And he was nearly always "broke" or else was badly bent.
He tipped the chair car porter and the boy who lugged his grip;
In fact, there wasn't anyone whom this man didn't tip.
He tipped the old hack driver who took him to the hotel,
He tipped the hotel porter, and each time he pushed the bell
He tipped the bellboy handsomely because he knew he must,
He knew that he was up against the tip receiver's trust.
He tipped the cafe waiter and he tipped the bus boy, too;
The leader of the orchestra and all his merry crew,
He tipped the car conductor and he tipped the corner cop;
He got the tipping habit so he really coudn't stop.
He tipped the auto scorcher who ran over him one day,
They took him in a basket to the hospital straightway,
He thought he simply had to tip the friendly purse.
When he had reached the other shore his terror it was great,
He had no coin with which to tip St. Peter at the gate.

WHAT FOLLOWED A CUT

A Magistrate's Wonderful Experience With Zam-Buk

Mr. J. E. Arsenault, a Justice of the Peace, and station master at Wellington, on the Prince Edward Island Ry., has had a wonderful proof of the healing power of Zam-Buk. He says:

"Four years ago, I had an accident. I slipped in the station and fell on a freight truck, sustaining a bad cut on the front of my leg. I thought this would heal, but instead of doing so it developed into a bad ulcer and later into a form of eczema which spread very rapidly and also started on the other leg. Both legs became so swollen and sore that I could only go about my work by having them bandaged. My doctor said I must stop work and lay up.

"After six months of this trouble I consulted another doctor, but with no better result. I tried all the salves, liniments and lotions I heard of, but instead of getting better I got worse.

"This was my condition when I got my first box of Zam-Buk. Greatly to my delight that first box gave me relief. I continued to apply it to the sores, and day by day they got better. I could see that at last I had got hold of something which would cure me, and in the end it did.

"It is now over a year since Zam-Buk worked a cure in my case, and there has been no return of the eczema or any trace of it."

Such is the nature of the great cures which Zam-Buk is daily effecting. Purely herbal in composition this great balm is a sure cure for all skin diseases, cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, blood-poisoning, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, cuts, burns and bruises. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price.

PAULIST FATHER ANSWERS QUERIES

What Priest Had to Say About Canadian Masonry

Some People Outside the Church May Not be Doomed

"No one is condemned to the fires to hell unless he dies unrepentant in mortal sin. The Roman Catholic church does not say that Protestants are doomed to eternal punishment because they are Protestants, but concedes the fact that there may be many outside the pale of the Roman Catholic church who die fully repentant of mortal sin and may not be doomed to eternal punishment. But the Church does not say that if there be any who believe that the Roman Catholic Church is the true Church, and yet keep without her fold, that person dies unforgiven. The anathemas of the church are only upon those who reject her with their eyes opened to her truths."

So said Father Blennedy, one of the Paulist Fathers, who are conducting a mission to non-Catholics at Our Lady of Lourdes, at Toronto, in response to a question as to whether all Protestants were not considered as lost by the Church of Rome.

PETER HAD A MOTHER-IN-LAW

"Was not Peter a married man? Where then did the Church get its authority for the celibacy of the priesthood?" asked another questioner. "Was there not a time when the priests could marry?"

"Peter had a mother-in-law, so it follows that he must have been a married man. Celebacy was not cumplusory in the early Church, and was not taught by Christ except as a virtue. It grew in the Church as a matter of discipline, and can be changed at any time. All authorities however, are agreed that celibacy is best for the clergy."

"Is the Roman Catholic Church fair in its criticism of the secret societies of this Province? In what way are the Masons of Canada antagonistic to the Church?"

MASONRY VS. THE CHURCH.

"Except Orange lodges, which are fraternal, rather than secret societies, the most of the so-called secret societies of Ontario are not openly antagonistic to the Roman Catholic Church. As regards the Masonic order, its principal purpose on the continent has been to destroy Christianity and to constantly harass and persecute our Church. I should be glad to know that this is not the attitude of Masonry in Canada; but certainly even in its mildest form here the tendency of Masonry is to cause its members to fall away from and neglect the Church and religion."

"Rev. Father, is it a fact that the Salvation Army is doing more good than the Catholic Church?" drew from the audience scarce-suppressed laughter.

"The Salvation Army does a lot of good even if their methods do seem ridiculous to us. I have been told by one of their number converted to the Church that she worked with sincere purpose while in the Army. They feed the poor and we shouldn't scorn any good deeds."

FRANCE DENOUNCED.

"If converts and monasteries are so good for the country, why did the French Government close them down?"

"Greed, the greed of an infidel Government led to the seizure of the property of defenceless women. Harmless saintly women were driven forth from their sheltering convents in order that the greed of unscrupulous infidels might be satiated. It was the greatest act of suppression fo the twentieth century," concluded Reverend Father.

The sermon was preached by another of the Paulist Fathers, who took for his subject the celebration of the mass and its significance to Catholics. In a very eloquent address he argued that the Protestant sacrament meant really little or nothing, and by quoting from the revised version of the Protestant Bible sought to show that the Catholic mass was the only true communion.

FISHERY INSPECTORS SEIZE 24 LUNGE AND 13 BASS

Fish Were Being Brought to the City on a Hand Sleigh by Three Men, Who Made Their Escape.

Fishery and Game Inspectors Carson and Watt, made a big haul last night, when they confiscated twenty-four lunge and thirteen bass, together with a hand-sleigh by which they were presumably being brought to this city for sale.

The inspectors had been on the alert for some time for just such a case, and succeeding in working up information that gave them the clue, which materialized in the confiscation of the fish.

The outfit was under a guard of three men, all of whom managed to affect an escape before the officers came upon them. The men, however, are known and will be prosecuted.

They were bringing the fish to the city by a side line route, having, it is believed came from Chemong. The seizure took place about one mile from Jackson Park, near the cheese factory, in the neighborhood of nine o'clock.

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLAR ROBBERY IN HEART OF NEW YORK

New York, February 15.—Twenty-five thousand dollars in currency was stolen from a taxicab in the heart of the financial district this morning by three highwaymen who sprang into the vehicle and overpowered W. F. Smith and Frank Wardell, messengers of the East River National Bank. Both messengers were badly injured, and the robbers escaped with the money—$15,000 in $5 bills and $10,000 in $100 bills. The currency was being transported from the Produce Exchange Bank in the lower part of the city.

As the taxicab turned into Church street and began to pass the rear of Trinity Churchyard, three men sprang from the curb. One jumped on the chauffeur's seat; the other two got into the vehicle. The man on the seat pressed a revolver through his overcoat pocket against the chauffeur and commanded him to drive swiftly or without making any outcry.

Inside the vehicle the two robbers were belaboring the bank messengers over the head. Smith, one of the messengers is sixty-one years old, and he was bleeding and almost unconscious, when the taxicab reached Park Place, a few blocks up. Wardell was badly beaten about the head, but not so seriously hurt.

At Park Place, the highwaymen jumped from the taxicab bearing a tin box, which they had wrested from the messengers, and which contained the currency. In a flash they had sprung into a big black automobile which seemed to be awaiting their coming, and were quickly lost in the maze of traffic.

OBITUARY

MRS. P. J. O'BRIEN.

At the Lakeside Hospital, Cleveland, Ohio, on Thursday, Feb. 8th, the death occurred of Mrs. O'Brien, wife of Mr. P. J. O'Brien, of Swansea, Ontario, now with the Dean Electric Company, of Elyria, Ohio. Mrs. O'Brien had been ill for about a month and though suffering intensely at times never lost her cheery disposition nor hope of recovery. Everything that love or means could suggest to bring about a restoration to health was done, but it was willed otherwise. Mrs. O'Brien, formerly Miss Sylvia Morgan, of Peterborough, was the youngest of a family of one son and eight daughters. She spent several years in Toronto, prior to her marriage, four years ago, when she went with her husband to her new home in Elyria. She was an ideal wife, loving and thoughtful and the bereaved husband and relatives in their grief will have the sympathy of an extensive circle of acquaintances. A mass of requieum was said in the chapel of the cathedral, Cleveland, and was attended by representatives of all the departments of the Dean Electric Company, and by Mrs. Wm. O'Brien, Mrs John Dynan, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Fred Hare, of St. Catharines, sisters. Miss Mary O'Brien, sister of Mr. P. J. O'Brien, was also present. The remains were brought to Toronto and the funeral took place on Monday morning attended by friends and relatives from a distance. Among the mourners were, Mr. Wm. Morgan, of Winnipeg, brother, and Mrs. McCarthy, of Rat Portage, a sister; Mrs. Jas. O'Brien, of Swansea, and Mr. Wm. O'Brien, a nephew. Interment was in O'Brien's plot at St. Michael's cemetery. May she rest in peace.—Catholic Register.

"THE THIEF" AT THE GRAND

"The Thief" which comes to the Grand Theatre next Wednesday, Feb. 21, evening, is a play for women to talk about. Ever since its production in Paris, where it created a sensation, and in New York, where it caused all the dramatic reviewers to exhaust themselves in columns of praise, the women of both countries have used it as the chief topic of conversation for months after witnessing a performance.

"The Thief" exposes the inner workings of a woman's heart—a woman so deeply in love with her husband as to go any lengths to please and to satisfy him. Marie Louise, the wife in "The Thief" the role originated by Margaret Illington, has a passion to please her husband. He has often expressed his admiration of her friends because they "looked so nice" and "dressed so becomingly." Marie Louise, for fear of losing the love she held so dearly, determines to hold it by dressing in a manner to attract and interest her better half. But she has insufficient funds. Her husband is not rich, and clothes cost lots of money. So she buys dresses she cannot pay for and in order not to be found out, steals money from her dearest friend, whom she is visiting. The blame is laid on her friend's son who, because of his love for Marie Louie, confesses to the crime.

But the husband is not satisfied and questions his wife more closely with the result that, in a torture of agony, tears and supplications, she finally confesses that she and not the boy is the thief. Her husband is thunderstruck. He denounces and casts her off. The wife, wrought up to the highest pitch of anguish, threatens to hurl herself from her bedroom window. She is restrained and made to confess to the woman from whom she stole the money. The disgrace is too great for the husband to bear, however, and he decides to leave the country. Before going, he forgives his wife, and she accompanies him to begin life anew. It is acclaimed by the world's greatest critics to be the greatest play of its kind ever written, and its presentation should be taken advantage of. The cast engaged to present "The Thief" is composed of players of distinction and ability, many of the original artists having been re-engaged.

The seat sale opens Monday morning.

ANXIETY OF THE FARMER.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Funny duck that signing himself "Farmer," writing to the Examiner of Tuesday, criticizing Mr. Burnham for asking the farmers of his constituency what their opinion is of the proposed Austrailian reciprocity treaty. The letter was likely written in the Examiner office and sounds like "Jimmy" himself. He says that Mr. Burnham ought not to ask any farmer his opinion, but go right on and do as he pleases, never minding what the farmer thinks. Yes, that's the way "Jimmy" did, but Mr. Burnham isn't like that. He wants to represent the people, not himself.

LAUNCHES NEWEST IDEA IN SUGAR

That the oldest firms are not always the least progressive is illustrated by the fact that the new plan of marketing granulated sugar in sealed cartons is being introduced by the Canada Refining Sugar Co., whose Redpath Sugar has been known in Canada for over half a century.

When in 1854 John Redpath & Son established in Montreal the first sugar refinery in British North America, Confederation was still thirteen years distant, and the population of Montreal was less than one-tenth of what it is to-day.

With John Redpath were associated his son Peter, known as the founder of McGill's Redpath Museum and Library, and George Drummond (afterwards Sir George) who was manager. The second and third generations of Redpaths are now represented in the Company by Messrs. Frank and William Redpath, while Sir George Drummond's son, Mr. Huntley Drummond, is now President.

Though one would never guess it from his vigor and activity, Mr. Jas. McMenamin, Superintendent of the Refinery, was brought out from Greenock, Scotland, in 1854, to take charge of part of the work, and he has held his position of superintendent for 44 years. Another member of the staff, Mr. Alex. Bower, has also been connected with the work from its establishment.

As first equipped, the Canada Sugar Refinery employed about 100 men, and turned out 75 barrels of sugar a day. Now it employs fully seven times as large a working force, and can turn out over thirty times as much sugar. The plant occupies over 11 acres.

The sugars put out at first included "Ye Olde Sugar Loafe" of 11 lbs. weight, Confectioners' A. Dry Crushed and Yellows. Granulated sugar was unknown until about 1879.

Now this pioneer firm are leading the way with the very newest thing in sugar, the Redpath 5-Pound Package.

Hon Mr. Hanna Makes Reply to Questions of the Oppositions.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—Hon. W. J. Hanna bore the brunt of all the discussion in the Legislature yesterday. Hon. A. G. MacKay objected to a clause in the House of Refuge Act in which the punishment of inmates was left to the officials of the institution. Under the act, which was framed up by a committee of judges, the Lieutenant-Governor-in-council was never mentioned as having any authority in the matter. Sir James Whitney expressed surprise that such a regulation should prevail in a British country. He said the Lieutenant-Governor-in-council undoubtedly should be held responsible on all matters of this kind.

Mr. Hanna also had to account for a clause in the Health Act whereby compulsory vaccination for smallpox was enforced, on the recommendation of the medical health officer. Hon. A. G. MacKay contended that in cases where the M. H. O. was a responsible man, the rule would hold good, but in other cases where suspicion of a disease, being smallpox had brought about a scare in the neighborhood, he did not think it justifiable that the whole community should be subjected to compulsory vaccination, or the alternative of a fine of $25. He recommended that the matter be left to the chief medical health officer.

Mr. Hanna said the present law was being enforced, and it would be better to take one step at a time.

Hon. W. H. Hearst introduced a bill to amend the Algonquin National Park Act. It provides that during the the construction and after the completion of any railway passing through the Algonquin National Park, the Minister may appoint as many rangers, officers or guardians as he may see fit for the protection of the fish, animals and birds, and of any other property or interest of the crown or the public therein. The expense and salaries in connection with the new system of protection must be paid by the railways. The money is to be a debt to the crown from the railway company, and is recoverable in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Hon. Mr. Foy introduced a bill respecting money lenders. It provides that where, in respect of money lent, the court finds that the cost of the loan is excessive, the court may order that the transaction be reopened, and notwithstanding any settlement or agreement to settle, may relieve the debtor from payment of any sum in excess of that adjudged as fair. It may order a creditor to repay any such excess, and may set aside, either wholly or in part, any security given in respect to the money lent. If the creditor has parted with the security, the court may order him to indemnify the debtor. The act provides that the powers may be exercised in any action by a creditor for the recovery of money lent and action by the debtor or an action in which the amount due or about to become due is in question. The act is not retroactive.

A clause provides that every money-lender shall be registered within one month after the act goes into force, and no person may carry on the business of a money-lender or enter into any agreement for money lending who is not registered. A penalty not exceeding $200 for the first offence, and on the second offence, imprisonment for six months, or in case of a corporation a penalty of $1,000 is provided. No prosecution for an offence under this bill shall be commenced without the consent of the Attorney-General. A penalty not exceeding $500 is provided for any money-lender who by false or misleading statements or promises induces any person to borrow money. The Government may direct the suspension of any person who has been convicted of an offence.

Mr. Rowell gives notice of a bill to be introduce on Tuesday next to regulate the hours of employment in underground work. The object is to prevent men working for more than eight hours out of the twenty-four, which will include the time descending and ascending to and from the scene of labor. In the case of emergency or imminent danger to life or property, the hours of labor may be extended. Any one who persuades, commands or allows labor to work in contravention of this act may be liable to fine or imprisonment.

Mr. Rowell gives notice that he will enquire of the Ministry as to how many petitions were presented to the Legislature or the Government in each of the years 1909, 1910, 1911, asking for legislation enabling municipalities to levy a lower rate upon improvements than that levied upon lands, or to fix the assessment valuation of improvements at less than their real value.

CHAMPAGNE FOR SEAT IN SENATE

Appointment for Vacancy Under Consideration by Government

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—Napoleon Champagne, member of the Legislature for Ottawa, east, is believed to be slated for the vacant Senatorship, which must go to a French Canadian.

Champagne, who has gone to Ottawa, stated before leaving that the appointment was in the hands of the government, and as yet he had not had a chance to a senatorial appointment.

Brides Need Not "Obey."

London, Feb. 17.—As a result of the recent suffragette wedding, at which the bride refused to promise to obey her husband, there is a prospect that the word "obey" will be stricken from the Church of England marriage service.

The matter came up at a meeting of lower house of convocation of the province of Canterbury, Thursday, and a resolution was adopted recommending that the 'Scriptural form of last exhortation in the marriage ceremony be revised."

The Dean of Canterbury objected strenuously to altering "an exhortation which contains passages from St. Peter and St. Paul on the grounds that these apostles were wrong."

The Dean of Winchester, however, insisted on the recommendation, and it was adopted with a slight modification.

The house also agreed to revise the collect following in the marriage service, asking for children for the couple. For this collect the committee proposes to substitute the following words: "Bestow, we beseech Thee, upon these two persons the heritage and gift of children."

GIVE SIKHS A CHANCE

Rev. Dr. Wilkie Says They Would Make Good.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—"Give the Sikh a chance and he will make good in Canada. The law which excludes this class of people from British Columbia is a huge farce because of its unjust, unfair interpretation." Speaking to the Women's Canadian Club in the Guild Hall yesterday afternoon, Rev. Dr. Wilkie, for thirty years a missionary in India, endeavored to prove that these British subjects should be given different treatment at the hands of the Federal Government. He declared that it was an outrage that Japanese and Chinese should be allowed to enter Canada and the wives of Sikhs barred. He advocated entire Asiatic exclusion if one class was favored.

Classing them as fabrications and misinterpretations. Dr. Wilkie scored the newspaper stories which had characterized the Sikhs in Vancouver as seditionists and unworthy of any consideration. He wondered why families should be separated by an unjust law, and he strongly favored the admission of wives of Sikhs. Of the very few thousand settled in British Columbia, he said 300 were engaged in farming and 500 in dairying, which proved, in his estimation, that the class was not worthless. The province in the extreme west was practically unknown and needed cultivators badly.

"Sikhs as a body with whom I have worked for years, can be trusted," quoth he, "I have learned to love and admire them. In some cases they are not desirable citizens, but they can be easily cultivated into good men and women. They are the same stock from which we sprang. They are our equals in this regard, and they will be our equals in citizenship if given the opportunity."

He believed that the immigration officer of Vancouver was responsible and not the Ottawa authorities. If the people knew the facts he considered the monstrous wrong would be set right. There were only two courses—deport the whole crowd or eliminate the unnatural inhuman, immoral position of the Sikhs in Canada by allowing wives to join husbands. The present conditions caused the severance of home relations.

"India was won for the Empire by the Sikhs," he said. "These people are called brothers when there's a fight, but seditionists and niggars when they want a little concession."

GRITS GAVE COAL ORDER

Opposition Now Has Objection to Make.

Ottawa, Feb. 17.—Parliament passed the whole of yesterday's session in committee of supply, with the exception of a short interlude for a trip over to the Senate, where the Deputy Governor-General gave the royal assent to several bills.

The first couple of hours were taken up with attacks on the Minister of Public Works on the subject of dismissals.

In reply to a question of Hon. R. Lemieux, Hon. F. D. Monk stated that there was no immediate intention of carrying out the suggestion for a new residence for the Governor-General on a new site near Rideau Hall. In view of the fact that considerable sums had been spent on repairs and refitting and that large expenditures were needed for Departmental building. Two items for Rideau Hall, $35,000 and $9,000, were passed.

E. M. Macdonald (Pictou) appealed to the patriotism of the Government to burn Canadian coal in heating the public buildings.

"It must be rather peculiar to those not acquainted with the idiosyncrisies of political life," answered Hon. F. D. Monk, "to learn that the coal we are burning here to-night was provided under contracts signed by the friends of my hon. friend opposite in spite of the vigor with which he is assailing that policy to-night."

J. E. Armstrong (East Lambton) asked the Minister, in lighting the public buildings of Ontario, to remember the great work that was being done by the Hydro-Electric Commission.

Hon. F. D. Monk declared that the construction of another graving dock at Quebec was an absolute necessity. Nothing had been done to date in the way of a comprehensive plan for the improvement of the harbor, as had been done in the case of Montreal.

He was not prepared to say, however, that the Government itself could undertake to operate the graving docks in the twelve or thirteen national ports recommended as such by the transportation commission. The policy of the late Government had been to grant a subsidy. He did not think this a bad plan. The Government would consider the matter at an early date.

The Minister of Public Works got the last of his estimates through, and the committee took up the estimates of the Department of the Interior.

SPREAD RAIL DISASTER ON C.P.R. INJURES SIX PERSONS

Toronto, Feb. 17.—Running downgrade at forty miles an hour, C.P.R. train 708, bound from Owen Sound to Toronto, jumped the rails and was hurled down an embankment at Dead Man's Cut, near Chatsworth, yesterday afternoon, and six persons were more or less seriously injured. The train was due in Toronto at 7.50 last night, but did not arrive till after midnight. All the victims were men, and one may die. The cause of the wreck was a defective rail. The victims are:

F. J. McNabb, architect, 38 Winchester street, Toronto, scalp wound and broken nose. Taken to Western Hospital.

H. O. Parks, mail clerk, 242 Seaton street, Toronto, broken leg and badly shaken up. Taken to Western Hospital.

Harold Harshaw, West Toronto, back injured. Taken home.

Conductor Hines and Engineer Little, both of Toronto, were in charge of the train. Probably the presence of mind of Little averted a more serious catastrophe. The moment the rails spread and the wheels were on the tiles he applied the brakes, but just gradually, fearing that to do otherwise might cause telescoping of the cars. At is was all the coaches, numbering five, cleared the rails, the mail and one passenger car going down a 25-foot embankment. The engine and the other coaches, although clearing the rails, lay partially on their sides.

Word of the derailment reached the C.P.R. office at 4.30, and an auxiliary was immediately despatched from West Toronto to the scene of the wreck. A train was taken north from Walkerton and the passengers and badly smashed baggage were transferred to it and brought to Toronto, arriving at the Union Station at 12.20 this morning. Two ambulances were in waiting, which immediately conveyed four of the injured to the Western Hospital.

When Parks was being removed from the baggage car on a stretcher one of the ambulance corps slipped on the ice, resulting in him being thrown to the pavement. He was picked up unconscious. Shane was taken off at Orangeville, being so badly injured that it was not thought advisable to bring him to the city. Two ribs pieced his lungs, and he is in a very precarious condition.

Fulton and Parks were mail clerks and Shane was a baggageman.

The engineer and firemen stuck to their posts and came out scathless.

MAKES CHARGES THAT JAPANESE TORTURE COREAN CHRISTIANS

Roused by charges from scores of American missionaries in Northern Corea that Japan is making efforts to stamp out Christianity by torturing and imprisoning converts, the Rev. Dr. Arthur J. Brown, of this city, president of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, has gone to Washington to make an appeal to President Taft for this government's interference.

Professor Homer B. Hulbert and Bishop Merriman C. Harris, of New York, who are interested in the proceedings decline to discuss the case.

HE IS STILL THINKING

Rowell Hasn't Any Decided Policy on Temperance Question.

The meeting was opened somewhat late, owing to the train on which Mr. Rowell arrived having been delayed.

The retiring president, Mr. George S. Gibbons, opened the meeting with a short speech.

Mr. Rowell was loudly cheered. He told how he had made his start in political life in this city, and said they could see that he was back at it as vigorously as twenty-two years ago. He paid a tribute to the group of men at his back in Toronto, and expressed peculiar gratification over the return of Mr. Robert Sutherland, M.P.P., for his native constituency of East Middlesex. He told how Mr. Sutherland had already got the Government to move in legislation for the advantage of the horse-breeding industry. While the seven sleepers sleep at Toronto, still by persistent prodding they could be made to move, and he said a good service was being rendered the country by the educational campaigns that were being launched, and he urged upon Londoners to develop the London Liberal Club, which could be an influence not only in the city, but throughout the district.

The speaker elicited applause when he said that Sir James Whitney was omniscient and omnipotent. What he did not know was not worth knowing, and what he could not do was not worth doing.

A good deal of interest was being manifested in what the temperance policy of the Liberal party would be. Mr. Rowell recalled how prior to the late elections the announcement had been made that this serious problem would be carefully considered duringing the next Legislature, and the best ferm of legislation to remedy the liquor evil decided upon, when the Liberals would stand or fall by the policy to be adopted.

Progressive legislation for the betterment of the people would be advocated, and he believed the people would when the opportunity came tell the present Government to step aside and let the Liberals give the province that government which would give back to Ontario the proud position of the leading Province in Canada, which it held in the days of Oliver Mowat.

Britain Prevails.

Madrid, Feb. 17.—A most important step in advance has been taken in the negotiations between Spain and France on the subject of Morocco. The Spanish Government yesterday accepted the British proposition in regard to the collection of customs, the proceeds of which are to be applied to the liquidation of the Moroccan loans from 1904-1910.

Spain had entered a decided objection to the collection of the customs by the French acting as the representatives of the holders of the loans.

The British proposal provides for the appointment of a Franco-Spanish commission composed of six experts, and this body is to be empowered to settle all questions relative to the Moroccan customs.

The only remaining question of importance between France and Spain with regard to Morocco is that of the territorial compensations which are to be made to Spain.

MASK MEN BIND CASHIER AND FOREMAN TO CHAIRS

Toronto, Feb. 17.—Lurking outside in the dark until all the drivers had turned in their collections, two men, with faces concealed, at 7.30 last night entered the office of the Standard Chemical at the foot of John street, leveled revolvers at the cashier and knocked the night foreman down, unconscious. They then robbed the safe of $400, tied the two men to chairs and departed into the night.

Early this morning the detectives had not located the hold-up men, who had plenty of time to jump on a passing train and make their way out of the city.

The cashier, J. W. Mayo, 481 Brock avenue, a man of about fifty years, was just preparing to close up the day's work when the two robbers entered. Both wore woolly caps such as tobogganists wear, pulled down over the back of the head and fastened around at the front just below the nose. These caps were effectual as masks.

With Cashier Mayo was Geo. Ross, night superintendent of the plant. They were told to hold up their hands. Despite the fact that two guns were threatening them, Ross demurred.

"We mean business. You'll get killed if you don't put up your hands."

Ross hesitated, was struck on the head with a billy and dropped to the floor stunned.

Stripping the safe, which had not yet been locked, of all the cash within and gathering up some money lying on a desk, one of the robbers stuffed his pockets with small bills and $50 in silver, while the other kept his eyes and his gun on Mayo and the stirring foreman, who was struggling back to consciousness.

The money secured, the robbers bound the foreman and cashier to chairs, tying the knots tightly and with care.

"There's other men outside and they'll be there for twenty minutes. Don't move," said the robbers, as they started for the door.

One turned back, and as an added precaution, tore the telephone from the wall.

About half an hour later a watchman on his rounds visited the office and found the two men still tied, although they had squirmed and twisted and tried in every way to release each other.

Within ten minutes every police station in the city was warned to keep a sharp watch on every likely spot, and all the detectives were away scouring the city.

CHIEFS WANT CHANGES MADE IN CRIMINAL CODE

Spectators of Gambling Games Should Receive Stiffer Punishment.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—Advocating several radical changes and additions to the criminal code. the executive committee of the Chief Constables' Association of Canada yesterday interviewed the Minister of Justice at Ottawa.

Their desires are many. They wanted the law changed so that those looking on at gambling games will be liable to the same punishment as those actually participating. They would also have it that any gambling appliances found in a raided place would be prima facia evidence that gambling was carried on in that place.

Under the present section only the chief constable or deputy chief constable may sign a gambling search warrant. This they want altered so that the authority may be delegated to any peace officer or constable.

One of the most far-reaching of their recommendations is that bail be not allowed pending appeal to a higher court. It often happens that appellants, out on bail, disappear and thus avoid punishment.

Carrying a revolver will be an offence for which there will be no option of a fine, the punishment on conviction being imprisonment, if the recommendations of the chiefs are carried out. They would also prohibit the manufacture, sale, importation, or having in possession, automatic pistols of every description, also Maxim silencers. Automatic pistols, they claim, are veritable gatling guns, and a serious menace to human life.

A Welland Canal Route.

Ottawa, Feb. 17.—The Hon. Frank Cochrane was waited upon yesterday afternoon by a deputation of interests from Brantford and Dunnville urging upon him the advantage of a route from Port Maitland to Jordan Harbor for the proposed enlarged Welland Canal. They claimed that it would mean a saving of distance, less rock excavation, earlier opening of the harbors, in the spring, owing to the existence of natural currents. They also urged that it would mean a saving of distance.

The Minister of Railways promised to refer the matter to the Department for a preliminary enquiry.

SOUR RISINGS FROM STOMACH

Those Who Experience Fullness and Pain After Meals, Stomach Disorders, and Indigestion, Should Read Below.

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

UNION LABEL

FIRE LOSSES

An exchange says that gross carelessness causes a good percentage of the fires in Canada and the loss is strikingly high compared with European countries. The New York Journal of Commerce gives the fire losses of the United States for 1911 as $234,000,000 and Canada's fire bill during the same period was $21,000,000. The per capita loss in the U.S. was $4.05 in Canada $3. The average loss per capita in European countries is about 85 cents. Lightning heads the list of causes of fire in the Dominion with incendiarism next in line, but the controllable causes could be greatly lessened by more care, by better building regulations and supervision and more fireproof, construction.

A TRUE PATRIOT

Dr. Sun Yat Sen, president of the provisional government of the new Chinese republic, has made a noble self-sacrifice in order to bring about peace in China. With almost dictatorial power in his hands, he voluntarily lays down his office in order that the organization of the government on a permanent basis might be affected. He submitted his resignation to the national assembly, stating that he thought Yuan Shi Kai the "strong man" of China was the most fitting person to conduct the affairs of the new republic. And this, despite the fact that the later was a bitter opponent of Dr. Sun Yat Sen. This act on the part of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, stamps him as a patriot of the true type, and such a man as he has shown himself to be, would have been a credit at the head of the new republic. China will have many critical situations to deal with before the people are fitted for self government, and strong men are needed at the helm, if the republic is to deal successfully with these dangers.

CHILD LABOR

Some strong comments appear in the Literary Digest regarding child labor in the United States. The article says that conditions in the cotton mills of the South, as well as in the congested industrial centres of the north are shameful. In Canada conditions are much better, but vigilance is required to reduce the evil. Child labor in occupations not covered by the factory act or the shop regulation bill are probably increasing, and prompt efforts should be made to correct the evil as far as possible. Commercial practices such as are known in congested factory districts like New York and the industrial hives of the Old Country must be kept out of the Dominion. Immunity from the national menace of child labor is possible and imperative.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Japan is not going to fall behind in the game of preparing for war. She will spend $92,000,000 on the army and navy this year.

It is now said that Premier Asquith is anxious to withdraw from the leadership of the Liberal government in Britain. If he takes such a step there will be an interesting fight for the premiership between Mr. Lloyd George and Sir Edward Gray. The Radicals are solid for Lloyd George.

The temperance forces of Ontario will put up a candidate in the first bye-election in Ontario to test the feeling of the people towards prohibition and the fight should be an interesting one.

Montreal has received one thousand tubs of butter from New Zealand and the result was a drop of ten cents a pound on that article. Some enterprising Peterboro merchant might try this scheme.

At Manchester, Eng., the union dock workers have gone on strike because non-union men were put to work beside them. Wonder how it would work if the non-union man refused to work with the union man. This would soon tell which party was in the minority.

The kind of man we admire most, is the one who has a mind of his own and the courage of his convictions.

When the girl was struggling to make her way in the world her wealthy relatives didn't know her; but now that she has made good they are are looking up her address.

When I proposed to her, I hadn't any way of seeing how she took it; she was entirely concealed by blushes.

Everyone looks at him when he goes on the street, but that doesn't disturb his serenity; he knows it is admiration that prompts them to stare at him.

For Sea-going Vessels

Toronto News.

A depth of 30 feet in the St. Lawrence and Welland canals would open all the Great Lakes to sea-going vessels, and it might convert Toronto, Owen Sound, Collingwood, Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur and Fort William into ocean ports. It would virtually push the Atlantic ocean 2000 miles inland, and the influence on railway rates and the general prosperity of the country might be very important. The Panama canal will attract much Western Canadian traffic, but a good water route from the Gulf of St. Lawrence to the head of Lake Superior would tend to keep the trade in Eastern Canadian channels.

ZAM-BUK FOR THE CHILDREN

Mothers Tell What It Did for Their Little Ones

Mrs. J. Quiding, of Ninette, Man., says; "My little boy was suffering very badly from a form of skin disease over his eye. I applied Zam-Buk to the effected part, and in a very short time the sores were healed."

Mrs. F. Miners, of 311 Suffolk street, Guelph, Ont., says; "My little daughter Lorinda (6), contracted a skin disease. This first broke out like tiny water blisters, afterwards taking the form of dry scabs. These would disappear for a short time, and then reappear worse than ever. We tried Zam-Buk, and perseverance with its use resulted in a cure."

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"It's only the elevated, deah," said Sally, pitying my agitation, "and it's never fallen down yet, so I don't believe it will today. You shall take a ride with me if Cousin Katherine will let you, which she probably won't. You can't think what fun it is shooting past the windows of the houses just like glancing into an exciting story book you know you'll never have a chance to finish. You do get a peep into tragedies and comedies sometimes."

"My goodness!" I exclaimed. "I'm thankful I don't have to live in one of those houses. It must be impossible ever to take a bath or to get engaged properly."

Fortunately for my peace of mind we didn't stop very long in that fierce street, but cut across again and came out in Fifth avenue, of which one seems to be born knowing a little more than of other streets in America. Just as almost every one in English novels lives in Park lane, so all the New Yorkers you read of live in Fifth avenue, and I should have been disappointed if Mrs. Ess Kay hadn't, because in that case I should eventually have to go home without studying home life in the States from the right standpoint.

At first I didn't see where the grand houses I'd heard of kept themselves, for everywhere were smart shops and public buildings and—so close now that we could put down our sunshades—mountainous skyscrapers. The shops were beautiful, though Mrs. Ess Kay apologized for them by saying that it was out of season, and I'd never seen so much brilliance of color or variety in a street. I tried to search for the cause of this effect, but I couldn't define it. Perhaps it was partly the clearness of the atmosphere, but there was a great deal more than that. Everything you passed seemed to be pink or pale green or gold or ivory white or ultramarine blue, yet when you really thought it out detail by detail it wasn't. And, though I'd considered the skyscrapers awful from a distance, spinning along at their feet I couldn't deny them a fantastic kind of attractiveness.

At our rate of speed I hadn't to wait many minutes for the grand Fifth avenue houses, and oh, poor London—poor, dear London! I wanted to fly back and tear down Buckingham palace.

Mrs. Ess Kay had always talked about her "New York home," which made it sound rather small and modest, so I was surprised when we stopped before a huge, square pile, built of rich looking, rough brown stones, so nearly the color of a Christmas plum pudding that it made me hungrier than ever to look at it. The house is trimmed with three wide bands of carving, made of the same kind of stone, and there are carved bronze railings and lamps on the porch, and the front door is carved, too, like the door of a cathedral.

We were let into a vestibule, all colored mosaic and things, and that opened into a big, square, glassed over garden, with a great marble fountain playing in the middle. I never saw such a wonderful place in my life, but until I got used to it, I couldn't help feeling that it was more like a splendid foreign hotel than a mere house. The garden isn't a real garden when you come to examine it, for it's paved with rare stones of different colors, like the jewels in Aladdin's cave, but all around the fountain beautiful flowers are growing and pink and white water lilies float in the marble basin. There are orange trees in pots, and a forest of tall palms, all of which are reflected and repeated over and over again in the mirrors of which the walls are made, and on the little tables standing about here and there among groups of inlaid chairs are bowls overflowing with roses. The roof is a skylight, over which creepers have been trained, so that the light which filters through is a lovely green. No doors are visible at first glance, but when you are initiated, all you have to do is to walk up to the mirror wall, find a gold button, press it and a door opens into a room as marvelous as the fountain court, around which, it seems, all the rest of the house is built.

"We'll have something to drink here," said Mrs. Ess Kay, "before we take off our things." So we all sat down, among the palms and orange blossoms, and a delicious sense of peace after storm stole over us with the coolness and the green dusk and the perfume of flowers.

I supposed that "something to drink" at this time of day meant tea, but almost immediately a footman came through the glass wall, carrying a tray with nothing on it except tall tumblers. There were straws sticking out of the tumblers, and as the man moved I could hear a faint tinkle of ice.

For a minute I was bitterly disappointed, because the thought of tea had supported me for hours. But when I tasted the stuff in my glass I wasn't disappointed any longer. It had two or three strawberries, some bits of pineapple, and a white grape bobbing about on top, and it was full of chopped ice. I don't know what it was, for nobody mentioned its name, and I was ashamed to ask, lest it might seem too ignorant; but it was good, and tasted as if it might have a little wine in it, mixed with fizzy water and other things. When I had drunk mine, I felt a different girl; quite merry and so friendly toward Mrs. Ess Kay. I had never thought her such a nice woman. I laughed at almost everything that she and Sally said, and I said some rather funny things myself. Still, I'm not sure that as a regular thing I wouldn't rather have tea.

We sat resting for some time, though I wasn't tired at all now. I could have run a mile, but suddenly I felt a little sleepy, and I was glad when Mrs. Ess Kay proposed to go to our rooms. Leaving the fountain court we came into a hall, hung with tapestry, and from it a wide stairway led us up to a gallery, lighted from the top, which runs all around the house, with the doors of the bedrooms opening off from it.

Mine is so gorgeous that I haven't known one thoroughly comfy moment in it since I came, except at night when I'm asleep.

A MODERN MEDICINE FOR THE BABY

What mother cannot remember the times of her childhood when the castor oil bottle was brought into use — the dread with which she looked forward to a dose of it—the fight she put up when forced to take it. Surely all mothers will be glad to spare their little ones this discomfort—this dread. Modern science has banished the bad smelling, evil-tasting, griping castor oil and given in its place a modern remedy—a remedy pleasant to take, mild, though thorough in action, absolutely harmless and something the little one won't dread. That medicine is Baby's Own Tablets—the only remedy used by thousands of mothers of little ones—the medicine that has forced castor oil and "soothing" syrups out of the home and has taken their place to bring health to baby and joy to the parents. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CARRIED SECRETS TO THE GRAVE

London, Feb. 16—The will of Sir George Henry Lewis, the famous English solicitor, who died in December, was filed for probate yesterday. The value of the estate is placed at $1-188,075.

Sir George, as is well known, carried the secrets of half of England's aristocracy and many of those of Royalty, and there has been great curiosity as to whether the will would provide for the publication of any biography. The will, however, is just what might be expected from a man who was never known to reveal a secret. It says the testator never had any intention of publishing reminiscences based "on many matter which were confided to me of a delicate nature, which, apart from considerations of ordinary professional honor, imposed the necessity of absolute secrecy.

The will states that, for over forty years the testator never kept a diary and that there were no documents or memoranda which would reveal the confidences which had been reposed in him.

BRIGHT SERVICES AT S. A. TEMPLE

There will be special services at the Salvation Army Temple on Sunday, the feature of which is that the entire service, of a musical nature and religious help, will be conducted by the band. In the afternoon the band and songsters will render suitable music and the boys' band will also play. At night there will be a splendid service with plenty of good singing; no long sermons, only the plain gospel.

On Monday night the band will be giving a musical festival in the Temple under the direction of Bandmaster W. Peryer, and this will be an interesting and a profitable evening to all who will attend. The meeting starts at eight o'clock. All seats are free and a welcome will be accorded to all. The program will be published on Monday.

PRICELESS BOOKS HAVE BEEN STOLEN

Two Hundred and Seventeen Taken From Peterborough Cathedral

London, Feb. 16.—No fewer than 217 historic books and manuscripts, some which are of most priceless value, have been stolen from the library of Peterborough Cathedral. The thefts are believed by the police to have extended from January, 1904, to June 1909, and were only disclosed yesterday when a middle-aged man giving the name of Tinkler, was accused at the local police court of stealing books nominally valued at £100.

For two years the secret has been kept even from those closely connected with the cathedral. In the meantime investigations were made, and the scope of the enquiry extended as far as New York. Some valuable works were in this way recovered from collectors.

Only six highly placed persons in the precints have the keys to the library, and the doors are always kept locked. It is thought that a skeleton key must have been used and a few books abstracted at a time.

The Dean does not consider it desirable to publish the list of missing books. The original of the Saxon Chronicles is said to have been recovered, but works of Roger Ascham, Francis Bacon, John Dryden, John Knox, and John Milton, and a letter from Queen Elizabeth to the Earl of Leicester, are among the missing books and documents.

Brantford's health league will inaugurate a campaign against typhoid fever, and the city council is urged as one step to start a bi-weekly collection of garbage.

It is currently reported that Mr. Frank E. Hodgins, K.C., Toronto, will be the Government counsel in the investigation of the Farmers' Bank before Sir William Meredith.

It is considered likely that J. J. Ritchie, K.C., of Halifax, N.S., will be elevated to the Supreme Court bench of Nova Scotia, in the place of the late Mr. Justice Laurance.

No Says Yuan.

Pekin, Feb. 17.—In the course of an interview with the Associated Press yesterday, Yuan Shi Kai said:

"Owing to lack of experience, the Republican Government will make many errors. Having been elected President of the Republic I will undertake the task."

Yuan Shi Kai said that he had a great admiration for Dr. Sun Yat Sen, who had shown himself a true patriot.

The princes of the Imperial court are beseeching Yuan Shi Kai not to leave Pekin fearing that if he does so something will happen to the court, which trusts only to him for its safety and for the fulfilment of the pledges given by the Republicans.

Cheap Tea is Dear Tea

SO declared the mother of a small family not long ago—

—And proved the statement true by simply relating her tea experience.

"I used a 30c. Tea for years," she said. "One day the Grocer asked me to try a 40c. package of Red Rose—he told me it was better Tea. I found it better Tea, and—before I had quite finished the first package I thought it made more Tea. The second pound I used with care——And found out that less Tea in the Pot made a richer, finer-flavored Tea, if you know what I mean."

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"

We know exactly what this lady meant—

The 30c. variety makes about 150 cups—

—Whereas the 40c. Red Rose Tea makes about 200 cups.

So—You might as well have better tea for the same cost in the long run.

There are several grades of Red Rose Tea selling at different prices, but the 40c. grade seems to please best. It is not only fine Quality but goes farther,

"Red Rose Tea is Good Tea"

FUNERALS TOO EXPENSIVE

A Plea for Simple Inexpensive Burials

[illegible] conventionalities which hold poor humanity in a relentless grip, none are more difficult to bring into harmony with the dictates of experience and common sense, than those connected with death and funerals. It has come to be considered a necessary mark of respect for a member of a family who has died to give him or her what has come to be known as a bang-up funeral with very little regard to the expense or the means of the survivors. Respect for the departed would be more truly manifested by committing him to the earth in the simplest way possible and devoting the needless expenditure to the payment of debts or to the advantage of the living.

DOG CATCHERS WERE UNPOPULAR

Aroused Indignation of Citizens and Mayor Ordered Dismissal

Brantford, Feb. 16.—Hamilton's dog-catcher, James Lindsay, essayed to fill that role here to-day, and at noon Mayor Hartman ordered that Lindsay and his assistant be dismissed. They operated under the new civic by-law, which empowered them to shoot all stray dogs on sight, and both were heavily armed. Such indignation was aroused at the actions of the dog-catchers that Mayor Hartman promptly put an end to the procedure.

— BETTER —
OPTICAL SERVICE
BY
A. A. FOWLER, Eyesight Specialist

In every trade, profession or branch of work, there are found a few men, who from special fitness, or education, or both, are better prepared to serve you in their line than the multitude of others in the same field.

Since Optometry requires especial ability in both professional and mechanical work, men that are fitted to do both equally well are scarce. Therefore you cannot be too particular about the selection of the man to whom you entrust your eyes.

The professional work—the examining and measuring of your eye defects, must be skilfully done. The mechanical part—the making and adjusting of your glasses is no less important.

Every phase of optical work is thoroughly and intelligently done here. From the first step in the examination to the final adjusting of the frame or mounting not a single thing is overlooked or slighted. I do all the work myself, and having had such fine success with most difficult, and neglected eyes, I do not hesitate to say that I can give you perfect satisfaction.

A visit will incur no obligation.

This Coffee Pot FREE

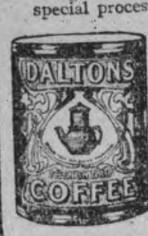
Why Dalton's French Drip Coffee is so Wholesome, Delicious and Economical

When you have once tasted Dalton's delicious French Drip Coffee, made in a Dalton's French Drip Coffee Pot, you will never be tempted to drink ordinary boiled Coffee again.

The Coffee berry, or bean, is protected by nature from the insect world by a tough outer shell or husk which contains tannin and other acid, bitter principles which are poisonous to insects and certainly not wholesome to the human system.

Other roasters of Coffee do not remove this bitter husk, and this is why many people find that ordinary Coffee does not agree with them. Not only that, but the usual way of roasting Coffee in cylinders over coke or gas fires, drives off the volatile essences, so essential to aroma and flavor.

Dalton's French Drip Coffee



The DALTON way is to throw the Coffee berries against an intensely hot flame. This roasts them in half the time and prevents the volatile essences being driven off. Then the Coffee is cooled by a special process, during which a strong suction air-blast blows off all foreign substances. Next comes the grinding, during which another powerful air-blast removes the poisonous, bitter outer shell. The Coffee contains absolutely no chicory and is packed in sealed tins, which preserve all the delightful flavor.

We make Dalton's French Drip Coffee in two strengths Mild Blend and Strong Blend. You cannot tell however which you will like the best until you try both and that is why we ask you to buy two tins in our special offer.

SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER

We feel so sure that you will find either Dalton's Mild Blend or Strong Blend French Drip Coffee just the Coffee that you have been looking for that we have authorized your Grocer to give you one of these handsome pots (worth $1.30) absolutely Free with your first purchase of a tin each of Mild and Strong Blend. You buy two tins of our Coffee—one of each blend—at 50c. per tin, to give it a fair trial, and we give you the means of testing it FREE, satisfied that you will use nothing but Dalton's French Drip Coffee thereafter.

25c. and 50c. tins. Never sold in Bulk.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES

For the information of those who are making enquiries in regard to new books for the library, it may be mentioned that the Library Committee is now engaged in preparing a list of works to be purchased. A suggestion book has been placed at the receiving desk for the purpose of obtaining the opinions of such as would like to see particular volumes on the shelves. This book is free for all to make use of either in the way of making requests for purchases or in order to draw the attention of the board to any matter connected with our library economy, with a view to its possible betterment. The Library Committee is anxious to meet the wishes of the public as far as it is possible and it is hoped that the patrons of the institution will make as much use as they can of the means placed at their disposal for giving vent to their ideas.

At the beginning of the year a system of scrap-books was started, arranged so as to give the chief items of current interest in the world at large. Clippings relating to such subjects as they are placed in the books are properly catalogued, so that there can be no trouble in finding articles on any particular question. Attention of scholars at the schools is especially drawn to this matter as they will find many things helpful for school debates or essays in these books.

There is also a book devoted entirely devoted to the municipal life of Peterborough and one also for the county. Those who are interested in our civic questions will always be able to find what they need without having to wade through endless files of papers for the purpose.

The Librarian will always be glad to receive clippings from anyone on matters that are likely to be of interest to the community.

"Gripping" is a weak word to use in describing "The Thief" which comes to the Grand Theatre for an engagement of one night, Wednesday Feb. 21. The play is electric. Continuously from the rise of the curtain to the fall of the final one, "The Thief" thrills the spectator with a story based upon the foundation of all civilization—wedded love. It is a play for women, for a woman in love—so deeply in love that she sinks to the level of a thief—is the pivot on which this great drama of human interest revolves. Small wonder then that this Bernstein masterpiece aroused a sensation both in Europe and in America, and its presentation should be taken advantage of by all who are interested in the inner workings of a woman's heart.

TRIED EVERYTHING WITHOUT RELIEF

Until I took "Fruit-a-tives"

SARNIA, ONT., Feb. 5th, 1910.

"I have been a sufferer for the past 25 years with Constipation, Indigestion and Catarrh of the Stomach. I tried many remedies and many doctors but derived no benefit whatever.

Finally, I read an advertisement of 'Fruit-a-tives'. I decided to give 'Fruit-a-tives' a trial and found they did exactly what was claimed for them.

I have now taken 'Fruit-a-tives' for some months and find that they are the only remedy that does me good.

I have recommended 'Fruit-a-tives' to a great many of my friends and I cannot praise these fruit tablets too highly". PAUL J. JONES

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only natural cure for Constipation and Stomach Trouble, because it is the only medicine in the world that is made of fruit juices and valuable tonics. Hundreds of people have been cured, as if by a miracle, by taking "Fruit-a-tives", the famous fruit medicine.

BELMONTS MADE STRONG FINISH

Had Supper at Hooper's After Second Performance

The Belmont Minstrels in their second and concluding performance at the Grand last evening, scored another big success.

Afterwards the whole company of about sixty-five in all, including the ladies were dined at Hooper's Palm gardens in a most sociable and enjoyable manner.

Solos were given by the following—V. Morphet, A. Huycke, George Clarke, Holly Shephard, W. Davidson Wm. McIlroy, Stan Pollard and the quartet, and Miss Winslow.

Speeches and toasts were the order of the evening and many verbal bouquets were thrown about.

The minstrels have emerged from their two night performance with the financial end in very satisfactory condition.

The crowd broke up last evening with the hearty singing of Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem, followed by cheers.

TURNERS GET TENT CONTRACT

An Order for Two Hundred Military Tents Received

The prospects for busy times at J. J. Turner & Sons, are brightened considerably by the receipt of a contract for two hundred military tents for the Dominion Government. The firm has a large amount of work on its hands and the order just received will make the hum of industry at the factory all the more merrier. From the late government the firm had been unable to secure any government work, despite the splendid facilities for manufacturing. Now the large force of employees will have their rightful share.

INDUCTION OF REV. R. B. GROBB AS RECTOR OF ALL SAINTS'

Large Congregation of Parishioners Attended Impressive Ceremony—Sermon by Rev. W. S. Major

There was a large gathering of the earnest members of All Saints' church at the induction of their new rector, the Rev. R. B. Grobb, which took place last night in the church. Very few seats were vacant at last night's service, and the spirit displayed by the people in thus attending them augurs well for their progress.

The Right Rev. Bishop Reeve, of Toronto, performed the induction ceremonies, which were very impressive and emphasized the responsibility of the rector in taking charge of the parish.

After the induction ceremonies the sermon for the occasion was preached by the Rev. W. S. Major, a former rector of All Saints' church. The rev. gentleman said that he was indeed pleased to return and again occupy the pulpit of All Saints' church and that he expected the capacity of the new church would be fully taxed under the rectorship of Rev. Mr. Grobb. But success could not be looked for or gratifying results accomplished unless the members gave their individual confidence and co-operation. There must be a personal and individual determination on the part of the congregation to move forward in their work, which the rector had undertaken publicly, before those assembled, and in the presence of the Master. Thus working they should always keep in view the great object of all their religious activities, the salvation of man.

Rev. Mr. Major thought that a very appropriate subject to discuss at a gathering of that kind was the "Incarnation of God," which was especially adapted to that meeting.

The incarnation of God constituted a point of contract between the laity and the clergy, a point upon which they had a common meeting place in religious thought. All the great religious movements had received this spirit, their impetus from this wonderful movement, the incarnation of God. If we removed that from the doctrine, which we believe there was nothing left of it. Christianity would be practically shattered if this part of the great religion were taken from it.

There were several great purposes served by the incarnation of God through the birth of His son, Jesus Christ. The first reason was to reveal God the Father by the birth of Christ and by His teachings during His ministry on earth. The conception of God had been changed from the old to the new form. Previous to the birth of Christ the people had suffered themselves to decline and degenerate in the moral life. They believed in God, still there was a going down in their moral life. But when the shepherds of the east heard the heavenly anthem peal forth upon that first Christmas morn, when the wise men discovered the star and, following it, were led to the babe in the manger, a new era dawned upon the world.

The revelation of God included all the essentials of the old conception of Him, but colored and in a new setting. A new light was shed upon the Father, which revealed Him in a manner which compelled both the civilized, cultured people of the world, and the primitive savage to cast away their idols when God was presented to them as revealed by His Son.

The speaker also dealt with the significance of the incarnation to the individual, and stated that very often they did not, as did Phillip, recognize Him as the fulfilment of the foretellings of Moses and the prophets. Phillip realized that He could satisfy all spiritual or physical hunger, that He was One in whom all human needs were answered. Phillip gave Him complete submission, and Rev. Mr. Major asked of his listeners, "Has He drawn to Himself the submission of your will? Has He drawn your heart to Him?"

Also the Incarnation was manifested to take away our sins, sins that are the missings by us of God's purposes for us. Sins are something that came between man and man, also between God and man, and it was for the removing of these sins from us that Christ was born, that the incarnation of God took place. He who had no sin came to suffer in order to remove our sins. If we considered and contemplated Him who was in whom God was manifested, if we accepted the fact that God, Himself sinless, lifted and carried away from us our many sins, surely we could all rest with perfect confidence in Him, in the face of that mighty fact.

At the conclusion of the sermon Mr. Grobb repeated the words of supplication and praise, which finished the induction ceremony.

The singing of a hymn and the benediction by Bishop Reeve brought the service to a close. Mr. R. V. Devey presided at the organ.

STREET PAVING TO BE UNDERTAKEN BY COUNCIL

Cedar Swamp is Due for Removal From George Street—Board of Works in Session.

At a meeting of the Board of Works last evening, the mayor strongly urged that the Board and Council take up the question of street paving and push it through, as he felt it high time that permanent work was laid on our main streets at least.

Mr. Wilmot H. Legge, representing The Warren Bituminous Paving Co., Limited, Toronto, was present in regard to paving Peterborough streets with bitulithic pavement. He pointed out that the cost of laying this roadway depended to some considerable extent upon the price of material locally—crushed stone, gravel, labor, etc., for instance. The cost of their pavement had varied from $2.25 per square yard in Toronto to $3.00 and $3.15 a square yard in Western Canada.

Several communications seeking contracts for laying street pavement, of various kinds were received. Representatives of the different companies will be invited to be present at a meeting of the Board of Works next Tuesday evening, when the street paving question will be taken up in a business like way with a view to an early prosecution of such permanent road work. On this occasion, Mr. Ducksworth, superintendent of the Great Northwestern Telegraph Co., will be present in regard to his proposition to remove his company's poles from off George street. Ald. Buller also has reason to believe that the Radial Railway will consent to double track at least the streets on which pavement is laid, and that the Peterborough Light and Power Co. are willing to take down their poles on George street.

His worship suggested that the engineer get a report of all places not connected with the sewer on the streets to be paved. The chairman will interview the City Engineer to this effect.

Consulting Engineer Chipman's balance of account for services in connection with the South City Sewer System, amounting to $1,350, was left in abeyance.

Ald. Buller thought that in consideration of the initial cost of the south city pumping station, together with its incidental expenditure and cost of upkeep, he was quite justified in classing the institution as a "white elephant."

The City Engineer's estimates for street work the current year totalled up to $20,800 an excess of over $4,000 above the amount expended on this work last year. These estimates were left in the hands of the mayor and chairman.

On motion of Ald. Gillespie and Johnston, the chairman was authorized to look into the matter of insuring the motors in the south city sewerage pumping station.

OPPOSED TO SEPTIC TANK.

Regarding the Dickson Company's request for a septic tank in connection with their Waterford street property, the Engineer will be asked to report as to some other scheme for sewerage service for this locality. The Board is opposed to septic tanks.

The Engineer reported that no additional poles be erected on King street. The Bell Telephone Co. had petitioned for permission to erect two poles on King street, and the Engineer advise that they use the Peterborough Light and Power Co's poles on that street. This report was merely received.

SEWER FOREMAN

Mr. Martin Neary's application for the position of foreman of sewer construction was left in abeyance.

W. H. Spencely's complaint that Downie street creek backs up into his premises was referred to the Engineer to see that the city's culvert is kept open in preparing for spring freshets. This creek will probably be diverted this year.

THE WATER WAGON

Moved by Ald. Johnston seconded by Ald Graham—That the watering carts be painted and put in shape, in readiness for street watering.—Carried.

The Mayor has changed his views regarding the system of paying for street watering. Originally, he favored a frontage tax. He now suggests that it be paid for on a general rate, which, he offered, would be more equitable. A frontage tax, he contended, would give unfair advantage to say business men. For instance, the rate on a highly assessed 16 foot store on George street would on a frontage tax be materially reduced from what it was on the assessment plan, and the deficit would have to be made good by property owners in outlying districts. The man with a big frontage, on which may be stood a small dwelling would have to shoulder a disproportionate share of the cost of street watering the bet of which service necessarily goes to the business streets.

The Board generally appeared to concur in his worship's views, and the question will be seriously considered at the next meeting.

There were present Mayor Bradburn and Ald. Gillespie, Graham, Johnston and Duffus.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Cure Most of the Family's Ills.

This Little Box is Mother's Stand-by.

It is worth a good deal to the mother, then, to have on hand that perfectly safe and reliable remedy for these ills —

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

They invigorate those organs which cleanse the body of waste and impurities, regulating the bowels, stimulating the kidneys and opening the pores of the skin.

Thus Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cure the common ailments and keep the family healthy. This they have been doing for over half a century in every part of the world.

PETES GO DOWN TO DEFEAT BEFORE SPEEDY ORILLIA TEAM

Locals Scored First and Last Goal of Game, Which Ended 8-2 for Visitors.

The local fans were handed the second stiff dose of the week last night at the ice works when the juniors who had scored themselves through their own district and also through the second round fell by the way and will now have to make up six goals at Orillia, Tuesday night before they are on an even footing with the northern town brigade. The score at half time was 2—1 in the visitor's favor and at the conclusion of the sixty minutes play the figures had been stretched to 8—2. It was a cruel blow but then it was only one of the many happenings which make the game the peer of winter sports. Other teams have been called upon to take a back seat before a better team and there was no disgrace attached to the order. The local juniors got theirs last night and the presentation was the more distasteful coming as it did on home ice. But the medicine most bitter, sometimes effects the best cures and it is a better paying proposition in the long end. Though defeated last night the youngsters have nothing to be ashamed of and the loss may make them better hockey players. The team has set up a record this season that is not made by every town even in its initial appearance in the best amateur sporting association ever organized and after the return engagement in Orillia should the big lead be not overcome, the players can lay aside their outfits and try again next season.

The Orillia team lived up to the reputation that preceded the players, and exhibited a winning style of hockey, going stronger in the second half and scoring six counters while their opponents could only poke in one. The line had speed and that aggressiveness that helps a whole lot in getting the big end of the honors. Every man was alive to the duty before him and with the exception of MacNab, who was under sentence at frequent intervals, went right after the puck. The individual work and team play was also very much in evidence and altogether the showing of the seven players was in advance of the homesters. The Orillia septet is, however, not unbeatable and if T.C.C. doesn't get away with the championship, in case the locals fail to go through the dope of many local fans will be all to the bad.

Captain Hall's bunch couldn't get going in the face of such opposition even when playing a five forwards game in the second period. They flashed up at times and then went out again and left a large share of the work fall on Dwyer. He played a clever game between the nets blocking all kinds of shots in a manner that made a hit with the fans. There were stages in the play when it looked as though Orillia would surely score, but he turned aside shot after shot. "Pete" Milloy played a very effective game at point, as he sidetracked numerous plays which looked dangerous. Denison rushed well, but sad to relate not with the success of other contests. There appeared to be something wrong with the line last night for the players did not get into the game for some unknown reason. The work of the Orillia quartet, of course, was to a great extent responsible, but throughout the struggle, it was plain to be seen that the youths were not delivering their best brand of hockey.

THE BONSPIEL AT BOBCAYGEON

The Consolation Event Went to Skip Besse of Claremont

The Bobcaygeon Independent has the following to say of the Bonspiel this week.

The Spiel opened on Tuesday and was finished about four o'clock on Thursday morning. The Primary went off nicely without a hitch, the Consolation got delayed through rinks being unable to play when called upon, and it is likely that this annoyance will be avoided in future by rinks having to play or default when called upon. As usual the Spiel produced some very indifferent play, and some very good. Mr. Neill's rink from Peterborough gave an exhibition of steady, classy play, throughout. Mr. Neill is among the best players of the district, playing always in a happy, friendly spirit, never ruffled, never in the dumps, and if he loses, does so with a smile and hearty congratulations to his successful opponent. Mr. Miles Hamilton of Fenelon Falls, is another of the same class of player, cheery in defeat, and considerate in success, the true sport. The Claremont rink was a bunch of good players, Mr. Besse being a skip of quick decision, and prompt in action. There is no parleying and no consulting and viewing the end from half a dozen points, when the play is as obvious as a barn door. He puts up a skilful game and keeps his men on the jump, a bright, quick, lively and classy game.

On the conclusion of the Tournament the President, Mr. Green, presented the prizes to the winners, Mr. Neill, first; and Mr. Bottum, second; and for the Consolation, Mr. Besse, first, and Mr. Hamilton, second, with a few appropiate remarks complimentary to their play, and in acknowledgment of their good fellowship.

A vote of thanks to the Bobcaygeon Club was neatly proposed by Mr. Hamilton of Fenelon Falls and happily seconded by Mr. Knapman of Peterborough, and the rink settled back with a sigh from the excitement and strain of the rollicking gathering.

THE RING

London, Feb. 17—Bombardier Wells the heavyweight champion of England, sails for the United States on March 2. Wells is considered the Sir George Alexander of the ring over here—tall, clean-cut, and with the face of a Greek god. He is the picture card rage and a decided favorite with the fair members of society. Wells jumped into prominence when he defeated Porkey Flynn, the American pugilist. At that encounter the arena was well filled with titled ladies; in fact, more of the weaker sex were there than the sterner gender.

Wells declares that his trip abroad is strictly a pleasure jaunt, but it is hinted that he may arrange for a match with Jack Johnson, the world's champion. Wells was matched to fight Johnson here last year, but the battle was prevented owing to strong public disapprobation.

In the opinion of Eugene Corri, the famous referee Wells has a big chance of beating Johnson on account of his youth, clean living and skill.

BASEBALL

New York, Feb. 17.—The Haberdashery of the New York National league baseball players this summer will be more elaborate than has ever been worn by any baseball team heretofore. The home uniform is to be of a soft, velvety flannel of colonial cream. The buttonholes will be worked in colored silk thread and the monogram "N. Y." will be also worked in silk.

The road uniform is to be of stronger material than last season. The color will be gray, "like 'the early dawn,'" is McGraws description.

The home uniforms will have a fine feather stripe on the colonial cream background. The hosiery and caps will be novel and attractive.

WHAT YOU HEAR IN OLD QUEBEC

"I Am Well, Thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills"

Mrs Gagnon Riviere au Dore, One of Those Who Raise the Glad Shout of Good Health.

Riviere, au Dore, Chicoutimi Co., Quebec, Feb. 16.—Special. — "Yes, I am well and I give all the credit to Dodd's Kidney Pills." Those words have been uttered again and again in almost every corner of the Province of Quebec. This time they come from Mrs. Joseph Gagnon, a well known young married woman of this place.

"My back and head ached and my limbs would swell," Mrs. Gagnon continues. "I always had a bitter taste in my mouth, and especially in the morning. Twelve boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

Mrs. Gagnon's symptoms showed beyond a doubt that her trouble was from the Kidneys. Naturally she turned to the old reliable Kidney cure that had proved its worth in thousands of other cases. She took Dodd's Kidney Pills and she is well.

Kidney Disease is the greatest enemy the women of to-day have to fight. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure it. That's why they have earned the name, "suffering woman's best friend."

HOCKEY

The Lindsay Post publishes the local press accounts of the Peterboro Midland game, and is forced to acknowledge that the defeat was taken in good grace. It was, however, unnecessary for the Post to feature that fact as Peterboro has always showed a good sporting spirit and always gave the other fellow credit, even going as far during the season, to say that Lindsay still lived and had a hockey team.

Midland beat Mount Forest at Toronto last night by 8-2 and go into the finals with Preston. These two teams fought for the championship last season, Preston winning at home by 6-3, and Midland taking the game in Midland by 7-6.

"Ted" Marriott, manager of T.C.C. and Lou Marsh were spectators at the game last night. Marriott rather fancies Dwyer as a goaltender.

HOUSE PAINTERS CONVENTION OVER

Officers for the Year Elected—Denver the Next Meeting Place

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 16. — The 28th convention of the International Association of Master House Painters and Decorators closed this afternoon with the selection of Denver as the 1913 meeting place and the election of the following officers:—President, James W. "Well Now, That IS a Good Idea—

Redpath Extra Granulated Sugar

In a 5-Pound Sealed Package"

"Of course I have always bought Redpath Sugar, as my mother did before me, because it is the purest, whitest sugar I have ever been able to buy. But this new Sealed Package is the finishing touch of cleanliness, and if I had never used Redpath Sugar before, I would certainly try the new Package."

The new Redpath Sealed Package is designed for just such discriminating people, who not only want the best sugar, but want it in the best possible condition.

Redpath Extra Granulated Sugar is first refined to absolute purity. Then, without being once touched by human hand, it is packed by automatic machinery and sealed air-tight in the 5-Pound Cartons. Thus in its trip to the wholesale warehouse, the retail store, and finally to your home, Redpath Sugar is perfectly protected from any taint or impurity. It comes to you as fresh and as clean as when it left the refinery.

Each Carton, automatically weighed, contains full Five Pounds of Redpath Extra Granulated Sugar. If you have been buying sugar by the bag or barrel, you will find a case of 24 Five-Pound Packages much more convenient in the pantry. Of course your grocer will still sell you Redpath Extra Granulated in bulk or in 20 lb. cotton bags as before if you prefer.

NOVEL EFFECTS IN SPRING STYLES

Parisian Models Reflect Direct Influence of the Greek

Paris, Feb. 16.—The dressmakers who have flocked to Paris, the Mecca of fashion from London, New York and elsewhere have had the first view of the coming spring fashions. Owing to the ruthless manner in which new ideas have been stolen in the past, a most rigorous supervision was exercised over this private view, only those furnished with credentials being admitted.

The Louis XVI. panier dress was in evidence everywhere. The new model, however, is not the historical costume generally known by that name. The panier consists of a kind of gauzy mass of tulle, and is but slightly defined. The skirts cling about the figure, but are very wide around the feet.

Other models reflect the direct influence of the Greek. The straight line is not discernible in all the recent tight-fitting fashions, disappearing in favor of a spiral effect.

A third style in robes is a deep slash running from the ankle well up the gown, the slash being filled in with lace, mousseline de soie, or tulle. No underskirts are worn with these frocks.

Short taffeta is rarely seen in the new evening robes, its employment being practically confined to afternoon and tailor-made dresses.

The "tailor-made" is entirely changed, being made in three tiers. No two jackets are alike. The material is mostly black and white striped taffeta, a new material known as silk crepe, and [illegible] material resembling Irish poplin. Other "tailor-mades" are in three colors, trimmed with very elaborate embroideries in spiral lines.

NEW AIRSHIP

New York, Feb. 17.—A dirigible airship that will not only automatically ascend and descend at will, but which will sustain as perfect equilibrium in the air as a steamer on the surface of the ocean, has been invented by Malvin Vaniman, according to an announcement made to-day in the Scientific American.

Inside the envelope will be a collapsible air ballast tank. If the operator wishes to ascend, he allows the air to escape. To descend he merely pumps in more air "ballast." With this kind of craft, Vaniman says it would be possible to remain in the air for weeks. He believes it would be adapted for the economical transportation of passengers, troops, or explosives.

PARALYSIS YIELDS TO DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS

MANY FORMS OF THIS DREAD DISEASE ARE CURED BY THIS REMEDY.

Mrs. Ritchie, of Galt, Ont., Says She Believes it Saved Her Life—Doctors Said She Had Not Long to Live When She Began This Treatment—Read Her Grateful Statement.

Scarcely a day passes but fresh proof is offered of the wonderful power of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills over disease. In many of these cases relief and new health comes to the sufferer after the best efforts of medical men had been in vain. One such case is that of Mrs. D. M. Ritchie, of Galt, Ont., who writes—"I feel it my duty to let other people know what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. I was taken sick first of May, 1910, with rheumatism. Treatment at home having failed me I went to Grace Hospital, Detroit, where I remained for some weeks, but instead of improving I became absolutely helpless, as if from paralysis, and could not move hand or foot. I was under the heavy expense of a trained nurse, and the best of medical treatment, but seemed to be growing worse. Finally about the middle of July my husband decided to bring me home to Galt, where I remained under medical treatment, and with a nurse constantly attending me until October, when I took a further turn for the worse. Then the doctor told my husband that it was only a matter of a few weeks, as I could not possibly get better. Up to this time over six hundred dollars had been spent for medical and hospital treatment. In this condition, with hope abandoned, my husband saw a testimonial in a local paper of a cure of paralysis through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided at once to try them. In a few weeks there was a little improvement, and from that time on each day showed some change for the better. I can now (March, 1911) walk all about the house, do up my room, wash the dishes and sew and mend, but am still a little shakey, but am looking for the fullest cure, as I feel myself growing stronger daily. I give the full credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for I feel they are an instrument under Providence given for the benefit of suffering humanity."

Writing again under the date of Aug. 16th, 1911, Mrs. Ritchie says: "As to my general health I can say that I have not felt so well in years. My stomach is in the best of condition and I can eat things I have not eaten for years. I can walk quite well, but use my cane when I go out, as I have not quite confidence in myself yet. But if you had seen me when I started to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, you would realize what a miracle they have worked in my case. All that I have stated is absolutely true, and I may add that the pills have cured my husband of kidney trouble that other medicines seemed to have no effect upon, for which we are both thankful."

Again under the date of Jan. 16, 1912, Mrs. Ritchie says: "I am fully recovered and able to do all my housework. I shall always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and trust some sufferer will receive as much benefit by reading this as I did through a faithful use of the Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such apparently hopeless cases as Mrs. Ritchie's because they make new, rich, red blood, which feeds the starved, overworked nerves, and gives tone and strength to every organ in the body. No sufferer from paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus dance, or any nervous disorder can afford to neglect Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the great blood builder and nerve tonic, which have more remarkable cures to their credit than any other medicine in the world. But be sure you get the genuine pills with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale people" on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Chest Inflammation

Suffered From a Heavy Cold, Pleuritic Pains in Side—Constant Coughing.

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold drafty places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh racking cough and severe pains darted through my sides and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments, but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck, chest and shoulders, morning and night, and all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy, and enjoy perfect health."

Nerviline CURES CHEST COLDS

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica, and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large bottles, 50c, trial size 25c. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Horses Still in Demand

Hamilton Times.

This talk about horses disappearing before the advance of the automobile is somewhat nonsensical. Horses are in more demand to-day than ever, and prices are very high. According to the United States census there are more than 21,000,000 horses in the United States, 231,000 more than a year ago. Don't go out of horse-breeding yet.

BIG TEMPERANCE MEETING ARRANGED FOR TUESDAY

Whether or not a local campaign will be held this year in Peterboro will be decided next Tuesday evening at the public meeting of citizens that will be held in the George street Methodist church. It is not desired that any one shall be able to say afterwards, if a campaign is decided upon, that it is being forced upon the citizens against their will. The probable success of the campaign will be judged to some extent by the attendance and interest manifested at this meeting. For that reason, it is hoped that everyone interested in the cause of temperance will be present, whether they are going to take an active part in the campaign or not, in order that the meeting may be a large and representative one.

A feature of the meeting will be the presentation of a report of the big convention held in Toronto this week by the Dominion Alliance at which it was decided to force the temperance cause into Provincial politics. The report will be presented by the secretary of the League, Mr. A. B. Cunningham. It is anticipated that it will be decided to hold another campaign in Peterboro as the pospects of success are considered very bright.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC COMMISSION WILL BE ASKED FOR ESTIMATES

Council Wants Some Information Regarding Supply of Power for Peterboro.

At the City Council meeting last evening Mayor Bradburn pointed out that under the present municipal act there appeared to be some doubt as to what authority the city had to expropriate the plant of any power company within the city's jurisdiction

A by-law, therefore, as follows, was passed in all three readings to the following effect:

"That in order the said city might be permitted to take full advantage of the provisions of the Commission Act, it is necessary that an act should be passed to amend the acts relating to the said city, to enable the Council to acquire by expropriation the property, plant and appliances situated within the municipality of any person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of supplying light, heat or power for sale, or as a commercial product

"Wherefore your petitioners humbly pray that your honorable house may be pleased to pass an act for the purpose above mentioned."

The by-law was read by Ald. Gillespie.

The following accompanying the by-law was also passed:

"That a cheque for $100 be issued to the city solicitor to pay the fee required to be sent with the city's bill for private legislation regarding power, and that the cost of advertising in the Ontario Gazette be paid on order of the city solicitor."

Regarding the distribution of electricity, Ald. Gillespie brought in the following resolution, seconded by Ald. Gordon:

That the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario be requested to lay out for the city council a plan for the distribution of electricity in the city, and advertise as to the best means of procuring such a system with an estimate of cost, and such other advice or suggestions as the Commission deem would be of service to the city, including the procuring and the cost of a supply of power.—Carried.

Ald. Buller introduced a matter in regard to the enforcement of companies taking out charters, binding them to commence construction operations within a reasonable time.

Ald. Buller referred particularly to a company known as the Electric Transportation Company, who have a petition now before the Legislature for a charter. He felt that such companies should be compelled to deposit a reasonable sum to show that they were bona fide builders and not merely promoters.

Ald. Gordon agreed with Ald. Buller, and after further discussion, brought in the following motion:

"That the Mayor be authorized to appoint a committee to appear before the Legislature in the city's interest when the Electric Transportation Company's bill is passed. The motion was passed.

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders.

my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relielf you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

MAY TELL ALL THEY KNOW

Government May be Helped in Dynamite Conspiracy

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 17.—Intimations were said to have been received by the Government yesterday that some of the defendanst in the dynamite conspiracy cases were preparing "to tell all they know."

The statements followed the Government's charges that 40,000 letters and telegrams taken from the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers showed that Frank M. Ryan, the president; H. S. Hockin, the second vice-president, and members of the executive board and business agents conducted the dynamite plots through the mail, pointed out "jobs" to be blown up and maintained a system of destruction against non-union iron and steel contractors.

Asked if any negotiations had been opened with him concerning the defendants, U. S. District Attorney Charles W. Miller said:

"I wouldn't be surprised if it is shown that something like that had happened."

W. N. Harding, counsel for Ryan, and the international officials of the iron workers, held a long conference with Mr. Miller yesterday, but it was not disclosed what was considered.

Between now and the arraignment before Federal Judge Anderson here, on March 12, the Government will proceed with preparations for the trials, which probably will be early in May.

Money Back Dandruff Cure

Wm. Madill Guarantees Parisian Sage for Dandruff and Falling Hair

Destroy the dandruff germs that's the only known way to eradicate dandruff, and PARISIAN SAGE contains just the ingredients that will destroy germs.

Dandruff causes falling hair and baldness, because the little dandruff germs rob the hair roots of the nourishment that should go to supply life, luster and vigor to the hair.

PARISIAN SAGE costs but 50 cents a bottle at Wm. Madill's and druggists everywhere. It is guaranteed to banish dandruff, stop falling hair or scalp itch or money back. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle. It is a most delightful and daintily perfumed dressing that quickly invigorates the scalp.

"My hair was falling out badly until I began to use PARISIAN SAGE, but it looks fine now. My hair was getting very thin, but it is getting thick and wavy.—Eliza Archer, 60 Church street, Hartford, Conn., June 5.

WANTED TO KILL HERSELF

Prompt Action Saved Life of Belleville Woman

Belleville, Feb. 16.—A week ago Mrs. Florence Munville, who resides on Wharf street, was placed under arrest on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. She was subsequently allowed out on bail to appear in police court this morning. Evidently she had no desire to do so, but instead made at attempt to end her existence. She procured a bottle which contained hydrochloric or muriatic acid and drank a quantity of it. She was immediately taken deathly sick and as speedily as possible a physician was summoned and administered an antidote, which had the effect of counteracting the poison.

The acid burned the woman's throat to some extent. Her condition was, however, such that she was unable to appear in court to answer to the charge preferred against her.

In consequence the case was peremptorily enlarged until to-morrow, and a warrant was issued by the Magistrate for the arrest of the woman, on a charge of attempting to commit suicide, which warrant was executed later in the day.

Mrs. Munville is well known in this city, where she has resided all her life. It is stated that she was under the impression that she was partaking of carbolic acid. Had she drank as freely of that as she did of the muriatic acid which she took, in all probability her life would have been forfeited.

ASQUITH TO GIVE WAY TO BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY

PREMIER ASQUITH.

Rumor That Premier Will Retire is Not Given an Official Denial.

Followers of Lloyd-George Are up in Arms to Prevent Any Such Change.

London, Feb. 19.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The fact that no official denial has been given to the persistent report of the impending retirement of Premier Asquith and the succession to the Premiership of Lloyd-George or Sir Edward Grey, is in itself significant.

"I am able to state," he writes, "that Mr. Asquith will shortly resign the Premiership and that, according to popular expectation, Sir Edward Grey, not Lloyd-George, will be appointed Prime Minister."

"Loreburn will retire from the Lord Chancellorship, which office will be taken by the present Premier.

"When," continues Fraser, "this decision became known in official circles a while ago, the rank and file of the extreme Radicals, supporters of the Chancellor, started a campaign against the Foreign Minister, who is not in sympathy with Lloyd-George's socialistic reforms, and not by any means an enthusiastic home ruler. It wasn't because they were angry with Grey for having, as they supposed, almost led England to war with Germany, nor because he prevented war with Russia in connection with Persian affairs, that they baited him, but wholly because they wanted to drive him out of office. The only effect of the onslaught was to consolidate his friends. By his side stood Asquith, Lord Haldane, Lord Morley, Lord Crewe and other responsible Liberals, to whom so many of the rank and file of the Radical party owe much.

"Asquith intended to retire about the time Balfour did, but he waited till the return of the King from India. It's now an open secret that the great honor of the Garter, usually reserved for princes and for dukes, was conferred upon the Foreign Secretary on Asquith's advice. This signal distinction was intended as a rebuff to the extremists who repudiated Grey's foreign policy, and it has been rightly interpreted to mean that Asquith genuinely approved Sir Edward's diplomacy when our recent relationship with Germany was strained.

"It mustn't be imagined," concludes the article, "that the Georgites, who preponderate in the Commons, will calmly acquiesce in the ousting of the Chancellor from the Premiership. On the contrary, they vouch they'll smash the Liberal party prospects, which Asquith painfully realizes."

The debate will be shifted from labor and diplomatic to constitutional issues this week, and will be followed by a dull financial discussion. The three most important measures on the Government's program will be held back until Easter, and there will be no chance of passing them without a prolonged autumn session.

"Despite the Chancellor of the Exchequer's quarrel with the doctors and the determination of the extreme Radicals to subject the Foreign Secretary to exasperating heckling over the Persian affair, Ministers have started off with an unexpected revival of confidence. Sir Edward Grey, after remaining too long in the background, is speaking at Manchester this week-end, and is reinforcing the Government by his dignified and persuasive oratory. Mr. Lloyd-George will be the hero of a suffrage demonstration at the Albert Hall next week, and there will be a full muster of Anglican clergy in the same hall for a vehement protest against the disestablishment of the church in Wales.

"Fatuous attempts have been made to represent the Cabinet as divided into two hostile groups over naval armaments and entente diplomacy, when in reality Lord Haldane, Mr. Llody-George, Mr. Ghurchill and Sir Edward Grey have been working in harmony under the direction of the King and the Prime Minister.

"Practical measures have been taken for removing the impression in Berlin that the entente with France and Russia is necessarily an anti-German bond that prevents a settlement of controversies and involves the necessity for wasteful armaments. The Radical prejudice against the Foreign Secretary has been weakened, especially when the King, by his extraordinary gift of the Garter has made it plain that Sir Edward Grey will be summoned and not Mr. Lloyd-George if Mr. Asquith retires during this year of political storm and stress."

BIG STRIKE IS COMING

Miners Threaten to go Out in Fortnight.

London, Feb. 19.—The acuteness of the crisis in the British coal trade is emphasized by the prohibitive rate of 94 1-2 per cent. asked by Lloyds on insurance against a national strike.

Both sides in the contest are making every preparation for war. The colliery owners are insuring not only the collieries but their private residences as well against damage. The military authorities also have been making enquiries in the coal mining districts as to the facilities for billeting soldiers in the residences, inns and hotels.

No fewer than 800,000 miners have already handed in their notices to quit work in thirteen days from to-day. On March 1, unless one side or the other unexpectedly yields the country will face a national stoppage which will paralyze every industry and send up the cost of necessaries of life to famine prices.

The authorities estimate that only two weeks supply of coal is in stock, although, of course, the railroads, gas companies and other big concerns with storage facilities, are better supplied.

The Federation of National Transport Workers has pledged itself not to handle "blackleg" coal, so that imported coal will only be landed with great difficulty.

The Government announces that it will take the crisis in hand early this week, although there is as yet no indication of how it proposes to attempt to break the deadlock.

TO PROTEST THE DECREE

Protestants Plan Big Meeting in Massey Hall.

Toronto, Feb. 19.—Friday, March 1, is the probable date for the monster anti-ne temere decree demonstration at the Massey Music Hall.

Rev. E. D. Silcox, secretary of the Evangelical Alliance, stated last night that the petitions for action by the Dominion and Provincial Governments, continue to pour in to his office.

The petition movement will be continued until the end of the month.

Another member of the Evangelical Alliance executive said that the campaign was in double but parallel lines.

Hon. R. L. Borden is to be asked to supplement the federal test case to the Privy Council by enactment of a general marriage law, asserting in unequivocal terms the absolute supremacy and exclusive jurisdiction of the state control of the marriage law.

Sir James Whitney is to be asked to submit a test case to the Ontario court of appeal to establish the jurisdiction now possessed by the province, and to carry it to the full extent which may be required.

Both sets of petitions are likely to be presented to the respective Governments by the most influential delegation which the evangelical church of the Dominion and province have it in their power to appoint.

The case has been drafted and only one or two things require to be inserted, and, while on Tuesday the case may be laid formally, it will be done on Thursday at the latest.

MANITOBA WOULD GET PORTS NELSON AND CHURCHILL

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Feb. 19.—Notice was given to-day in the House by Premier Borden, of a resolution upon which a bill will be based, providing for the extension of the boundaries of Manitoba, with financial terms similar to those made with Alberta and Saskatchewan. The bill is practically the same as proposed by Laurier four years ago and Manitoba will get both Port Nelson and Port Churchill. The boundary line will run northeast from the northeast corner of the province and strike the shore line of the Hudson Bay, some fifty miles southeast of the mouth of the Nelson river.

FROM COAST TO COAST IN 1914

Sir Donald Mann Forecasts Such Railway Service

Winnipeg, Feb. 19.—Passenger service from the Pacific to the Atlantic over the Canadian Northern Railway during the year 1914 was the forecast of Sir Donald Mann yesterday as he passed through from the coast to Toronto. A freight service from coast to coast, it was stated, would go into operation in two years with the passenger service the following summer. The grade from the Atlantic to the Pacific will be lower than on any line in Canada or in the United States through the moutains, and wheat will be handled all winter long to both Atlantic and Pacific terminals. As far east as Central Saskatchewan grain will find its natural route to the seaboard on the Pacific, thence to Liverpool through the Panama Canal.

MANITOBA BOUNDARIES QUESTION UP THIS WEEK

Borden's Resolution Will Bring About Debate, But School Question Will be Omitted.

Ottawa, Feb. 19.—The extension of the boundaries of the Province of Manitoba will be the subject of discussion in the House of Commons this week. It will precede the adoption of a resolution by Premier Borden, of which formal notice has been given as follows:

"Resolved, that it is expedient (a) to extend the boundaries of the Province of Manitoba northward to the 60th parallel of latitude and northeastward to the shores of Hudson Bay, upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed to by the Legislative Assembly of Manitoba and by Parliament; (b) to authorize the Governor-General-in-Council to pay to the said province an annual sum of $381,584.10, being the equivalent of interest at 5 per cent. on $7,631,683.85, the difference between a principal sum of $8,107,500 and $475,816.15 heretofore advanced by the Government to the province for provincial purposes; such annual sum to be paid as from the first day of July, 1908, but subject, however, to the deduction of certain sums received by the said province and otherwise.

(c) To authorize the Governor-in-Council to pay to the said province in lieu of ownership of Quebec lands in the territory to be added (1) an annual sum based upon the population of the said province as ascertained by such quinquennial census thereof, such annual sum to be not less than $562,500 and not to exceed at any time the annual sum of $1,125,000, and (2) the sum of $201,723.57 towards the construction of public buildings.

As will be noticed, the resolution merely provides for the extension of boundaries and the question of separate schools does not enter, so that the debate will be shorn of much of the interest attached to it by reports of a Ministerial split on that question.

The resolution, as brought down, simply provides for the terms governing the allocation of the boundary lines of Manitoba on the extended territory without defining said boundary as between Manitoba and Ontario. The fact that the consent of the Manitoba Legislature must first be required to the boundary as proposed, practically means that the bill based on the resolution, cannot be dealt with this session since the Manitoba Legislature does not assemble for some days, and a long debate will undoubtedly have to take place before any resolution on the question can be put through. Meanwhile, Parliament here expect to prorogue before Easter, and the time limit for consideration of the bill would be too short for action before then.

Roblin Overlooks School Issue.

Lepas, Keewatin, Feb. 19.—Saturday night Premier Roblin arrived here with a dozen friends. He addressed a public meeting, but there was no political significance to his utterances.

It was expected he would announce his policy on separate schools in the new territory, and the boundaries, but he did not touch the school question, and merely referred incidentally to the boundaries.

Premier Roblin thanked the citizens and congratulated them on the choice of the town site. He thought it his duty to consult the people of the new territory.

Both Governments had arrived at an understanding on the boundary question, and he promised when the Manitoba House met, Feb. 22, a measure would be passed for representation of the new territory by one new member. The things asked for in the address would be granted as conditions would warrant.

JOHN L. BLAIKIE PASSES AWAY

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Feb. 19.—John L. Blaikie, president of the Consumers' Gas Co., and one of Toronto's most prominent capitalists died at three o'clock this morning. He was 89 years of age.

Mr. Blaikie was also president of the North America Life Assurance Company, and of the Canada Landed and National Investment Company. He had been ill with pneumonia.

MACHINE TO SAVE LIVES

Number of Gas Tragedies Would be Lessened

Special To The Review.

Toronto, Feb. 19—The local hospital and Gas Company officials, will investigate the claims of, and probably bring here, a new machine, which the officials of the Bureau of Mines at Washington claim will restore to life, persons apparently dead from gas asphyxiation. By the introduction of this machine, it is hoped to lessen the number of gas tragedies in this city.

PREMIER YUAN WANTS TO RELINQUISH THE OFFICE

Urges the Election of Dr. Sun Yat Sen to the Presidency.

Shanghai, Feb. 19.—Yuan Shi Kai telegraphed Saturday to Nanking requesting Huang Sing, the War Minister in the Republican Cabinet, to despatch troops to the north to assist in quelling the disturbances in Manchuria.

Yuan Shi Kai also telegraphed to Dr. Wu Ting Fang, the Republican Minister of Justice, and to Tang Shao Yi, his representative, urging them to endeavor to secure the election of Dr. Sun Yat Sen as President of the republic in his place. In his despatch he said:

"I am unable to control the involved situation in China, as I am suffering from impaired health. Now that the aims of the Republicans have been attained, I have accomplished my duty. The post of President of the Republic would only serve to lead to my ruin. I ask your kind offices and interest with the people of the country to elect Dr. Sun Yat Sen. to whom credit should be given. I will wait here until I am relieved. Then I will return to my home and resume my work as a husbandman."

The new constitution of the Provisional Government will be approved by the assembly at Nanking on Feb. 19, when it will be notified by a delegation, which will start for the north.

Gen. Homer Lea, the American officer, who has been acting as military adviser to Dr. Sun Yat Sen, and who has been seriously ill, has now rallied and may recover.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen urged that an appeal should be made to foreigners to contribute to the relief of the famine in China. He said that owing to the life struggle and death struggle for freedom which had been going on in China, the administration was helpless, but he hoped hereafter it would not be necessary to make any appeal abroad.

More Plotting In Manchuria.

London, Feb. 19.—The situation in Manchuria has become much more acute since Kang Yu Wei, leader of the reform movement in 1898, and grand head of the Empire Reform Association, has thrown in his lot with the Manchurian viceroy, Gen. Chao Erh Hsun, against the new regime. The latter, according to a despatch from Tientsin, refuses to give up his office. The Manchu Prince Su is financing a movement to establish a constitutional monarchy in Manchuria.

FALLS SEVENTY FEET; NO BONES BROKEN

Hamilton, Feb. 19.—After toppling 70 feet from the roof of a new building at the corner of Hughson and King William Streets Saturday morning, Mike Orousi, a Pole, was picked up with none of the bones of his body broken. He was severely bruised, however, and it is feared that he is injured internally. He was taken to the City Hospital.

THUGS BEAT MERCHANT AND STEAL JEWELS AND CASH

Daylight Robbery in Montreal—Three Arrests Are Made.

Montreal, Feb. 19.—A desperate daylight robbery with violence took place here yesterday morning, when a Notre Dame street jeweler named Cohen was robbed of diamonds worth $390 and cash to the extent of $890, by two nervy thieves.

Cohen was unlocking his safe, when he was told to put up his hands. Turning round, he looked into the muzzles of two revolvers. He made a grab for one, and one of the burglars hit him over the head, knocking him unconscious. They then grabbed all the loose diamonds around and rifled the safe.

Cohen soon recovered and staggered to the door of his store, called for assistance, his summons being answered by a policeman. The officer saw a man running away and after a stern chase, captured him.

Cohen is known as the man whom Timothy Candy, who was hung here for murdering two policemen who had him under arrest for stealing from his employer, accused of tempting him to steal the goods and offering to purchase them.

The three men were arrested at different times, two Saturday and one yesterday. They are Charles Vega, Albert Jones, and a negro known as Po Maldonado. The stolen goods were recovered from Jones.

Cohen will recover, despite the severe beating he received.

SUFFRAGETTES HAVE NEW IDEA

EDUCATION

A circular letter sent out by the Department of Education gives some information which shows that the Whitney Government is doing a great work in the interests of education. The circuarl states among other things that about 1,100 legally qualified public school teachers will graduate from the Normal Schools and Faculties of Education at the end of the current session. Of these, about 200 holding second class professional certificates, with at least one year's experience will be available immediately after Easter. The remaining 900, holding first and second class certificates, will be avilable after mid-summer. All of the 1,100 teachers have pledged themselves to teach their first year in Ontario schools and under the regulations they are entitled to the preference over teachers with lower qualifications.

WATERWORKS DEPARTMENT

A surplus of $2,200.24 on the year's operations is shown by the financial statement of the Waterworks Department for 1911. Of this amount a revenue of $1,500 is forthcoming from the Canadian General Electric Company for water power rights, the power being generated at the power house recently placed in operation by the company and which reverts to the city at the end of twenty years, the company in the meantime paying all the taxes. The receipts from water rates including special frontage rates amounted to $43,614.95, which with the power rental made a total revenue of $45,194.95. The expense accounts included $23,197.70 paid to the city in meeting the interest on debentures, $9 370.23 for Sinking Fund and an amount for depreciation of tools and plant, and totalled $42,9941.

Shrewd business men make up the personnel of the Board of Water Commissioners and it is evident that they are giving splendid service to the city. The time is near at hand when the Commissioners will take up the question of what is to be done with the revenue. Should it be used in reducing the rates to the consumers of water? The Berlin Waterworks Commission is now dealing with that question, and it is announced that the Commission will meet the wishes of the consumers and will apply the profits to a reduction of rates and the abolition of the meter rent.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Germany leads in trade union membership with 2,688,000 members and United States is not far behind, the total being 2,625,000.

The receipts at the theatres in France amounted last year to $6,000,000 and of this large amount one fourth or $1,500,000 went to the moving picture theatres.

The estimated population of the world, according to the latest statistics is 1,623,000,000. Asia shows the largest population with 900,000,000, while the figures for north and South America are 110,000,000 and 35,000,000 respectively.

Detroit has a Pastors' Union, the members of which have pledged themselves not to marry the guilty party to a divorce in which adultery was alleged, to investigate the cases of persons desiring to be married, and not to marry the physically or mentally unfit.

The Liberals, so it is said, are confident that Hon. Geo. P. Graham will win out in the Renfrew bye-election on Thursday, but then there have been cases and not so very long ago, when according to the Liberals, their man was a sure winner, but he fell away on the home stretch.

That little word "obey" in the marriage service is being very much discussed these days. A suffragette it is said, refused to make any such promise on the occasion of her wedding. Perhaps the whole question could be simplified by the service being reversed.

Statistics just compiled state that over ten thousand hunters went into the Highlands of Ontario for deer and moose during the season last fall. There were 174 non-resident licenses issued which covered the shooting of moose and deer, 9,500 resident deer licenses, and 640 resident moore licenses.

Church Union is generally being favored in the voting now in progress. One of the negative results, however, was at Kingston, where a Methodist church board had its principal objection, the indeterminate pastoral term, and the unpleasant difficulty that would likely arise between pastor and people when the change of pastors might be desired.

At the last meeting of the Ministerial Association of St. Thomas, the Association signified its full agreement with the request of the Women's Humane Society, urging that citizens fall in line with the proposal of the city butchers to make their last delivery on Saturdays at 5 p.m., with the hope of bringing about early closing.

FRUIT MEN'S DEMANDS.

Growers Pass Several Resolutions In Convention.

Ottawa, Feb. 17.—With the passing of a number of important resolutions of concern to those engaged in fruit growing industry throughout the country, the third Dominion conference of fruit growers, came to an end yesterday afternoon.

The chief resolutions passed were substantially as follows:

That a board of three fruit dealers in each province be formed as a committee to advise in the appointment of inspectors.

That $10,000 be voted by the Government as a grant to the next national apple show, provided that the promoters of that show are willing to offer $20,000.

That the Government be requested to raise the tariff on peaches.

That an apple box with a capacity of 2,200 cubic inches be made the legal standard throughout Canada, to come into effect within two years.

That the question of most suitable shapes for fruit packages be left over to the next conference, with the understanding that in the meantime an investigation shall be made, preferably by the Government.

That certificates be given by fruit inspectors on the payment of a reasonable fee.

That the Government be urged to inspect as much as possible at the point of shipment and that the Government have daily market prices cabled from agents in Europe during the shipping seasons and published in the daily papers throughout Canada.

Two standards for the apple barrel were adopted by the conference. One is the ninety-six quart size common in Nova Scotia, and the other the 112 quart size common in Ontario and most other parts of the country. Another resolution asked that the shippers' stamp on boxes of apples, the number of apples contained.

Speaking in connection with the resolution asking a boost in the tariff on peaches, Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, said the Government had appointed a tariff commission for the express purpose of investigating conditions pertaining to the tariff. He did not think tariff revision would be taken up piecemeal until the report of the committee on condition as a whole had been presented.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—A sharp break in prices for wheat occurred to-day as a result of big shipments being made from Argentina, and because of heavy receipts at terminals in the United States. The close was weak, ¼c to 1c under last night. Corn finished ½c to ¾c down, oats off ⅜c to ⅝c, and hog products less costly by a shade to 20c.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ⅜d to ½d lower than yesterday on wheat, and ⅛d to ⅜d lower on corn. Paris wheat was ¼c to ¾c higher, Berlin 1c lower, Budapest ⅛c lower, Antwerp unchanged.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

One would think, as Battlemead is ranked among the finest old Tudor places in England, and people come on Thursdays and give shillings to see it (a very good thing for us, though it's extremely inconvenient, as it pays for all the gardens and all the servants' wages) that it would be grander than quite a new house, in a country like America. But Battlemead, even in its palmiest days, must have been shabby beside Mrs. Ess Kay's "home" in New York.

Our grandest bedroom, the one where Queen Elizabeth slept, is quite a dull old hole compared to Mrs. Ess Kay's splendid room. Mine, at home, has all the furniture covered with faded chintz, and the curtains are made of plain white dimity. But I love the deep window seats where I can curl up among cushions, with a cataract of roses veiling the picture of the terrace with its ivy covered stone balustrade, the sundial, the two white peacocks, and far away, the park with a blue mist among the trees. And I haven't learned yet to love my beautiful room at Mrs. Ess Kay's, though I admire it immensely—admire to the verge of awe.

It's pink and white and silver. The carpet is pink and feels like moss, as you step. The wall is covered with pink and silver brocade, except where there are panels with Watteau-like pictures. The curtains are foamy lace, with the pink and silver brocade falling over them. The furniture looks as if it were made of ivory; there's a mirror in three parts, reaching from the floor half way to the ceiling, so that you see yourself in front and two profiles, like astral bodies, things which I've always wanted to cultivate, as they would be so nice for trying on dresses, or making calls on dull people. On the dressing table is another mirror, an oval one, framed with pink roses, each of which has an electric light hidden in its heart, and the bedspread is of pink and silver brocade to match the hangings, with a large, hard roll like an ossified bolster, at the top.

I believe it's that bed more than anything else which makes me feel that it's always Sunday in my room at Mrs. Ess Kay's. I'm used to old fashioned, ruffly pillows and a plain white coverlet smelling of lavender, on which I can flop down whenever I like, to read a novel or to have a nice little "weep." But there's no flopping on this gorgeous pink and silver expanse, and it's small consolation to know that no queen of England ever had one as handsome.

Mrs. Ess Kay and Sally escorted me to my room when I came to it first. After I'd admired everything enough to satisfy them, I was taken to see the bathroom adjoining, and then a kind of wardrobe room opening out of that. I was almost prostrated by the magnificence of both, which pleased Mrs. Ess Kay very much, and in the grand wardrobe room, smelling deliciously, though faintly, of cedar, my poor boxes—already arrived—looked mean and insignificant. Mrs. Ess Kay's and Sally's huge "Innovations" would have been much more appropriate than my dress baskets, which had been squashed into lopsided deformity under heavier things in the hold.

Louise was on the scene armed with my keys and Mrs. Ess Kay wouldn't hear of letting me do anything myself. "Now, I'll explain why I had to desert you on the dock," she said. "Or perhaps I needn't explain. If you watch Louise unpacking for a few minutes you'll see for yourself. And I do hope, sweet child, that you'll excuse my taking a liberty."

This made me curious. Louise opened one of my boxes which had had been labeled "Not Wanted," and I could hardly believe my eyes when she lifted out an exquisite poppy colored chiffon, embroidered with sprays of golden holly and berries made of some gleaming red jewel.

"I know, love, but I have," said Mrs. Ess Kay, "and, thanks to you, I've got it and several others through without paying duty. I thought you wouldn't mind, you're such a dear pet and it's been such an accommodation. Not that I care about the money, but I do love to get the best of those fiends at the custom house, and I have, for once. You see, it was like this: When Louise went to the baggage room to get out some things for you I had them put in my trunks afterward and some of my dresses changed into yours, as your frocks had all been worn and mine hadn't. I told Louise to put my things down at the bottom, some in each of your trunks, and I was pretty sure the man wouldn't touch them, as you're a British subject. I trusted to luck that you'd be too cute to say anything and give me away if you saw the dresses while your trunks were being examined, but I just hoped he wouldn't dig down to them. I dared not tell you what was going on, as Sally said I ought to, because if I had you might have refused or else spoiled everything by being self conscious. If you'd been with me the fiends might have caught on to our little game, they're so suspicious, but where you were they never suspected any connection between us. You're just a dear."

I had been a dear in spite of myself, but there was no use in making a fuss, now the dearness was all over, whatever I might have done if I'd known beforehand that I was to be a cat's paw. Perhaps if I hadn't been given the iced stuff with the strawberries I might have been crosser; but, fortified by that, I lived up to my reputation as a dear during the half hour of the unpacking.

When my frocks all hung in a row like Bluebeard's wives, in the cedar wardrobe, and I was left alone with them at last, my first thought was to plunge my imprisoned roses in water; my second, to do the same with myself.

The hope of tea (which hadn't been fulfilled) and a bath had kept me alive through those two hot hours on the dock, and now I could choose between several kinds of bath, each one more luxurious than any I had ever known. At home there's either the big bath, in the bathroom, or there's a tub in your bedroom, so it doesn't take you long to make up your mind which you will have. But here there were so many things I could do that I grew quite confused among them.

There was the big bath, so big that two of our big ones at Battlemead could have gone into it, and instead of climbing ignominiously in in the ordinary way you walked down several glittering white marble steps. It was very alluring, but as the marble tank was so vast I feared I might have to spend all the rest of the afternoon in getting it full of water. It seemed impertinent to make a convenience of such a splendid, early Roman sort of receptacle for a mere five minutes' splash. A bath of such magnificence ought, I felt, to be what Americans call a "function," a ceremony for which you would prepare with perfumed ointments and ambergris and protract for half a day at least, not to be wasteful. Then there was the vapor bath, which you took in a kind of box with a hole for your head to stick out; a porcelain sitz bath and a mysterious shower bath into which ou secretively retired behind canvas curtains shaped like a sentry box.

I dared not try the vapor for fear I should be steamed like a potato, the sitz seemed as inadequate as a thwarted ambition, and to turn on the shower without knowing how much it could do or how soon it could be stopped appeared a desperate adventure. After all, I thought, it was less worrying with us. Here, whichever thing you chose, you would probably wish you had had the other, whereas at home you did what you could and were perfectly satisfied.

I decided that I would toss up a coin; heads the big marble tank, tails the shower. It came tails, and I had a dreadful qualm, but, noblesse oblige, one must be sporting. So I was, only the hot water wouldn't come and apparently there was ice in the cold, which wouldn't stop coming, and it was very violent. I screamed once, and Mrs. Ess Kay and Sally and Louise ran to the door, which was embarrassing, but fortunately I'd locked it, and they told me how to stop the iced water. When it was all over I felt like a marble statue for hours.

Dinner was at half past 7, which seemed odd in such a grand palace of a house, because of course at home, for some extraordinary reason unless you are in the middle classes, you never have an appetite before 8 at the very earliest. If you're in France or other countries on the continent you can be hungry sooner, and evidently it is the same in America. Perhaps, if I were scientific, I should be able to classify these differences as natural phenomena.

I had dressed myself early and was ready a little after 7, because I thought it would be nice to sit in the fountain court, but just as I was going down Louise knocked at the door.

"I have come to help miladi and to bring her these flowers," said she. "They are with a million compliments from monsieur the Lieutenant Parker, the brother of madame."

"But I have never met him," I said, gazing with wonder upon a group (bunch is too mean a word) of mammoth pink roses, with thickly leaved stems longer than walking sticks. There were at least a dozen of these splendid creatures, loosely held together by trails of pink satin ribbon, wide enough for a sash. I had never dreamed of such roses. I almost expected them to speak.

"Miladi and the lieutenant will meet at dinner," explained Louise. "It is an American custom that the messieurs send always flowers to the ladies. Mme. and Mlle. Woodburn have received bouquets also, but these roses for miladi are the most beautiful. Is it miladi's wish that I untie the ribbon and take out one or two for her to carry?"

I was on the point of saying "Yes," because the flowers were so lovely and because it would please Mrs. Ess Kay, but on second thoughts I said "No," thanking Louise and asking her to put the creatures' feet in water. Perhaps it would be as well, I reminded myself, to see this brother of Mrs. Ess Kay's (of whose existence I'd never heard) before I went about armed with his roses. I had already tucked the white bud which had come to me on the dock like a dove with an olive branch into the low neck of my frilly white muslin frock, and I gave it no rivals.

Beauty Recipes of French Chemist.

The woman who lives at home and has the necessary leisure may enjoy heating her little "bain marie" and becoming her own chemist. The busier woman can give the prescriptions to a reliable druggist, who will put them up for her. The orange flower skin food is specially recommended. The hair recipes will fail of their full effect if the skin (or scalp) to which they are applied be not thoroughly cleansed first. The scalp lotions are useless, moreover, if the scalp be tight. In nine cases out of ten both skin and scalp are somewhat neglected in the summer. Now is the time to resume the steady care of one's tresses. And as the soil is the thing to mind about in gardening, so the scalp is the thing to mind about when it is a question of the hair. The beauty of the hair depends upon the nourishment it receives, and the nourishment it receives depends upon the circulation.

Dry Hair.—Tincture of cantharides, one ounce; tincture of jaborandi, two drams; bay rum, ten ounces; oil of nutmeg, one dram.

Oily Hair.—Powdered bicarbonate of soda, one-half ounce; borate of soda, one-half ounce; eau de cologne, two ounces (fluid); tincture of cochineal, one-quarter ounce (fluid); distilled water, thirty-two ounces. Mix thoroughly, rubbing and working it into the scalp every night.

If the hair is very plentiful double all the quantities.

Almond Milk.—To every fifteen almonds add one tablespoonful of granulated sugar to mix the oils. Pound the nuts to a powder and while doing so add to every fifteen nuts one gill of rosewater until they are a fine paste, cover and let stand for twelve hours, then strain and add ten drops of tincture of benzoin.

Barley Water For Washing the Face.—Bring three ounces of best pearl barley to a boil in a pint of cold water, after which it should simmer for fifteen minutes. When it is thick, but not sticky, strain, and when cold add twenty-five drops of tincture of benzoin and one-half its bulk of rosewater.

Orange Flower Skin Food (this does not grow hair).—White wax, one-half ounce; spermaceti, one-half ounce; cocoanut oil, one-half ounce; orange flower water, one ounce; lanolin, one ounce; oil of sweet almonds, two ounces; tincture of benzoin, three drops.

If made at home melt ingredients 1, 2, 3, 5 and 6, adding 4 and 7 when the others are melted. Beat briskly with an egg beater. Wash the face well with warm water and castile or any pure soap before applying and apply at bedtime only.

Oatmeal Water.—Boil one cupful of oatmeal in a gallon of water for one hour. Strain and bottle and use for washing face and hands. It is a fine whitener.

The Famous Lait Virginal.—Orange flower water (or rosewater), one pint; simple tincture of benzoin, one-half ounce; tincture of myrrh, ten drops; glycerin, fifteen drops.

French Complexion Paste.—Tincture of benzoin, ten drops; warm water (or rosewater), one-half cupful, and enough almond meal to make a paste with the foregoing. Tear one white rose to pieces and stir in (in bain marie—i. e., double boiler) until quite warm. Smear on the face until it draws, then remove with a little water and rub in a good cold cream.

Paste For Night Gloves.—Myrrh, one ounce; honey, four ounces; yellow wax, two ounces; rosewater, six ounces. Powder the myrrh, melt the wax and mix while hot. Beat thoroughly, stir in honey and rosewater and sufficient glycerin little by little to make a paste. Put the paste on the hands, then slip on gloves a size too large at bedtime.

During 1910, 32,457 natives of Ireland emigrated from that country—17,737 males and 14,720 females.

OPTICAL SERVICE
BY
A. A. FOWLER, Eyesight Specialist

In every trade, profession or branch of work, there are found a few men, who from special fitness, or education, or both, are better prepared to serve you in their line than the multitude of others in the same field.

Since Optometry requires especial ability in both professional and mechanical work, men that are fitted to do both equally well are scarce. Therefore you cannot be too particular about the selection of the man to whom you entrust your eyes.

The professional work—the examining and measuring of your eye defects, must be skilfully done. The mechanical part—the making and adjusting of your glasses is no less important.

Every phase of optical work is thoroughly and intelligently done here. From the first step in the examination to the final adjusting of the frame or mounting not a single thing is overlooked or slighted. I do all the work myself, and having had such fine success with most difficult, and neglected eyes, I do not hesitate to say that I can give you perfect satisfaction.

A visit will incur no obligation.

She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her husband, two sons and two daughters. The sons are Thomas McGrath, of New York city and Leo of Hartford, Conn., and the daughters, Misses Mabel and Kathleen, at home. Two brothers, are Mr. T. E. Sheehan, of Bay City, Mich., and Mr. M. Sheehan of Mobile, Florida. The late Mrs. McGrath had been a faithful member of St. Peter's Cathedral.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 697 Harvey St., to-morrow, Tuesday, morning, at nine o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

The Late F. E. Darcy

The funeral of the late Frederick Egerton Darcy, son of the late Mr. J. H. Darcy, who passed away on Saturday at 160 Charlotte street, took place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

The deceased was a life long resident of Peterborough, and while living in this city had engaged in the occupations of a machinist, an actor and in the restaurant and hotel business, but for the last three years of his life, was the proprietor of the pool room on Charlotte street. He was thirty-seven years of age, and a member of St. Paul's church.

He leaves to mourn his loss a sorrowing wife, and one son, Aubrey, his mother and two brothers, Warren, of Burleigh Falls and Roland of Lakefield.

The funeral proceeded to Little Lake cemetery, where the interment took place.

Mrs. Wm. Walker

The death occurred early this morning of Jane Walker, wife of Mr. Mr. Wm. Walker, 587 Patterson street. Mr. and Mrs. Walker have only been in the city a few months, coming from Scotland last November, but in their short time of residence they made many friends, who will be sorry to learn of Mrs. Walker's demise. The funeral arrangements will be announced in to-morrow's issue.

MEETING TO TAKE PLACE IN JUNE

At Farm of Mr. G. W. Mann in Smith Township

The directors of West Peterborough Farmers' Institute met Saturday afternoon pursuant to notice. J. H. Garbutt the president, was in the chair. Others present were Messrs. Moore, Chambers, Graham, Deyell, Gordon, Mann, G. W. Mann, A. McGregor, Handbidge, Telford, Brown and the secretary. The President announced that the meeting was called to select a time and place for holding the annual meeting, also to decide whether the directors would ask the Department to send a speaker. The latter question was decided in the negative. Two places were offered in Smith Township for holding the annual meeting on the afternoon of June 19th. Mr. R. N. Scott offered his farm, and Mr. G. W. Mann also extended an invitation offering his, both of which are ideal places for holding the meeting, which after the business is done will resolve itself into a picnic party. The Woman's Institute of Lakefield are being invited to co-operate with the Institute. A cordial invitation to all is extended. Some speakers will be invited. The thanks of the Board of Directors was given to Messrs. Scott and Mann for the kind invitations extended to the Institute. The latter place was chosen on account of being more convenient for the Women's Institute at Lakefield.

Card of Thanks

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith wish to thank the kind friends who have helped them since they were burnt out on Harvey street.

SABBATH MADE FOR MAN, NOT MAN FOR THE SABBATH

Secretary of Lord's Day Alliance at the St. Paul's Church.

The Rev. Mr. Rochester, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, occupied the pulpit of George street Methodist church in the morning and that of St. Paul's Presbyterian church at night.

The morning service included a special collection for the Lord's Day Alliance and in this connection Mr. Rochester remarked that the Alliance had carried on its work from the Atlantic to the Pacific last year, involving lawyer's fees and other heavy expenditures of twenty thousand dollars. All this money had been raised by subscriptions, and he urged that, the cause being a good one, the congregation subscribe as liberally as they felt they could.

SABBATH FOR MAN

At St. Paul's the reverend gentleman called attention to the passage of the Bible that stated that the Sabbath was made for man, and not man made for the Sabbath. Although the speaker had only served as secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance for a little over a year, he had been connected with its work in the West for several years and had encountered many people who considered the Sabbath of only minor and trivial importance. On the contrary Mr. Rochester thought that it was one of our most important institutions, and quoted Gladstone, who said in regard to the Sabbath "It is the most important of all the institutions that bless our land to-day."

The Sabbath as stated in the Bible was for man, not against him. There were people who regarded it as an encumberance and inconvenience that must be borne, but they were wrong, for the Sabbath, in the sum total of things was the friend of man, not his enemy. It will work in his interest in the industrial, physical, mental and moral parts of his life. The industrial advantage of the Sabbath was shown by the case of one of the largest cement manufacturers in England. Many people claimed that the rotatary furnaces of a cement work must be continuous and therefore uninterrupted by a Sunday rest. This manufacturer had, however, closed up his entire plant on Sunday, including the furnaces, and found that the output a month on the six day a week basis, was greater than the output a month on the seven day basis; partly, on account of the increased capacity of the furnaces on account of the short rest, and partly because of the obvious willingness of the men. By several other appropiate illustrations he showed that the greater success of industry and commerce was bound up in the proper observance of the Sabbath.

In every church in Peterborough similar services were being held, and in every city, town and village in Canada, services would be held, morning, afternoon and evening, and the effect of them would be immeasurable. How could we get men and women to support such great moral reforms as temperance, if they had not been educated morally and spiritually in the church. Thus, we see that moral movements could not succeed without the Sabbath.

In connection with the observance of the Sabbath, Mr. Rochester asked the parents to eliminate as far as possible the negative and introduce the positive. The saying of "don't" to the children, gave them the impression that the Sabbath was against them, and they would learn to fear it. Parents should use the positive by telling the children to "do," and make provision for its execution.

The Lord's Day Alliance claimed that the observance of the Sabbath should be governed by broad principles, and not little petty distinctions as to what is right and wrong to do on Sunday. We looked back upon the days when our ancestors listened to two sermons, one hour and a half in length, and two prayers a Sunday, each forty-five minutes long and the re-action caused by the contemplation of those days tended to incline us to an open Sabbath. Nothing would do more to degenerate mentally our nation, and morally, than a holiday Sabbath.

In reference to the efforts of the Lord's Day Alliance in Toronto, to have the city toboggan slides closed, he said that the Alliance had no intention to attempt to control peoples actions or their amusements, but only asked that the city should not provide a place for Sunday amusement. Again in their efforts to make certain employers close their business on Sunday, they did not try to make the employe come to church but did aim to give him the opportunity of coming. Some men who ridiculed the Alliance, owed their liberty on the Sabbath to the Lord's Day Alliance itself, it having been responsible for the passing of the Lord's Day Act, which had given over two hundred thousand people, the liberty of the Sabbath with all that went with it—the rest, exercise and home life.

The Sabbath was intended for the whole man, his body, mind and soul, and in caring for one of these, we must not forget the others, not spending our whole Sunday on exercise, worship or study.

In conclusion, the speaker commended the Sabbath, and the Lord's Day Alliance, which had probably suffered more misrepresentation than any other organization, and Mr. Rochester quoted a prominent gentleman who had said, "Canada will never know how much it owes to the Lord's Day Alliance."

PASTOR OF CHURCH SHOULD BE MORE THAN MERE FIGUREHEAD

"The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent, greater than he that sent him."—John 13; 16.

Rev. J. R. Webb, of Murray street Baptist church, chose for his evening sermon on Sunday, the words of the above text, his subject as announced being "The Servant in the House."

The pastor likened the minister of any worthy church to the servant in the house, a minister of the Gospel, who was in every sense a humble, energetic servant of God.

"I have not been inside a theatre for twenty years," said the speaker, "nor was I present at the performance of "The Servant in the House," this week. I do know the message, however, of the book from which the play is drawn, and I know that the writer obtained his idea for a title from the Bible."

Continuing, the pastor remarked that "the atmosphere of many churches is stagnant.

"The church itself is forsaken by the multitudes, and the fault is often found underneath the pulpit.

"The mind of every man in the twentieth century revolts against the doctrine of priesthood, with its mediation and dictation.

"One expression that is specially abhorrent to me," remarked Rev. Mr. Webb, "is the one—the respect due to the cloth. The phrase is often heard. "We must give him the respect due to the cloth."

"Is the ministry of the ascended Lord, to be characterized as the cloth? I ask for no consideration other than what is due to any man, regardless of calling, trade or occupation.

The pastor felt that no minister of the Gospel could be justified in looking upon himself as superior to other people, but that as a true servant of Christ, each minister should labor humbly and diligently.

AND PILATE SAID, BEHOLD THE MAN

And Christ Stands To-day Awaiting Our Verdict

Large Congregations at All Saints Welcomed Rev. W. S. Major

The parishioners of All Saints' tendered a befitting welcome to their former rector, Rev. W. S. Major, of Montreal, at the services yesterday, when large congregations were present and were treated to two eloquent and helpful discourses.

For his text at evensong Rev. Mr. Major took the words of Pilate as Jesus stood on trial before him, "Behold the Man." He gave an impressive word picture of the scene enacted that week of the passover, and passing on portrayed the Christ as He stood to-day awaiting our verdict. The speaker dealt with the attractiveness of Jesus. He was a Jew, but was not distinctive. All classes of people, the broken hearted and the weary, came to him and found rest. No fault could be found in Him. He was sinless, and far above everything. Yet He fascinated the sinful and through Him they came and were delivered of their pollution. He died on the cross, willingly to save the world, yet He need not have given up His life.

In a most effective manner, Rev. Mr. Major placed the subject of his sermon before his large congregation and concluded by leaving in the mind of each the question, "Will you have this Man to be your Friend, your Teacher, your Mediator, your King?"

The anthem by the choir was "Son of My Soul," with Miss Mabel Williams taking the solo.

THE RED MILL

Opening Shows Were Well Patronized and Much Enjoyed

If the program of pictures and illustrated songs, given at the new Red Mill theatre on Friday and Saturday last, are a sample of what is to follow, that already popular place promises to become a huge success. On both days the theatre was taxed to its utmost capacity and all those who gave their patronage, were highly pleased by the varied display of humorous, instructive and dramatic pictures. All the pictures were above the ordinary plane, and judging from the remarks of those who visited the theatre, the re-introduction of the illustrated song has met with their hearty approval.

To-day the program was made especially attractive by the appearance of New York's greatest baritone singer, Mr. Bell, who is undoubtedly the most accomplished soloist, who has ever before contributed to the entertainment of any local 5c theatre. Mr. Bell will sing daily throughout this week, and all indications augur well for the popularity of this new venture. The securing of Mr. Bell's services is but the first step of the new and enterprising managemet, under whose direction the "Red Mill" has enjoyed such a successful opening, and there is no doubt that, should the present high class entertainment be continued the very large patronage of the new theatre will be retained and increased.

ANNUAL FINANCIAL REPORT ON WATERWORKS DEPARTMENT

M. H. O, Reports City Water in Good Condition During The Month

A meeting of the City Water Commissioners was held on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock, with the following present: T. F. Matthews (chairman), W. H. Moore, K.C., and W. H. Hill. Acting Superintendent Fawcett was also in attendance.

DELAYED LETTER.

A letter was received from the Peterborough Light and Power Company regarding a letter containing a cheque for the city treasurer, which had been delayed in transit. The letter was, according from the time it was mailed, until its receipt about five days late, and it finally was received by the city treasurer unstamped.

GOOD WATER.

The medical health officer reported on the water for January, which was found to be very good and free from organisms during the month.

Mrs. R. Parker, through her solicitors, communicated with the commissioners, asking to have the extra metre removed at her shop on Charlotte street. The letter said that Mrs. Parker had not asked for additional service. The account for the two has been paid under protest.

Mrs. Parker will be notified that she will have to pay the cost of the laying of the service.

The adding machine at the city hall, which was purchased jointly by the Water Commissioners and the city, required overhauling about four times a year at a cost of about $10. The city will pay this expense.

THAT TURBINE PUMP.

The secretary was instructed to ask Mr Lester, of the McDougall Company, to wait on the Commissioners on Thursday evening next, in reference to the turbine pump at the waterworks station. The visit of Mr. Lester, however, will not imply that the commissioners intend to deviate from the engineer's report on the turbine pump.

A letter was read from W. Kennedy, jr., enclosing his report on the pumping unit put in by the John McDougall Caledonian Iron Works Company, and a copy of a letter, he had sent to the company, and also his report on the Venturi metre.

The letter and reports were referred to the city solicitor to look into, as Mr. Kennedy suggested.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Peterborough, Feb. 10th, 1912.

To the Peterborough Water Commissioners:

Gentlemen,—I herewith submit the financial statement of the waterworks department for the year 1911.

During the year there was expended in laying mains and setting hydrants $7,763.69 and in laying service $2,980.30, a total of $10,743.99 expended in ordinary construction work.

There was also expended on the new dam, pumping station and pumping machinery $11,777.46. This includes payments on the original contracts and the cost of the protection wall at the east end of the dam.

The net water rates, including special frontage rates, amounted to $43,694.94. The expense accounts, including $13,197.70 paid to the city to meet interest on debentures and $9,370.23 for sinking fund, and amount written off tools and plant for depreciation, amounted to $42,994.71, showing a profit of $700.24. In addition a new item of $1,500.00 appears in the revenue as power supply, being the amount due from the Canadian General Electric Co during the year which being added makes a surplus on the year's operations of $2,200.24.

PAPERS PRAISE "THE THIEF"

No play in recent years has so served for editorial comments and even judicial reference as has "The Thief" ever since its production in Paris, where it created a sensation and in New York, where it caused all the dramatic reviewers to exhaust themselves in columns of praise. The women of both countries have used it as the chief topic of conversation for months after witnessing a performance. The wife in "The Thief" has a passion to please her husband He has often expressed his admiration of her friends, because they "looked so nice" and "dressed so becomingly." Marie Louise, for fear of losing the love she held so dearly, determines to hold it by dressing in a manner to attract and interest her better half. But she has insufficient funds. Her husband is not rich, and clothes cost lots of money. So she buys dresses she cannot pay for and in order not to be found out, steals money from her dearest friend, whom she is visiting. The blame is laid on her friends son, who, because of his love for Marie Louise, confesses to the crime.

But the husband is not satisfied and questions his wife more closely with the result that, in a torture of agony, tears and supplications, she finally confesses that she and not the boy is the thief. At this point disclosures are made that put an astonishing complexion upon all the circumstances and the dramatist is permitted to carry his story to a satisfactory conclusion.

Continuously, from the rise of the curtain to the fall of the final one, "The Thief" thrills the spectator with a story based upon the foundation of all civilization—wedded love—it is a play for women, for a woman in love, is the pivot on which this great drama of human interest revolves. Small wonder then that this Bernstein masterpiece aroused a sensation both in Europe and America, and its presentation should be taken advantage of by all who are interested in the inner workings of a woman's heart.

CHASING THE RUBBER

The Trent Valley bill of fare at the Brock street rink for this week will be a meeting between All Saints' and T.A.S. to-night, with Lakefield and Hastings coming together on Wednesday night. The Saints' were trounced in their first game with the Abstainers and are looking forward for a win to-night.

The fans should see plenty of excitement on Wednesday night as both the Lakefield and Hastings clubs are running excursions to the city for the game.

Man local fans would like to see the first game of the intermediate finals which will be played at Midland on Wednesday night. The Midland team is fancied by some, because of their work against Peterborough and Mount Forest. Preston, however, has a grand team, in fact the western clubs feel that the champions should be competing in the senior series. Last season Midland won out at home by one goal, the score reading 7—6, while in Preston the Eddie Gould septet was put away by 6—3.

T.A.S lineup for the game to-night will be:—Goal, McFadden; point, Lansfield; cover, Lansfield; rover, McPhee; centre, Halpin; right, Coughlin; left, O'Dette. Leo Derocher will referee.

Marmora won both protests and will play in Tweed this week. If the team gets away with a win and is also successful against Stirling the district will be tied up.

The upstairs men of the Matthews Laing Company played a friendly game of hockey against the downstairs men at Sacred Heart rink, the former winning by a score of 3-2.

Wally Hern will handle the Orillia-Peterborough game to-morrow night.

Eatons secured a nine goal lead over Kingston at Toronto Saturday night, the score being 13—4. The return game is Friday and the champions look good to repeat.

LADY CURLERS

The competition for the curling prizes offered by J. A. Cameron, closed on Friday, the final game having been won by Mrs. Coulthard's rink. The rinks and scores were:—

Miss Helen Davidson.
Miss Bella Morrow.
Miss Mina Davidson.
Mrs. Coulthard, skip: 14.
Mrs. Sanderson.
Mrs. MacLeod.
Mrs. Goodwill.
Mrs. Travers, skip 10.

Two rinks of lady curlers from Belleville were expected to play tomorrow morning but owing to bad ice, the games have been posponed.

BIG CITIES LOSE MONEY ON HORSES

Three million dollars a year represents the financial loss to horse owners in New York and Chicago as a result of weather and street conditions under which draught horses have to work. More than 20,000 horses died in the streets of New York last year and were removed by a contracting company. In Chicago the number removed from the streets was 4,800, and in addition 2,000 were taken from stables and disposed of humanely. Figured on the same percentage basis, it may be estimated that 8,300 horses were removed from stables in New York, bringing the total of equine demises for the metropolis to 28,300 in the year.

The snow and ice on the streets in Winter are responsible for heavy losess. In one week in December, for instance, 500 horses were removed from the streets in Greater New York. For four consecutive Midwinter weeks the average was 442 a week, or about 74 a working day. In Chicago the average was 43 per day during the ten days from Jan. 8 to 18.

The greater loss of horses occurred in the intensely hot weather last July. In the week ended July 8, 948 animals succumbed in the streets of New York, and the following week the number was 760 making a total of 1,708 for the fortnight. In Chicago the deaths during the six weeks' period from June 15 to July 25 aggregated 1,620, or an average of 40 a day. These figures are from records furnished in both cities by the Board of Health.

TELEPHONE TEAM BEAT LOCK WORKS

Score Was 4-1 — Standing in the Mercantile League

The Bell Telephone team won another victory Saturday, when, in a Mercantile League fixture they defeated the Lock Works 4—1. The ice was soft and sticky, making the play a little slower than usual and keeping the score figures down.

Rae, for the hello boys, got the only goal for the first half, leaving the half time score 1—0. In the second half Neary scored for the Lock Works right after the face off, but the Telephones got the lead by a goal through Rae. Nattress and Paterson were responsible for the next two goals.

This victory makes five straight wins for the Telephone team, who intend to keep up the good work to the finish.

L.C.I. WON FROM P.C.I. IN HOCKEY

Locals Had Easy Victory in Basketball Game

About 25 P.C.I. students went to Lindsay on Saturday to play the return hockey and basketball matches with the L.C.I., who played here one week ago. In the basketball game the P.C.I repeated their victory, winning by the score 14 to 4. In the hockey game in the afternoon, both teams lost to the Lindsay aggregations, the seniors being walloped 10—0, and the juniors losing by the score 7—1. In both cases the better condition of the Lindsay players made the victory easy for them.

The Jersey census shows that the population is 51,903, a decrease of 673 on the 1901 census. The males number 24,022, and the females 27,881. The figures for St. Helier are 12,368 males and 15,247 females.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

LOVE affects the appetite before marriage no doubt, and it probably is true that appetite affects love after marriage.

It is remarkable that some people look for work in most extraordinary places.

It takes but a small amount of material to make a woman a dress according to the present modes, but be not unduly elated; her hat requires bales.

A man may talk because he wants to, but a woman talks because she has to.

No matter how many cake recipes a woman has, she is always hot on the trail of a new one.

Some men regard their wives as the fountain of all their financial troubles—that is to say, as mere bill heads.

If a girl is as supple as a clothes line she then needs only the clothes to complete her happiness.

Keep your temper, but don't reveal it to anybody.

Nobody was ever able to determine why men are helpless creatures around the house, but somehow they all seem to come that way.

What of that?
To the bat

And prove you are the right sort!
You know how Robert Bruce

When the spider showed him how,
Went back to win
After he was all in
And ready to say goodby

Made another try
And came out high.
And you may do the same
If you will be as game.

Your resolutions didn't last
Until the ink was dry
And you had cash to buy
The things you had forsworn
On New Year's morn,
Don't let that jar

"Isn't it awful?" said the sad faced pessimist. "I don't know what we are coming to. A man who is over forty-five can't get a job any more. Employers will not hire him, and all he can do is to starve in the midst of plenty."

"Oh, I don't know about that," replied the man with a ticket allowing him to look on the brightest side of life. "Some of the best jobs in the country are picked up by men over that age."

Strikers' Children Leave.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 18.—Weeping, laughing and chattering, nearly 100 children of the striking Lawrence textile workers, accompanied by a dozen grown-ups, passed through this city yesterday on their way to the homes of friends and sympathizers in New York. Each child wore two cards, one giving its address and the other read as follows:

"We are winning; we will win if we stand together—if the mills are kept tied up tight. Therefore, stick, stand together, or they'll hang one after the other. Don't scab, attend all meetings on Sundays, pack the halls full and keep the mills closed. Put this on your coat—pin it on tight—so that everybody can see this. 'I am not a scab'."

Nine Saved; Eleven Lost.

Liverpool, Feb. 19.—The British steamer Cuban, which arrived here last night from New Orleans, brought into port nine of the crew of the British ship Erne, which was wrecked in a heavy storm at sea.

The Erne was bound from Boston, Feb. 1, for Buenos Ayres. The Cuban passed her on Feb. 8, in latitude 40 north, longtitude 50 west, and rescued those of the crew who had managed to keep themselves alive. Six of the crew were drowned, while the master of the Erne, Capt. Fickett, his wife, the second mate and a passenger are missing. Only the cargo was keeping the wreck afloat.

Home Rulers Gather.

London, Feb. 19.—Home rulers were in the highest spirits yesterday afternoon in Trafalgar Square, where from 15,000 to 20,000 people assembled in support of the Government's proposed measure of self-government for Ireland. Liberals and Nationalists combined in the demonstration, members of the House of Commons occupying seven of the platforms.

Resolutions urging the necessity of giving as generous a measure of home rule to Ireland as is consistent with the maintenance of Imperial supremacy and suggesting that the bill be so framed as to be capable of early application to England, Scotland and Wales were adopted with the greatest enthusiasm.

William G. C. Gladstone, Liberal member of Parliament for Kilmarnock Burgs, a grandson of William E. Gladstone, the Liberal "Grand Old Man," who introduced the first home rule bill in 1886, was among the speakers. He said the democracy of this country had made the cause of home rule as its own.

Terre Haute, Ind., Feb. 19.—Posses scouring the neighborhood had found no trace of the bandits who attempted to hold up the Vandalia New York-St. Louis mail train No. 11, near Liggett, Ind., Friday night. Because of more than an hour's delay in making up a special train to carry local Sheriff Walsh and his deputies to the scene of the attempted robbery, and the cutting off of telegraph wires, the bandits obtained a big start on the officials.

Railroad officials say no effort was made to break into the cars and that so far as they know nothing of any considerable value was being carried. It is their belief that when the bandits failed to stop the train in the deep cut they gave up hope of getting any loot and made good their escape.

Jessimane In Kingston.

Toronto, Feb. 19—Joseph Jessimane, whose sentence to hanging was changed to that of life imprisonment for shooting James Lougheed one Saturday afternoon in Hayter street last spring, passed through Toronto streets Saturday morning for the last time. Sitting between two sheriffs, his wrists brought close together by cold steel handcuffs, he was carried to the Limestone City in the Grand Trunk Montreal train. He was apparently unconcerned about anything. The terrible sentence which hung over him seemed not to depress him in the least. Late in the afternoon he was handed over to the penitentiary authorities and for the balance of his earthly career will live within prison walls.

Kaiser Snubs Official.

Berlin, Feb. 19.—According to The Cologne Gazette, the Kaiser has declined to receive the new Reichstag president and vice-president, Herr Kaempt, the president, and Dr. Dove, second vice-president, requested an interview, but Herr Schiedemaan, the Socialist vice-president, refused to participate. The Kaiser, however, has refused to receive the presiding officers of the Reichstag. Inasmuch as this decision was communicated through the Court Chamberlain, it proves that this is a personal affair of the Kaiser's.

Woman Ends Life.

Brockville, Feb. 19.—Mrs. E. Lee of Alexandria Bay, N.Y., a patient since the first of the year at the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, where she was under treatment for nervous melancholia, committed suicide under peculiar circumstances.

Pioneer Woman of West Dead.

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 19.—Mrs. E. Louise Greenvalley, a native of Quebec, aged 52, who claims to have been the first white woman to cross the Canadian Rockies, having come by the Dewdney pack trail in 1883, died yesterday. She lived in Winnipeg from 1880 to 1883.

Informal Dinner.

At an informal home dinner the hostess may serve the soup from a tureen, which is placed before her. The fish should be placed before the host and served by him. He also carves and serves the meat. If one has a maid it is best to stand the vegetables on the side table, but they may be placed on the dining table if one prefers to have the dinner served in the old fashioned simple style. The salad and the dessert should be placed before the hostess, and if coffee is served the after dinner coffee set with the small cups, spoon and sugar may be placed before the hostess.

A move is being made in Ottawa to urge on the Ontario Government the advisability of inserting a "conscience" clause in the proposed amendment to the Public Health Act for those who have conscientious objections to vaccination.

Selborne Is Hostile.

London, Feb. 19.—Following the example of his leader, Bonar Law, who charged the Government with introducing American methods in politics, Lord Selborne, speaking in Cambridge Friday night on political corruption, told his hearers that if they wanted to realize the evils which might proceed from this elevation of the party machine to the seat of government, they must look at the experience of the United States. The party machine was greedy for money and would get it where it could and how it could.

In certain parts of America, he said, it got that money from the great corporations and trusts, and because they supported it, it supported them. Thereby, to a large degree, in certain parts of America, the real ruler of the country had been wealth, and irresponsible wealth was the worst ruler which a country could have.

"FEEBLE STOMACH"

Causes Digestive Weakness and Poisons the Entire System.

"No one can have suffered more than I did with stomach trouble," writes Phil. E. Pascalar, well known at St. Andrews Corners. "My doctor told me my indigestion and sleeplessness were due to poisons in the blood. Certainly my condition was desperate, and it seemed from the despondent feelings that swept over me that I would lose my reason. I happened to read about Dr. Hamilton's Pills and bought five boxes from the druggist. Such body-cleansing pills I never used; they were mild and yet quite strong enough to drive all the humors out of the blood. My stomach gained strength rapidly with Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I improved so much that in eight weeks I could eat and digest all ordinary food. Depression and weariness passed away and I am, thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills, enjoying robust good health."

No remedy for biliousness, indigestion, headache, sick stomach, or constipation that compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse substitutes. Sold in 25c. boxes. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

AUTHOR AND CRITIC HAD DUEL

Engagement Was Farcical and Both Soon Quit

Paris, Feb. 19—Real red blood—but not very much—flowed as the result of the sword duel between Emile Mas, critic of the theatrical Comedia and Gaston de Caillavet, co-author with Robert de Flecis, of the comedy "Primrose," now playing at the Comedia Francaise. The duel was one of the most humorous performances in the history of French duelling. Neither man knew the point of a sword from the hilt, and after being instructed by their seconds, went hot at it using their weapons most of the time as though they were canes or bludgeons, trying to beat each other on the head with them.

The worst sufferer was De Caillavet's second, who got in the way of the flying swords and was pinked twice on his forearm. Finally, more by accident than design, Caillavet was gashed slightly in the forearm, and as the blood appeared there was a hurried chorus from all of the attendants that honor was now satisfied and that the "battle" must end. Neither of the contestants had to be strongly persuaded.

NO KISSING.

There was no reconciliation despite the suggestion of the seconds that the pair kiss and make up.

A second duel was planned between De Caillavet and the editor of Comedia, becuase the latter editorally upheld his crite and referred in derogatory terms to De Caillavet taking advantage of the presence of ladies in the lobby of the theatre when he slapped the critic's face.

After a consulttaion the friends of the author, to whom the matter was referred, issued a public message that the article was "worthy of a butcher-boy and no true Frenchman could notice it." As a result of this stricture other duels may be faranged.

SELLING BUTTER BY THE YARD

One must go to Cambridge, England, if he would buy butter by the yard. It is probably the only place in the world where the dairy product is not weighed out to customers instead of being cut off in strips.

It has been the custom of dairymen in that vicinity from time immemorial to roll their butter into yard-long lengths, each when worked into symetrical shape being wrapped into clean white cloth. These strips weigh a pound each and are packed in long, narrow baskets by the dairymen and are thus conveyed to market.

In serving their customers, dealers use a knife to divide the butter, no weights being considered necessary to determine the quantity portioned out to buyers. Constant practice and an experienced eye enable the seller, with a stroke of the knife, to divide the butter into halves or quarters with almost mathematical precision.

This curiously shaped butter, says Harper's Weekly, finds its chief purchasers among the people of Cambridge University. It is claimed that the "yard butter" is eminnetly adapted for the peculiar needs of the students in the daily commons. Cut into conveniently sized pieces and accompanied by a loaf of wheaten bread, a stated portion is sent every morning to the rooms of the undergraduates for use at breakfast and tea.

KING OF THE ASPS.

This Reptile, the Most Venomous of Snakes, Is Death Itself.

The most venomous of snakes is said to be the Echis carinata of India. It is about eighteen inches long and of a gray color. The creature is death itself and carries in its head the secret of destroying life with the concentrated agony of all the poisons.

Fortunately, however, for man, it is not, like the cobra, a house frequenting snake, for its aggressive habits would make it infinitely more fatal to life than its dreaded relative.

This king of the asps does not turn to escape from man, as the cobra will, or flash into concealment, like the koriat, but keeps the path against its human assailant and, pitting its own eighteen inches of length against its enemy's bulk, challenges and provokes conflict.

A stroke with a whip will cut it in two or a clod of earth disable it. But such is its malignity that it will invite attack by every device at its command, staking its own life on the mere chance of its adversary coming within the little circle of its power. At most the radius of this circle is twelve inches. Within it at any point lies certain death, and on the bare hope of hand or foot trespassing within its reach the Echis carinata throws its body into a figure of eight coil. Then it attracts attention by rubbing its loops together, which, from the roughness of the scales, make a rustling, hissing sound, erects its head in the center and awaits attack.

It is said that no one, having once encountered this terrible reptile, can ever forget its horrifying aspect when thus aroused, its eagerly aggressive air, its restless coils, which, in constant motion one over the other and rustling ominously all the while, stealthily but surely bring it nearer and nearer to the object of its fury.—Harper's.

TWO NEW HATS.

The Scheme That Won Them and the Way It Was Worked.

A man who used to be in politics and was a constant borrower found himself in need of a new hat, but he couldn't find anybody who would lend him a cent.

Finally he went to an acquaintance and said:

"I want to borrow $50 for five minutes."

"You can have it if you will put up a couple of fingers for security."

"Nix. Now, I've got a scheme. You lend me the fifty and you needn't let me get out of your sight. If you do it I'll stake you to a new hat."

Mystified, but curious, the acquaintance agreed to this, and the two repaired to a prominent hat store.

Picking out the most important looking personage in the store, the politician went up to him and said:

"I am So-and-so of the —— district. I have come to pay for two hats for which I have given orders on you to two of my constituents."

With that he flashed a fifty dollar bill.

There was a scurrying around, a search of books and a reply that no such orders had been presented.

"Just look out for them, will you?" said the district leader, waving the big bill, which was hypnotic in its way, for the clerk bowed low and said, "Yes."

The History of "Stepmother."

"Stepmother" is a word with a commonly unsuspected history. Probably most people if called upon to explain it would say that it meant a woman who had stepped into the place of the true mother. Dr. Johnson, at any rate, believed that this was the suggestion of the word to most minds. Really, "step" is the Anglo-Saxon "steop," the original meaning of which appears to have been "orphaned." Stepchild, stepbairn, stepson and stepdaughter came first, and then by gradual fading of the etymological meaning of "step" stepfather and stepmother came into being.—London Chronicle.

Japanese Landowners.

A landowner in Japan owns the surface and products of the land only. All minerals under the surface appertain not to him, but to the Japanese government. Moreover, should the government or its nominee wish to extract the minerals lying under a landowner's property the latter, though he would, of course, receive compensation for loss, cannot object on legal ground to the development of these minerals.—British Consular Report.

A VICIOUS COLONY

England's Penal Settlement In the Andaman Islands.

LIFE CONVICTS FROM INDIA.

Often the Most Desperate Prisoners Kill One Another, While Others Fall Victims to the Native Head Hunters, to Whom Murder Is Sport.

Frederick Taylor, F. R. G. S., writing in the Century Magazine about life in the Andaman islands, says:

"The sailing of the Maharaja from Calcutta for the Andaman islands was not accompanied by the usual goodbys and handkerchief waving, for of my fellow passengers there were seventy to whom no one wished bon voyage or a safe return. These were convicts, all murderers under life sentences, who for some reason had escaped the death penalty, and included six women, for the Maharaja is the ship used by the colonial Indian government to transport convicts to the penal settlements near Port Blair, South Andaman island, a distance of 650 miles from Calcutta.

"The prisoners were all manacled and shackled about the ankles, with chains fastened to bands at the wrist. They were a despicable lot. At night a continual moaning and cursing and hopeless sobbing came up from the hatches and made sleep out of the question for me, though the European officer in the steamer's cabin apparently slept undisturbed. Early the first morning I went on deck and learned that two of the male prisoners were ill and had been brought up to the deck for air. They were closely guarded, and raw recruits were stationed at the railing to prevent them from committing suicide by jumping overboard into the Hugli river.

"The Andamans are literally the homes of murderers. The inhabitants are the most vicious members of an older civilization and the uncivilized head hunters, among whom murder is a sport and a pastime. In the settlement are about 1,700 prisoners, including 800 women. On arriving at Port Blair the prisoners first spend six months in solitary confinement in the cellular jail of Viper island. They are then transferred to one of the associated jails and the comparative blessing of hard labor in company with others, though still occupying separate cells at night. After a year and a half of this they become slaves, working in and about the settlement during the day and sleeping in barracks at night, always closely guarded. At the expiration of five years a convict becomes eligible to join the colony of 'self supporters' and live in the village, where he earns his living in his chosen way, lives in his own house and can send for his wife and children or marry a convict woman. In a limited sense he becomes a paterfamilias, but is always carefully watched and cannot leave the settlement without permission.

"Despite the rigid discipline and the vigilance of the authorities the communal life is far from harmonious, and the more vicious often rebel. The murderers kill one another and are in turn murdered by the treacherous Andamanese, who regard the hapless convicts and their guards as their natural prey. Occasional attempts at escape are made by the prisoners, but the efforts inevitably prove disastrous. The fugitive, finding his conditional freedom worse than servitude, either dies at the hands of the Jarawa warriors, falls a victim to fever or other disease or starves. There is also a system in vogue by which the more friendly tribes of savages co-operate with the authorities in capturing escaped convicts and receive rewards for the return of the unhappy deserters. More often, however, the head hunters kill the fugitive and return only the head, receiving the reward just the same, the killing adding zest to the chase and the return of the head being the easiest and quickest way of earning the reward.

"Under these conditions there are few attempts at escape, though many remarkably hazardous dashes for liberty have been made from time to time, which, though futile, were most daring. Some time ago the steamer Fulata picked up a poor, emaciated wretch who was sighted on a small bamboo raft off the Arakan coast. He was later found to be an escaped convict. When picked up he had been on the raft for twenty-nine days during one of the southwest monsoons and had secured water by catching the rain and sucking it from his turban and loin cloth. He lived upon flying fish that flew aboard the raft, eating them raw. He was swept off the raft many times by the waves, but had managed to cling to it. After a month in a hospital at Rangoon he was returned to prison and solitary confinement.

"Another daring attempt at escape was made by a party of six convicts who were sent with two native policemen to a small island off the middle Andaman to work. They managed to escape from the guards and, hoisting the sail of the small boat, started out in a gale. After seven days of heavy weather they were dashed upon the rocks of the Tenasserim coast, and the boat was wrecked. All escaped with their lives and eventually reached the Siamese border, where they were apprehended by the local authorities and returned to the prison."

The value of a thing is the peace of mind it gives you.

TRIALS IN ITALY.

Criminal Court Methods There Utterly Different From Ours.

Criminal court trials in Italy are conducted under a very simple system, though utterly different from the system which governs procedure in American or English courts, says an exchange.

The trial takes place before three judges and a jury, to which are added a certain number of extra jurors, who are sworn and are present in court to hear the testimony and are held ready to take the place in the jury box of any juror who may in the course of the trial be incapacitated from further service. The depositions of all the witnesses have been taken in writing and signed before the trial begins. Each of the judges has a copy of these before him. The prosecutor and the counsel for the accused furnish to the court a list of the witnesses they desire called, and these are all summoned by the court, which has power to punish nonattendance.

The first thing that happens when the trial begins is the questioning of the accused by the presiding justice. In Italy, as in most of continental Europe, a man accused of a crime is considered by the law to be the very best witness to his own guilt or innocence. In England and America the accused need not testify unless he chooses. In Italy he is the first and most important witness.

The accused is allowed the widest scope in defending himself. He has a right to tell his own story in his own way, to offer anything he can in the way of justification or palliation. Even hearsay evidence is admissible. The judge has absolute discretion as to what testimony may be received and what excluded, and any judge who exercised this discretion unfairly would be an object of execration. Bias on the part of one judge is possible, but there are always the other two judges on the bench with him, and they are a perfect check against unfairness.

When the accused has given his testimony he is confronted personally with his accuser. The accuser is necessarily the principal witness against him. Strictly speaking, the prisoner has no right to interrupt his accuser while the latter is telling his story, but in practice the judges permit it, and the confrontation sometimes becomes a three cornered debate between accuser, accused and judge, the latter giving the accused the widest leeway to demonstrate his innocence.—Case and Comment.

How Watches Vary.

Theoretically, says a jeweler, the best watches of today are perfect, but actually they both gain and lose time every day. Even if the good watch does not vary one second at the end of the twenty-four hours, the expert insists, it has both gained and lost in that time. If it is wound in the morning it runs fast and toward the next morning runs slow, thus equalizing the time. He says the best watches should be wound twice a day and then at only two-thirds of the capacity of the mainspring, thus preventing either binding or extremes of strong or weakened spring. The balance wheel was expected to equalize differences of mainspring tension, but really this is not the case to what is called perfection.—New York Press.

Boston's Winter and Summer.

Nearly all visitors to Boston, if they do not see it, are told of the place where one may "step from Winter into Summer or from Summer into Winter at any time of the year without giving a thought to his clothing." This may be done at the point where Washington street intersects the street which is "Winter" on one side and "Summer" on the other. A guide was enlarging on this bit of humor to a visitor from New York a few days ago, but was not rewarded by the smile which the Winter and Summer joke usually calls forth. "That's nothing," said the New Yorker, "but what is really funny here is to see the entrance to the underground railway marked 'The Elevator.'"—New York Tribune.

The Church Cough.

Of all coughs the church cough is the most difficult to check, and it is almost as contagious as yawning. The late Mr. Haweis practically cured his Marylebone congregation of coughing during the service. He used to announce an interval for coughing with a polite request to those who found this insufficient to go outside. There is a somewhat similar practice in the Russian army—the nose blowing drill—which is performed by the whole regiment at a signal from the colonel. And no soldier dares sneeze at any other time.—London Spectator.

The Old Order Passeth.

What has become of the old fashioned man who was about to solve the problem of perpetual motion?

And where is the old fashioned woman who wore gloves that reached only halfway to the end of her fingers?

Can anybody furnish information concerning the whereabouts of the old fashioned boy who wore mittens which were fastened to a long string?—Chicago Record-Herald.

Considerate.

"Why do you argue with your wife?" asked the bachelor. "Don't you know the futility of it?"

"Of course," replied the married man, "but I have to allow her a little pleasure once in awhile."—Puck.

Chinese Politics

Montreal Witness.

It is difficult at this distance to understand the workings of Chinese politics. The Republicans would seem to be choosing Yuan as president, and his lieutenant, Tang, for premier, because they could not otherwise get the old man out of his entrenchments at Pekin. They have told him to come to Nankin and they will make him president. We shall see whether he will come or not. How much of a republic it would be with Yuan as president and Tang as premier remains to be seen. We remember the history of France under like circumstances. Possibly Yuan does not care whether it is called a republic or a monarchy, so long as he is it. From the first it has been the policy of Dr. Sun, the provisional president to make Yuan president, so as to secure a bloodless solution of the revolution which Dr. Sun has so magnificently engineered. To this end he has laid down his high office in favor of a man whose loyalty is far less disinterested than his own.

FRANCE TO HAVE THE FINEST AERO FLEET IN THE WORLD

Paris, February 17.—A great nat-iona movement is afoot to equip the French army with the finest aerial fleet in the world. The agitation follows upon the action of the governmnet in setting aside over $6,000,000 for the complete reorganization of the army air corps. Airships and aeroplanes are to be the fourth and fifth arms respectively of the military service.

War Minister Millerand, who is taking every opportunity to encourage the revival of patriotism, is determined that France shall keep the advantage she already possesses in the air over other nations. His Speech in the Senate last Tuesday announced the importance of decentralizing the command of the air corps and placing aerial units at the disposal of every army corps. He was able to state that at the end of a year the French army would be able to mobilize 344 machines, with 234 officer airmen, and complete forces of mechanics, sappers and pupils.

Senator Raymond, who, in oder to get a thorough grip of the subject, has become an expert airman, and has visited his constituents by aeroplane, has now placed himself at the head of a national committee to supplement the efforts of the government. He declares that of the 200 aeroplanes now at the disposal of the French army only about 100 are fit for use, which, with regard to airships, places France behind Germany.

A group of the municipal councillors of Paris has proposed to present six aeroplanes to the army. The vote will doubtless be ratified at the next meeting of the council.

The Doual council has voted $8,000 for turning La Brayelle flying ground into a military aerodrome,

FIRE DRILL SAVES SCHOOL CHILDREN

Over Eight Hundred Marched Out in Good Order

Rochester, N.Y., Feb. 19—The effectiveness of the fire drill saved the lives of scores of children on Thursday morning when fire broke out in public school, No. 3, in Tremont st., and in a few minutes enveloped the entire building in flames. The school, costing $40,000 will be a total loss.

A teacher, Miss Julia Maxon, discovered the fire, and sounded the fire signal, and the principal, Miss Nellie Echtenacher, ran from room to room. In perfect order the 829 pupils and twenty teachers marched out without panic, with huge volumes of smoke billowing over their heads and filling the corridors.

A few minutes later the building was a mass of flames. The origin of the fire is not known.

NEVER HAD RIDE BY RAILWAY

With the disappearance of the old Grand Central Station, writes a correspondent of the Railroad Employe, memories are recalled of things of a decade ago, and of the then familiar personages connected in different capacities with this terminal particularly Thomas Ford.

For many years Mr. Ford was a familiar figure about the old New Haven offices, where he was employed as a messenger for General Passenger and Ticket Agent C. T. Hemstead, and during the later years of his life he served in a similar capacity for the treasurer of the company in New York City.

A native of Ireland, where he was born in 1824, and where his youth and early manhood were spent, Thomas Ford emigrated to America in 1857 sailing on the ship Yorkshire, which consumed twenty-six deays in a voyage that is at present made in six.

In the following year young Ford secured employment with the New Haven, and was employed in the baggage-room of the old station in New York, located at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-eighth street, where he worked until the station was abandoned, when he was transferred to the Grand Central.

Two notable facts distinguished Mr. Ford's career as a realroad man, the first and most remarkable being that during his nearly half a century of railroad service, from 1858 to the time of his death, he never rode a single mile on a railroad train operated by his own or any other company, and never requested a pass. The other is that from 1858 to 1902, when he was ill for about a week, he was not absent from duty a single day, and never asked for or took a vacation.

FANNING ISLAND AS A FREE PORT

Purchased by Canadian Syndicate for the Sum of $350,000.

Montreal, Feb. 16.—Father Emmanuel Rougier, who has just sold Fanning Island, "the connecting link" of the Pacific Ocean, to a Canadian syndicate headed by Mr C. N. Armstrong, passed through Montreal this week on his way from the far Pacific islands to France.

He emphasized the significance of the purchase of Fanning Island by Canadians, explaining that with a port there Canadians would control what would ultimately be the connecting link between Canada and Australia and between Panama and the east. Father Rougier sold the island for $350,000.

"Fanning Island will be a free port, with large wharves and shipping facilities, big oil tanks and coal bunkers to supply fuel to the steamships which ply via the Panama Canal, and it is likely that the British Admiralty will provide for a naval base and repair shops there for the use of warships in the Pacific," said Father Rougier.

BOY WITH $1,000 A ROLLING STONE

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 19.—After wandering about this city and other nearby places on the Canadian side for two days, twelve-year-old Thomas McHale, who left his home in Corning, N.Y., Friday, was taken into custody by American immigration authorities last night, when attempting to re-enter his native land. He will be sent back to Corning to-day.

"I got tired of things at home and thought I'd go to Canada to see my aunt," the boy told the American police, who took him off the hands of the immigration department. He had $6 in cash, and carried a bank book showing he has more than a thousand dollars on deposit in his home town.

KING GEORGE TO VISIT KAISER

Report on Haldane's Trip to Germany to be Made.

New York, Feb. 19.—A cable from Berlin to The New York Times says it is believed that the desire for better relations between Germany and Great Britain will receive powerful stimulation by the visit of King George and Queen Mary to Berlin in the spring, and the Kaiser's return visit.

It is understood that at the request of the Kaiser an exhaustive report of Lord Haldane's conversations with German officials is being drawn up. This report will form the basis for an exchange of opinions between London and Berlin Foreign Offices; but, while the Anglophils here are gratified over the prospects of a better understanding between the two countries, the Anglophils refuse to be impressed by Mr. Asquith's optimistic statement, and declare that suspicion and mistrust of British aims are still Germany's watchward.

Ex-Senator Arrested.

New York, Feb. 19.—Former State Senator Frank J. Gardner, who was arrested and locked up late Saturday night on the charge of conspiracy to gain control of the half-million-dollar estate of Samuel E. Haslett, an aged recluse, through a power of attorney which Haslett is alleged to have repudiated, was released on $3,000 bail yesterday, after arraignment. Gardner, who a year ago was acquitted of a charge of attempting to bribe State Senator Otto G. Foelker, in connection with the anti-racetrack legislation in this state in 1909, pleaded not guilty and said that he had no doubt of his ability to clear his name.

Gardner was arrested at a cafe which he conducts in Manhatton. His wife, who was May Yerba, an actress, secured bail for him.

Winnipeg, Feb. 19.—J. F. Horan, auditor commissioner of the Manitoba Government telephones, has resigned, being dissatisfied with certain evidence brought out at the commission enquiry.

Count Aehrenthal Dead.

Vienna, Feb. 19.—Count Alois Lexa von Aehrenthal, Austro-Hugarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, died Saturday evening.

Count von Aehrenthal had been suffering for the past month from leuccocythaemia, a disease characterized by profound changes in the blood and internal organs, and no hopes were entertained for his recovery.

During the day he received an autograph letter from Emperor Francis Joseph, accepting his resignation and bestowing upon the Minister the brilliants of the Grand Cross of the Order of St. Stephen. In his letter he reaffirmed his confidence in the Foreign Minister and his policy.

Count von Aehrenthal read the letter after receiving the last sacrament and seemed much gratified.

Count Leopold von Berchtholdt, former ambassador to Russia, has been appointed Foreign Minister. While it is acknowledged by Austria that Count von Aehrenthal had done more than any of his immediate predecessors to raise the prestige of the country, his latter days were embittered by attacks for Italy and his alleged lukewarmness for Germany.

MORE CAMMORISTS ARE RELEASED

Viterbo, Italy, Feb. 17—At the continuation to-day of the trial of the Camorrists charged with the murder of Gennaro Cuocolo and his wife, two additional defendants were discharged by the Court on the ground that they already had spent five years in prison. They were Torelli and Amati. Both were absolved of all charges in connection with the Cuocolo murder. Amati was set free, but Torelli was detained, as there were additional charges against him.

The remainder of the sitting of the court was taken up with the hearing of the report of Prof. Polidori, an alienist, who examined Gennaro Abbatemaggio on behlf of the prosecution, and was requested to express his opinion as to the mental condition of Abbatemaggio and the extent to which his mind had been influenced by reading books and articles on the Camorra. Abbatemaggio is a witness for the prosecution having tuned State's evidence and informed against his former brethren in the Camorra.

As Professor Polidori took the stand Abbatemaggio exclimaed "Now comes the time when they will declare I am a lunatic. I am curious to hear the report of Prof. Ottolenghi the expert for the defence, who has never honored me by an examination or even a visit."

Prof. Polidori, after giving a long description of Abbatemaggio, declared him on the whole to be normal, although there were evidences of the criminal in him.

STATEMENT OF ONTARIO'S ASSETS MOST ENCOURAGING

Toronto, Feb. 20.—Public accounts for the year ending Oct. 31, 1911, were presented to the Legislature late yesterday afternoon by Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary. They show that the total revenue for the fiscal year amounted to $9,370,833.90, and the total expenditure, $9,619,934.03. This leaves an apparent deficit of $249,100.13. The difference, according to Hon. A. J. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer, is accounted for by the fact that the Hydro-Electric did not pay interest on over $4,000,000 invested, which would amount to $173,000, and the T. & N. O. is credited in the statement with earnings of $515,000, while the actual receipts were $593,000, a difference here of $78,000. Another fact which accounts for considerable was that books were kept open for payments out to Nov. 18, but the receipts were cut off on Nov. 1. In the first week after the receipts were cut off enough money came in to pay all the difference. This amount will be credited this year.

The revenue was $2,400,000 larger than was estimated at the beginning of the year, which was $8,216,000. The increase in the receipts is accounted for by larger succession dues and taxes, which include the five per cent. tax on bar receipts.

The statements of assets and debts shows a surplus of $2,000,000. The total assets of the province are $26,936,060.30, while the total liabilities are $24,765,922.68.

This year the Hydro-electric will be paying interest, and probably pay its sinking fund. Already a check for $43,000 has been received from the Hydro, for the past three months.

It is shown in the accounts that the cash is hand is reduced from $3,032,000 to $1,503,000. This is due to the expenditures on the new Government House, Parliament Buildings, provincial prison, provincial museum, Osgoode Hall, reformatory for females, good roads, normal schools, Ontario Veterinary College and other institutions.

The cost of the new provincial prison will be paid for this year by the sale of the present Central Prison site.

The tabulated accounts of receipts show that the balance on hand at the beginning of the last fiscal year was $3,032,000. The amount at current account, exclusive of the special deposit, was $145,589. From the Dominion Government, by way of subsidy on population, the province received $1,879,343.80. While from another subsidy it received $142,414.48 and a special grant amounted to $240,000. The total of the three subsidies was $261,578. There is an increase in the grant of $132,986, owing to the increase in the population of the province.

Interest paid by the Dominion and interest on investments amounted to $132,284.

The largest revenue was received from lands, forests and mines, and amounted to $2,710,242. From licenses, $656,363 was received, which is $76,201 more than was received during the preceding year, on account of the five per cent. tax on bar receipts.

Law stamps brought in $104,155. Algoma taxes, $5,805. Educational revenue was $42,784. From the Provincial Secretary's Department $323,736. Game fisheries, $130,267. Agriculture, $147,167. Under the supplementary

BACK TO LIFE

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 20th.—While the body of a three-year-old girl was about to be lowered into the grave, moisture from breathing was noticed on the glass of the coffin and on investigation it was found she was alive, and was easily resuscitated with stimulants. The child fell in a bucket of water three days ago, and was thought drowned.

TO SUSPEND OUTRAGES

Resolution was Introduced at Iron-Workers Convention.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 20.—To support its contention that many officials, National and local, of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers were implicated in the dynamiting conspiracy against "open shop" employers, the Government is prepared to submit as evidence the original copy of a resolution alleged to have been introduced at the Iron Workers national convention at Rochester, N.Y., in 1910, reading: "Resolved, that no more bombs or explosions of any kind be exploded while this convention is in session."

When a photograph of the document was shown to District Attorney Miller yesterday, he said the resolution was an important piece of evidence, but he would not add what action was taken on resolution by the convention or through whose hands the manuscript had passed.

Patrick Ryan Arrested.

Indianapolis, Feb. 20.—The arrest in Chicago yesterday of the defendant named in the indictment as Patrick Ryan, a former business agent of a Chicago local union, leaves only one man out of the fifty-four indicted still to be apprehended. The man not yet captured is J. J. McGray, formerly of Wheeling, W. Va.

Boy Killed by Train.

Brantford, Feb. 20.—An inquest will be held into the death of Connie Keenan, a sixteen-year-old boy, who jumped in front of a passenger train on Sunday evening at six o'clock on St. Paul's avenue, on the G.T.R. crossing. Keenan was riding the freight train to the outskirts of the city in order to get home quickly, and he did not notice the approach of the passenger train on the other track. He was taking a special course at the business college here.

Sir Wilfrid Thrown From Sleigh.

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier was the victim of a carriage accident yesterday morning, which might have resulted seriously.

The Liberal leader was on his way to catch the 8.35 train to Eganville, in South Renfrew. When at the corner of Rideau and Sussex streets his sleigh upset. He was thrown out, but was not hurt. He walked the remaining distance to the station, apparently none the worse for the accident.

PORT NELSON NOT FOR ONTARIO

Story at Ottawa is Lacking in Confirmation

Special To The Review

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—No confirmation could be secured to-day to a story that a deal would be made by the Government whereby Ontario would get Port Nelson. On the other hand it is learned from an official source that the Boundaries' Bill, which is to be presented to the House, is the old Laurier Bill of 1908, as stated yesterday.

SAVAGE HOPI INDIANS ARE TRANSFORMED INTO MODEL STUDENTS.

JOSHUA HERMEYESVA

ARCHIE QUAMALA AS HE LOOKS TODAY.

LEWIS TEWANIMA, FAMOUS MARATHON RUNNER, WHO WAS A SAVAGE FIVE YEARS AGO.

That a misunderstanding of the white man's motives has been one of the causes of the Indian's backwardness in adapting civilized methods and in fighting education is being demonstrated at the Government Indian School in Carlisle, Pa., where twelve members of the Hopi nation, sun worshippers and pagans, who came here five years ago virtually as prisoners of war, are now preparing to go back to their people and spread the doctrine of the new life which they have gladly accepted.

These twelve Hopi Indians when they came here were crude specimens of a low order of civilization.

Lewis Tewanima, one of these same savages five years ago, is to-day the greatest long distance runner in the world, and two years ago, while representing America at the Olympic games in Paris, won the main Marathon event. He will represent this country at the next Olympic games. Washington Talyumptewa has also achieved a national reputation as a long distance runner.

The twelve Hopi Indians who have been so wonderfully transformed in five years are Tawa Veutewa, William Nohongva, Poaaqua Tewa, Andrew Hermequatewa, Lewis Tewanima, Archie Quamala, Edward Yewane, Wallace Hoyuma, Glenn Josytewa, Joshua Hermeyesva, Tala Yamlewa and Washington Talyumtewa.

LINE TO BE SUBSIDIZED

Fast Service to Britain to Get Government Aid.

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—The establishment of a fast line of transatlantic steamers is the object of negotiations now in progress between the Canadian Government and several strong transportation companies in England and Canada.

The representative of the English capitalists interested in the scheme have been in Ottawa during the past few days, conferring with the Government. It is understood that all the large Canadian transportation interests, the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Grand Trunk Pacific, the C.N.R. and the Allans are interested.

The scheme, when it is completed, will mean that the Atlantic journey between Halifax and England will be reduced to four and a half days, and six ships will be in operation. The Government will assist the company by means of an annual subsidy.

One of the striking features about the new steamers will be their adaptability to be converted into ships of war at short notice, and it is understood that the capital behind the scheme is in the neighborhood of $30,000,000.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy was in Ottawa yesterday in connection with the scheme on behalf of the C.P.R.

The Canadian Railways are particularly interested in the scheme because it is hoped that much of the ocean carrying trade will be diverted to Canadian trade routes, principally of the western states.

HON. W. T. WHITE SHEDS SOME LIGHT ON THE N.T.R. BUNGLE

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—Opposition orators heard some unpleasant truths regarding the National Transcontinental blunders last evening when they stirred up Hon. W. T. White by their renewed fight in committee of the whole, against Hon. Frank Cochrane's bill to reduce the number of the National Transcontinental Railway commissioners.

The Opposition arguments were mainly along the line that the road was a necessity, and a splendidly built road, therefore it didn't matter what it cost.

The bill was reported at 12.45 a.m.

George W. Kyte (Richmond, N.S.) defended the commissioners and the policy of the late Government in regard to the railway. True, it had cost more than the original estimate, but so had all great public works. Between Mr. Fielding's original estimate for the N.T.R., which Mr. Kyte stated was $51,000,000, and the figures given to the other day by Hon. Frank Cochrane, was only $9,000,000.

Mr. Kyte claimed that the late Government had done well in securing a second transcontinental railway for Canada, at an expenditure of $60,000,000, in comparison with the $240,000,000 which the C.P.R. had cost the country under the government of the late Sir John A. Macdonald.

Hon. A. E. Kemp remarked that the Opposition were in a sort of apologetic mood. The situation in regard to the N.T.R. was one of the greatest bungles the country had ever got into, and the Government of to-day was perfectly justified in taking steps leading to the removal of the commissioners.

The question of cost, he said, was not the only charge against the late Government. The prime object in 1902 for building the road was that it should be an outlet for western wheat, yet, instead of completing the road from Winnipeg to Cochrane Junction, where connection to tide water could be had over the T. & N. O. Ry., they had completed the section from Quebec to Moncton, and it would be three years before the road would be available for crop movement.

E. M. MacDonald (Pictou) charged Mr. Kemp with misrepresentation. There was in existence to-day, and had been for a year, the line from Winnipeg to Fort William.

Mr. MacDonald took the ground that, with only one man in charge of the road, he might condone dishonesty, but the members of a board of several commissioners would be a check on each other. He charged the Minister of Railways with acting illegally in appointing, by order in council, Mr. MacPherson, the assistant to the chief engineer, vice-chairman, an office not authorized by the statute.

Hon. W. T. White declared that there was no use in blinking facts. The appalling difference between Mr. Fielding's estimates of $54,000,000 and the total cost of the road, as shown by the present Minister of Railways, of $236,000,000, raised a prima facie case against the late Government which they must explain away.

The interest to be paid by the Government, continued Mr. White, was $60,000,000, almost five times the $13,000,000 mentioned by the leader of the late Government.

"Is that a matter to be treated lightly?" he asked. "I say there has not been such a blunder made in this country since Confederation."

The Opposition seemed to think it did not matter what the road cost. Because, they said, the G.T.P. would pay three per cent. interest, it would not cost the country a cent. But what railway could afford to pay three per cent. over $200,000,000? It would have to earn $20,000 a day before it could pay this $6,000,000 a year.

"I want to tell them," declared the Finance Minister, "that every dollar of this $60,000,000 interest of this $236,000,000 comes out of the people of this country." From the standpoint of freight rate regulation, what chance was there for reduction under these circumstances?

The late Government, said Hon. Mr. White, were more responsible than anyone else for the present congestion in the western grain traffic. With only one line out of Port Arthur to the east it mattered not how many lines there were from Winnipeg to Port Arthur.

"You've got the wrong end of the line constructed first," he declared. "It is like a man beginning to build a house by building the chimney. The line will be a year late in getting to Lake Superior and three years late in getting to Cochrane.

"The cry at the first election was: 'Let Laurier finish his work.' We'll finish it, and finish it well, and I hope the end of the N.T.R. will be better than the beginning."

Hon. Frank Oliver wanted to know why the N.T.R. commissioners were held responsible for the alleged sins of the late Government. In closing up the expenditures of construction and material traffic arrangements there was the greatest need of careful supervision. There was more need for four commissioners than at any previous stage in the construction of the road.

LAURIER WANTS GEORGIAN BAY CANAL COMPLETED

Sir Wilfrid Speaks For Graham at South Renfrew.

Renfrew, Feb. 20.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday threw the weight of his personal influence into the campaign for the election of Hon. George P. Graham in South Renfrew. At Eganville, in the afternoon and Arnprior in the evening Sir Wilfrid addressed a crowded meeting and was warmly received. At Eganville two meetings were held; one was in the town hall and another outside to accommodate the overflow. The ex-Premier and Messrs. W. L. M. King, E. P. Devlin, M.P., of Ottawa; T. A. Low, ex-M.P., and Dr. B. M. Connelly of Renfrew.

That fair play and the honor of the Conservatives of South Renfrew demanded George P. Graham's election was the dominant note in Sir Wilfrid's appeal to the electors. He also defended his administration of the affairs of the country, and referred to several of the transportation problems now before the House, promising his support of the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal.

The candidate then spoke of outsiders who were "butting into" the present election, notably some from the riding of North Renfrew.

"Dr. Reid started this fight and then went back to Ottawa and hasn't come back again," said Mr. Graham.

He had come to South Renfrew on the invitation of the Liberals and with the written pledge of twenty-seven Conservatives of the constituency that they would undertake to elect him.

Sir Wilfrid said: "There was an election on Sept. 21 last. You cannot have forgotten it and I have not. A storm—I will not call it a brainstorm—swept over the country and wiped my Government out of existence. I do not mind telling you I would have preferred to win, but I believe in taking my defeat like a man, so I won't repine, I won't lament but do just like the boys—spit on my hands and lay to."

The ex-Premier, after a warm tribute to Mr. Low and Hon. Mr. Graham, said of the latter:

"I have kept the seat next to me vacant for him and I believe he will fill it. But there are men who said that if George P. Graham were to enter the House he would give them the devil. This is not a political question; there is no issue between us. We are not yet in a position to take issue with the present Government. I want to give them more rope—they may hang themselves.

After alluding to instances in which political leaders, after being defeated at home, had gone to other constituencies, Sir Wilfrid said:

"The Georgian Bay Canal is a transportation matter of particular interest to you people in South Renfrew. Some people want only the Welland and others only the Georgian Bay Canal. To these I say, 'O men of little faith, we need both of them.' You will ask me 'Why didn't you build the canal yourself?' I can only say that you cannot do everything at the same time. We tried to build the transcontinental railway, though Hon. Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, hesitated to engage in such a large project. And, sir, I can assure you whenever Mr. White resolves to build the Georgian Bay Canal, I can assure of my own and Mr. Graham's support."

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King urged less localism in regard to the present election. The man who had had the wide experience of Hon. Geo. P. Graham was the man whom South Renfrew should elect for the good of the country. Canada needed his services. Had not Conservative members resigned to make way for Hazen, Pelletier, Rogers and White, all members of the present council of the nation?

BROCKVILLE WINS RAILWAY FIGHT

C.P.R. and G.T.R. Must Change Their Time Tables.

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—The Railway Commission yesterday settled the long standing public grievance over the C.P.R.-G.T.R. passenger connection at Brockville. The Grand Trunk is ordered to change the time of its No. 6 Toronto eastbound train at Brockville from 2.20 to 2.10 p.m., and the C.P.R. must change its time of departure from Brockville to 2.30 p.m.

If necessary, through the Grand Trunk being late, the C.P.R., on notification by wire not later than 2.15, must hold its train until 2.40, if there are any passengers desiring to make the connection.

ACTON TAKES HYDRO-ELECTRIC

Vote on Two By-laws Carried With Large Majorities.

Acton, Feb. 20.—The ratepayers of Acton voted yesterday on two bylaws submitted to them, the one bylaw to authorize the council to sign a contract with the Hydro Power Commission for Niagara power, and the other bylaw to issue debentures for $8,500 to equip the municipal line for Hydro power.

Great interest was taken in the vote by the citizens generally, and both bylaws were carried by large majorities. Only three votes were polled against the bylaws. Acton is now ready for Hydro power, and the citizens hope that the commission will start work shortly on the line from Guelph to Acton.

BRANDT'S CASE BOBS UP AGAIN

Important Letters in Possession of District Attorney.

New York, Feb. 20.—District Attorney Charles S. Whitman last night confirmed reports that he had secured four letters which detectives found in Foulke E. Brandt's room subsequent to his arrest for burglary at the home of Mortimer L. Schiff five years ago. The letters have been said to have an important bearing on the efforts to free Brandt from a thirty year prison term, but the district attorney declined last night to discuss the contents of the letters. He replied "No" when asked if the examination of the letters had changed his attitude in opposition to the appearance of Attorney Howard S. Gans and Mr. Schiff before the grand jury. The district attorney reiterated that Schiff and his attorney would not be allowed to appear.

John Rodgers, a private detective, who worked on the case against Brandt, was examined by the grand jury yesterday, and is said to have told of Brandt signing a confession that was "framed up." Another witness before the grand jury was Leonard Borne, employed as third man in the Schiff household at the time of Brandt's alleged burglary. The witness had been secured by counsel for Schiff to substantiate the contention that Brandt actually broke into the house.

PROPER MAN NOT YET FOUND

Montreal Controllership Worth $7000 Goes Begging

Montreal, Feb. 20.—Montreal municipal circles are still face to face with the circumstance of a position worth $7,000 a year going begging for lack of the proper man to fill it. At a meeting of the special committee of the Citizens' Association, entrusted with the task of securing a man nominate as successor to F. L. Wanklyn, who has resigned from the Board of Control, yesterday, it was reported that all of those whom the committee had thought capable of taking the position, had been approached, but had refused, saying the salary was quite inadequate.

Catarrh and Bronchitis

The Bane of Thousands, and has Hitherto Baffled the Skill of Medical Science.

Catarrhozone

What stomach medicine has ever been known to cure Catarrh or Bronchitis?

Catarrhozone is not a stomach medicine, but an air medicine that carries to the remotest parts of the throat, lungs, and air cells little drops of healing so curative that whenever it touches germ life it kills and eradicates them from the system.

Thousands of doctors and patients have been disappointed by using stomach medicines for coughs and colds. Have you not found it a rather roundabout way to reach the diseased portion of the throat and lungs?

Why not use Catarrhozone, which is breathed to the very root of the disease and heals so quickly and perfectly that every spot is rebuilt with new healthy tissue?

Catarrhozone is the only medicine that will cure. Thousands have testified.

Think for a moment. Is it not sense? Little drops of healing—the air carries them just where disease exists. That is why

SPORTING PASTORS

Pastors who take part in sports are in most cases very popular, particularly with the younger element of the church. An attempt to oust Rev. Frank Whitman, pastor of the Hope Congregational church in Newport, Wash. because he played pool and held the local billiard championship, proved unsuccessful and when it was decided that he would remain in charge, twenty-four new members were received. But there are many pastors, although taking an interest in sports, who would not go so far as the leader of the Hope Congregational church. It is safe to say that no pastor in Peterborough would consider it an honor to hold a like championship for this city. But then Peterborough is small and Newport is big. It is unlikely that the Rev. Frank Whitman frequents the numerous poolrooms in quest of opponents, but it is more probable that he confines this branch of sport to the club house which he may have organized for the benefit of the youths under his charge. Billiards train the eye, develop judgment and the successful player has to think quickly. Such qualifications are essential in the game every young man must play if he hopes to attain anything.

WHY NOT?

A correspondent suggests that as a road or street west of Chamberlain street, is without a name, it be named Bishop street in honor of the first builder. There are a number of houses on the street and much inconvenience is caused in the delivery of parcels the residents being unable to give any real definite location of their home. The correspondent points out that there is a Lundy's Lane, Brown street and Frank street. Why not Bishop street. The man who is a practical booster of his city or town is due this consideration at least.

THE PANAMA CANAL

A Free Panama Canal is advocated by the New York World, which editorially says:

"Canada has expended more than $100,000,000 to provide ship canals from the Atlantic Ocean to the Great Lakes. It is a larger expenditure relative to population or resources than the United States will make at Panama. The cost of maintenance and improvements are relatively larger.

"Nevertheless, American vessels are allowed to go toll free through these Canadian waterways. The American tonnage through the Welland Canal is larger than the Canadian. The tonnage of both countries through the American and Canadian canals at the Soo is larger than that of the Suez and larger than that will be at Panama. But Canada rejects the policy of cost tolls or profit tolls where they could be so easily collected. It adopts the policy of making its artificial waterways as free as the high seas. The United States does the same with its canal at the Soo.

"Can the United States afford to adopt a Panama Canal policy less generous to Canada or the nations than this Canadian canal policy is to the United States? Protests are being made in the Dominion Parliament against preferential tolls for the American ships in the Panama Canal. Canada has a right to protest. It has an equal right to ask for a canal without tolls, and this country will perform a world service of greater profit to itself than can be computed in money by adopting the policy of a free canal."

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—It looked to-day as if the bull clique in wheat was switching from the May option to July. Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Feb. 19.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat shows no improvement and the prices bid generally were from 1½c to 2c per bushel out of line. The local demand for American corn was good and sales of 15 cars of No. 3 yellow were made at 72½c, ex-track. In oats the feeling remains firm under a good demand for car lots from local and outside buyers. A good business continues to be done in flour for local and country account. Bran and shorts are scarce and firm. The demand for butter is good and cheese is quiet. Eggs fairly active. Provisions steady.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Feb. 19.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Feb. 17 were 1425 cattle, 225 sheep and lambs, 3600 hogs and 450 calves. The supply on the market this morning for sale consisted of 875 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 1575 hogs and 150 calves.

The undertone to the market for good to choice cattle continues strong and prices for such have scored a further advance of 25c per cwt. since this day last week, owing to the small supplies coming forward and the keen competition between buyers. Sales of full car loads of choice northwest ranch cattle weighing 1500 pounds each, were made at $6.60 per cwt., and choice Ontario steers, weighing from 1200 to 1300 pounds each, brought $6.75 and in broken lots as high as $7 to $7.25 was paid. There were a few choice bulls on the market, which weighed from 1900 to 2000 pounds each, and they sold at $5.50 to $6 per cwt.

A stronger feeling prevailed in the market for hogs and prices since this day last week show a further advance of 15c per cwt., which is due to the increased demand from packers for supplies and the higher prices ruling thruout the country. An active trade was done with sales of selected lots at $7.40 to $7.50 per cwt. weighed off the cars.

There was no change in the condition of the market for sheep and lambs, but the feeling is very firm on account of the limited supplies coming forward, for which there is a steady demand from butchers. The supply of calves was also small and prices ruled about steady.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.75 to $7.25; medium, $5 to $6.50; common, $3.50 to $4.50; canners, $2.75 to $3.25; choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; medium, $3.50 to $4.50; bulls, $5.50 to $6; milkers, choice, each, $75 to $80; common and medium, each, $50 to $65; springers, $30 to $45.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"Has madame gone down?" I asked, for it occurred to me that it would be awkward to find myself alone for nearly half an hour with a strange man.

"I think madame will be in the hall," said Louise. And, satisfied, I descended in a stately way suited to the house into the fountain court. Nobody was there, however, except a young man in evening dress, who jumped up from a chair and set down a small glass out of which he had been drinking.

"Allow me to introduce myself," said he. "I know you must be Lady Betty Bulkeley. My name is Potter Parker."

I couldn't help wondering whether his friends called him "Pot" for short, and the thought made me smile more than I would have smiled at a stranger if it hadn't popped into my head. This seemed to encourage him, which I regretted, because you can see at once by his face that he isn't the kind who needs encouragement. It is something like Mrs. Ess Kay's face, only younger, with her square chin and bold blue eyes as pale as hers. The likeness is all the stronger because Mr. Parker wears no mustache or beard, and his dark hair, which falls in two straight, thick blocks over his forehead, is parted in the middle. You would know if you saw him riding a white bear at the north pole that he was an American young man. Why or how, I'm not experienced enough in Americans to tell, but I'm beginning to think that all American men and all American women have a dim sort of family likeness to each other. With the girls, it's their chins and the way they do their hair. But with the men it's more mysterious. They look less lazy and more feverish than our men, yet at the same time more humorous, and their clothes seem always to be new.

Mrs. Ess Kay's nose turns down, and her brother's turns up, which is the principal difference in their features, and his makes him look very impudent, though rather clever and amusing.

"My sister wrote me about your dimples, Lady Betty," said he when I smiled, and I screwed my mouth into prunes and prisms as quickly as I could.

Nobody was there except a young man in evening dress.

"I should have thought such things were hardly worth writing about," said I.

"My impression is that they're worth about a million dollars an eighth of an inch," he replied, "and I bet they'd fetch that in a bear market."

I began to wish that Mrs. Ess Kay or Sally would come, for I'm not used to having persons who have just introduced themselves make remarks on my dimples or other features.

"Don't be mad with me," he went on, "or I shall think I've estimated them too low. On mature consideration, as we soldier chaps say at a court martial, I should be inclined to set them higher. If you'll just show them again"—

"I think, if you don't mind," said I, "that I'd rather speak of the weather."

"I'm afraid you're not used to Americans," said he.

"I've met several, crossing, but none of them talked to me about—such things," I replied rather primly.

"If they had I should have challenged them," he retorted. "While you're staying with my sister I consider myself a sort of guardian of yours, and part of my duty will be to keep off men—other men—with a stick, you see."

"No, I don't see," said I. "Not that there will be the least necessity for you to do anything of the sort."

"Oh, won't there? Well, you just wait till you get to Newport, and you'll find out differently. I've applied for leave on purpose to help Kath protect you, and I expect to put on a suit of chain armor under my clothes. But first you're coming to visit me at West Point."

"I don't think I am," I said.

"Oh, but you are. It's a promise of Kath's. And shan't I be proud to show you around? You shall see Flirtation Walk the first thing. It's what the ladies admire the most at the Point. Perhaps you've heard of it?"

"No," said I. "And I never heard of West Point. Is it a suburb of New York?"

"Not much. It's our American Sandhurst. But you English people don't know anything about this side. I guess, now, you think that Florida is in South America?"

"I haven't thought about it yet," I replied.

"That's right. I don't ask anything better than to teach you the geography of the United States. We'll begin with Flirtation Walk. But see here, Lady Betty, that rose you've got on isn't a good sample of what we can grow over here. Didn't that maid of my sister's take you something a little better from me?"

"Something much bigger and grander," I said, feeling loyal to my poor white bud. "I was meaning to thank you."

"Don't do that; the things aren't worth it. I only wanted to know whether that French female had played me false or not. But here comes my sister. I wish she'd taken longer to do up her back hair. Now, I'll give you your wish and talk about the weather. Mighty hot day, isn't it? Won't you have a cocktail? I'd just finished mine when you came down."

"Of course Betty will have a cocktail. We all do before dinner," said Mrs. Ess Kay, sailing toward us in a trailing white film of lace.

But Betty didn't have one, though at this moment several little glasses appeared on a tray. I was sure that mother would not approve of cocktails for me, as it sounds so fast for a young girl who isn't yet out. When I excused myself Mrs. Ess Kay laughed and said, "Then what about that sherry cobbler?"

While I was trying to think what she meant Sally came into the hall, and immediately after I was surprised by a kind of musical moaning which began suddenly and kept on for a long time.

"That's the Japanese gong," said Mrs. Ess Kay when I looked round to see where the sound came from. "It's for dinner. Potter, give Betty your arm."

I was glad she didn't use that nickname I'd been thinking of, for if she had I should certainly have laughed.

We began dinner by eating pinky-yellow melons cut in half and filled with chopped ice. I thought at first that it must be a mistake and they ought to have come in at dessert, but everybody else ate theirs without appearing disconcerted, so I did mine, and it was good. So were all the other things that followed in a long procession, though they were very strange, and some of them I shouldn't have known how to eat if Mr. Parker, whose place was next to mine, hadn't told me.

We had bouillon partly frozen instead of soup, and then came the most extraordinary little fried animals which quite startled me, they were so like exaggerated brown spiders, done in egg and breadcrumbs. "Soft shell crabs, dear child," said Mrs. Ess Kay, "and you eat every bit, down to the tippiest end of his claw."

I should never have managed the green corn, which grows like lots of pearls set close together in rows on a fat stick, if Mr. Parker hadn't scraped all the pearls off for me with a fork and put butter and salt on them. I liked him a little better after that, for he did the thing with great skill. When I had got so far nothing could surprise me, and I didn't turn a hair when I found that I was expected to eat pears cut up with salad oil. But they were alligator pears, and when you tasted them it appeared that they had nothing whatever to do with the fruit kingdom. Best of all I liked the watermelon which came at the end, cut in little balls, looking like strawberry water ice and soaked in champagne. I hope that all the things to eat in America won't be so nice or I may grow stout before I go back, and Vic says it is better for a girl to hang herself.

It was very trying, too, to find that I was keeping every course waiting. I've never been accused of greediness at home, though I've often been made to feel guilty of most other sins in the calendar, but I did feel queer when I began to realize that everybody else had finished what was on their plates when I'd just about discovered what the thing was. It made me so uncomfortable to see them all leaning back waiting for me, after their plates had been whisked away, that I took to bolting the rest of my food, and by the time we'd got rid of nine courses in about half an hour I felt qualified to write the autobiography of an anaconda.

Cookery Points

Oysters Cooked In Paper Bag.

The following recipe for cooking oysters is declared by an English magazine to be excellent:

Drain twelve large oysters on a cloth and egg them carefully. Roll them in fresh breadcrumbs and place in a thickly buttered paper cooking bag, fasten the bag and cook on a grid for eight minutes in a hot oven.

Creamed oysters can be done in twelve minutes and make both a dainty and easily prepared supper dish.

When cooking pastry in paper bags there is no necessity to oil or grease the bag. Whether this is done or not is merely a matter of choice. One thing, however, is essential—the bag should have several vents out in the upper side so that the pastry may become brown and crisp. A bag should be chosen into which whatever pastry is being cooked can easily slip without touching the edges of the bag during cooking, and the paste should be brushed over with milk before being slipped into the bag.

To do this a pastry brush should be used.

All forms of sweets, from stewed prunes to souffles, can be cooked in paper bags with equal success, and milk rolls can be prepared in fifteen minutes.

Cottage Cheese.

Cottage cheese is so easily made at home when there is sufficient milk that it is a pity more housekeepers do not make it an item on the bill of fare. It requires merely standing on the back of the stove the panful of sour milk until the watery fluid or whey rises to the top; then cover a sieve with a clean cloth, pour the whey and curds upon it, knot the ends of the cloth to form a bag and hang where the whey can drip out for two hours or more. When the dripping ceases turn the curds into a bowl, add a little salt, a tablespoonful of butter and a little sweet cream if convenient, stirring the whole together with a fork. Make into little balls and keep wrapped in clean cheesecloth in a cool place. Onions, chives or sage may be added to the cheese at serving time. A spoonful of sweet cream is a great improvement.

For scalloped cheese cut slices of bread, trimming off the crust; butter and put a layer in the casserole or earthenware baking dish, sprinkle with grated dairy cheese and a little salt and pepper. Repeat until the dish is full, finishing with a layer of grated cheese. Beat four eggs with three cupfuls of milk and pour over, then bake brown in a hot oven and serve hot.

Apple Pudding.

Cover the bottom of a buttered pudding dish with a layer of fine breadcrumbs dotted with bits of butter. Spread with a layer of thinly sliced apple seasoned with a sprinkling of lemon juice and a grating of nutmeg. Put in alternate layers of apple and crumbs, making the top layer crumbs. Cover and set in the oven until the apple is nearly done, then uncover and brown. Serve with whipped cream that is flavored and sweetened.

Tomato Bouillon.

Take a clear meat bouillon, beef preferred, and when it is done strain into it a clear essence of tomato. This is obtained by boiling tomatoes until they are tender without being mushy and straining the juice through a cloth. Govern the amount of tomato juice added to the bouillon by the desired strength of the broth. Season to taste and serve very hot. A dash of cayenne pepper adds to the value of the bouillon as an appetizer.

Fish Cakes.

Pick the cooked fish apart, being careful to free it entirely of bones. Reject the skin. Add to the shredded flesh half its amount of dried breadcrumbs and season to taste. Moisten with enough milk to allow the mixture to be molded into cakes and stir in an egg. Form into cakes about two inches in diameter and half an inch thick. Fry in hot lard as you would meat. Minced parsley makes an excellent garnishing.

Chairs were swung and revolvers flourished at a political meeting at Grenville, Tenn.

— BETTER —
OPTICAL SERVICE
BY
A. A. FOWLER, Eyesight Specialist

In every trade, profession or branch of work, there are found a few men, who from special fitness, or education, or both, are better prepared to serve you in their line than the multitude of others in the same field.

Since Optometry requires especial ability in both professional and mechanical work, men that are fitted to do both equally well are scarce. Therefore you cannot be too particular about the selection of the man to whom you entrust your eyes.

The professional work—the examining and measuring of your eye defects, must be skilfully done. The mechanical part—the making and adjusting of your glasses is no less important.

Every phase of optical work is thoroughly and intelligently done here. From the first step in the examination to the final adjusting of the frame or mounting not a single thing is overlooked or slighted. I do all the work myself, and having had such fine success with most difficult, and neglected eyes, I do not hesitate to say that I can give you perfect satisfaction.

A visit will incur no obligation.

W.E.A.C. DANCE

Beyond question, the most successful and enjoyable dance given by the West End Athletic Club this season, was held in their prettily decorated rooms last evening, at which, about seventy-five young people were present.

The committee in charge endeavored to cause the affair to be one of the best on record and their efforts were rewarded in a noticeable successful manner. The parlors of the rooms were attractively adorned with flags, streamers and W.E.A.C. pennants while ferns placed in advantageous position added to the effectiveness of the adornments.

The dancing hall was also arranged in a most inviting and tasty manner flags and streamers being present in profusion.

The moon dances, introduced last evening was the first to be given by the W.E.A.C., and proved their popularity by being repeatedly applauded.

Altogether the affair was one of the most brilliant and pleasing that could be desired, and numerous expressions of praise for the able manner in which it was conducted were freely heard.

The music so acceptably supplied by Mr. Stanley Plaine, contributed very largely to the enjoyment of the event.

Dainty refreshments were served about eleven-thirty and dancing resumed until two o'clock.

Would Kill Her if She Made Any Sounds

Unwholesome Conditions in Home of Italian Family

Bright-eyed and intelligent, a ten-year-old Italian girl, giving her name as Maria Antonio Vuria, was the chief witness at police court this morning in the case in which Nicolas Martino, an old man of eighty, was charged with attempting illicit relations with the little girl. It is alleged that the offence occurred last August, the facts of which, however, having been concealed by threats on the part of the prisoner, made to the mother of the girl if she divulged anything about the matter.

The circumstances or the alleged offence are particularly abhorrent and abominable, and if the story related by the little girl is correct, no more repellant and disgusting details could be imagined.

IS BRIGHT CHILD.

The little girl replied to the questions of the Crown in excellent English, having been a regular attendant and bright pupil of St. Mary's Convent.

She told of three different times at which the prisoner had made indecent proposals to her, and on one occasion to enforce silence on her part, threatened to kill her if she made the slightest sound.

She calls the old man her stepfather, although he is not her father, as the mother and the prisoner are not married, they only living together in the house.

MUCH QUARRELING.

She furthermore stated that it was by no means a peaceful home, as the prisoner and her mother were constantly quarreling, and he has been accustomed to provoke her mother ever since her own father died.

"He keeps telling her to go back to her own country," said the witness, "but mother does not want to go back."

"Where were you born?" asked the Crown.

"I was born in Italy," she replied.

"Well, why do you call him your father, then?"

"Oh, well, I call him step-father because he gives me clothing. He is not married to mother," she answered.

MOTHER WANTS FREEDOM.

It came out in the course of the evidence that the whole motive of the charge being laid was the desire of the mother to get rid of the old man, and thereby allow her to get possession of her portion of the goods and chattels in the house.

G. N. Gordon acted for the prisoner, while R. E. Wood appeared for the Crown.

PRISONER DISCHARGED.

The little girl's mother was present in court with two other children, the former giving evidence practically corroborative of the girl's story.

His Worship, after hearing the whole story, discharged the prisoner with a very severe lecture and warning, and he goes back to live at the house once more.

TEMPERANCE GATHERING

Meeting at George Street Church To-night

To-night's meeting in the George street Methodist church at 8 o'clock will determine whether or not there is to be a local option campaign this year in Peterborough. Desiring that it shall be recognized as a citizen's movement the meeting to-night is being thrown open to the citizens of Peterborough in order that all who are interested in the cause of temperance may have an opportunity to attend and make their views known. It is understood that the intention this year, if a campaign is decided upon, is to confine it to the last four months of the year and especially to the last three months of the year, instead of extending it throughout the greater part of the year as was done, three years ago.

It is understood that a number of city aldermen and business men will attend to-night's meeting and that the form of organization to be adopted will be decided upon, to be followed later by the election of officers. A new scheme for raising funds this year is being considered. It is to sell membership tickets for $1.00, leaving it open for those who wish to contribute more, to do so. It is believed that by an active canvass through the different churches and temperance organizations fully 2,000 such tickets can be sold and thus the greater part of the expense of the campaign be met. It is thought that many who cannot contribute more but who would like to have a part in the campaign, would be glad to have an opportunity to show their interest and help the cause by buying these tickets.

SENT TO THE MERCER FOR A TWO YEAR TERM

And Companion of Elsie Parks Goes to Central

The sentencing by Magistrate Edmison yesterday afternoon, of Elsie Parks, a girl vagrant of fifteen, to two years in the Mercer Reformatory, and her companion in shame, John Shaw, to six months in Central Prison, brings to a halt, the rambles of a couple who had become notorious for their nomadic career in the wider portion of the country north of Peterborough.

As has been previously related the two, living together in an unmarried and thereby immoral state, without any tie of kinship bringing them into association, preferred the precarious but untrammelled existence of the wanderer. Shifting about from place to place in the vicinity of Burleigh, Buckhorn and that locality for some months previous to their apprehension, they eked out a miserable life, subsisting on the fruits of their begging and the generosity of kind-hearted residents.

The girl when finally caught in the toils of the law, presented a sight well deserving of pity. Her clothing was torn and in tatters and in the last stages of use. Her hair was unkempt and her childish features bore the look of one hardened to the life she had been leading and its consequent hardships. Her companion was away below even her level however, and whether his soured expression was feigned or due to moroseness was difficult to determine.

In Mercer the girl will enjoy every opportunity to reform, but whether the imprisonment in Central will have any salutary effect upon her companion will be difficult to presage.

NO ADVANCE TO THE CONSUMER

No Advance in Tea Prices Expected This Year

There has been a great deal of speculation as to the outcome of the present Chinese revolt and its bearing on the tea situation in general. Mr. Melville of, Thomas J. Lipton, when interviewed, stated that the indications are now far more favorable, some believing that the Chinese trouble will be over about February 18, the Chinese New Year. Though tea will not be cheaper, he does not believe there will arise any necessity for advancing prices to the consumer this ear. The crops from China will probably be a little late coming forward, but these teas are used very little in Canada, except possibly for cheapening blends. The rapid advance last year in the cost of Ceylon and India teas has spent itself and the markets are now practically stationary for good teas, though for very common tea the market is somewhat easier. The consumers have doubtless, in some cases, been supplied with the lower quality at the old price, but they are not long deceived, realizing that they do not go so far as tea of really good quality.

POWER COMPANY TO ERECT NEW SUB-STATION

The Seymour Power Company intend to erect a sub-station on a site near the old Victoria railway junction north of Lindsay, which will form the terminus of the company's western transmission lines, power for which is generated at Port Hope. As is known one branch of this line turns east to Peterborough, and the other west to Lindsay.

This will bring the amount of power up from Peterborough to Lindsay to 12,000 voltage, and with the substation, about 4,400 voltage more.

MEN'S BIBLE CLASS AT ST. JOHN'S

Last evening the members of the above class met in the Guild Room for their first social. Business was combined with pleasure, and the whole proceedings were entered into with earnestness and vim. The class has for its objects "Bible Study, Mutual helpfulness, and greater sociability amongst its members." These objects were certainly to the front, last night. During the evening they had the pleasure of entertaining the Girl's Auxiliary who paid the class a visit which was much appreciated.

Refreshments were served, after which the time was taken up in vocal and instrumental numbers contributed by the members. The evening was brought to conclusion by the singing of the National Anthem, everyone voting the social an unqualified success.

VETERAN'S JEWEL FOR TWO MEMBERS OF OTONABEE LODGE

Oddfellows Had Visit From the Grand Secretary of Ontario.

At the regular meeting of the Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, I.O.O.F. last night, two members were presented by the lodge with veterans' jewels, they having been members of the lodge for over twenty-five years.

The lodge was honored by the presence of Bro. Wm. Brooks of Toronto, grand secretary of Ontario. After the regular business of the evening was concluded, Bros. Paterson and Emmerson were presented with the veterans' jewels by the Grand Secretary, who, in an appropiate speech complimented the brothers, on their long and faithful service to the Order. Bros. Paterson and Emmerson expressed their thanks in a few well chosen words.

At the close of the meeting the members adjourned to the dining room, where supper had been prepared by the sisters of the Rebekah Lodge. After the supper had been partaken of, Bro. W. S. Robinson, P. G., who presided, proposed the toast to the King, which was duly honored. Bro. W. Mowry, P.S., proposed the toast to the Grand Lodge, which was responded to in a lengthy and interesting address by Bro. Brooks, Grand Secretary of Ontario.

He outlined how, from a very small beginning in 1819, the Order had progressed, until its membership was now 2,023,731, and it had paid out in benefit funds $140,000,000, and was paying out annually $6,000,000 to assist members and their families. This was an era of aggressiveness; Canada was unfolding into a great and mighty nation, and the Oddfellows must recognize that now was the time to work for the Order, that it migh have a part in the developing and expanding of the Dominion.

The members should exemplify in their lives and actions, their great principles of Oddfellowship, the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. He explained how the legislation of the governing bodies of the Order, was not to restrict, but rather to expand their love for their fellowmen. In the conclusion of his eloquent address, he likened the Order to a great and beautiful temple, founded on the rock of fraternity and with walls builded of kind acts. Through the beautiful windows shone the sun diffusing light and and heat over those within, who bowed at the altar from which arose the incense of sacrifices for others.

The other toasts of the evening were: to the District Committee, proposed by J. W. Miller, P.G. and responded by Bro. Freeburn, D.D.G.M. to the Visiting Brethren, proposed by Bro. C. H. Huffman, P.G., and responded by Bro. Gibson, of Toronto; Bro. Merritt, P.G., Bro. R. Reason, of Kokoma Lodge, Indiana; and Bro. E. Ward of Buffalo; and to our Old Guard, proposed by the chairman, and responded to by Past Grands Mowry, John Nugent, S. B. Armstrong, W. Paterson, W. F. Green and T. Armstrong of Toronto.

A vote of thanks to the sisters of the Rebekah Lodge for the repast was moved by J. W. Miller, P.G., and seconded by the Grand Secretary. The vote was carried amid the hearty applause of the Oddfellows. The proceedings closed with the National Anthem.

TRIED TO STEAL RIDE AND IT COST HIM $10

A Montreal Man Ran Up Against Detective Newhall; Now He's Sorry.

A young fellow, named Thomas Jackson, claiming Toronto as his home, was charged at police court this morning with having unlawfully entered a C.P.R. passenger train yesterday and refused to pay fare.

He pleaded guilty and received a fine of $10, with the alternative of fifteen days in jail.

EXPENSIVE INTRODUCTION

A big, fine looking young man, answering to the name of George Alexander, a Montrealer, became frisky last evening, while under the influence of some Budweiser, and took a fancy to Detective Newhall. The two met on Water street about ten-thirty. George wanted to shake hands with the sleuth, and refused to take the officer's advice and act soberly. He also, according to Detective Newhall's evidence, used dirty language, and when being taken into custody, resisted arrest and became violent.

The prisoner remained in the cells over night, and judging from his actions in court this morning was not quite sober when arraigned.

G. N. Gordon, who appeared for the prisoner, asked for an enlargement.

"No I won't adjourn this case," replied His Worship.

"I only claim it as a right," said Mr. Gordon, "to allow the prisoner to communicate with his counsel.

PAID UNDER PROTEST

A fine of $5.75 in all, was imposed which the prisoner on advice of his counsel paid under protest.

MRS. J. H. HODGSON HELD RECEPTION

Mrs. J. H. Hodgson, who received yesterday for the first time since coming to the city, at her pretty home on Seventh avenue, is a charming addition to the younger matrons' social set.

A profusion of daffodils diffused their bright radiance over the drawing room and library. Mrs. Hodgson received her many visitors in a handsome gown of cream Brussels lace touched with pink.

Mrs. S. J. Shepherd, formerly Miss Ethel Dixon, of Maple Creek, who received with the hostess, was wearing a dainty lace costume mounted on pale yellow silk and black plumed hat.

Mrs. R. H. Dobson, who invited to the tea room, was attractively gowned in foulard in pastel shades and black toque with white feather mount.

Mrs. Marrs, attired in black satin and black hat with plume, presided over the tea equippage, and Miss McCausland, in a dainty white lingerie frock and fur toque, assisted.

Little Dorothy Marrs, prettily dressed in white lingerie with blue ribbons, admitted the callers.—Lethbridge Herald.

DEALS PUT THROUGH BY MR. C. BLEWETT

Colborne Doctor Coming to the City to Practice

Dr. Herbert A. Wood, the George street dentist, has sold his handsome residence at 319 Stewart street, to Dr. Huston, a medical practitioner from Colborne, who will be here next week, to take possession and commence practising.

The sale was affected through the firm of C. Blewett, real estate agents, and it is understood a substantial sum was realized on the deal.

It is not definitely known whether Dr. Wood will continue to reside in Peterborough or not.

Dr. Huston is a specialist on the treatment of eye, ear, nose and throat.

BAILIEBORO FARM SOLD.

Another big sale was put through to-day by C. Blewett, when the three hundred acre farm of the late John Wood, of Bailieboro, was purchased by Dr. F. P. McCullough, 166 Brock street, for the sum of nine thousand dollars.

CELEBRATING THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING DAY

Fiftieth Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Kennedy

Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Kennedy, of 600 Water street, are celebrating their golden wedding to-day. Their wedding took place fifty years ago when Rebecca Sherin, daughter of the late Wm. Sherin, of Emily, was united in marriage to Mr. Dawson Kennedy, by the Rev. John Cameron, a Baptist minister, of Peterborough. After the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy moved to Mr. Kennedy's farm in Otonabee, where for forty-four years they lived and Mr. Kennedy became one of the most successful farmers of the township.

A few years ago they bought their present home on Water street, where they have lived ever since coming to to the city.

The sumptuous banquet for the occasion, was served at two o'clock this afternoon under the direction of Mr. T. Hooper, and several relatives and children of the happy couple were present at the inviting repast.

Two sons, Messrs. H. P. Kennedy, of Toronto, and Fred Wm. Kennedy, of Lindsay, each accompanied by their family, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy, as well as two daughters, Mrs. K. J. Kidd and Mrs. R. A. Ward, of Toronto, and their families. Two sons, Mr. H. D. Kennedy, Indiana, and Mr. Marvin S. Kennedy, B.C., and one grandson, Clifford Kidd, of Regina, were unable to be present at the celebration, but sent congratulations to the principals of the occasion.

Messages of congratulation have also been received from friends in Chicago, St. Paul, Minn., Watertown, Dakota, Toronto, Sarnia and Ottawa, and from many local friends who wish Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy a pleasant future. The Rev. Isaac Couch presided at the dinner festivities.

THE RED MILL

The large number of people who have been able to hear Mr. Bell, the famous New York baritone, in the Red Mill are unanimous in declaring him one of the finest soloists that has ever appeared in Peterborough. Mr. Bell's singing adds just the necessary liveliness to the program of the popular new place of amusement that appeals to the pleasure seeking citizens of the city, and the result has been that the Red Mill has enjoyed a success unprecedented in the opening days of any local picture show.

ABSTAINERS TOOK SECOND GAME FROM ALL SAINTS

Team Work Largely Responsible for the 13-2 Tally in Trent Valley League.

The All Saints seven were put away by the T.A.S. team, in a Trent Valley League fixture last night, by the score of 13-2. The game was one-sided from beginning to end, and the abstainers lead at the half-time mark by the score of 7-1.

Not once in the whole sixty minutes did the All Saints display even the faintest semblance of combination hockey. In this respect Hatton made several attempts, passing the puck to where an All Saints player should be, but after several futile efforts that gave the puck to the T.A.S., he desisted and afterwards depended solely on the lonely and spectacular, but useless rushes towards the opponents nets.

Wilson, in goal, was not on color for the first fifteen minutes, but after that he displayed his usual form, blocking with skate, stick, pad and body, in a way that saved numerous shots from becoming counters. Anderson and Rose were, perhaps, the most noticeable players for the All Saints, both putting up classy individual work, but LeBarr and Allen played good games.

The individual tactics however, could not affect the team work dished out by the victorious T.A.S.. The two Lansfields, played strong and fast hockey, and Halpin, O'Dette and McPhee kept the puck travelling towards the All Saints goal at the speed limit. Coughlin played a strong wing game, being particularly conspicuous in getting in after, and scoring on the rebound shots. Eddie Lansfield was the star of the first half and Tom undoubtedly served up the best hockey in the last. Both the Lansfield boys gave repeated exhibitions in skating and stick handlig that kept the rubber circulating round the Saints' nets. Halpin plays a fast game at centre and O'Dette an effective wing game. McFadden was not called upon often, but on the rare occasions when he was needed, he was there with the goods.

The teams were—

All Saints		T.A.S.
	Goal
Wilson		McFadden
	Point
Hatton		T. Lansfield
	Cover
Anderson		E. Lansfield
	Rover
McMartin		McPhee

Lebarr		O'Dette

Allen		Coughlin

Rose		Halpin

Leo Derocher refereed impartially.

FIRST HALF

Right after the face off, the puck went to the All Saints' goal, and on a combination trick with McPhee, Halpin got the first goal in 25 secs. O'Dette started the penalty list, followed into the box by Lansfield, and later McPhee. For the first fifteen minutes Hatton's checking and Anderson's rushes were a feature of the defense, but they were unable to stop Coughlin and Halpin from finding their nets. Allen and Lebarr then put on steam and kept the game even for a time, and at the 13 minute mark, McMartin got the first All Saints counter from a face off near the T.A.S. nets. Wilson was peppered unmercifully. Lansfield scored from centre ice, and after a minutes play, McPhee repeated, on an end to end rush, making the score 5-1. All Saints carried the rubber into the T.A.S. territory, but it was rescued by Halpin, who along with O'Dette and Coughlin, notched another. Score 6-1. Just one minute before the bell for half-time, McPhee raised the score to 7-1.

SECOND HALF

From the beginning of this half the play was all for T.A.S. Tom Lansfield made several effective rushes and the T.A.S. forwards kept the All Saints defense jumping. Anderson, Hatton and Rose worked overtime, but were unable to stop McPhee, who, after seven minutes play, scored on a pass from T. Lansfield, who had carried the puck down the ice. Rushes by Lansfield and Halpin got the All Saints defense so badly mixed that Rose knocked the next one in, himself, after four minutes play. Score 9-1.

After this the All Saints played hard and effectively and kept the rubber in the T.A.S. territory for some time, but Coughlin succeeded in passing their defense and scored, repeating again on three minutes on a rebound. Score 11-1.

Coughlin notched another in six minutes, after which the tide turned for a while and Rose got another goal, this time for his own team, making the score 12-2. O'Dette counted again one minute before the final bell, leaving the figures 13-2.

In this game the T.A.S. played good hockey, particularly when the sticky ice is taken into consideration and excelled in team work. In their present form they shoul have an easy victory at Campbellford, though they may be called upon for more defense wrok than they needed last night. The scoring summary was—

CLERKS LOST TO THE TOOLROOM

Game Tied at Half-time and Final Score Was 5-2

In one of the fastest Mercantile League contests of the season, the Tool Room seven defeated the Clerks at the Brock street rink last night. The game was even up at half-time, when the score was 1—1, but in the last half the Tool Room got away with some good team work and raised the figures to 5—2, which was the final score. In the first half the Clerks had the better of the play, although they relied almost entirely on the individual plays and Lech and Mills were on deck with rushes that brought them dangerously near the Tool Room's nets. Milloy and Kennealley worked well throughout the whole game, and joined with Primeau and Hall in some pretty team work that eventually won them the game. Cassidy played a stellar game in goal and was kept busy at more than one season of the game. The teams were:

Clerks.		Tool Room.

Lech		McGrath

NICE SAMPLE OF HOCKEY ROOTER

"Peterboro Root" Sends a Letter To the Lindsay Post

The Lindsay Post publishes the following;

Our sporting editor this morning received a letter from one signing himself a "Peterborough Root" in which he proceeds to lecture the scribe for his criticism of the Electric City seven. A portion of the epistle reads as follows;

"Lindsay with Spratts, Stoddard, etc., had the material for an A1 team, no denying the fact, had they been whipped into shape, but you could hardly expect Peterborough to wait longer than the end of January for your favorites to get into condition. Could you?

And let me add that I voice the sentiments of 99 per cent of the local fans, that that intermediate team, which gave you such a severe headache would have still been in the winning had not the majority of the local management been stricken with a bad case of Brain Storm and had allowed Denison to play or at least to have left the defence, which has easily proven the most consistent department of the team both at home and abroad all season, intact, instead of pulling out, much against his will, an old veteran, whose might and style of play showed his hockey days were now history.

The action of the management caused great dissention and hard feeling among certain players of the team which was plainly visible throughout and could onl bring but one result—defeat. There, Mr. Editor, is the only excuse we have to offer for the sudden downfall of our favorites, which, no doubt, you hailed with great delight. As to us losing all our change, well, we still have enough of that Lindsay wad to carry us over the hot months.

Thanks for time and space and hoping to see out respective teams battle again in 1913.

If the above letter was actually written by a Peterborough fan, it is nothing to his credit. The excuse offered by the "Peterborough Root" for the defeat of the locals gives a good idea of the amount of grey matter possessed by him.

BLACK BASS PRIZE

During the summer of 1911 Field and Stream, one of the popular Sportsman's magazines, introduced a prize fishing contest scheme to their readers, offering valuable prizes for the biggest fish caught in any part of America. Three of the leading prizes were won by fish taken from Canadian summer resorts reached by the Grand Trunk Railway System. The first Grand Prize was given for a Lake Trout weighing 28 pounds, caught in Lake Temagami, Ontario. The first Grand Prize for a Black Spotted Salmon Trout was awarded to an angler who caught his fish in Algonquin National Park, the fish weighing 12 pounds. The ladies Grand Prize was awarded to a fair angler for a small mouth Black Bass, weighing 6 pounds 4 oz., caught in the Georgian Bay.

CUP GAMES AT RINK TO-MORROW

Peterboro Curlers Will Defend Neill-Sheppard Trophy

After a few days of quiescence the curling rink will again be the scene of activities, to-morrow, when the Orillia games for the Neill-Sheppard cup will be played off. Four local rinks will journey to Orillia to play there, and four rinks from Orillia will play the Peterborough rinks at the Charlotte street rink. The Peterborough players are the holders of the cup, and intend to keep up the success of this seaons by again defeating the brithers o' the stane from the northern town.

Since 1904 the local curlers have won the cup on three occasions.

Transformation.

Father's in a dress suit—
 Doesn't it seem strange?—
Togged out like a merchant prince,
 My, but it's a change!
Just a year or two ago
 Overalls for him.
Now since he has struck it rich
 Father's in the swim.

But we had an awful fight.
 How he did protest!
Said he never would go out
 In a waiter's vest;
Common clothes were good enough
 For a common man.
But he's gone and put them on,
 New and spick and span.

When the subject first was broached
 Father had a fit.
Said it was no use to talk;
 He would not submit.
But the girls kept after him—
 Girls have such a way!—
And he's put them on at last
 Spite of all his nay.

 There in black and white.

 But he'll come out right.

Suffering men who have but millions
 And the clothes upon their backs.

ROOSEVELT AND TAFT SHOULD QUIT

In Interests of Uniting the Republican Party.

Concord, N.H., Feb. 20.—The suggestion that both President Taft and former President Roosevelt should decline to be candidates for re-election this year, in the interests of uniting the Republican party, is made by former United States Senator William E. Chandler, in an open letter to the Republicans of New Hampshire, made public last night.

Mr. Chandler expresses the opinion that the Republican party is divided between Taft and Roosevelt, and so long as the split lasts, it is certain of defeat.

Mr. Chandler declares that, while he personally favors Senator La Follette, he would surrender his preference for someone like Charles E. Hughes, Albert B. Cummins, Chas. W. Fairbanks or Governor Hiram Johnson of California.

Sir James Whitney introduced two bills in the Legislature yesterday which will be of great benefit to street railway employes and miners. One bill will amend the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board Act, and will cover the grievances of motormen and conductors on street cars who, in order to put in a ten-hour day, have been compelled to string out their working time over a period of fifteen or sixteen hours. Sir James' amendment gives the Railway Board the authority to regulate the working hours regardless of any agreement at present existing between a municipality and a street railway company. All employes are considered in the amendment. When the bill is being discussed penalties will be inserted for contravention of the act on the part of any directors, superintendent, manager or officers of the company.

Another bill will amend the Mines Act by stipulating that no miner shall be employed underground in any mine for more than eight hours in any 24 hours, including the time in descending into and ascending from the mine. For every contravention of this act a penalty of $50 is imposed.

E. E. Fraser, Welland, introduced a bill to provide that elevator operators shall have proper qualifications, and shall be compelled to produce certificates of efficiency.

SALES GIRL HAS SUIT AGAINST ENRICO CARUSO

She Wants $50,000 From Him for Breach of Promise

Milan, Feb. 20—Some of the evidence in the breach of promise suit of the sales girl, Genelli against Enrico Caruso, the operatic tenor, has been heard in court.

Counsel for the young woman gave the details of the alleged courtship of the girl by the singer and told how the promise of marriage was made. He also produced the love letters which passed between Caruso and the girl. Counsel also declared that Caruso had sent for the girl to come to meet him, and be presented to his friends as the future Mrs. Caruso. He told of the presents which the singer had made to the girl, and the money which he had advanced to her for the purpose or buying dresses and paying her travelling expenses. In sending this money to the girl Caruso told her he was anxious that she should wear the finest clothes so as to worthily represent the future wife of the world's greatest tenor.

After all this, said counsel for the girl, the singer refused to marry her. He demanded that Caruso be mulcted in moral and material damages. The latter he estimated at $50,000, but said the plaintiff was willing to accept the sum which might be fixed by the Court.

The defence was practically that the case was one of blackmail. Counsel for Caruso denied that there had been any promise of marriage. He asked the Court to condemn the plaintiff to pay the costs of the proceedings. He also asked for damages, the amount of which would be left to the discretion of the Court. Counsel said in case such damages were awarded, Caruso would give the money to some charity selected by the Court, and would add $1,000 out of his own pocket.

The case was adjourned until this week.

Friendly relations have been established between Paraguay and Argentina.

LIVES ON RAW FRUITS.

Chicago Woman Says 30 Cents a Day Will Provide For Three.

Throw out the cook stove and live on raw fruits and vegetables if you would decrease the cost of living.

For eight years this has been the motto of Mrs. Charles Smith, vegetarian and suffragist, who resides at 4528 Hazel avenue and to whom the high cost of living agitation is all a joke. Other axioms of Mrs. Smith are:

Wear clothing made of vegetable fiber, eat vegetarian foods and follow the meaning of one little word—simplicity.

If your complexion is bad throw away cosmetics—eat oranges.

But, above all things, get rid of the cook stove. There is nothing elevating in society dinners any more than there is in ragtime music.

These observations were made by Mrs. Smith when as president of the Chicago Vegetarian society she called the first fall meeting of the organization to order in Kimball hall.

When asked concerning her decreased cost of living meals at the close of the meeting Mrs. Smith gave the noon and night menus of herself and husband, for they eat but two meals a day. Upon such a delicious and extravagant array of food a family of three may live, she says, for 30 cents a day.

Here is what they ate:

For Dinner.—Celery and lettuce, sun dried olives, apples, whole wheat crackers, honey, figs and Brazil nuts.

"The civilized ideas of today are killing the race," declared Mrs. Jean Roberts Albert, secretary of the society. "We cater to degeneracy. We should live more simply, more primitively. Plenty of pure raw foods and plenty of sunshine are all that is required."—Chicago Record-Herald.

MOTION PICTURES.

The First Crude Attempt to Show a Trotting Horse In Action.

Probably the man who can claim the greatest credit for moving pictures is Edward Muybridge of Oakland, Cal., who at the instigation of Governor Leland Stanford of California made countless pictures of the governor's celebrated trotter Occident, the first horse to trot a mile in 2:20 west of the Rocky mountains. Occident was the pride of the governor's heart, and he engaged Muybridge to photograph him in every conceivable size and shape. In making a series of snapshots of the horse's action Muybridge was enabled to show the exact motion.

In order to satisfy the governor he thought of a novel scheme of placing a number of cameras covering at least one-tenth of a mile. From these cameras he stretched silk threads across the track at about the height of the trotter's knee. These threads being broken, each camera made a separate, distinct picture of the horse, and by putting them together and riffling from the thumb the horse could be seen as in actual motion.

In 1885 Muybridge sailed for England and there, in connection with six or seven others, evolved the first moving picture camera. In about 1886 some of these cameras reached America. In 1887 the patent office at Washington commenced to receive a shower of applications for moving picture apparatus both for taking and projecting purposes.—Popular Mechanics.

Friday the Thirteenth.

Some superstitions die hard, if indeed they are dying at all. Twice this year the thirteenth day of the month has fallen on a Friday. It is impossible not to connect this combination with certain observations made in Paris and London.

On Friday, Oct. 13, there were no marriages in Paris, and a reference to three London papers, the Times, the Morning Post and the Globe, shows that none was recorded on that date, and a wedding is hardly a wedding if it is not put on record in the Morning Post and the Times.

In France the effect of Friday, the 13th, was even more widespread. Thousands of French people must have abstained from traveling. The receipts of the General Omnibus company in Paris showed a shrinkage of 10,000 francs, or $2,000. The Midi Railway company suffered to the extent of 15,000 francs, while the Wagons Lits fell 12,000 francs.—New York Sun.

The Sixth Sense.

At a recent meeting of the Paris Academy of Sciences M. Kunz discussed the phenomenon of "feeling at a distance," to which the power of blind people to avoid nearby obstacles is ascribed. M. Kunz believes that such a power exists and that it is not peculiar to the blind. It seems to be shared by others who possess a peculiar constitution. The faculty appears to reside in the skin, for experiments show that it is not connected with the sense of hearing. As to its nature, little knowledge has been obtained. There is a tendency to ascribe obscure phenomena of this kind to electrical action, but the mode of operation remains unknown.

A Baltic-Black Sea Canal.

It is stated that the old project for uniting the Baltic with the Black sea is at last to be put into operation. By utilizing the rivers Dwina and Dnieper a navigable waterway 1,000 miles long can be constructed without any great engineering problems, extending from the port of Riga on the Baltic to Kherson on the Black sea. The cost is estimated at about $250,000,000, but the benefit to Prussian commerce and industries will be immense.—American Travelers' Gazette.

CLYDESDALE

Archie Doxsee Sustained Fracture of the Leg

Special To The Review.

Clydesdale, Feb. 20.—Weather conditions have been very favorable this past week. Farmers are busy getting out timber for the new saw mill which is to be running in the near future on Mr. Charles Hillcox's farm near Mr. A. Caldwell's residence.

Mr. Gus Trotter has bought a new team of fine horses and we expect the girls will get some merry sleigh rides soon.

Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Campbell were visiting at D. McPherson's on Sunday.

Miss Lena Tivey was the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. Blackburn for a few days this week.

A load of young people from Clydesdale attended the ball at Coe Hill on the 16th of Feb.

We are very sorry to hear that Mr. Archie Doxsee had the misfortune to get his leg broken a few days ago.

Dr. Anderson, of Coe Hill, is kept pretty busy attending his patients in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hoffman were visiting in Clydesdale on Sunday.

Mr. Jos. Trotter and son George, have returned from a visit to Warsaw.

Miss B. Herr was the guest of Miss Minnie Fletcher on Saturday last.

We are glad to see Mr. John Dafoe has not entirely forsaken the short cut across the field.

The Council met in Caldwell's School House on Thursday the 15th.

Mr. Geo. Burlied passed through Clydesdale on his way home from Coe Hill.

It is a great boon to the farmers to have opposition in the flour and feed business at Coe Hill, and we wish Mr. Norman Gilroy every success in the trade.

We are pleased to have our old stage driver on the road again, Mr. W. Blackburn.

The home of Mr. F. Gorley was cheered by the birth of an infant daughter this week.

STOPS PAIN OF BURNS AND CUTS

Really Wonderful How Zam-Buk Gives Ease

This is the verdict of all who have tried Zam-Buk. The woman in the home knows best its value. A burn from the stove, from a flat iron, or a hot pan is instantly soothed by Zam-Buk. When the little ones fall and cut or scratch themselves, Zam-Buk stops the pain, and, incidentally, their crying. The best proof of this is the fact that children who have once had Zam-Buk applied come for it again.

For more serious burns, too, it is unequalled. Mr. John Johnston, of 734 South Mark street, Fort William, a moulder in Copp's Foundry, says: "Some time ago I burned the top of my foot severely by dropping some molten iron from a ladle I was carrying. A large hole was burned through my shoe and into the top of my foot. I was taken home and Zam-Buk was applied to the burn directly. It was surprising what relief balm afforded. The burn was so deep and so serious that it required careful attention, but Zam-Buk prevented other complications arising, and as it was daily applied, soothed the pains and allayed the inflammation. In the course of two weeks the hole burned in my foot had been well healed."

Mr. W. B. Gibson, of Belleville, writes: "We have tried Zam-Buk often on on cuts and sores, and I think there is nothing that can equal it."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

WHEN MOTHER WAS A GIRL.

They wore no extra wads of hair
When mother was a little girl.
There was no hobble skirt affair
When mother was a little girl.
The waist line didn't change a bit,
They never wore peach basket hats,
The sheath gown hadn't made a hit.
No one had ever heard of janes and rats,
When mother was a little girl.

The women smoked no cigarettes
When mother was a little girl.
Nobody'd heard of suffragettes
When mother was a little girl.
The maidens chewed no wads of gum
In public, as they do today;
The bridge whist fever hadn't come,
The girlies didn't get so gay,
When mother was a little girl.

The maidens did the washing, too,
When mother was a little girl.
And swept and brushed the house all through
When mother was a little girl.
They had to wash the windows clean,
They didn't go to matinees;
They spent their time in other ways
When mother was a little girl.

They didn't wear these high heel shoes
When mother was a little girl.
Nor Laura Jean's love tales peruse,
When mother was a little girl.
The maidens were quite circumspect;
They didn't sit up half the night.
Their sweethearts left, you recollect,
Before the gray of morning light
When mother was a little girl.

Teach Children Care of Nails.

If the little girl's finger nails are filed for her once a week she may easily be taught to otherwise care for her hands and nails. Children should be taught that the care of the hands is a necessity. Many persons think that the hands of a child do not become soiled as much as those of an older person. But they do; indeed, more so. The hands, although washed frequently, are not cleansed any too often. The school books, pens, pencils, papers or toys they handle are frequently covered with tiny germs, and no mother makes a mistake who impresses upon her children the importance of bodily cleanliness. After a few months' practice with young children habits of cleanliness should be so well established that the mother's care can be lessened by having each child do as much as she can herself, the mother thereafter making an inspection.

Every two weeks a young child should have her hair and scalp thoroughly shampooed. And if at any time the little one should be so unfortunate as to have her head infected as the result of too close contact with a child whose head and hair are not clean keep the little one home from school for a week. Purchase tincture of larkspur from any druggist, saturate the head and hair the first evening and wrap up the head with an old towel to protect the bedclothing. The next day shampoo the head well with castile soap and warm water. The third day, to make sure all destruction has taken place, saturate the head once again, and on the following day give the head another general shampoo.

Amusement For the Little Folk.

There are more children made happy in the vacation days and holidays by paper dolls than by any other means. Paper dolls can be manufactured out of the pictures in a fashion paper, and there are picture books that show not only children, but even grown folks. These can be pasted in scrap books and arranged by the children under the direction of their elders and are fascinating. Sometimes the magazines, too, show lovely pictures of house decorations, pictures of porch furnishings and drawing room sofas and chairs, and a big blank book, a pair of scissors and some paste will help the little ones to have their paper houses arranged according to the best method in which they are planned in dainty homes. This type of paper cutting is not only useful in keeping little ones employed, but serves to help them, too, in their first observation of order in a home.

Sacred to Their Memory.

"Bosworth has a unique idea that he is going to put into effect in his new house."

"Do you mean having the garage in the basement?"

"Oh, no; that has been done before. He is going to have a splendid den fitted up for himself on the second floor, where, in addition to the various trophies he has won, he will have the walls decorated with the names of all the guides he has shot by mistake."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Potatoes au Gratin.

The usual way of preparing these much liked potatoes is by no means the best. Instead of sprinkling the cheese over the top when the potatoes are ready to be baked, grate it and blend it into the white sauce before pouring the sauce over the potatoes. The cheese flavor thus added permeates the entire pan and makes the sauce deliciously creamy. Dust the top with cracker dust or breadcrumbs and brown in the oven.

French Pancakes.

Use a pancake recipe calling for very little flour, made principally of eggs and milk. Have the batter thin and bake in rather large circles. Spread each cake with a slightly tart fruit jelly, dust with powdered sugar, roll tightly as for jelly roll and fasten with a skewer made of a toothpick. Serve very hot with the tea.

Fig Sandwiches.

Chop one-quarter of a pound of figs very fine, add one-quarter cupful of water and cook to a smooth paste; add also one-third cupful of almonds blanched, chopped very fine and pounded to a paste with a little rosewater, also the juice of half a lemon. When cold spread the mixture upon thinly buttered slices of white or rye bread.

SHE WAS SURPRISED

When Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Cured her Chronic Liver Complaint

Mrs. R. Smith, of Winnipeg, Man., tells an interesting story of relief from almost intolerable sufferings:

"I can hardly tell you how great my sufferings have been. Chronic liver complaint accompanied by biliousness were a daily source of trial to me. Every day I experienced the sickening effects of these ailments. I longed for some medicine that should permanently drive them away.

Hearing of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, I thought they were worthy of a trial. My surprise was indeed great. From the very first I experienced relief. Continuing with them I found my troubles were slowly but surely leaving me, and before long I once more knew what it was to be free from the harassing effects of the ailments that had long sickened and weakened me. So great is my faith in Dr. Morse's Indian Pills that I shall never on any account be without them."

CARD PLAYING ON TOMB STONES

There is a churchyard in the borough of St. Marylebone, London, in which a tombstone pointed out to visitors as the one on which Hogarth's "idle apprenticeship" threw dice. Attention has just been called to the fact that this practice of gambling on tombstones has come down to the present day in at least one graveyard in the United Kingdom.

A lawsuit, just decided, has stopped the practice in the churchyard of Dungarvan, an Irish village, where some of the inhabitants were in the habit of playing cards on the slabs placed over graves and of dancing to the music of an accordion. The representative church body was the complainant in the case. It sought and obtained an injunction against sixteen persons, restraining them from trespassing upon the burial ground and premises adjacent to St. Mary. The master of rolls, who heard the case, held that this privilege was one of permission and not a right, and that a churchyard was dedicated to the service of God and not to the recreation of man. In the days before the Reformation, authorities say, the parish churchyard was used as a public playground. Games and revels were commonly held there on Sunday and holidays. At Whitsuntide there was a sort of church fair held in graveyards, at which ale brewed by the church wardens was served, while dice throwing, card playing and bowls were permitted. Cock fighting in churchyards did not cease until the eighteenth century. There is a story told that a wealthy man in Hurtsbourne Tarrant, a village of Hampshire, ordered that a flat tombstone, large enough to enable the boys to play marbles on it, should be placed over his grave.

In the Berlin Zoological Garden restaurant, the largest in the world, 10,000 persons can sit down simultaneously beneath the same roof. Open-air terraces for use in summer will accommodate another 10,000 diners. There are 1,000 waiters, and the kitchen staff exceeds 500.

THE RISE AND FALL OF JOE YEAGER, RACE TRACK PLUNGER

Wife Says She and Her Husband Spent $60,000 in One Year.

Indianapolis, February, 20— "Joe" Yeager's rise and fall as a plunger at the race tracks, especially in New York, went on court record in the testimony of his former wife, Mae Yeager, who has brought suit to save $50,000 from the wreck of his fortune.

The defendant is Edward Ballard, once in partnership with Yeager in Frech Lick and West Baden gambling houses, where the games were never limited. Mrs. Yeager advanced Ballard the sum for which she sues in the stock of those houses as security for a loan to Yeager. She is suing to recover under the statute which forbids a woman to act as surety for her husband in a gambling transaction. Federal Judge Anderson is hearing the case.

Mrs Yeager's story told how easy money came in bunches and departed in bundles. She said that when Yeager began to develop a system as a pool-room clerk at $15 a week, his capital free for investiment was $6 or $8. The system proved so good that when he got ready to throw up his job and strike out for himself he pulled $75,000 from the New Orleans track.

He went the rounds of the race meetings that season, good luck always favoring him. At the end of the year, he figured that he was worth $500,000. Nothing was then too expensive to buy that either of them wanted. He spent $14,030 in buying an automobile de luxe, gave her a $4,000 sable coat and decked her out with $20,000 worth of diamonds. Money flew in other directions in the same lavish fashion and life was a joyously wild delirium. In one year they spent $60,000.

The system did not work quite as unfailingly the second year, but it enabled them to live on a grand scale and Yeager's vanity was tickled by the admiration of the race track crowds and the wholesome respect in which the bookmakers began to hold him.

The high-flying continued without serious interruption for several years and Yeager had the reputation of having won a million by the ability he had acquired to pick winners.

His impassive demeanor at the tracks where he laid heavy bets. was deceptive, however, she said, for the sytem turned out to have been good guesswork, which fell apart when the sporting public thought it was doing its best.

She gave Yeager credit for keeping a straight face through heavy losses, but the drain was more rapid than the run of luck had been. He had final recourse to the roulette table in the hope of recouping. That device cost him thousands of dollars a night, and at the finish there was nothing left except a string of debts.

Although he turned a smiling face to the public while his money was slipping from him, he frowned at home An action for separation resulted on the ground of cruelty, in consequence of which he was ordered by Justice Bischoff in the New York Supreme Court to pay her $125 a week alimony. She always had trouble to get it, and when finally the lost everything she had to go without

One instance of Yeager's keenness for big strikes occurred at the Gravesend meeting of 1904, following a race in which two of the horses were Sheriff Bell, owned by Morris Hayman, and Stuyve, belonging to F. R. Lanterman. Sheriff Bell had been the favorite and was heavily backed to win by John W. Gates.

Yeager made a big winning by betting on Stuyve whose victory not only surprised the track talent, but so angered Gates that he offered to bet $50,000 on his favorite in a private race with Stuyve. Yeager proposed to make the event more interesting by a bet of $100,000, but Gates said his original figure was enough, and the wager was laid at that.

The sporting element became greatly excited over the bet, and fortunes would no doubt have been laid on the event had not P. J. Dwyer, who controlled the track, vetoed it. He said such a race would be against the interests of good sport and would do positive harm to horse racing, especially as both horses were second rate and selling platers. The race was not run, but had it been permitted Yeager would have put up his $50,000 with as much sangfroid as he bet fraction of that sum.

In 1907, while Yeager was still rated high on the American turf, he placed markers for $2,500 one day at Belmont Park and failed to appear the next day to settle, according to custom, or to send excuses. In two or three days he reappeared looking the same as usual, and paid everybody. He had to borrow the money to set himself right. That was the beginning of the end.

It was in the flush days that Yeager met Ballard, defendent in the present suit. Both were eager for big stakes. They organised the Ballard-Yeager West Baden Company, which opened a track for for unlimited bets. Yeager's fortune varied during that enterprise, and finding himself at one time pressed for money, he borrowed $24,000 of Ballard, for which Mrs. Yeager gave as collateral $50,000 of the company's stock and her personal note for $15,000. She is now trying to get back all the law allows.

TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE HOCKEY AT HAVELOCK

Home Team Came Back too Late to Win Out

Special To The Review.

Havelock, Feb. 20.—Coming from behind in the last half, Havelock all but downed the Campbellford seven in a strenuous Trent Valley fixture here on Friday night. But they didn't the Campbellford boys carrying home the honors with an 8—7 score.

The game was fast and exciting throughout, and in places was not the cleanest possible. It took the railroad boys too long to get on steam, and this is the explanation for the defeat, for when time was called Havelock were going fast, and a little while longer on the ice would probably have made the story a different one.

Campbellford needed the game to keep in the running. Havelock needed it, because so far this winter, although they have come close to it several times, they have failed to annex a league game. Thus did indications from the first point to a warm game, and it lived fully up to expectations.

The Havelock team, as all during the season, were too light for their opponents, who did not fail to take advantage of their greater weight. Some of the locals are indeed in the featherweight class, but nevertheless put up a game fight. Shannon starred for Campbellford, and used the hickory extensively during the game, and as a result adorned the fence twice during the evening's performance. Bennet, of Havelock, was also granted a similar rest by Referee Waghorne.

The score would indicate that the visitors ran away from the locals in the first half ,as they found the nets in the first period five times to the locals' once. However, the woollen mill boys earned every tally they got, Havelock making them travel a fast pace.

Havelock came back like men from a week's holidays in the second half, and did some fine individual and combined work, mostly the former. Ferguson and Quinlan retired in favor of Bohan and McGuire, who seemingly added new life to the struggle. This period seen three tallies for the visitors and six for the locals, leaving the final score 8—7.

Goal—Darling.
Point—Rose.
Cover—Curry
Rover—Ferguson.
Centre—Quinlan.
Right—Warren.
Left—Bennet.
Referee—Waghorne, Toronto.

BOYS' QUARTETTE WELL RECEIVED

At Second Concert of Salvation Army Band

The spacious hall of the Salvation Army Barracks was comfortably filled last night, when the second S.A. concert of the winter series was given. Ensign Merrett occupied the chair. The program was of a musical character, but varied, and rendered with exceeding finesse by those taking part. It was opened by a selection from the band, a march "Perseverance," which was received with hearty applause. The two selections by the songsters were greatly appreciated, but the chief feature of the evening was the first public appearance of the Boy's quartet, which created a decidedly favorable impression on the audience. The program included a trombone solo by Bandsman Sandford, with band accompaniment, and the male quartet with, "What Can You Expect" was heartily applauded.

C.O.F. AT HOME

The Catholic Order of Foresters gave a successful At Home in the St. Alphonsus Lyceum last evening to over one hundred guests. The earlier hours of the very pleasant evening were whiled away in euchre contests, the lady's prize being carried off by Miss A. Deaire, and the gentleman's prize by Mr. James Garvey. Immediately after the card games, light and dainty refreshments were partaken of by the guests, and then the swinging airs of some popular music summoned the guests to the ball room, where they danced into the "wee small hours" of this morning.

A pleasing feature was the presence in the choir and on the platform, of several singers from other choirs.

Mr. George Chandler, the choirmaster worked hard all the evening and is to be congratulated on scoring such a success after some weeks of faithful practice. The platform was finely decorated and presented a pleasing appearance, with the forty singers, nicely arranged. ROWELL'S ATTITUDE ON BILINGUALISM IS DISCUSSED BY FRENCH MEMBER

Champagne Describes the Vacillation of the Opposition Leader on School Question.

Toronto, Feb. 21.—New Ontario, its progress and development, was a subject that provided some interesting discussion in the Legislature yesterday. T. R. Atkinson of North Norfolk, in a rather uneventful speech, blazed the way for the French-Canadian members and after that there wasn't a dull moment. Bilingual schools were under the hammer and the discussion extended to nearly every public policy of the Government.

Z. Magean, Sturgeon Falls, is a young French-Canadian member, who bids fair to be an excellent speaker. He is enthusiastic and knows conditions in New Ontario just as they are. Speaking of a Conservative hotelkeeper who lost his license and got it restored again on two occasions when elections were coming on, Mr. Magean said he had no doubt that the Provincial Treasurer knew nothing about it. "I am of the opinion that somebody benefited by these occurrences previous to the elections. I wouldn't say who it might be, but I have my thoughts in French, although I don't express them." (Laughter.)

He maintained that the very fact of the Government spending $5,000,000 at one throw on New Ontario showed that the north had been neglected for the past seven years.

While not complaining of the money spent on education, Mr. Magean stated that the amount of money spent during the past few years on Toronto University was more than all the expenditure for bridges and roads through New Ontario.

Napoleon Champagne, Ottawa East, defended the Government.

"Let us see," said he. "The Conservative party has a majority of 60. At four seats a year it will be 15 years before the leader of the Opposition can sit on this side of the House. Before that time he will either have thrown up the job in disgust or he will have been fired out by his party." (Laughter.)

He paid a compliment to Mr. Rowell for his pre-election statement that the French people should not be deprived of the use of their mother tongue. Mr. Champagne assumed that the Opposition leader was referring to schools in this regard, for "the French mothers will take care of that in their homes. They won't need politicians there."

After the publication of Mr. Rowell's campaign address referring to bilingual schools, The Ottawa Free Press hailed the new leader as a Moses. The Free Press is a Liberal paper and it can call Mr. Rowell a Moses one day and a Judas Iscariot the next." Mr. Champagne warmed up in his recital of N. W. Rowell's vacillating policy on this bilingual school question.

"At that time," he continued, "if the law was against you, you were willing to break the law, if the law should be amended you were willing to trim it to suit your purpose—you were willing to give fair play to the people to whom you were talking.

"To-day it is quite different. To-day you stand up and say to the Attorney-General, who has said that bilingual schools are illegal — observe the law. Doubling and wheeling may be alright for the rank and file, it might do for the satellites, but is unbecoming for a pole star, the general of the great Liberal party."

"There is nothing so cheerful around home as trees," said T. R. Atkinson (North Norfolk) in resuming the long-drawn out address in reply to the speech from the throne. He urged reforestration, not only to provide lots of timber land, but also to beautify the country.

It seems to me that the Government's policy in North Ontario for the past few years has been one of cut and slash," said he. "That's a nice place for a settler to try and locate and find a home." He recommended that every tree or sapling under 10 inches in diameter should be protected by the Government and used for reforestration. He urged the appointment of an independent man to administer the $5,000,000 loan for the development of New Ontario.

In reply, R. A. Norman said the speech from the throne was one of the most momentous speeches of modern times.

AUSTRALASIA IS GETTING THE MEN

Arthur Hawkes Back and Will Make Report.

Ottawa, Feb. 21.—"I am the most abused man in Canada; but let them abuse; I am satisfied to be judge on my record."

This was the greeting yesterday of Arthur Hawkes, special commissioner of the Immigration Department, who arrived in Ottawa yesterday morning after several weeks' visit to the old country investigating the situation as regards immigration to Canada in the British Isles. Mr. Hawkes will make his report to the Government in two weeks.

Australia or Australasia, he said, is becoming a keen competitor of this country in attracting settlers from the British Isles, according to Mr. Hawkes. Last year 9,000 people left Scotland for Australasia, three times as many as ever before, and they secured 60,000 from the British Isles, twice as many as ever before.

"The day I arrived at my home town, Maidstone, a party of forty left for Australasia," said the commissioner.

SEVEN HOUR FIRE CAUSES BIG LOSS

Two Hundred Buildings Destroyed---Burned Area Eighteen Blocks Long and Seven Blocks Wide---Loss of $5,000,000.

Special to the Review.

Houston, Texas, Feb. 21.—Fire which started at two-thirty o'clock this morning and raged till nearly noon, destroyed two hundred buildings, including houses, factories and cotton compressors in the vicinity of the Southern Pacific Railway yards.

The loss is estimated as high as five million dollars. The area burned was eighteen blocks long, seven blocks wide and contained many hundreds of employes of factories and railroads.

One whole block was dynamited in an effort to stop the flames. McFadden Compress and Clevefand Compress and the big Lavriell Lumber plant are the heaviest losers.

ALL PARTIES TO BE REPRESENTED

London, Eng., Feb. 21.— The mine owners to-day accepted the invitation to confer with Premier Asquith and other members of the government in an endeavor to avert the coal strike. It is expected that the miners will also send representatives to the meeting.

Hamilton Against It.

Hamilton, Feb. 21.—Hamilton City Council will protest against the compulsory vaccination bill, which is causing such a furore of excitement throughout the city here.

Mayor Lees declared he would rather pay the $25 penalty than issue a proclamation ordering compulsory vaccination.

JUDGE SAYS ON THURSDAY

The Decision on the Hebert Case Will be Known

Montreal, Feb. 21.—Judge Charbonneau delivered an official declaration yesterday morning in regard to the date on which he would hand out his finding in the Hebert case. He said it would be Thursday.

He took rather an amusing method of breaking the news to the reporters. A group of them was standing outside his room speculating as to when the long-expected judgment would be given, when the door suddenly opened and the judge glared out. Some of the scribes sauntered off, while others stood their ground under his gaze.

"Come inside," he said, in a gruff voice.

The reporters entered the judge's room, expecting to receive a reprimand for bothering him, as his lordship has already told one or two of the scribes that their pestering was driving him to the lunatic asylum.

However, the judge suddenly burst out laughing, and said that he was able to announce that he would deliver his finding on Thursday.

SHOT FATHER THEN HIMSELF

Young Man Wanted His Parents Promise of $25,000.

Grand Forks, Nd., Feb. 21.—Rex Wallace, of St. Paul, Monday night shot and killed his father, H. W. Wallace, a prominent banker, at Drayton, Nd., seriously wounded his brother-in-law and then killed himself. The tragedy occurred in the bank of the elder Wallace.

It is alleged that young Wallace had written a letter some weeks ago to his father, threatening to kill him unless he fulfilled a promise to give him $25,000.

NESBITT MAY ARGUE THE CASE

Has Been Asked to Act for the Government.

Ottawa, Feb. 21.—What the stated case to the Privy Council on the marriage question shall be is still under consideration by the Government.

It is understood that Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., has been asked to argue the case but has deferred acceptance of the brief until the precise terms of the reference have been determined. Some doubt is expressed by those who hold that the Lancaster bill is ultra vires of the Dominion Parliament that the reference may be framed in such a form that the judicial committee of the Privy Council will not have the full facts of the case before them when the case comes up for adjudication.

WESTERN DAY IN THE HOUSE

Commons Busy Putting the Grain Bill Through

Ottawa, Feb. 21.—This was exclusively a western day in Parliament. The further consideration of the grain bill occupied the attention of the Commons at both afternoon and night sittings. Western Liberal members placed themselves on record as unanimously opposed to any change in the car distribution clause whereby the farmers would be liable to lose any of the privileges gain through many years of agitation.

Mr. Foster's amendment proposed to give the projected commission authority to control the car situation.

Led by Hon. Frank Oliver, the Opposition took issue with the proposal. The ex-Minister of the Interior pointed out that the car distribution power as decreed by the Laurier Administration under the old Manitoba grain act was a remarkable piece of legislation. It was probably the most extreme Socialistic measure on the statute books for the protection of the individual over the corporation. It was not possible that such strong legislation should have been approved had it not been that there was a dominant public demand. It was the outcome of an irrepressible conflict between the two parties which would never be reconciled. There was only one course to take, in his opinion; either to side with one or the other; either to stand by the legislation and protect the individual, or to remit the legislation and let the corporation have its way.

At 11.30 a division was taken on the clause, which was adopted by a vote of 41 to 29, a Government majority of twelve. Mr. Sharpe of Lisgar voted with the Opposition.

Later in the night Hon. Mr. Foster announced that it was the intention of the Government to ask Parliament at the present session for a grant of money to acquire and operate the elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur. The Minister added, however, that this course would not be followed at any other place. He could not now state the amount which would be asked for. It will, however, likely run up into the millions.

London, Feb. 21.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In the Commons yesterday Col. Seeley, in reply to a question, said the additional cost of moving troops in connection with Hon. Winston Churchill's visit to Belfast was $13,500, "but," he said, "the right of free speech must be safeguarded at any cost."

W. Moore, M.P., Armagh—"There was no attack on free speech; it was the offensive choice of the hall." (Cheers.)

Col. Seeley—"If the hon. member went to Dublin to make a speech we would take the same measure to preserve his rights."

NOW SAID TO BE JOKE

Bomb Resolution Referred to Firecrackers in Hall

Indianapolis, Feb. 21.—Fire-crackers in the hall, not dynamite under non-union "jobs" were referred to in a resolution submitted to the conference of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers at Rochester, N.Y., in September, 1910, according to a statement by Frank M. Ryan, president of the association, yesterday. Ryan had denied the authenticity of the resolution, the original copy which the federal officials investigating the dynamiting conspiracy assert they have, but yesterday he recalled, he said, that the measure proposing that "no more bombs or explosives of any kind be exploded while this convention is in session," was introduced.

"It was just a joke," said Ryan, "and it came about because P. J. Morin of St. Louis had put bunches of fire-crackers under the chairs of the delegates and set them off. The explosives startled all of us. The resolution went to the resolutions committee and never was reported out. I suppose John McNamara kept it. We did not discuss it because we knew nothing of the dynamiting plot."

The document came into the hands of the Government with other records of the iron workers' association in raids on its offices.

Twenty-five explosions destroyed or damaged property of employers of non-union iron and steel workers in the year preceding the convention, and according to Ortie McManigal, the confessed dynamiter, he was kept particularly busy just before the national meeting.

Conflicting Parties Are Asked to Confer With Cabinet on Thursday.

London, Feb. 21.—The Government last night intervened in the coal dispute which threatens to cause a stoppage of work in the mines throughout the United Kingdom, involving not less than 800,000 miners. After the subject had been discussed at a Cabinet meeting, Premier Asquith addressed a letter to the representatives of the coal owners and miners, requesting them to meet him and some of his colleagues at the Foreign Office on Thursday next in order to endeavor to arrange a basis of settlement. He added that the industrial council had advised the convening of such a meeting.

The Premier states that the Government hoped that a means would be found, by direct negotiation between the parties concerned, to avert the disaster of a national stoppage, but the prospects that that would be achieved before the miners' notices of cessation of work expired on March 1, were so small that the Government felt compelled to intervene.

"There is no need for me to enlarge upon the very serious consequences, both to the industries of the country and to all classes of coal consumers, which would inevitably follow an extensive stoppage of the coal trade," adds the Premier.

"If prolonged, it would involve a general stoppage of industry and His Majesty's Government feel that they could not allow such a calamity to ensue without making every endeavor to aid in preventing it."

As a result of the intervention of the Government, the situation is a trifle hopeful, although the prospect is none too promising. Premier Asquith's action followed upon complete failure of the negotiations conducted by the English conciliation board, which has been sitting in Westminster for several days. These negotiations reached the state, where the owners agreed to the principle of a minimum wage, but upon conditions which the miners declined to accept.

On announcement of this failure, the Cabinet held a second prolonged council, with the result that the Premier had invited the disputants to confer with the Ministers. Hopes are now centered upon the proved ability of Sir George R. Askwith, the board of trade representative, in arranging labor difficulties. Both sides are in an angry mood, under the belief that the dispute must now be fought out once for all.

Didn't Reach Agreement.

London, Feb. 21.—The conference between the coal mine owners and the men's representatives, which has been in session in London for two days, broke up last evening without any agreement being reached. This perhaps is partially attributable to the fact that the International Miners will meet to-day, and the men are waiting to see if their hands will not be strengthened by the decisions reached by that organization.

Negotiations have been commenced between the Board of Trade and both sides in the dispute. Arbitration is strongly urged.

AVIATOR SANDT MAKES FLIGHT OVER LAKE ERIE

Comes to Grief on Return Trip—Found Unconscious Under Aeroplane.

Erie, Pa., Feb. 21.—Earl Sandt, aged 23, an aviator of this city, made a flight from Erie to Port Rowan, Canada, over frozen Lake Erie late yesterday. At 5.50 p.m., he started from the Canadian shore for this place, but up to a late hour last night had not arrived. Searching parties started to cross the lake.

It was reported later that Aviator Sandt had been found at Northeast, near here, on the American shore of Lake Erie, and that he is badly injured.

Sandt is claimed to be the first aviator to cross the inland seas. The trip was made in 34 minutes. It was 2.41 by the aviator's watch when he took to the air here and at 4.30 he telephoned friends from Port Rowan, Canada, that he had landed at 3.15.

In coming to the ground Sandt broke a rib of his Curtiss biplane, but the injury was not serious. Shortly before six o'clock a telephone message from the Canadian shore announced that Sandt had departed for the American shore at 5.50. When over an hour passed and the aviator failed to appear, the huge crowd which had assembled became uneasy. Relatives and friends of Sandt communicated with the Canadian side and verified the report that he had started the return flight.

Later in the night Sandt was definitely heard from. While high in the air, and twenty miles east of his course, the engine of his biplane stopped, he said. For a time he glided toward the ice-covered lake, but suddenly the machine turned turtle and he was buried unconscious in the wreckage. How long he remained in this condition, Sandt does not know. When he recovered he was literally saturated with blood from many cuts. Aided by a pocket compass Sandt walked ten miles to the American shore, landing at Northeast at ten o'clock last night. He was found staggering along the shore by boys who were skating, and later carried to an hotel and word telephoned to this city.

He was brought here from Northeast at midnight in a special car. Thousands of persons, a brass band and loud blasts from shop whistles greeted him.

Horseman Seriously Hurt.

St. Catharines, Feb. 21.—A series of races between local horses on the new canal yesterday afternoon were attended by an accident to Jos. Quinn, widely known as a horseman throughout Canada. Quinn was performing the duties of a course judge when he drove in front of a horse being driven by George Houtby of Port Dalhousie. His sleigh was overturned and, in falling, he received a severe wound on the back of his head, which rendered him senseless for several hours, his life for a while being despaired of. He was finally removed to his home, where he is still in a critical condition, but will probably recover.

HORSE'S LEG SWELLED

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by "Nerviline."

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Murchison, from his home, Crofts Hill P. O. I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore, and swollen. I applied Nerviline, and it worked like a charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

Nerviline Is a Trusty Liniment

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

STREET PAVING

The proposition to proceed with street paving is not a new one for the City Council. Last year when it appeared as though the work would proceed with experiments on Chambers street and a western portion of Hunter street, the frosty weather arrived and found the streets undisturbed. Now the question has come up again and should be decided one way or the other before many more weeks have come and gone. Only the best materials should be placed on the streets if the Council decides in the affirmative and it is therefore necessary for the Council to go into the matter thoroughly so that when the pavement is laid and has seen service, it will not give the Rocky Mountain appearance as is the case in some other cities where poor material was used and the work improperly done. With good pavements, the thousands of excursionists who will come to Peterborough this summer, would be better impressed with the city, to which would be added a much more progressive atmosphere. Peterborough is known far and wide as an attractive city and it can be made more so by the introduction of street pavements.

HE DOES THINGS

The opposition leader calls the Whitney government a do nothing government, but this is just one of the many slips Mr. Rowell has made. He is excused. The Liberal cub has to say something and has to make a blind stab at some mark. So far he has displayed a poor markmanship. One important department taken up by the Whitney government, is the fight to suppress tuberculosis. During the five years between 1905 and 1911, the grants to this work amounted to $100,073.05.

In addition, the government in 1907 appropriated the sum of $1,000 for the purpose of a tuberculosis exhibit, the value of this having appeared to be so great that in 1908 the amount was increased to $4,000, which has been continued each succeeding year.

In 1911 the government further appropriated the sum of $1,000 for a public health exhibit, which is shown in connection with the tuberculosis exhibit and this appropriation was renewed for the years 1912 and 1913.

On account of the efforts made to educate the people of Ontario regarding the nature of tuberculosis and the successful means which may be adopted for its prevention, the death rate in Ontario is year by year growing less.

This satisfactory result must be ascribed to the efforts made by the provincial board of health to bring the traveling exhibit with its striking educational features before the people, to the introduction of a suitable text book in our schools, as well as the dissemination of suitable literature, to the work of the local sanitoria with their dispensaries and visiting nurses, and to the fact that the people of Ontario are more than ever appreciating the fact that healthy homes and pure air are the great essentials necessary to rid the country of the disease.

The following figures, which were gathered with every effort to secure accuracy, were presented at the last international tuberculosis exhibition: Annual deaths from tuberculosis — Australia, 350 per 100,000; Servia, 275 per 100,000; Ireland, 215 per 100,000; Norway, 276 per 100,000; Germany, 185 per 100,000; United States, 167 per 100,000; England, 121 per 100,000; Ontario 102 per 100,000.

The death rate from tuberculosis in Ontario in the year 1905 was 120 per 100,000 inhabitants.

THE DEADLY SUBMARINE

Illinois State Register.

There is something horrifying and uncanny in the loss of life in the sinking of a submarine vessel, such as occurred at Portsmouth, England, the other day. The idea of men being canned up in an airtight vessel and being sent to the bottom to be drowned like rats, cannot help but fill the mind with a striking terror.

These submarine vessels may be a good thing in war, and may cause a good deal of destruction to the enemy they want to get rid of, but so far they remind us somewhat of an idea expressed by an old friend some time ago, when he spoke about carrying concealed weapons. He said he never carried weapons He did not believe in revolvers, because they had killed more people than they had ever saved.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Feb. 20.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat and oats over the cable were very quiet owing to the limited demand and bids being generally out of line. There was some demand from local buyers for American corn, and a fair volume of business was done. The tone of the market for oats remains steady under a fairly good demand, and small offerings on spot. A firm feeling prevails in winter wheat flour, but the demand is quieter. A good trade continues to be done in spring wheat grades. Demand for bran and shorts is good.

Butter is quieter, but prices rule firm. Owing to more liberal arrivals of fresh eggs prices have declined. Cold storage supplies are now about exhausted and any stock held is to complete contracts with. American eggs are selling at 35c. There is a fair demand from the west for cheese, and a good many car loads are going forward.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

As for the iced water, I had intended to refuse it at any cost, because Vic and mother both solemnly warned me that it made all the difference between a complexion and mere skin. But the minute I landed I began thinking hard about iced water, and I soon discovered that when you are in America a comparatively small consideration like a complexion would never keep you from drinking it. In fact, nothing would. You feel as if you must drink iced water, pints of iced water, in rapid succession, if not only your complexion, but your whole face were to be swept away in the deluge. Once you have got the taste nothing can quench it but iced water, more iced water and still more iced water!

After dinner, while we were having heavenly Turkish coffee in the fountain court, who should come but Mr. Doremus. It seemed to me a funny time to call, but apparently the others didn't think it out of the way. He wanted us to go to some theater on a roof, and I should have loved it, especially when Mrs. Ess Kay said you didn't get smudges on your nose as you would if you sat on a roof in London, a thing which I never heard of anybody except cats doing. But she was tired, and I suppose it would have been ladylike for me to be, only I was much too excited. So Mr. Doremus stayed, and he and Mr. Parker talked more slang in an hour than I think I ever heard in my whole life, though I have always considered Stan talented in that way.

But Stan's slang and Vic's are quite different from American slang. In America you build up your whole conversation out of it, and it's wonderful. I longed for a notebook while those two men were talking to put everything down, and I felt if people were often going to be as funny as that I should need to go home soon to rest my features.

When I go home I shall probably have collected so much slang in my pores that I shall talk about putting on my "glad rags" when I'm going to dress for dinner; my life will be my "natural;" I shall call Stan's motor car the blue assassin or the homicide wagon; I shall say my best frocks are "mighty conducive;" I shall get bored by poor Mr. Duckworth, our newest curate, and tell him he's "the limit;" I may even take to abbreviating my affirmatives and negatives by saying "yep" and "nope" when I'm in a hurry, but if I do fall into these ways, I tremble to think what may be the effect on mother.

Chapter 4

"WHY, Betty, you never told me you were interviewed on the dock." These were the first words Mrs. Ess Kay said to me as I walked in to breakfast, a little late because of a wrestle I had had with a different and even more exciting kind of bath.

"I wasn't," said I, on the defensive, though I couldn't be perfectly sure what connection, if any, interviewing had with the customs. "You told me not to declare anything, and I didn't."

Mr. Parker, looking as if he had been melted, poured into his clothes and then cooled off with iced water, burst out laughing.

"You're a daisy, Lady Betty," said he.

"Is it invidious to be a daisy?" I asked.

"I guess I must look in the dictionary for 'invidious,' but a daisy's a flower that has budded in the green fields of England, where there aren't any newspaper reporters or other strange bugs."

"Potter!" exclaimed Mrs. Ess Kay, "don't tease her, and when you've been in the green fields of England you'll say insects, not—er—what you did say, if you don't want ladies to faint all around you on the floor." Then she turned to me. "He means you're very innocent, because you don't know what it is to be interviewed. But you must have been it, all the same, for see here, in this dreadful Flashlight." And she handed me a newspaper, with one page folded over and huge headings dotted about at the top of paragraphs, like the lines of big print that oculists keep to make you try your eyesight. In the middle column I saw my name, but I couldn't believe it was really there, in an American paper. I began to think I wasn't awake yet, and that this must be part of the dream I was dreaming all yesterday.

"BONNY—BETTY—BULKELEY," I read out aloud. "A Duke's Daughter on the Dock. Call Her by Her Front Name, Please. What Lady Betty Thinks of Our Boys."

There was more, but when I had got so far, I simply gasped.

"How dare they?"

"There isn't much they don't dare, except to go back without a 'story,'" said Mr. Parker, laughing. But I didn't laugh. I was too angry.

"If my brother were here, he'd kill them," I said.

"Then he hasn't got a sense of humor," replied Mr. Parker. "I don't see how a duke could have and be a duke nowadays, but I guess I wouldn't mind swopping my sense of humor for a dukedom, all the same. See here, Lady Betty, you'll get to like our newspapers before you've been over here a month. They sort of grow on you. They're as interesting as novels, and almost as true to life."

"This isn't true to my life, anyway," I said, not knowing whether I wanted most to laugh or cry. "Oh, Sally, Sally Woodburn, will anybody believe I said such things as these?"

"Give the Flashlight to me and let me look," she said. And when she'd taken the paper, she began to read the stuff that came under the big headings out aloud in her pretty, soft voice:

"Yesterday was a blazer, but though it was not enough on the docks to roast a coon when the Big Willie steamed in that beautiful young visitor to our shores, Lady Betty Bulkeley, managed to look like the duke's daughter and duke's sister she is and, so far as a mere man could tell, without the help of patent hair curlers or other artificial aids to personal pulchritude.

"A daughter of the gods, divinely tall and most divinely fair, she sat on a throne of ducal luggage looking queenly in an elegant white shirt waist built mostly of holes and eminently suited to her style of beauty as well as the weather. She also had on a picture hat, which was superfluous, as she would have been a picture without it, and below the waist she was tailor made."

"I think it's most insulting!" I broke in. "And I was made at home, all the way down."

But Sally went on: "I soon found (writes the representative of the Flashlight) that the sister of the Duke of Stanforth, one of Britain's eligibles, preferred to be addressed by her front name of Lady Betty. 'I feel more at home,' said she, with a sweet voice, but a pronounced English accent, 'when I am called Lady Betty. And I want to feel at home in America because I expect to be some time with my friend, Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox, who will show me society over on this side. I have heard so much about Newport, don't you know. I fancy it will be too utterly deevy.'"

"What's deevy?" I demanded, with scorn.

"Oh, that's supposed to be what smart Englishwomen say for divine."

"I never heard of it," I sneered, "much less said it. I'm sure mother would consider it quite profane."

"Well, do be quiet, child, and listen to what the Flashlight says you said. 'What opinion have you formed of our society women and clubmen on board the Willie?' was the next question.

"'I think your ladies are better dressed than ours, and the gentlemen are just lovely. They don't sit around and wait while we girls amuse them; they hustle to give us a good time, and they know how to do it. I shouldn't wonder if I should hate to go home and associate with lords after being a summer girl in Newport. I don't see now why American girls go out of their own country to marry.'

"'I suppose we shall be seeing your brother, the duke, over here before long?'

Improving the Chance.

"I know a man who looks so much like you that one could hardly tell you apart."

"You haven't paid him by mistake that 20 marks that I lent you four months ago, have you?"—Fliegende Blatter.

Unless the Manitoba boundaries bill precipitated a fight, it is anticipated by the Federal Government that the session will end by Easter. This is the aim of the Cabinet, and the majority of the Opposition are quite favorable.

At a meeting of the Belleville council a resolution was unanimously adopted endorsing the proposition to petition the Legislature to give married women who have property qualifications a right to vote at municipal elections.

Walter J. Hayes, aged 60, a Vancouver commission agent, was sentenced to three years for defrauding Champion and White, dealers in builders' supplies. Hayes effected frauds said to exceed $14,000, chiefly by false invoices.

After amputating his legs and arms the doctors at Montreal were unable to save Hormisdas Gervais, who was frozen to the ice for 24 hours on the St. Lawrence on Feb. 11. His companion says the two had been drinking, and on their way home the horse ran away, Gervais being thrown out and stunned.

Woman's World

The Intercollegiate Bureau of Occupation.

MISS FRANCES CUMMINGS, MANAGER OF BUREAU.

For a good many years past the college girl who has completed her course and faced about to make her own way in life has been confronted with the fact that practically no field was open to her except that of teaching.

Of late, however, the college graduate has begun to reach out toward a different state of things.

In New York city, where the number of college women seeking vocations other than teaching is very large, this need is being met by the newly organized intercollegiate bureau of occupations. The bureau, which is in reality a superior sort of employment agency, dealing only with the higher grades of specialized service, has been inaugurated and is at present supported by the New York alumnae associations of eight leading women's colleges. It aims not only to secure congenial occupations for exceptionally equipped women, but to supply employers with a more intelligent and responsible class of workers, in this way creating a demand for the specialized service which can be secured only from women who have been well educated and mentally trained.

The work of this new bureau is the outgrowth of an effort made by the members of the New York alumnae organization of Smith college to help solve this problem for Smith graduates who wished to do other things besides teaching. After some months of investigation and consultation the Smith college alumnae in New York city offered to contribute $1,000 toward the establishment of such a bureau, provided the New York alumnae of some other women's college would donate a like sum. The alumnae of Vassar promptly responded to this proposition, for there was the same desire among Vassar students to enter upon vocations other than teaching. These two organizations then took the matter up with other college alumnae clubs in New York city, and the result was that the bureau was launched under the management of the New York alumnae organization of Barnard, Bryn Mawr, Cornell, Mount Holyoke, Radcliffe, Smith, Vassar and Wellesley colleges.

Throughout the entire venture Miss Mary Van Kleeck, herself a Smith college graduate, has been the moving spirit. She is the president of the bureau; Mrs. Charlotte J. Farnsworth of Wellesley, an authority on vocational and social training for women, is vice president; Miss Ethel Stebbins of Cornell is secretary, and Miss Antoinette Putman-Cramer of Smith is treasurer. There is an advisory board composed of the presidents of the eight colleges in the bureau, as well as a local board of directors composed of twenty-two members of the New York alumnae organizations. These local directors are in close touch with the officers or committees having charge of recommendations in each of the women's colleges concerned, so that the needs of girls still in college can be made known to the bureau and new vocations for women may be communicated to students who are planning their future work.

The bureau also co-operates with the appointment bureau of the Women's Educational and Industrial union in Boston, which is doing a similar work, and there is a kindred movement on foot in Philadelphia.

Miss Frances Cummings, the executive manager of the bureau, is an interesting example of its effectiveness in getting the right person into the right place. Miss Cummings, also a Smith graduate who did not want to teach, spent the first four years after leaving college in secretarial work, which gave her a wide experience in clerical, filing and executive methods. She then entered the tenement house department of New York city, where seven years of promotion brought her to a responsible executive position as a reviewer of inspectors' reports. This thorough groundwork of executive experience, coupled with the cultural training of her college course, fitted her admirably for the broad demands of her present position. Miss Cummings' sympathy with the college girl's ambitions and her complete understanding of the technical requirements of the average employer enable her to mediate very wisely between the two.

While the bureau is intended principally for college women, well educated women with culture and experience or with some special training fitting them for the work they wish to do are also eligible.

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make-up. The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

OPTICAL SERVICE
BY
A. A. FOWLER, Eyesight Specialist

In every trade, profession or branch of work, there are found a few men, who from special fitness, or education, or both, are better prepared to serve you in their line than the multitude of others in the same field.

Since Optometry requires especial ability in both professional and mechanical work, men that are fitted to do both equally well are scarce. Therefore you cannot be too particular about the selection of the man to whom you entrust your eyes.

"The professional work—the examining and measuring of your eye defects, must be skilfully done. The mechanical part—the making and adjusting of your glasses is no less important.

Every phase of optical work is thoroughly and intelligently done here. From the first step in the examination to the final adjusting of the frame or mounting not a single thing is overlooked or slighted. I do all the work myself, and having had such fine success with most difficult, and neglected eyes, I do not hesitate to say that I can give you perfect satisfaction.

A visit will incur no obligation.

LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN TO BE PROCEEDED WITH; BIG MEETING SO DECIDED

Executive of City Temperance League Will be Authorized to Institute the Campaign — Large Attendance at George Street Church and Two Aldermen Gave Their Views.

Resolved—That this meeting authorize the executive committee of the City Temperance League to initiate a campaign for the carrying of local option next January.

The above resolution was unanimously passed at a largely attended meeting in George street church to consider the advisability of launching another campaign for local option. The resolution was moved by Mr. Wm. Might and seconded by the Rev. R. Pogue, and was endorsed in speeches by the Rev. J. R. Webb, Geo. Powell, Mr. W. Shiner and others. Mr. R. Lees acted as chairman.

On the motion of the Rev. J Rollins and Mr. Geo. Powell, it was decided to ask the executive committee of the Temperance League to consider the advisability of forming a strong citizens committee, the number and personnel of which to be determined by the executive.

Mr. Cunningham, the first to address the meeting spoke on the general situation and gave a brief account of the business done at the recent convention in Toronto. The temperance cause did not depend on the smiles or frowns of either Premier or leader of opposition, but on the fundamental characteristics and loyalty of the Christian citizen and voter.

At the convention it was decided that the goal of the temperance alliance would be provincial prohibition. There were more than seventy-five per cent of municipalities of Ontario in favor of local option, and therefore the convention was justified beyond question in aiming at prohibition, though their decision in this direction would not effect the local option work. The Alliance had no intention of tying itself to any particular party, but the temperance voters should support the candidate who made local option a plank in his platform, and if neither candidate favored the temperance the organization should consider the question of running an independent man. The temperance men should organize to consolidate their vote, and the result would be almost certain success.

LOCAL SITUATION.

Mr. R. Lees followed Mr. Cunningham, and spoke on the local situation. He explained that owing to the three-fifths clause, local option was lost by 250 votes, and this meeting was to decide whether or not it would be advantageous to resume the campaign and again vote on local option.

The executive of the Moral Reform League had not been unanimous in favor of another campaign, some claiming that the showing this year would not be any better than that at the last vote on local option. Others said that influences had been working in the interests of temperance and that not to proceed with the campaign would disappoint many, and would lessen the chances of future success in this matter. A general meeting of the Moral Reform League was in favor of the campaign and finally the matter was laid before these citizens who were interested in the cause and the purpose of this meeting was to thresh the matter out and get the frank opinion of those citizens. Mr. Lees explained that there was a county organization and called on Mr. H. B. Cowan, president of that organization, to discuss the county question.

IN THE COUNTY.

Mr. Cowan said that he was certain that most the municipalities in the county favored the campaign here. Burleigh and Peterborough were the only municipalities who had the bar.

ALDERMANIC OPINIONS.

Alderman Johnston, when called upon, said that all knew the stand he would take in this question. He did not see why there should not be local option in Peterborough, in spite of the three-fifth clause. He thought that many people who voted against the local option last time would support it now. Ald. Johnston gave his word as an alderman to help and support any municipal legislation concerning the temperance cause. Mr. Johnston's opinion was that any system that degenerated the people and cause vexation and desolation at home was wrong and entirely wrong and that through an early start the campaign would gain its avowed end — local option.

Alderman Morgan responded to the call to address the meeting and stated that never was there a more opportune time for the campaign. Mr. Morgan said he knew for a fact that with or without a petition the by-law would be submitted to the people if the temperance organization asked it.

At the conclusion of this short address the meeting was left open for those present to give their opinion for or against the undertaking of the campaign to banish the bar.

Several of those present, including the Rev. J. R. Webb, J. J. Hartley, J. C. Shook, Rev. Mr. Cragg and T. W Robinson took advantage of this opportunity to express themselves in favor of immediate action. Representatives from the different churches also endorsed the action of the meeting in brief, but stirring addresses, and the spirit of determination displayed by the large number present augurs well for their success next January.

It was also announced at this meeting that the City Temperance League would use a membership list this campaign, the fee being one dollar, and the funds of the league to be used to meet campaign expenses.

LENTON PROGRAM FOR THE ROMAN CATHOLIC AND ANGLICAN CHURCHES

The advent of the Lenten season ushered in by the observance of Ash Wednesday to-day, will be strictly carried out this year in all of the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches of the city, as has heretofore been the practice.

In the Roman Catholic churches the old ceremony of blessing ashes, and sprinkling them on the heads of the congregation, as a symbol of penance, was observed this morning, previous to the singing of the High Mass.

The rules and regulations for Lent are as follows:— Every day with the exception of Sunday is a fast day. Flesh meat is allowed on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, with the exception of Ember Saturday and Easter Saturday, the last day of Lent.

Fish and flesh together are not allowed to be eaten at any meal during Lent. The Wednesdays and Fridays of Lent are days of fast and abstinence.

At the church of the Sacred Heart special devotions will be held on Wednesdays and Fridays during Lent, and the same order will be observed at St. Peter's Cathedral. No special or outside clergy as far as at present known will be engaged to preach at either parish during Lent.

In the Anglican churches extensive preparations have been made to recognize Lent.

To-day, as is usual, commination service was held in St. John's church, at eleven o'clock, and Evening Prayer will be said this evening at eight, Canon Davidson officiating at both.

At St. Luke's Church, East City, service was held this morning at ten-thirty, and an evening prayer will be said to-night at eight o'clock, by the rector, Rev. F. J. Sawers.

During the entire Lenten season services will be held each Wednesday night, when such speakers as Canon Allin, of Millbrook, Rev. C. W. Holdsworth, of Havelock, Rev. H. Earl, of Omemee, Canon Davidson, of St. John's, will address the meetings.

An effort is being made to secure Rev. Dr. Boyle, of Trinity College, for one service during Lent.

What is known as a Lenten course in Missions is to be held in Peterborough from Feb. 25th to the 28th, consisting of a series of sermons, addresses, meditations and study classes. These courses will be conducted by Rev. Canon Gould, M.D., general secretary, and R. W. Allin, Esq., M.A., assistant general secretary of missions. The course is designed to cover one Sunday and the following Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday if desired. The course is arranged so as to benefit members of two or more congregations where such are able to meet together.

The general secretary will take the Sunday sermons in St. John's Church on the coming Sabbath, the mid-day services, and the evening missionary services.

In All Saint's Anglican Church, service will be held each Wednesday evening during Lent, conducted by the new rector, Rev. R. B. Grobb.

This evening Evening Prayer will be said at eight o'clock, at which a large congregation is expected to be present. The rector will give an address.

At least 20,000 different kinds of butterflies are in existence.

T.A.S. DEFEATED IN OVERTIME GAME AT CAMPBELLFORD

District is Tied and Home and Home Games Are to be Played.

At Campbellford last night, in the fastest Trent Valley League fixture of the season, the T.A.S. seven suffered their first defeat, at the hands of the Campbellford aggregation. Ten minutes' overtime was played before the game could be decided, and in this period the town boys fooled McFadden for a counter that won them the game, the score being 2—1 in favor of Campbellford at the final gong. The half time figures were 1—0 for Campbellford, meaning that only one goal was scored in each half, that of the first half by Campbellford, and that in the second by the T.A.S. team.

Roe and Shannon were the stars for the Campbellford braves, but to specialize on any player in the ranks of the local team would be a rather stiff problem. The whole forward line were jumping all the time, though their team work was somewhat spoiled by the uneven surface of the ice on the open air rink. Coughlin scored the only T.A.S. goal after a beautiful combination procession with McPhee and O'Dette. The teams are very evenly matched but of course Campbellford had the advantage of playing on their home ice. The T.A.S. line-up was:—

Goal—McFadden.
Point—T. Lansfield.
Cover—E. Lansfield.
Rover—McPhee.
Left—O'Dette.
Right—Coughlin.
Centre—Halpin.

This victory for the Campbellford team ties up this district between the T.A.S. and Campbellford. The winners of the district will be decided by home and home games between the two clubs, Campbellford playing here next Friday night and the T.A.S. journeying to Campbellford on Tuesday next. The teams are fairly evenly matched, and the result of the two games, in which goals will count, will be watched with interest by the local fans.

PETES. LEAD ORILLIA SIX TIMES AND ONCE BY TWO GOALS LOSE THE ROUND BY SEVEN

Homesters Evened up and Took Winning Tally when Teams Were Playing Six Men.

That the Orillia "Younkers" did not have any lead pipe cinch when they lined up against the local juniors who invaded the northern town last night with a six goal margin to overcome, which was secured on Peterborough ice at that, is evidenced by the final score of 9 to 8 in favor of the homesters, the half way figures being 4—4. And the northerners played hockey from the opening gong. The ice was very fast and the light Bear Cats were right at home, and by fiendish back checking and unselfish playing of every man on the team, and phenomenal stops by Dwyer in goal, they threw an awful scare into the Orillia followers, leading at six stages of the game, and once by two goals. Those who witnessed the contest cannot see where Orillia had any license to win in Peterborough by six goals as the Bear Cats on their showing last night are their equals on the forward line and in almost every department, and possibly their superiors on the defence. It was undoubtedly the soft ice that got the goat of the locals in that memorable second half on Friday last, the light forwards not being any water polo artists. But though the Bear Cats lost, they need not be ashamed of their showing this season. They played and lost like men, and their luckier opponents have their best wishes for the finals.

CLANCY STARRED.

"Lovey" Jupp, who has received many flattering press notices of late, did not have anything on Harold Clancy, the local left wing. That Clancy is a jewel on the wing is conceded by all followers of the juniors. In the Peterborough encounter he was injured shortly after the game commenced and did not have his usual staying power, but, in good condition last night, he had Jupp stepping to his tune. Jupp's only counter was notched while the local youngster was serving a penalty, as were two other Orillia tallies.

With Kennealley playing his best game of the season, Thornton, who was so effective in the Peterborough game, was well checked, only being able to get close enough to beat Dwyer once during the whole period. The local youngster also scored twice.

Rollie Weir made good with a vengeance, making and accepting passes with accuracy and getting to Cook for two goals in the second half, making the score stand 6 to 4 for his team. As a defence Denison and Milloy were right there with the goods and produced them. The former scored twice on end to end rushes, and carried the puck most of the way for a couple of others, passing when there were too many after him. "Jeff" Milloy also placed one behind Cook on a nice rush along the boards. They both came back fast and got in on passes time and again.

DWYER WAS GOOD.

"Joe" Dwyer got them at all angles and cleared nicely. The shots that beat him were nearly all from close in. He has sure developed into some phenomenal goal tender, and if he still improves with experience he will soon be placed in the Derocher class.

THE PLAY.

The play started at a fast clip, both teams rushing and passing well. McNabb was the first to visit the penalty timekeepers, drawing two minutes for slashing. Kenneally scored first for Peterborough in five minutes on a nice combination rush three in a line Clancy, Weir and Kennealley. When Milloy drew a penalty Butterfield tied the score and shortly after Mohan put his team in the lead. Clancy slashed and Cooke tripped Kennealley and upon resuming play promptly tripped Weir getting three minutes for the second offence. Hall was banished for loafing offside and shortly after his return Clancy tied the score again.

On a nice rush Milloy put the Petes in the lead but Mohan evened up in three minutes and drew his second penalty shortly after for tripping. Denison on an end to end rush made the score 4 to 3.

For slashing Hall was off again and when he got back Weir took a rest for the same offence. In Weir's absence Thornton got the last tally of the half. He offended and went off twent seconds before half time.

SECOND HALF.

Thornton finished his time in the box. The Petes forced the play into Orillia territory several times and in four minutes Weir placed one in the net on a neat pass from Clancy and did the trick again in three minutes, putting Captain Hall's seven two goals in the lead.

While Clancy was doing time for slashing both Jupp and Mahon beat Dwyer for a score and once more the score was a tie. Kennealley broke it when he scored on a pass from Denison.

Thornton was away for two minutes again, but there was no score until his return, when McNabb connected again. Hall tripped Thornton and before he got back Denison relieved the situation by one of his timely getaways, passing the forwards and defence for a score. Cooke attempted to "get" him, but referee Hern had his eye on that particular player and promptly handed out the usual two minutes.

Mohan and Butterfield were behind the two shots that beat Dwyer for the last two tallies of the game, when Hall and Jupp were both off for slashing.

The lineups were as follows;

	Dwyer
	Milloy
	Denison
	Weir
Kennealley	Hall	Clancey
Thornton	Mohan	Jupp
	Butterfield
	McNabb

LAKEFIELD AND HASTINGS TO-NIGHT

Sudden Death Trent Valley League Contest at Brock Street Rink

When Hastings and Lakefield meet at the Brock street rink to-night in a sudden death game in the semifinals of the Trent Valley League, there will be some game. The Hastings seven are champions of their district, and the other aggregation, though they secured a bye in the first round are reported as being in good condition and they should hand out a fair brand of hockey.

Both towns are reported as running excursions for the game.

ORILLIA RINKS WERE LEADING

Local Games in Neill Sheppard Cup Are on.

The four local rinks of curlers who were to have gone to Orillia to-day, were unable to arrange matters in a suitable way for their departure so the games for the Neill-Shappard Cup in Orillia stands postponed.

The four rinks from Orillia arrived in the city on the noon train, as arranged, and met four local rinks in the Neill-Sheppard Cup games this afternoon. At 3.15 o'clock the Orillia curlers were leading by 8 shots, the score standing 36 to 28. Only one Peterborough rink was leading, one was a tie and two were behind the opposing outside quartets.

CURLING

Arrangements and preparations are being made for the annual local bonspiel to be held next week at the Charlotte street rink. The bonspiel will be open only to Peterborough rinks and suitable prizes will be given to the winning rinks in the events.

BASKETBALL

The young ladies of the Y.W.C.A. played basketball in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium last night. Mr. John Lang handled the senior game and Miss Coventry refereed the juniors' contest.

In the former contest, between the Reds and the Blues, the Reds were winners with a score of 20—7, while in the junior game the Whites defeated the Reds by 23 to 16. The players found the large floor somewhat of a handicap, but nevertheless made a good showing. This was particularly the case with the juniors.

SPORT TALK

About 1,600 people witnessed the game at Orillia last night.

Had there been hard ice on Friday night last, the Orillia Younkers, who now go into the finals with the Toronto Canoe Club, wouldn't have walked away with a six goal lead on the local youngsters.

Walter Kerr, who was a follower of the Peterborough Colts in the time of Whitcroft, Crowley and company, was on the job at Orillia last night with souvenirs for the Orillia-Peterborough meeting. Walter has been in the wake of the Toronto junior hopes this season, and calls them to win from Orillia in the final.

Some fans have suggested a lay-down last night on the part of Orillia, but such a thing was not even hinted in the northern town, everyone who saw the contest realizing that the "Younkers" were up against a fast seven which made them step their fanciest.

Fred Denison, and Pete Milloy, of the juniors, are at Midland to-day, and will witness the first intermediate final to-night.

Orillia won the toss and will play at Toronto Canoe Club on Saturday Feb 24, the return game taking place on Tuesday, Feb. 27.

Many local hockey enthusiasts will witness the junior final in Toronto on Saturday evening next.

SCOTCHMEN ON THEIR WAY HOME

Curlers Are Sorry Their Tour is at an End

Montreal, Feb. 21.—The members of the Scottish curling team arrived in the city Sunday morning en route for their homes, having travelled from Winnipeg. They were met at Windsor street station by quite a number of enthusiastic curlers, and the large majority of them spent the morning at the Park Side, afterwards returning for lunch to the Caledonia Club.

Speaking generally of their tour, the members of the team were highly enthusiastic over the reception which had been accorded to them not only in Canada, but also in the American cities which they had visited.

Col. Robertson-Aikman, the captain of the team, in the course of conversation remarked that the tour had been one big success from beginning to end and he could only hope that it would be followed by a return visit by Canadians to Scotland next year.

Unfortunately for the visitors, the enjoyment of the Winnipeg bonspiel was to some extent spoiled by the advent of soft weather, "but," said the Colonel, "the sight of a large city practically gone mad about curling, was one which I at least am never likely to forget." Colonel Aikman said that somehow the game in a covered rink under artificial ice, had not had quite the same amount of charm for him as it would have had had it been played as they were accustomed to play it in Scotland, in the open under natural conditions, but though all the surroundings were to some extent artificial in the rinks, they had visited over here, there was one thing that would always stand out in his memory as both natural and spontaneous, and that was the hospitality and warmth of welcome with which they had everywhere been received. This could not have been duplicated by any artificial means.

The team as a whole were most enthusiastic over their trip and most of them declared that they were not only sorry that it was at an end, but would cheerfully begin it all over again. As a matter of fact, one of their members, Capt. J. Laurie, is off to Switzerland and as soon as he arrives in England to wind up the season there.

Provost Gordon, who is the only member of the present team who was out with the last Scottish combination, said that he had been prepared by his experiences on that occasion for a warm welcome, but the result in this respect had transcended his widest dreams. The enthusiasm for the game and the social good-fellowship engendered by it in Canada, were, he said, a revelation to him.

2 IN 1 FAMILY

Here is one of the many cases in which several members of one family have benefited from the household box of Zam-Buk. Col.-Sgt. Louis Elliott, 3rd Co., 46th Battalion, Peterboro, Ont., says: "The lower part of my face, cheek and chin broke out in small red pimples, which later festered and broke, forming nasty sores and dry scabs. The itching set up by these eruptions and sores was terrible, and seemed far worse during the night. All kinds of soaps, washes and ointments were tried in the vain attempt to get relief, even to bathing with carbolic acid and water. Finally I thought of Zam-Buk and straightway procured a box at the drug store. One night's application brought great relief from the intense itching, and as I kept on applying this balm daily, the inflammation was soon drawn out, and in less than a week's time the sores were thoroughly healed and every scab banished."

Mrs. Elliott, 139 Sherbrooke St., Peterboro, telling of Zam-Buk's effect on her younger son Walter, says: "He slipped and caused a wound on his right hip, which developed into a running sore. From this smaller sores spread until his lower limbs were covered with ulcers. These proved very alarming and I feared blood-poisoning! I began the Zam-Buk treatment, and it really seemed to aid like magic! In a remarkably short space of time the raw running sores were all healed. I am very grateful indeed for his cure, and I strongly recommend all mothers to keep Zam-Buk always handy."

WHAT ZAM-BUK WILL CURE.

Zam-Buk will be found a cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries generally. The mill dam of Mr. G. A. Jamieson on the stream at Mount Pleasant broke away on Saturday morning and the pent-up waters overflowed the valley. This is a repetition of what occurred last summer after a day of terrific thunder and very heavy rain. The loss to Mr. Jamieson is great as his mill is now without power, and this is the season of chopping. The dam further down the stream has not been completed by Mr. Thos. Best, who hopes to finish the dam and build a new mill in the place where the one stood that the waters washed away.

LAID AT REST.

All that was mortal of the late Mrs Walter Petty was consigned to the grave on Monday last. The deceased was well known in the township of Emily, and Cavan. She was a scion of a family that represented pioneering times and was much respected. At the time of her death she was residing with her daughter, Mrs. Andy Faulkner, besides whom she leaves four sons, William, of Otonabee; Samuel and James, of Michigan, and John, of Manvers township. Mrs. Petty lived to a great old age, having passed the three score and ten mark. She was predeceased by her husband. INVISIBLE UNIFORMS.

They May Cause Tragical Confusion In the Heat of Battle.

The French army having at last found a greenish gray uniform that is nearly if not quite invisible, the military expert hastens to the front with a protest. Invisibility, he says, is a craze and a mischievous one. Its disadvantages are more numerous than its advantages, and the sooner the soldiers revert to the red, yellow and blue the better. The infantry that is invisible to the enemy is invisible also to its own artillery, and henceforth the guns will have to advance with the infantry to the trenches or else cease fire altogether as soon as the infantry has started.

It is said that the recent maneuvers were full of instances where the artillery fired upon its own side at a range of 600 yards because the gunners were unable to see their own friends, thanks to the extraordinary success of the search for invisibility. Moreover, it is pointed out that to weary and hard pressed troops nothing is so encouraging as the sight of advancing supports and nothing more depressing than to look around and see nothing.

The khaki clad British soldiers in the Boer war are coming in for a full share of ridicule at the hands of the new French expert. If the clothing is to be made invisible, he asks, why not also the hands and face and the horse? An invisible rider on a visible horse is not gaining much.

All European armies are now dressed in more or less invisible uniforms, and it is predicted that when the next European war comes there will be tragical confusion as a result of commanders and batteries being unable to distinguish their own men.—Argonaut.

Against Ambulance Gongs.

Alarm bells on ambulances are nuisances, according to Health Commissioner Young of Chicago, who would eliminate the gong entirely in the ambulance service. "A gong has no place on the ambulance for the sick," declared the health commissioner in eliminating this contrivance from the specifications for an automobile ambulance. "If I had my way they would be taken off every ambulance in the city. All they are good for is to inspire the driver with the notion that everybody must get out of his way and make him exceed the speed limit. What sense is there in having an ambulance going after a patient at night wake up the entire neighborhood by clanging and banging at the bell?"

No National Holiday.

"After one century and nearly two-score years of another this nation still has no national holiday," writes James Lane Allen in the Munsey. "It may surprise one-half the nation to encounter such a statement, but the statement is true. The nation has never instituted an American holiday. There is no federal statute to authorize and embody one in the republic's laws. Congress may sit on every day of the year. The government has never legislated itself out of the right to do business for the space of any twenty-four hours."

Opening Windows by Law.

The Paddington borough council, London, has passed a new public ordinance making it compulsory, under a penalty of $25, for the occupants, janitors and superintendents of tenement and apartment houses to sweep the floors of their rooms once a day, to wash them once a week and to open the windows of sleeping apartments for at least one hour a day. The new law was adopted and its enforcement ordered in spite of strong opposition.

It Costs to Kill Elephants.

It may be any one of four and cost from $5 to $243. Should the traveler wish to kill two elephants an additional sum is asked, but is refunded if he fails to bag his second quarry.

Humor and Philosophy

THEORY AND PRACTICE.

ADVICE to play a modest part
When at the table feeding,
Although its wisdom, we admit,
Finds very little heeding,
For when the holidays appear
And victuals come insisting
In such delightful forms and shapes
There's really no resisting.

Experience has often shown
That gorging is a folly,
For, though it may bring joy that day,
Next day brings melancholy.
But still, in spite of all the hints
From other days begotten,
We sit down at the groaning board,
And they are all forgotten.

The doctor lifts a warning voice
And says that eating double
The quantity our stomachs hold
Can only bring us trouble.
We know that what he has to say
Is not the merest fable,
But we forget it when we get
Our places at the table.

And so we go on loading down
Our patient, poor digestion,
Unheedful of the warning words
Or of the wise suggestion,
But while repenting it that night
We say, "No more repeating,"
Then load up on the first good chance
We get at heavy eating.

Getting Advertising.

"Heard you had an accident, Mrs. Brown."

"We certainly did!"

"Any one hurt?"

"No. We just ran into a man, smashed his carriage and killed his horse, and now we have a suit for damages on our hands."

"That's too bad."

"Too bad! Why, I think it is the greatest luck ever."

"Luck?"

"Yes. We have had that car two months and not a dozen people knew we had it before the account of the accident was published."

Charlie's Choice.

"Why is it you no longer call upon Annette, Charlie?"

"Because I like Lillian better."

"But why? I thought you were so devoted to Annette."

"Oh, she's all right for fudge, but Lillian's mother serves up a mighty good lunch."

Fervent Wish.

"I wish I were wise."

"Why?"

"Why do you suppose?"

"Give it up. Can't see why you should want to be wise."

"If I were wise, with a reputation for wisdom firmly established, I could be as foolish as I want to be."

Just One Way.

"There is no two ways about it. I must have my money," said the angry creditor.

"You're right," replied the cheerful debtor. "There are no two ways. You are not going to get it."

Explained.

"I know I'm right."

"That accounts for it, then."

"Accounts for what?"

"Your being wrong so much of the time."

Exasperating.

"He has exaggerated self respect."

"That wouldn't be so bad if he didn't insist on imposing it on his associates."

Some Dent.

He stepped upon a peeling
And shed a line of talk.
He made a good impression,
But he made it on the walk.

FIREMEN MET WITH MISHAPS IN CALL TO BYERSVILLE

The fire brigade were called out at eight o'clock this morning to a chimney fire at 122 Boundary road, the home of Mr. Wm. Thompson, Byersville.

The run was a long and difficult one for the fire department, and was made considerably harder by the fact that a strong head wind was blowing and that the Boundary road was very bad on account of the heavy snow fall and consequent impeding drifts.

The brigade were delayed on the way down by the ladder truck getting stuck in the snow on the Boundary road, and the firemen were forced to get the assistance of a passing team to release the truck, so that it could continue its course to the fire.

Then on the return trip one of the runners of the hose sleigh was broken in crossing the C.P.R. tracks in the south end of the city, causing further delay.

Chief Howard, on his return, remarked to a Review representative, had a fire started in the business section of the city while the firemen were occupied in attending to the first alarm, it would have gained a tremendous headway before the brigade could have arrived at the scene of action. Not only would they be hampered by the unavoidable accidents that occurred to delay them, but even under the most favorable conditions it would have taken the fire horses, fatigued after such a tedious pull, some little time to reach the business district, and the strong wind would have added materially to the danger incurred by a blaze in the central portion of the city.

McELDERRY—ELSTON NUPTIALS

McELDERRY—ELSTON

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Laura Elston, daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Elston, of 25 Preston Road, and the late Abraham A. Elston, to Vincent J. McElderry, of the law firm of Peck, Kerr and McElderry, of Peterborough, Ont., took place on Wednesday morning at St. Catharine's Church, Somerville. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. James J. O'Brien.

The bride's sister, Miss Grace Elston, was maid of honor. Miss Rose McElderry, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Leon V. Almirall, of New York city, classmate of the groom at Holy Cross College, was best man. The bride was charming in ivory white satin, with duchesse lace and pearl trimmings. Her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas. The maid of honor wore white marquisette over American beauty satin, and carried pink sweet peas. The bridesmaid was gowned in blue marquisette over white satin, and carried pink sweet peas.

A reception and wedding breakfast to a few friends of the couple, followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, 25 Preston Road. The house was adorned with American Beauty roses and daybreak pinks.

Mr. and Mrs. McElderry left on the noon train for Montreal, and are now in Quebec, where they will remain ten days for the Mardi Gras festival.

The groom was graduated from Holy Cross College, in 1906, and later from the Osgoode Hall law school in Toronto. He is the son of John E. McElderry, Managing Director of the Guelph and Ontario Investment and Savings Society. The bride is a graduate of the Sacred Heart Convent, Boston, and attended the Sacred Heart Convent at Montreal.

The couple will be at home after Wednesday, May 1, at 417 Stewart Street, Peterborough, Ont.— Somerville Journal, Somerville, Mass.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—A petition containing 82 names (only) was forwarded to Mr. Burnham, M.P., for the department on Saturday by Mr. G. W. Hatton, praying that Mr. A. H. Stratton be retained as postmaster. The clerics having written before, the church is unrepresented. But if the petition has not got that advantage it has the advantage of being non-partizan, men like E. L. Goodwill, Vincent Eastwood, T. J. Lane, Cyril Hill and Col. Miller, being amongst the signers. The petition prays that before Mr. A. H. Stratton's rumored dismissal is carried out, an investigation should be held, as since Mr. Stratton's appointment the affairs at the Postoffice have been most satisfactory, (which is not true). This pleasing revival of the Stratton-Conservative platform will do much to please the party that in the past has had to face so much of the "you help me and I will help you" style of politics here. However, since no one ever dreamed of the proposed dismissal except after an investigation, least of all, the department, the petition has a somewhat sinister appearance. The petition begins with these beautiful words; "We the undersigned citizens of Peterborough, who are supporters of your government." Rev. Canon Davidson signed this. Will he pretend that he supported the present government at the last election or will Mr. V. Eastwood or E. L. Goodwill? These gentlemen owe it to themselves to explain their conduct in signing such a palpable falsehood.

Yours, etc.,
J. H. BURNHAM.

HUSBAND AND WIFE WILL LIVE APART

Husband Was Accused of Ill-Treating His Wife.

Not in police court circles for a long period, has such a lamentable tale of family discord been unfolded, as that which was revealed this morning at the trial of a Lafayette street resident, accused of assaulting his wife. The names of those concerned are withheld by personal request, and to expose even a few of the things which contituted the reasons for the inquiry, into the circumstances leading up to the assault, would not, to say the very least, make enjoyable reading.

Mr G. N. Gordon was engaged in the case in the interests of the complainant, who, as a result of illness, augmented by the shock of her husband's brutal assault, was in such a weak condition as to require support in the court room. Since the trouble occurred she has been in the hospital, only leaving that institution last night. She is a sufferer from nervous prostration of long standing, brought on to some extent she claims by the actions of her husband during their inharmonious married life.

The defendant was not represented by counsel, and entered a plea of "not guilty".

What impressed one most during the proceedings was the absolute stony-hearted behavior of the husband. Not the slightest sign of sorrow or regret was displayed by the prisoner for his inhuman and cruel conduct to his ailing wife in the past. She claimed that in the assault case in question, her husband reached home in an intoxicated state, the night on which the assault occurred. She was lying in bed upstairs at the time, and her husband commenced to create a disturbance, upsetting a couple of chairs. He then accused her of stealing his wallet. The complainant fearing bodily harm, clad only in her night dress and stockings slipped out of bed, although weak and feeble, and ran down stairs. On the way down she tripped and fell. Taking the children, she ran out into the night, in her scant attire and went into the house of a neighbor for shelter. Besides the four children, the youngest of whom is five, two boarders are in the house, one of whom is a brother of the complainant. When the husband motioned to strike his wife, this brother interfered, grabbing his arm.

The whole story as it came out by questioning revealed an entire lack of peace and harmony in the household.

The evidence of the children, all corroborated that of the mother, while one boarder favored the husband.

Mr. Gordon had an information drawn up, charging the boarder with perjury in giving his evidence in connection with the affair. He also requested the Magistrate to have an order drawn up, binding over the husband to keep the peace, and that the two be allowed to live apart. The wife says as her husband threatened about three weeks ago to make short work of her, she lived in constant fear of her life.

"I have no objection to her leaving," said the defendant, "but I want the children" This was objected to by the mother.

"She can go, I don't want her," was the further unfeeling remark of the husband.

Finally, after considerable dispute, an even distribution of the goods and chattels in the house was agreed upon and the two will be allowed to separate.

The hearing of the case was not open to the public. Rev. J. R. Webb and Rev. W. C. Rifford were present in court.

DIABETES

Is one of the most cruel maladies of which mankind is subject, the many complications arising from time to time, making life seem almost unbearable. For many diseases, medical, scientific, and physiological knowledge and experience gained from years of deep research, has achieved remarkable results, but, up to now, little has been discovered of practical value in the treatment and cure of Diabetes. In fact, people have begun to look upon the disease as well-nigh incurable. Even in the medical profession can be found doctors who are of the same opinion, regarding sceptically any claim to ameliorate or improve the condition of a diabetic patient.

It can, however, be proved that SANSOL'S ANTIDIABETES lastingly cures all cases of Diabetes. Full particulars can be obtained from the Sansol Mfg. Co., Winnipeg, Man.

NE TEMERE NOT LAW IN QUEBEC

JUDGMENT GIVEN OUT

Annullment of Hebert Marriage by Roman Catholic Authorities Is Null and Void---Ne Temere No Force as Far as Civil Law of Quebec Is Concerned.

SPECIAL TO THE REVIEW.

Montreal, Que., Feb. 21—Justice Charbonneau to-day rendered judgment in the famous Hebert marriage case, his decision being one of a most sweeping nature to the effect that the Ne Temere decree is not law in Quebec. Briefly his findings are as follows:—"That the marriage of the Heberts on July 14th, 1908, by the Rev. Timberlake is valid and their children are legitimate; that annullment of their marriage by the Roman Catholic Church authorities in nineteen nine is null and void; that justice Laurendeau erred when in March nineteen eleven he gave the civil sanction to the decree of the church annulling the marriage and that Ne Temere is of no force as far as the civil law of Quebec with reference to marriage is concerned." Justice Charbonneau's judgment in no way effects the attitude of the Roman Catholic Church, it being simply an interpretation of the civil law. As the case stands the Heberts are legally married but their marriage is not recognized by the Church. L. J. Lefbvre acting for Hebert will enter appeal but it is not known if the Church will appeal the judgment or not.

Judge Charbonneau's decision covered fifty-five pages.

CELEBRATED NEW YORK CASE IS OPENED AGAIN

Sentence on Brandt Was Illegal, the Judge Finds.

New York, Feb. 22.—Except for the service of five years in prison, Foulke E. Brandt, is to-day the same man in the eyes of the law as he was before he was sent away on April 4, 1907, to serve thirty years for burglary at the home of Mortimer L. Schiff, the banker, where he once worked as a servant. The long prison term was broken up yesterday by Justice Gerard of the Supreme Court, with an opinion sustaining a writ of habeas corpus.

The young Swede remained locked up in the Tombs last night, but not as a condemned man, and with assurance that within forty-eight hours he will be released on bail to await a new trial or whatever development occurs to clear up his remarkable case. The hearing before Commissioner Richard L. Hand, appointed by Governor Dix to hear Brandt's application for clemency, has now no importance as a factor in Brandt's fight for freedom, as a pardon cannot be given to a man who stands uncondemned, with only charges pending.

Justice Gerard's decision brought to a climax a case which has had the absorbed attention of the New York public nearly every day for a month and which is still a matter of grand jury investigation, with a view to determine if there was conspiracy in the sending of Brandt to prison for so long a term.

In sentencing him to thirty years in prison, Judge Otto A. Rosalsky illegally condemned Brandt, according to Justice Gerard's opinion yesterday.

"If Brandt was sentenced because he was involved in a net of verbiage," said Justice Gerard, "and pleaded guilty to a crime which his examination at the time of his plea showed he did not admit committing, and did not intend to plead guilty to, he should not be left to seek his remedy from executive clemency alone. He is entitled to a decision of the court relieving him from the stigma of his mistaken plea.

Alton B. Parker and De Lancey Nicoll, counsel for Mr. Schiff, telegraphed to Governor Dix late yesterday asking that they be allowed to appear before the governor next Friday to move for a broadening of the enquiry started by Commissioner Hand, in order that Mr. Schiff and Howard S. Gans, who acted as counsel for Schiff in connection with the prosecution of Brandt, be allowed to testify at the Hand hearing. The suspension of the hearing Tuesday, on the ground that volunteer witnesses would be immune, was characterized by Messrs. Parker and Nicoll as "absurd." On the heels of the telegram to the governor, a long letter was mailed, stating reasons for the application for a broader hearing "to the end that scandalous rumors should be dispelled and the truth made known."

The letter declares that through these rumors "the probity of a business man and the reputation of a lawyer has been assailed, and beyond and above all, the reputation of a woman has been besmirched by insinuations and innuendoes." The frustration of all of counsel's efforts to bring out the Schiff story at the public hearing was pointed out and the ruling of the district attorney that such appearance would involve immunity was declared to be a "legal absurdity."

No man is more thoroughly conversant with the workings of the Ne Temere decree in Quebec province and the work of evangelizing the French Catholics.

ARABS LED BY WOMAN

Only Weapon Was Small Staff of Olive Wood.

London, Feb. 22.—Alan Osler, the special correspondent of The London Daily Express, with the Turkish army in Tripoli, writes:

"When the Arabs attacked the Italian infantry in the trenches of Garesh, two days ago, at their head was a figure cloaked and hooded, who carried no weapon but a staff of olive wood, whose voice ran high and shrill, and whose face, beneath a hood, was deep brown, almost black, with glittering eyes, square jaw and heavy nose, with widely distended nostrils. A collar of panther's teeth glistened against the broad, brown bosom.

"With a voice like a scream, this figure alternately menaced and exhorted the Arabs or shrieked out terrible curses against the Italians. The desert men swept up to the earthworks, and the leader, leaping into the trenches, stooped, plunged an arm elbow-deep in blood, and then stood with dripping right hand flung upwards, the statue of a goddess of African battle— for it was a woman, a Soudanese she-warrior, who fought in the ranks with the men.

"Her voice maddened the Arabs as only the voices of their women folk can. She was struck by a fragment of a shell in a charge, and went forward shaking her bleeding hand in the faces of the men, bidding them earn glorious wounds like her."

FOUR PERSONS DIE SUDDENLY

George Cook of Shudell street was struck by a G.T.R. train and instantly killed a few hundred yards north of Riverdale station; Jas. Todd was found in an unconscious condition in the cellar of his residence, 92 George street, and died shortly afterward; John Henery, a farmer of Newmarket, died while breakfasting in the Clyde Hotel, due to heart failure, and Mrs. Mary Oliver met with the same fate while working in her store at 81 Spadina avenue.

GOVERNMENT DICTAGRAPH RECORDS TALKS ON DYNAMITE PLOTS.

The fact that for days the government has had a dictagraph in the office of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers in Indianapolis and has taken reports of conversations of Frank Ryan, the president, and others in connection with the dynamite conspiracy has just been made known. The government officials had the dictagraph in operation for days before the wholesale arrests. Included in the list of labor leaders involved, together with Ryan, are Herbert S. Hockin, William Schoupe, James Cooney, Richard H. Houlihan and James Coughlin, who are shown in the accompanying picture.

LAURIER RESPONSIBLE FOR HUDSON BAY SITUATION

Sir Wilfrid Balked When the Ontario Government Would do its Share.

Cochrane is Now Representing the Province in the Matter.

Toronto, Feb. 22.—That the Laurier Government at Ottawa was entirely responsible for any settlement, whatever it may be, of the Ontario and Manitoba boundary, was the declaration made by Sir James Whitney in the Legislature yesterday afternoon. The matter was introduced by N. W. Rowell, leader of the Opposition, who asserted that the claims of Ontario had not been presented in a sufficiently forcible manner to the Dominion Government to persuade it to minimize the importance of the counter-claims of Manitoba. He maintained also that the forcible arguments that finally were presented by Sir James on behalf of Ontario were not presented soon enough to the Dominion Government, and that the point was overlooked of demonstrating to the Dominion Government that the boundaries of Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta were all extended to the 60th parallel.

Sir James Whitney ridiculed the idea of having the boundary of Ontario extended to the 60th parallel, because it would land in the deep water of Hudson Bay, or as an alternative, would provide a strip of shore line belonging to Ontario, shutting out the Province of Manitoba from getting even the slightest access to the water's edge on Hudson Bay.

The debate on the boundary question was opened by Mr. Rowell, who moved the following resolution: That in the judgment of this House the Province of Ontario is entitled to its own hinterland, and to have its westerly boundary extended north to the 60th parallel of north latitude, so that its northerly boundary shall be the same as that of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, but in order that the Province of Manitoba may have access to an ocean-going port on Hudson Bay through its own territory, this House is prepared to approve a settlement whereby the westerly boundary of Ontario shall be extended north to the Churchill River, northeasterly to deep water on Hudson Bay. That this House respectfully protests against any settlement of the boundary which shall deprive Ontario of any portion of her hinterland south of the Churchill River, and which does not secure for Ontario a good port on Hudson Bay for ocean-going vessels.

"So far as I can find," he said, "the Ontario Government has never asked the Legislature to pass on this important matter, and the lateness of the day when this clear and forceful evidence of Sir James Whitney's had been sent, is what I take exception to." The Government should have kept pressing the matter, he said, and should have pressed it still further and should be pressing it even now.

Sir James took issue with Mr. Rowell's statement that there was any hinterland in the north belonging to Ontario. It was foreign territory belonging to the Dominion Government. Neither one of the provinces had any right or claim to an acre of that land. "We must start from a correct premise in this matter, instead of an imaginary one, or we won't know where we will land," said the Prime Minister. "Manitoba had a claim, primarily to this unorganized territory, on the ground that it was required by the postage-stamp province, and had no outlet by any port anywhere. There was no possibility of it extending its boundaries westward, so the province then directed its attention to obtaining an outlet on Hudson Bay."

About that time a newspaper discussion said that the Dominion was going to divide up between the three provinces of Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec, the district known as Keewatin. Immediately afterwards he wrote to Sir Wilfrid Laurier with regard to the published statements, and asked that if any such division was made, Ontario should be given a reasonable part of the territory.

The case for Ontario was argued at length afterwards, and impartial listeners will agree that Ontario's claims were presented every bit as forcibly as Manitoba's. Sir Wilfrid then declared that Ontario was far ahead of Manitoba, in having already ports on Lake Superior.

"What more can the Province of Ontario be expected to do at the present time? Hon. Frank Cochrane has put, and is putting, Ontario's case clearly before the Dominion Government. More than that he cannot do at present. But I will never believe that Ontario will be prevented from having access to a port on Hudson Bay, and that this province, in spite of the obstacles thrown in its way by the members of the Luarier Government, representing the people of this province, will be able to obtain just and decent treatment which should be accorded to her."

Sir James said that there were other features of the case which he had not yet prepared, and in the meantime he asked that the discussion be adjourned.

REVERSE FOR MEXICAN REBELS

Thirty-Seven Killed and Six Taken Prisoners.

Cuernavaca, Mexico, Feb. 22.—The rebels suffered a loss of 37 dead and six taken prisoners, while 11 rural guards were killed and nine wounded as the result of three sharp encounters between a force of rebels, from the State of Guerrero, under the command of Jesus Salgado, and a body of federal troops near Tlatlaya, on the southern boundary of Mexico State Tuesday. Salgado's force was driven back into the State of Guerrero, by the federal troops with the loss of a large amount of munitions and a number of horses.

War To Go On.

Rome, Feb. 22.—Tripolitana and Cyrenica will be proclaimed Italian territory to-day. The sessions of the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate are likely to remain noteworthy in the annals of Italian Parliamentary history, as they will mark the conversion into law of the royal decree proclaiming the annexation of these two districts of Africa.

Four hundred and fifty deputies out of 500, and 300 Senators have arrived in Rome to be present at the sittings. The bill is expected to pass practically unanimously on Saturday.

It is expected that Parliament will manifest its patriotism and give to the Cabinet complete powers with respect to the war. For the present it is realized that it is impossible to take any action in the direction of hastening peace, as Italy cannot offer concessions to Turkey as a basis for negotiations or force matters to a conclusion.

CONSIDERED THE NE TEMERE DECREE

Cabinet Met to Arrange Terms of Reference to Courts

Ottawa, Feb. 22—The Cabinet sat all day yesterday occupying itself mainly with the supplementary estimates. The terms of the reference to the courts on the subject of the "ne temere" decre and th proposed uniform marriage law, were under consideration, though the order in Council was not finally passed.

OVER ATLANTIC IN THREE DAYS

Galway - Halifax Route Would Give Quick Service

London, Feb. 21.—During the present year, parliament will be asked to authorize the construction of a railway and harbor at Galway, with a view of the establishment of a Galway-Halfifax route, by which it is claimed an Atlantic passage could be completed in 2 3-4 to 3 1-2 days.

The bill is a non-contentious one, hopes are expressed that the work may begin early next year.

Didn't Know He Held Up Train.

Keyser, W.Va., Feb. 22.—"If I robbed that train I was so drunk that I didn't know what I was doing," declared F. A. Becker, the Baltimore & Ohio brakeman, held under arrest here charged with holding up the B. & O. passenger train at Everett Tunnel, Md., on Monday night.

The prisoner is in almost a nervous collapse.

ONTARIO IN STORM'S GRIP

Frame Building Collapsed From Force of Strong Wind.

Toronto, Feb. 22.—The province was visited with the worst storm of the season yesterday, the blinding snowstorm and driving wind piling up and drifting the snow so that railway tracks, roads and streets were made almost impassable. In Toronto the street railway service suffered most. As fast as the snow plows went over the streets cleaning the tracks, the driving wind drove the snow back on the tracks and made them just as bad as ever.

The railroads were also completely tied up. All trains were from one to five and six hours late. The Montreal express did not get in until 12.30 owing to being stalled behind a derailed freight train near Havelock. The different railway officials all had the same tale to tell. Blocked lines and excessive wind, couple with the blinding snow, made speed impossible. It is reported that one train from the east became stalled within the city limits, and the passengers resorted to the street cars for transportation to their different hotels.

During the height of the storm yesterday morning a large frame store and dwellng on Ashdale avenue, just south of Danforth, owned by William Large, 93 Ashdale avenue, collapsed from the force of the strong wind. The roof was on and the windows in ready for the plasterers, who were going to start work. The building will be a total loss. It was worth about $2,000.

Bad In Hamilton.

Hamilton, Feb. 22.—The storm was the worst known here in years. Besides the heaviest fall of snow this winter, the wind blew a terrific gale, and at times reached a velocity of 40 miles an hour, driving the snow, and occasionally sleet, before it into the faces of pedestrians in stinging sheets, which made it well nigh impossible for them to see their way. Immense drifts of snow formed and effectually tied up all vehicular traffic yesterday afternoon, and almost put the street car service out of business. The street car people, however, struggled heroically and by pressing all their sweepers into service and running their cars in double-headers, managed to maintain an intermittent service.

While the storm raged at its height last night, the firemen were called out to two small blazes, which they found it hard work to reach.

Trains Hours Late.

Berlin, Feb. 22.—The worst blizzard of the winter has been raging here all day, and the wind and storm is not abating. The radial street car service was badly crippled, and some of the country roads are impassable. Trains are hours late.

In Kansas Tuesday.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—Kansas City reports that sunshine and a temperature of from 25 to 30 degrees above zero over Kansas and Western Missouri yesterday brought relief from the blizzard of Tuesday, and railroads in general throughout that district are in most cases running trains practically on time. In southwest Missouri where traffic was demoralized, a semblance of order has been restored, but conditions in Western Kansas and Eastern Colorado, where three feet of snow fell, are not so good.

In St. Louis the snowfall was the heaviest ever recorded for the same length of time since the St. Louis weather bureau started to keep snow records in 1884.

THREE LOSE THEIR LIVES IN LEVEL CROSSING ACCIDENT

Special Train Hits Closed Milk Sleigh—Woman Was Decapitated.

London, Feb. 22.—Three lives were snuffed out in the twinkling of an eye, about 1.30 p.m. yesterday, when a special train from Hamilton struck a closed milkman's sleigh about three miles east of here. The victims were:

Charles L. Drake, a milkman of the second Gore, London Township.

Mrs. Robert Drake (sister-in-law).

Mrs. Drake's two-year-old daughter, Frances.

The woman's head was cut off, and the other bodies were terribly mutilated.

The accident occurred only a stone's throw from where Henry Drake, sr., father of the dead man, was splitting wood in the yard of his homestead.

Mrs. Henry Drake, mother-in-law of the dead woman, has been unwell for some time, and it was for the purpose of assisting her in the housework that Mrs. Robert Drake was being taken to the farm by her brother-in-law, who had called for her at her home here.

They were following another sleigh, and just as they were crossing the tracks the driver of the first vehicle cracked his whip. This alarmed the horse attached to the Drake sleigh, and it broke away, leaving the sleigh in front of the train.

The first intimation Mr. Drake, sr., had of an accident, was when the horse with the broken traces trailing, came running into his yard.

Mrs. Drake, sr., on learning that an accident had happened, left her bed, and hurried to the scene. The shock has left her in a serious condition.

Engine 324, which struck the sleigh, was in charge of Engineer Galbraith of this city.

An inquest was opened last night, and was adjourned until Tuesday evening next.

CHINA'S JOAN OF ARC

Paris, Feb. 22—According to Cr. De Paris, the young Chinese wife of a Chinese student named Chang, believing that only a woman can save China, has just left London for the purpose of placing herself at the head of the feminist movement in the Chinese republic. The girl, who is 22 years of age, is already known among her countrymen a the Chinese Joan of Arc. She took part in a revolutionary movement at the age of fifteen. A girl friend who shared her views, was beheaded. Although she is a niece of Yuan Shi Kai the girl is a resolute adversary of the new president believing him to be the evil genius of his country.

New King's Treasurer.

London, Feb. 22.—Captain the Hon. Frederick Edward Guest has been appointed treasurer of the King's household, replacing W. Dudley Ward, who has held that position since 1910. Mr. Ward resigned in order to better attend to his duties as Liberal whip.

BIG VOTE BEING POLLED TO-DAY AT SOUTH RENFREW

Special To The Review

Arnprior, Feb 22.—There is feverish excitement throughout the whole of South Renfrew to-day as the time for closing of the polls draws near. In spite of the storm it is believed that a heavy vote will be registered, as no efforts are being spared to bring electors out. Lumbermen from camps miles from the polling booths are being driven in by workers on both sides. Graham's supporters to-day say that the ex-Minister of Railways will have a majority of five hundred, while Maloney's men are equally confident, but are satisfied to forecast their candidate's majority at three hundred.

Catarrhal Deafness

Successfully Treated By

Catarrhozone

Deafness is not so common as blindness, yet thousands are more or less afflicted by it, and their comfort seriously interfered with.

Catarrhal deafness manifests itself but slowly, yet it must be acknowledged that the great majority of those who become totally deaf might have averted this unfortunate condition if they had treated the catarrhal inflammation at its beginning.

The only remedy that can be safely employed for all forms of catarrhal deafness is Catarrhozone. You simply charge the air you breathe with this healing, soothing agent, and by forcing it gently through the ears destroy the germ life which keeps up the inflammation, and at the same time by the soothing, healing action it heals the inflamed surfaces of the middle ear.

CATARRHOZONE, to those who are just a little deaf, and are growing increasingly deaf, is an agent capable of affording the utmost satisfaction, and its use is attended without danger, and as the treatment can be carried on at home no person threatened with the affliction of deafness should postpone one moment in beginning its use.

From every part of the Dominion glowing accounts of the beneficial action it exerts upon catarrhal conditions of the middle ear have been sent in, and you will be resorting to the only method of cure, and the simplest method too, if you try Catarrhozone. Dealers everywhere sell it, 25c, 50c, and $1.00. By mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

FIRE PROTECTION

The argument brought forward by the chief of the fire department in support of his recommendation that a fire sub-station be built and equipped is a reasonable one. The question if taken up, of course, means a further expenditure of money, but adequate fire protection is a valuable asset of any city. A judicious expenditure of their money is never questioned by the ratepayers. What would have been the result had a fire broken out in the business section yesterday morning while the firemen were answering a call to Byersville or Brownton, as that section of the city is now known? It is difficult to estimate. It would, however, be an easy matter to lay blame at the door of the fire department—the chief was indiscreet and should have provided for such an emergency. The fire of yesterday morning had a lesson and the city may or may not be an apt pupil.

OUR OWN COUNTRY

That was a good idea of the Peterborough Canadian Club to encourage the study of Canadian history. The scholars of to-day with the multiplicity of subjects, are apt to pay too little attention to the study of Canadian history—that of our own country. Some pupils can answer innumerable questions relating to foreign conditions, past and present, but are ignorant of the events which have made Canada what it is to-day. There is a romance and fascination about the history of the land of the maple that is not equalled by any other country.

CANADA AND WEST INDIES

Montreal Star.

Our relations to the British West Indies are bound to become a subject of live discussion in the near future. They all want to trade with us on reciprocally favorable terms; and some of them propose to come right into Confederation politically. The question of political union is a very intricate, difficult and far-reaching one; and will have to be considered carefully on its merits. When we remember their distance, the character of their populations, and the exceedingly small representation they could get at Ottawa, any such arrangement would not be so much like union as like taking them in tow. Still, we could in this way improve their harbors, increase their steamship connection with our ports, and the outside world generally, and so help forward their development.

As to trade, it would seem to be the most natural thing in the world that Canada and the luxuriant Islands of the Tropics should have much to exchange. They can grow what we cannot; and we can produce what is impossible for them; and we each consume the products of the other. Moreover, the fact that the United States has taken a West Indian Empire in charge, to which it naturally extends trade treatment, will soon put these British West Indian Islands in the position of having to choose between commercial stagnation or begging to be taken into the American circle—if we do not "lend a hand." The Islands enjoying special access to the American markets, and, at the same time, getting into the Canadian and the British markets on as good terms as their competitors, obviously have an immense advantage. The British West Indians cannot be expected to lie down under this handicap for ever.

Thus, a steady policy of presenting the "cold shoulder" may lose this Entire West Indian Empire to the flag. And this is a serious question for Canadians, if Canada is to become one of the controlling members of the British Empire. It is probably a much more serious question for us than it is for the people of the United Kingdom. When we come to the front as a British power the West Indies will be our particular corner of the "Far-Flung" Empire; and we might as well begin now to assist its prosperity and tighten its bonds. It is hard to see how we can lose in the process; but, even if there be risk of that, we should be in a mood to take the risk—if we have grasped to any degree the possibilities of our high destiny. In the end, the gain will be enormous, as contrasted with the possible tumbling of these juicy tit-bits into the maw of the American Republi.

Any advances from the West Indies should be met in a spirit of generosity, of common brotherhood and of optimism. We should not repeat the mistake of many years ago when we might have had Newfoundland if we had not gone about the business in a haggling spirit. We are fast growing too big to count our pennies every time a large proposition is presented for our consideration. It is easy for a prosperous nation with an abundance of empty land within its own boundaries to imagine that it will always be independent of the outside world, and will ask nothing of other peoples but to leave it alone. The Americans passed through that stage of development when they shunned "entangling alliances," and would not build a fleet. But at last their splendid heritage began to show signs of exhaustion, and they quickly changed their mind. When we have eighty or ninety millions here, we may do the same thing. We are likely, indeed, to do it far sooner. But even then it may be too late if we have carelessly permitted the seedlings of Empire, which the dauntless navigators of Britain planted in the Spanish main in the high days when courage counted and hearts were big, to drift away from us and find anchorage in the very harbor which is fated to be our greatest commercial and political rival.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Hamilton Herald — The Herald doesn't always see eye to eye with the good ladies of the W.C.T.U., but it heartily endorses their resolution to the effect that the lash should be laid on the back of the dastardly wife-beater. Imprisonment has no terrors for that sort of human animal. His only feeling is in his hide, and it's there that the punishment should be laid on.

Vancouver Daily Province— Those merry cutthroats, the Camorra, continue to provide the most original vaudeville stunts ever presented on the judicial burlesque circuit. Judge, jury, counsel and prisoners, all contribute to the gayety of the entertainment. The scene shifters are kept so busy that they have scarcely time to smoke a cigarette.

New York Evening Mail — The famine that afflicts the sorrowful and doubly distracted people is real, and terrible. Upon the track of hunger a thousand other ills follow. In our own land we shudder at a few cases of "white slavery" but in China thousands of fathers are selling children into a worse and more hopeless bondage than that, to save other children, and their mothers and their revered grandparents, from death by starvation. Degradation, want, humiliation, crime—all these and other woes wait upon famine in China.

Liverpool, Feb. 21.—The official receiver of wrecks has had no request to detain the nine survivors of the ship Erne, who were picked up at sea by a Liverpool-bound steamer.

It was reported that the South American line to which the Erne belonged, had asked for their detention, pending enquiry into the conduct of the captain, who was said to have taken the only lifeboat and deserted the ship with his wife, the mate and a passenger.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Corn to-day led an advance in all the principal staples on change. Storm-clogged railway facilities were chiefly responsible. Latest trading left corn with a gain of 5-8c to 3-4c, wheat up 1-4c to 3-8c, oats varying from the same as last night to 1-4c higher and hog products slightly higher.

The Liverpool market closed to-day on wheat ⅛d to ¼d lower than yesterday, and corn ½d lower. Paris wheat closed unchanged, Berlin ⅛c higher and Buda Pest ⅛c lower.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Feb. 21.—There was no improvement in the demand from European sources for Manitoba spring wheat for May-June shipment, but there was a fair enquiry from London for prompt shipments, which is difficult to fill on account of the scarcity of ocean room. A good local trade continues to be done in oats and American corn.

The flour market is fairly active and firm under a good demand from city and country buyers, but the export trade continues very quiet. CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Feb. 21.—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Feb. 17 were 625 cattle, 225 sheep and lambs, 1320 hogs and 650 calves, while the offerings on the market this morning for sale were 600 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs and 1550 hogs and 600 calves.

There was no further change in the condition of the market for cattle, prices being well maintained for good to choice stock at the advance noted earlier in the week, owing to the fact that the supply of such was only moderate, for which there was a good demand. The trade in common and inferior stock was slow and values for such rule about steady. A few choice steers sold at $7 to $7.25 and good at $6.50 to $6.75 per cwt. Choice butcher cows were rather scarce and in demand at $5.75 per cwt., which is an advance of 25c per cwt. There were no choice bulls on the market and the top price realized for the best stock was $5 per cwt. The trade on the whole was fairly active and a good clearance was made.

The market for sheep and lambs was very quiet, owing to the very limited supply of which the quality was only medium. The trade in calves was fairly active and prices ruled steady as the receipts were not in excess of the requirements.

The market for hogs was strong at the recent advance under a good demand and sales of selected lots were made at $7.35 to $7.50, and for small lots as high as $7.75 was paid per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $7 to $7.25; medium, $5.50 to $6.75; common, $3.50 to $5; canners, $2.75 to $3.25; choice cows, $5.50 to $5.75; medium, $3.75 to $4.75; bulls, $3.50 to $6; milkers, choice, each, $75 to $80; common and medium, each, $50 to $65; springers, $30 to $45.

Sheep—Ewes, $4.50 to $4.75; bucks and culls, $3.75 to $4.25; lambs, $6.50 to $7.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"'His grace may come to fetch me back,' replied her ladyship. 'He has never been to America, but it is one of the desires of his life to come, and your American beauties had better look out, for he is a gay young bachelor, and I shouldn't be surprised if he took a fancy to carry home a duchess. Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox will entertain him, also, and maybe he will paint some of America red.'"

"That's all about you, I see," Sally finished up. "The rest is about Cousin Katherine and me. It says we've come back with a touch of the Piccadilly accent, and it criticises my nose and the way Cousin Katherine puts on her hat. It describes this house all wrong and says the Newport cottage 'knocks spots' out of Mrs. Van der Windt's cottage. It also mentions Cousin Potter, and calls him 'one of our army dudes.' But we don't mind, and you mustn't. Everybody reads the Flashlight for the sake of the shocks, but nobody believes its flashes."

"Still, you must have said something to the man," remarked Mrs. Ess Kay.

"I only said 'No, but'—or 'Yes, but'"— I insisted. "Truly and truly nothing else. And oh, there was a Bat, too, who tried to talk to me."

"Great Scott, the Evening Bat!" chortled Mr. Parker. "Look out for something rich tonight."

"Can't he be stopped?" I asked.

"Might as well try to stop Niagara with a tin can. The less you said the more the Bat will say. But it doesn't matter. Nobody'll care. Reporters are paid by the yard for imagination; information's gone out, though I do hear you use it still on your side."

I was just going to defend information (British) at the expense of imagination (American), when I remembered that the "army dude"—which sounds rather like something you might buy at the stores—had sent me up an enormous bouquet of violets as big as a breakfast plate, and that I'd forgotten to thank him. I did so at once, but it seemed that I had blundered.

In another instant he was in my lap.

"Violets?" he echoed. "Must have been some other fellow. I sent you gardenias."

"Oh, then the cards got mixed," I said. "I thought the gardenias were from Mr. Doremus. How kind of you both. I was so surprised to receive such lovely flowers."

"Our American buds are surprised when they don't get them. They would think it a cold day when they didn't have a slight morning haul of flowers—must be out of season ones or they're no use—new novels or candy. What do men over on your side of the water do to convince you girls that they think you're as beautiful as you really are?"

I thought for a minute, and then I said that perhaps we weren't as hard to convince as American girls. I don't know whether this was a proper answer or not, but, anyway, Mr. Parker laughed, and then began to plan what we should do for the day.

"Say, let's run her over to Coney Island," he said.

"Oh, my dear boy!" exclaimed Mrs. Ess Kay. "Not for anything. The duchess would have a fi—I mean, she would be horrified."

But when I heard that Coney Island was like a kind of glorified Margate (which I've never been to, but only heard about), with switchbacks and all sorts of shows, I said that mother would consider it a chapter in the liberal education of a respectable British tourist, and it was decided that we should dine there. Mrs Ess Kay had to do a lot of things before she could go on to Newport, so we were to shop all the morning, lunch at Sherry's, rest in the afternoon and spend the evening at Coney Island. Next day we were to go to West Point, where Mr. Parker is stationed, and stay there all night for a cadet ball.

Just as we had got this programme settled, and were making up our minds to go out early, "while it was cool" (we should all have been lying about with wet handkerchiefs on our foreheads at home, and there would have been special prayers in church if it had ever been what New Yorkers seem to think cool), the butler came in leading by a leash a perfect angel of a dog, a little French bull, with skin satiny as a ripe chestnut, and eyes like rosettes of brown velvet, with diamonds shining through them. He had on a spiky silver collar, fringed on each edge with white horsehair, and he came trotting into the room with a high action of his paws, dainty and proud, like a horse that knows he's on show, and his tiny head was cocked on one side as if he were asking us to please admire him and be his friends.

I supposed that the little fellow belonged to Mrs. Ess Kay, and that he was being brought in to bid his mistress good morning, but she said quite sharply, "What dog is that?"

"He's a parcel, ma'am," said the butler, "addressed to Lady Betty Bulkeley. He was left at the door by a messenger boy, and the label's on his collar."

In another instant that little live, warm bundle of brindled satin sewed on to steel wires was in my lap, and it did seem as if he knew that he was mine. The queerest thing was that he had no note with him. On the label—just a luggage label tied to his collar—was my name, in a strange but very interesting looking hand, and these words besides: "The dog is now found. His name is Vivace."

"Who has sent it to you, Betty?" asked Mrs. Ess Kay, and I could see by her eyes that she was very curious.

I had just answered, "I don't know from Adam," when some words of my own jumped into my head. I could hear myself saying, "I must first find the dog," and then I knew that the giver of Vivace wasn't Adam. But luckily I hadn't thought before I spoke, so it was no harm to let it rest at that, and I just sat and played with my new toy while Mrs. Ess Kay and her brother jabbered about him excitedly.

"It must be Tom Doremus," said she. "He's the only man I let you know well enough on board to take such a liberty."

I thought of another man she hadn't wanted to let me know, but I rubbed my chin on Vivace's ear, which felt like a wall flower, and kept quiet.

"Cheek of Doremus," remarked Mr. Parker. "He's a josher from way back. How does he know Lady Betty likes dogs? I should send the little brute off to the dogs' home."

"If Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox makes me do that, I shall have to go with him—and stop with him, too," said I. And I almost hated Mr. Parker for a minute in spite of the walking stick roses and the snowstorm of gardenias upstairs.

"Of course, you shall keep the dog, if you want to," said Mrs. Ess Kay, "unless we find out that he's been sent by some one undesirable, and then of course the duchess would expect me to see that you gave him back."

"I feel somehow that we shall never find out," I said, and I hugged Vivace so hard, without meaning to, that he gave a tiny grunt. But he didn't mind a bit and licked my hand with a tongue that was like a sweet little sample of pink plush.

I was suddenly so happy with my surprise present that I forgave America for having imaginative reporters and wasn't homesick for the pony or for Berengaria and her puppies or anything.

Railway Settles Taxes.

Brantford, Feb. 21.—The Brantford Street Railway Co. officials here yesterday gave security to the city tax officials for several thousand dollars taxes outstanding, and, as a result, the sale of all the movable chattels of the company, which was to have been conducted under the bailiff's auspices on Saturday, was cancelled.

Seizure had been made of the office furniture, copper wire, rails and other unused material, at the instance of Tax Collector Benedict.

It is stated that President Verner is now negotiating a deal in New York, whereby the local street railway and the radial lines will be greatly improved.

Legal action to revoke franchise rights has been commenced by the city, but as yet service of writ has not been made.

Won't Discuss New Line.

Montreal, Feb. 21.—"I have nothing to say at present," was the remark of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, when asked re the twenty-four knot vessels of which reference was made in despatches from Ottawa.

None of the other officials of the G.T.R., C.P.R., or the C.N.R. would talk, nor the Allans. That there is considerable in it is shown by their attitude towards questions.

Shot While Fondling Baby.

New York, Feb. 21.—Mrs. Rose Silverman was shot and mortally wounded yesterday afternoon by Benjamin Fried, an unwelcome admirer, who afterwards turned his weapon upon himself. The shooting occurred in Mrs. Silverman's apartments, in a fashionable uptown apartment house, while she was fondling her baby in her arms. The child was unhurt.

Bank Merger Rumors.

Montreal, Feb. 21.—The rumors of the amalgamation of the Bank of Montreal and another are again rife. While the negotiations are said to be on with the Royal, to-day rumor has it that the Union, Quebec and Montreal banks will join forces. So far there seems to be little to any of the rumors.

Curious Basket Boats Still Used In Wales.

These curious boats, resembling clothes baskets in form, are modern types of the coracle, an ancient craft used by the Britons 2,000 years ago. They have survived the centuries and are still used in Wales by salmon fishermen. The modern coracle comprises a framework of sticks cut from the ash and beech trees, covered with a strong sheet of canvas, saturated with tar and pitch. They weigh about twenty-five pounds. The fishermen using these boats work in pairs, the salmon net being strung between the two.

Cause of Thunder.

Thunder is the noise produced by lightning and is harmless. It has usually been thought that the noise is created by the closing up of the vacuum made by the passage of the lightning, the air rushing in from all sides with a clap, but the intensity of the noise is rather disproportionate, and it is now supposed that thunder is due to the intense heating of gases, especially the gas of water vapor along the line of electric discharge, and the consequent conversion of suspended moisture into steam at enormous pressure. In this way the crackle with which a peal of thunder sometimes begins might be regarded as the sound of steam explosion on a small scale caused by discharges before the main flash. The rumble would be the overlapping steam explosions, and the final clap, which sounds loudest, would be the steam explosion nearest to the auditor. In the case of rumbling thunder the lightning is passing from cloud to cloud. When the flash passes from the earth to the clouds the clap is loudest at the beginning.—Chicago Tribune.

Whirlwind a Good Game.

A good game on the order of "going to Jerusalem," but less familiar, is called in this country "whirlwind," but by our English cousins is known as "caterpillar." When something is wanted to get a crowd of young folks stirred up and fun started just try whirlwind.

Draw up as many chairs as there are players and range them in a ring. All the players sit down but one, the question of who will be left standing being decided by cutting cards or drawing slips of paper. The object of the player who remains standing is to get a seat, but this the other players try to prevent by moving rapidly from seat to seat in such a way as to fill up the vacancy as soon as he is seen to approach it. This causes the whirlwind, a very descriptive name.

Chinese Punk Sticks.

Punk sticks are made in China, and the cheapest grades of the sticks are composed wholly of the elm bark. They give off a heavy acrid smoke not at all pleasing. The better grades are perfumed with a variety of substances, the commonest being sandalwood. The price of the sticks in China, where the children are as fond of them as they are here, but where the elders also regard them with much seriousness, ranges from four bunches for a cent to two sticks for a cent. The prices in this country are just about double those prevailing in China.

The most valuable sticks in China and those which seldom if ever are imported into this country are those in the manufacture of which Tibetan incense is used. These sticks are made almost exclusively for the imperial court, which requires them for all its ceremonies.

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make-up. The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

OPTICAL SERVICE
BY
A. A. FOWLER, Eyesight Specialist

In every trade, profession or branch of work, there are found a few men, who from special fitness, or education, or both, are better prepared to serve you in their line than the multitude of others in the same field.

Since Optometry requires, especial ability in both professional and mechanical work, men that are fitted to do both equally well are scarce. Therefore you cannot be too particular about the selection of the man to whom you entrust your eyes.

The professional work—the examining and measuring of your eye defects, must be skilfully done. The mechanical part—the making and adjusting of your glasses is no less important.

Every phase of optical work is thoroughly and intelligently done here. From the first step in the examination to the final adjusting of the frame or mounting not a single thing is overlooked or slighted. I do all the work myself, and having had such fine success with most difficult, and neglected eyes, I do not hesitate to say that I can give you perfect satisfaction.

A visit will incur no obligation.

WORST STORM OF WINTER PLAYS HAVOC WITH RAILWAYS COUNTRY ROADS BLOCKED

Some Trains Cancelled while Others Make Belated Arrival—Farmers Snowed in

The scheduled arrival and departure of trains on the C.P.R. and G.T.R. in Peterborough last night and this morning was unavoidably interfered with, due to the drifting snow, and the impassable condition of the tracks which followed. Train connections were away behind time-table order, and passengers endured very tiresome delays.

The 4.28 Chicago express up from Montreal owing to a delay caused by a run off a couple of freight cars, east of Peterborough, did not reach the city until 9.50 p.m. last night.

The C.P.R. local which is due at 7.47, reached Peterborough at 8.40. The C.P.R. 12.10 a.m. this morning did not arrive until 1.20 and the 1.01 C.P.R. was two hours behind time.

On the Grand Trunk, the Belleville train due here at 8.55 last evening was one hour and thirty minutes late.

The Toronto train due at nine o'clock did not arrive until 12.30, three hours and a half late, and the 10.15 Toronto express arrived at 2 a.m.

The irregular schedule was unavoidable, and each engine as she pulled in showed the traces of her terrific battling with the snow and ice. The snow packed with great solidity on the rails and the high winds which swept through cuts and niches on the lines filled these deeply with snow.

BAD AT BURKETON.

Out in the vicinity of Burketon, where there are several deep cuts, it was ascertained that the road bed was in a badly blocked state, and that the trains experienced considerable difficulty in getting through. No complete tie-ups, however, of either passenger or freight traffic had occurred up till noon, as far as learned.

The C.P.R. snow ploughs were out up and down the line endeavoring to clear the tracks. The abatement of the high wind will mean a general alleviation of the unwelcome conditions.

THE STREET CARS.

The Peterborough Radial Railway Company are exerting themselves in a strenuous manner in the effort to keep the cars moving and prevent a tie-up of the system due to the heavy snow blizzard.

A very powerful and efficient sweeper recently added to the company's rolling stock, was put into commission last night and to-day, and aided very materially in keeping the lines clear and in use.

"The conditions which had to be fought this morning," said Manager J. H. Munro to the Review, "were as bad as any I have ever known. We have, however, prevented a tie-up and are managing to adhere pretty closely to schedule time."

After the sweeper has been once over the rails, the snow betrays an annoying tendency to close in on the track again, clogging and causing the wheels of the cars to stick, and making it difficult for the brakes to work readily.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Someone might have been seriously hurt this morning, during the height of the wind storm which whistled down the main street, when the big wooden Metropolitan Company's sign board was blown from its rest and dropped with a crash onto the pavement below. The sign is of ample dimensions and pretty hefty, and had anyone been struck it would undoubtedly have meant a "cracked cranium." A young fellow who was passing, narrowly escaped being struck.

MORNING TRAINS LATE.

So far to-day the Lakefield train has been the only one on the G.T.R. that has made its trip within thirty minutes of the scheduled time. Conductor Jobbitt and his crew made splendid time considering the condition of the road, arriving in Peterborough at 8.15 a.m.

Conductor Jobbitt, in referring to the snow-up in connection with the G.T.R. service, said that the Port Hope and Belleville Divisions are the heaviest sufferers. The Belleville train which should arrive here at 8.10 a.m., was cancelled to-day as it could not get through near schedule time. A snow plough was sent along that line this afternoon.

At 10.25 a.m. the Port Hope train was reported as leaving Millbrook. The Lindsay train due here at 8.10 a.m. was not much late though it had to run with a double header.

On the C.P.R. the conditions were about the same. The early trains from the east were each about an hour behind time, but the 7.47 was only fifteen minutes late.

The one due from Toronto at 11.28 a.m. was reported forty minutes late.

At Burketon a large snow plough left the track about 8 a.m. It was in charge of Mr. W. H. Noyes, son of Mr. Charlie Noyes, the local Charlotte street gateman. There was a blockade for a short time only as the plough soon pulled into place again.

COUNTRY ROADS BLOCKED

Word comes from Springville, Bridgenorth, Ennismore, Douro and Otonabee that the country roads are so badly blocked that it is impossible to get a sleigh over them. Yesterday the driving wind filled the roads running East and West, and last night North and South are getting theirs.

NO STAGES TO-DAY.

At two o'clock this afternoon, the Ennismore stage had not reached ...h and all those in the country who get their mail by stage or rural mail delivery, will be forced to wait another day or two for the news. With the storm continuing as it has done to-day, the farmers will not attempt to open the roads as it would be useless labor.

PAY TRAIN STALLED

Among the trains stalled this morning was the G.T.R. pay train which was expected to arrive here about 9.15 a.m. At 10.25 a.m. it was reported on a siding at Madoc Junction and would not arrive at the local station, until after a snow plough had been over the line.

The different local night shifts in the employ of the G. T. R. waited for a couple of hours and after the last report as to its position, went home to snatch some sleep as it was liable to be three or four hurs before it reached Peterboro.

TELEPHONE WIRES CROSSED.

The lines of the Bell Telephone company suffered somewhat from the high winds of last night and to-day. The chief trouble was the crossing of wires thus causing bad connections. The linemen have had a cold and unrelished job to-day repairing the trouble.

SITUATION THIS AFTERNOON.

Travellers who wished to get to Lindsay to-day have to be contented here. No. 21 from Port Hope did not land here until 11.12 a.m., being almost three hours late. With two engines the train started for Lindsay, but got stuck at Tulley's cut near Best's station and Conductor Jobbitt went to the relief with two more engines. The crew returned to the city at 2.25 p.m.

A snow-plough came from Lindsay this afternoon and was sent down the Belleville line to open the way for the passenger at 1.40 and the pay train which is still at Madoc Junction. At three o'clock it was stuck in a snowbank near Stirling.

BLACK BEAR SEEN NEAR MT. PLEASANT

Omemee, Feb. 22.—This week while coming past the long swamp at Mount Pleasant, Rev. D. H. Currie had quite an experience. Miss Thirza was with her father, and they both were astonished to see a large black bear drinking from the ditch which drains the road. Bruin looked at them and then scampered for the woods. The tracks were plainly visible for several days. Doubtless the presence of the animal neighborhood of Mount Pleasant will afford some sport for any ardent hunters.

About thirty of the members of the "Y" and Mr. J. Laing's Bible class journeyed over to the Young Women's Christian Association last night, and were entertained by the Young Ladies' Gym. class, and the officers of the association. The early part of the evening was taken up playing parlour games, after which all adjourned to the gymnasium where games were indulged in, including a basketball match between the boys and girls, which was greatly enjoyed by all. Refreshments were then served in the parlour, and after a short promenade in the gymnasium, three hearty cheers were given for the officers, ladies and Y.W.C.A. The boys journeyed homeward, high in their praises of the hospitality of the Y.W.C.A.

The final work of the Y.M.C.A. Leaders will be conducted to-night in preparation for their trip to Toronto on Saturday where they will be the guests of the Toronto Central Leaders' Corps over Sunday. It is important that every member be present as some important business in connection with the trip will be discussed.

Mr Taylor Statten, Provincial Boys' Work Secretary is visiting the local Association to-day, and will address the Collegiate Institute Club at 4.15. At 6.30 Mr. Statten will have tea with the Boys' Work Committee and boy workers of the different churches.

ENJOYABLE EVENING PROVIDED BY LILLIAN DILLON COMPANY

Big I.O.O.F. Grand Concert and Open Meeting, However, Postponed Till Friday, Feb. 23rd, Owing to Unfavorable Weather.

The stimulus which is destined to ensue in Peterborough within a very short space, in Independent Order of Forester circles, evidenced itself in no uncertain manner last evening, at a gathering held in the Conservatory of Music Hall. Although, the meeting was only a partial success from the standpoint of attendance, those who dared the Dakota-like blizzard were amply rewarded for their hardihood. The Lillian Dillon Concert Company of Toronto, filled part of their program, but owing to the slim attendance, and the decidedly unfavourable weather, it was deemed advisable to postpone the big meeting until Friday night of this week, at the same place.

The affair last evening was to have been in the nature of a grand, concert and open meeting inaugurated by the officers and members of Court Chemong, No. 530, I.O.O.F., and an exceedingly classy and interesting program was to have been provided. All this however will be given at the postponed concert on Friday coming.

That none however who ventured out should return home disappointed, the visiting entertainers very kindly came to the rescue and contributed a brief, but splendid program of genuine merit and solid enjoyment.

Mr. Vincent Eastwood most efficiently officiated as chairman, owing to the illness of Mayor Bradburn who was due to preside.

Mr. Eastwood in explaining their predicament, and the consequent decision of the management to postpone the big concert, expressed his pleasure at seeing the few brave ones, who did venture out. It denoted, he felt, an interest and enthusiasm in the cause of fraternalism, extremely commendable. With a few other appropriate remarks he introduced the entertainers of the evening.

Miss Lillian Dillon, contralto and pianiste, gave a brilliantly executed piano selection, displaying magnificent technique and unmistakable artistic ability. She was enthusiastically recalled, and as an encore played the ever acceptable "Annie Laurie" in a manner seldom heard to such advantage.

Miss Maude M. Bigwood, soprano soloist, of Toronto, is a vocalist of prominence and splendid ability. It remained for her to place her audience in a most amiable mood, by her beautiful and feeling vocalism. Equally accomplished in the interpretation of selections of a deeper vein and intense feeling, or in lighter and more amusing numbers, Miss Bigwood's performance last evening was unstintedly applauded. She rendered a very pretty ove song, accompanied by pantomine, which made a decided hit with the audience. Miss Bigwood's singing is of a theatrical trend and was most popular.

The king of entertainers, Harvey Lloyd of Toronto, was present and to state that he tickled the gathering is entirely inadequate. Harvey Lloyd is a comedian who can deliver the goods and none should miss him in his return appearance next Friday evening.

The address on "Benevolence" to have been delivered by Mr. G. A. Mitchell, D.S.C.R., superintendent of field work, will be given next Friday evening without fail. This address, judging by the few remarks made by him last evening, will be a stunner and of benefit to all. Mr. Mitchell is admirably equipped with the vocal powers and physical proportions which make up a successful fraternal organizer, and he promises something on Friday night of value to every man, woman and child.

He stated last night, that he considered it unnecessary to introduce the I.O.O.F. to his audience. It was known through out the breadth and length of the land, and its sterling principles were everywhere upheld.

The I.O.O.F. didn't do things by halves, but carried out all its promises and brought all its undertakings to successful completion.

"My motto" he added is, "I believe in boosting, not knocking, laughing, not weeping, doing good and not harm."

At the big meeting on Friday, there will be no collection. The main object is to get the people out. In Kingston last Wednesday, Mr. Mitchell stated that so great a crowd endeavored to hear the concert and lecture that the police had to close the doors.

The Independent Order of Foresters are out to boom their membership and society, and taking the activity and energy apparently wrapped up in the person of their field work superintendent and the exceeding merit of his assisting entertainers into consideration, the meeting next Friday night should be a record-smashing success.

HARVESTER CO. HAS BUSY TIMES

One Hundred and Twenty Employes at the Plant.

Around the factory of the International Harvester company there is heard the busy hum of intense industrial activity these days, and the plant since it commenced the manufacture of binder twine in Peterborough has been rewarded with a most satisfactory degree of success.

The only difficulty experienced by the new manager, Mr. Campbell, is his inability to secure sufficient female help, as the advertisements running from time to time in the papers indicate.

The number of employes at present is about one hundred and twenty, but the maximum number who can be given employment is one hundred and seventy-five. The girls are required to operate the spinning machines, work for which they are qualified better for than the majority of male employes.

The company manufacture four grades of twine which is of the same reliable and trade-marked quality as the output in the big mills of the company in Chicago. The management are highly pleased with their success in Peterborough, and with the facilities of the factory they occupy.

They found on commencing business that some of the machinery then installed in the factory, formerly operated by the Canadian Cordage company, would serve them, after some adjustments has been made. Some fine up-to-date new machines, however, similar to those in use in the Chicago mills, were purchased and installed.

TWO VAGRANTS GO. TO CENTRAL

Were Arrested While Loafing About C.P.R. Station

It's pretty tough to be reduced to vagrancy at this time of the year, and rather than such this state of affairs should be continued, two seedy-looking individuals were sent away for six month terms in Central Prison by Police Magistrate Dumble this morning.

Special Constable Pinchin arrested the two this morning loafing around the C.P.R. station and took them into custody. Both pleaded guilty of the charge.

AUDIENCE HAD LONG WAIT FOR THE PERFORMANCE

Company Playing "The Thief" Were Late in Their Arrival

It was a case of waiting at the theatre last night for the small sized audience that braved the elements. The company playing "The Thief" were on the Chicago express from Montreal, which did not arrive in the city till nearly ten o'clock last night, and as a result, the performance did not start till about eleven o'clock. The curtain went down after the finale, when the watches of the audience pointed close to one o'clock. But the show was worth the wait.

Clifford Bruce, in the character of Richard Waysin, played his role with all the finesse that had been credited him by his critics in the cities he visited before Peterborough, and Lucilia Spinney, as "The Thief" displayed wonderful powers of interpretation thoughout the performance. The cast was a strong one in all respects, presenting the powerful play to the audience with a superb accuracy of reproduction that left nothing to be desired.

The story is that of an innocent young man, Fernand Lagardes, who has a boyish affection for Richard Voysin's wife, Marie Voysin, and to shield her, the real thief confesses himself guilty to stealing a large sum of money from his father, Raymond Lagardes. By an accident Richard Voysin discovers his wife's guilt, and also the boy's love for her, which leads to a series of entanglements that are unravelled to a happy end in a fascinating and clever story in which Marie Voysin proves herself to be a faithful wife, and guilty only of sacrificing her honesty to retain the love of her husband.

W.C.T.U. NOTES

As it was so unanimously, and without one dissenting voice, decided that our local option campaign should be voted on next January, and that our city should be white, I will quote a few of the marching orders which God gave his people of old, as they are found in Deut. 20; 1-4.

1. When thou goest to battle against thine enemies, and seest horses and chariots, and a people more than thou, be not afraid of them, for the Lord thy God is with thee, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

2. And it shall be, when ye are come nigh unto the battle, that the priest shall approach and speak unto the people.

3. And shall say unto them, Hear O Israel, ye approach this day unto battle against your enemies; let not your hearts faint, fear not and do not tremble, neither be ye terrified because of them.

4. For the Lord your God is He that goeth with you, to fight you against your enemies, to save you.

Now just an earnest plea to every one to join us, who has enough of love for the fallen ones, to help remove the temptation of the open bar from their midst.

Our next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Hart, 559 Bethune street at 3.30 o'clock, Friday 23rd. inst.

LOCAL CURLERS HAVE ELEVEN SHOTS TO MAKE UP IN ORILLIA GAMES

The Orillia curlers who played four local quartets yesterday for the Neill-Sheppard trophy, were successful in slipping one over on the Peterborough men, securing a lead of eleven shots. In games the two clubs broke even, each emerging from the contest with two to their credit. The Peterborough stone-sliders will make a brave attempt to overcome the eleven shot lead in the return games, to be played in Orillia in the near future:

PRESTON HAS ONE GOAL LEAD IN INTERMEDIATE FINALS

Midland, Feb. 21—Preston defeated the home team in the first of the home and home games in the O. H. A. intermediate finals by a score of 18 to 17. Half-time score was 10 to 5 in favor of the visitors.

Midland not only overcame Preston's lead in the second half, but looked like winners just before the finish, when the score stood 16 to 14 in its favor. Then two of the local septet were penalized by referee Hern, with the result that Preston eventually won out by 18 to 17.

The return game will be played at Preston on Monday night.

INTERMEDIATES TO MEET T.A.A.C.

The intermediates are in great shape for their game with T.A.A.C. seniors at the Brock street rink to-night. The lineup will be:—Derocher, Bond, Bearss, Giroux, Parks, Coughlin and Kelly.

Followers of the game think that there are several intermediate teams in the province that are just as fast as the seniors and to-night's results will be watched with interest.

Admission to any part of the rink will be twenty-five cents.

ABBIE WOOD IS AFTER TOM LONGBOAT'S SCALP

I will meet Longboat anywhere he likes, at any distance, either in one or three races.

I will meet him at ten, fifteen and twenty miles, or at twelve, seventeen and twenty-five miles.

I will meet him in Montreal, Toronto, or Ottawa, and for any reasonable side bet, and I will make a deposit at any time with any reputable stakeholders.

Abbie's friends say that if Longboat still pretends to be in the running game he cannot refuse such an offer, particularly since Abbie has beaten all the prominent men in the racing game now, including the winner of the Powderhall Marathon.

TORONTO BALL TEAM TO OPEN SEASON AWAY

Providence, Feb. 21.—After a session lasting more than three hours at the Crown Hotel to-day, during which the magnates wrestled with the schedule for the coming season, as prepared by President Barrow, the International League adopted the schedule as originally prepared, with a few slight changes.

As generally supposed, the season will open Thursday, April 18, with Rochester at Providence, Buffalo at Newark, Montreal at Baltimore, and Toronto at Jersey City.

FOOTBALLERS GETTING READY

HASTINGS TEAM DID NOT COME; GAME POSTPONED

Owing to the storm the Hastings hockey team, which was to have come to the city via the Belleville train last night to play Lakefield at the Brock street rink in a semi-final game, did not venture out, the train being late.

The Lakefield seven were on hand, but the game had to be postponed.

SPORT TALK

The following has been handed out by the Lindsay Post, regarding the credit due the local juniors on their showing this season;—

Full credit must be given the Peterborough Bear Cats for their splendid showing in the junior series. With the exception of Hall, this was their first year in the O.H.A., and therefore their record is one to be proud of. The team was looked upon as a "joke" by the Peterborough fans early in the season, but their work shows that they are a plucky little bunch. Under careful coaching they developed into a classy seven—one that could pull itself together at critical stages in a game. They played the game like veterans, and if they are together next year the experience gained this season will make them a seven to be reckoned with around about the finish of the junior series. A native of Lindsay is on the team — young Dwyer, who promises to be a second Derocher, while Milloy, another dashing player, first saw the light of day, it is said, near Downeyville.

Accordingly to Stanley Cup Trustee Wm. Foran, the Maritime pro. champions, probably Moncton, will be given first chance for the trophy against the N.H.A. winner. Saskatoon and Port Arthur are not taken seriously, but Mr. Foran has ordered the teams to play off at Winnipeg. As the Pacific coast series does not close until March 15, it is not likely that the British Columbia champions will get a chance to lift the silverware this season. They may be given dates in December next.

The Ottawa Hockey Club has decided to arrange a benefit game for Bruce Ridpath, who was struck and seriously injured by an automobile last fall. "Riddy" was the idol of Ottawa fans and but for the mishap would have likely figured on the champions again this season. It is the intention to put the Ottawas up against an all-star team from the other teams of the N.H.A. The seven man game with the old system of penalties will be played.

The Ottawa players, it is said, have offered their services free and it is expected that Art Ross, Joe Hall, Jack Laviolette and other Montreal and Quebec stars will do likewise.

Frank Heffernan has decided to stick to the university team and will not be in the crucial game between Stewartons and New Edinburghs on Saturday. He will play at his old position for university, when they meet Laval tomorrow night. Herb Callaghan will be in the nets for Ottawa College.

The Orillia-Toronto Canoe Club game on Saturday night will take place at the Ravina rink, Toronto. The referee has not been named yet.

An Orillia correspondent in writing to a Toronto paper, says that the Orillia team did not extend themselves at any stage of the game when they played the local youngsters in the northern town on Tuesday night last and that when they woke up they played Peterborough to a standstill. Orillia followers do not need to get away with the idea that their team could have done any better against the local boys as they had to go their hardest at all stages of the game to hold their six goal margin. They have a good team, but almost to a man heavier than the little Bear Cats, soft ice is where they shine, and not on the hard variety where fast skaters and fancy stick-handling are effective.

SENATORS WERE BEHIND AT QUEBEC

Quebec, Feb. 22.—Quebec put a serious crimp in the championship ambitions of the Ottawa team last night, when they defeated the visitors by a score of six to three. Quebec won by out-playing, out-skating and out-generaling them in one of the fastest and finest matches which has been played in Quebec this season. It was not the crippled team that met Wanderers last Saturday night, but the Quebec team going at top speed, and it played the Ottawas to a stand-still.

Line-up:

Referee—J. Marshall. Assistant, D. Campbell.

Patching Up Treaty.

Madrid, Feb. 22.—The negotiations proceeding between France and Spain on the subject of Morocco have been further advanced by Spain's definite acceptance of several French proposals.

The first of these is that all questions relative to the accord between the two countries shall be subject to arbitration. The second provides for the unification of the customs. The third is an understanding by which Spain does not abandon any of her rights throughout the zone which will eventually be ceded to her by France. The fourth arranges for a revision of the Madrid accord relative to the protection of the natives of Morocco.

The questions of railroad and territorial compensations have not yet been settled.

King George Did It.

Berlin, Feb. 22.—A highly optimistic account of the recent visit of Viscount Haldane, British Minister of War, to Berlin, and of the Anglo-German negotiations is given in an article published in the Lokal Anzieger, which there is reason to believe is authoritative.

The credit of putting an end to the diplomatic tension between the two countries is ascribed personally to King George, who realized that the atmosphere was without doubt capable of being cleared up by frank discussion and took steps towards this end before his departure to India.

Mawson Gets Vancouver Contract.

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—Thomas H. Mawson, the British landscape artist, who addressed the Canadian Club of Ottawa a few months ago, has been appointed by the City of Vancouver to lay out Stanley Park there, according to news received here yesterday.

Stanley Park contains about 900 acres and is one of the finest in the world.

CHINA'S MILLIONS FACE TO FACE WITH STARVATION

London, Feb. 22.—Just now when China is threatened with fire, plague and pestilence the following article by Arthur W. Howlett, from the Manchester Guardian is of special interest. He says:—

A reasonable amount of sentiment is justifiable in the running of an empire, if only as a backing for that moral force which alone can render an empire truly great; but there is this difference between the Chinese and us, that whereas we appear to suffer from an excess the Chinaman is unhampered by a particle of it. So it was that in viewing the famine at Nankin I was on the one hand revolted by the apathy which the more fortunate people displayed towards their countrymen in distress, and on the other moved to admiration by the struggles and fortitude of the stricken. Thus there was a railway line being constructed while alongside it lay starving creatures waiting for death, there were poor peasants in the flooded fields digging up the roots of grasses and riverside rushes and even peeling the bark off young trees for easement of their terrible hunger. Strangest of all was it to learn that at Wuhu, but fifty miles or so up the Yangtse, there were storehouses bursting with rice, the staple which was lacking, which the merchants had cornered and were refusing to sell. It was in vain that imperial edicts had been issued regulating the price of grain, through the usual channels of bribery and corruption they became dead letters, and the people starved.

FACING STARVATION.

"The government seemed to have no intention of providing relief. Some sixty thousand refugees had come into Nankin from the distressed areas north of the river. They were all being deported back whence they came, to inevitable starvation. I saw them one morning outside the viceroy's yamen, a huge crowd blocking the roadway, all as they had come from the fields, which for years they had faithfully tilled only at this last to be betrayed. They were clad in their blue slops, most squatting on the ground through inability to stand—mothers with their children on their laps, and men sucking at their empty pipes.

Their faces were swollen and bloated rather than emaciated, which led me to the conclusion that they had long been trying to sustain life on things that did not nourish. Across the river, amongst the population that remained, typhus had broken out, and I looked to see if any of those here showed signs of it. Had there been any it must have run like wildfire, but I suppose the officials had found means to exclude any that were so stricken from entry into the city. I saw no cases of it. As my rickshaw—a filthy gimcrack vehicle, for Nankin is not a tourist resort—rattled over the cobbles through the crush they stared at me dully and listlessly; but I suppose no other people similarly afflicted could I have passed in safety, for the things I stood up in would have been to them incalculable wealth, and they were at that last extremity when for most law and order become mere mockeries.

LIKE A PACK OF WOLVES.

"My rickshaw rattled on through the labyrinths of crowded slits which do duty for streets, and on either hand were the shops with their festoons of Chinese delicacies, savory stews and messes on the low porkcounters, with dried fish and pork, and roasted duck covered with a curious glazing hanging above them. I came to one of the gateways which pierce the mighty perimeter wall of the city, a wall so thick that the gateway appeared to be a tunnel. It was now drizzling with rain, the road was a series of muddy puddles and pedestrians were splashing by with their big oil-paper umbrellas streaming at the corners.

"Within the gateway scores of famished children were sheltering, and as I came near they crowded about me, opening their mouths and pointing their fingers down them. It was a scene never to be forgotten — the heavy grey sky, the miry road, the vast grey structure of the wall rising like a precipice all dewed with trickles of moisture, the ill-clad Chinese soldiers on sentry cowering from the rain, the dark mouth of the tunnel-like opening, and the horde of miserable children swarming out of it—all struck together, as things do at times in a man's lifetime, to make an indelible memory. I tossed some coins amongst them, but it was like throwing a fieldmouse to a pack of wolves.

AS NOAH SAW ARARAT

"On the next day, I crossed the river, rising just before dawn. An ancient steam launch lay smoking by the wharf. She was already crowded with coolies, who gazed on me with great curiosity, as I wedged in amongst them. The great river looked chill and drear, covered with short choppy waves. Some junks lay at anchor, and lower down a German gunboat. The opposite side is the city of Pukow, from which a railway is projected almost due north to Pekin. Some 70 miles of it had been prepared for laying, and as far as this a "construction train" ran up and down every day composed of trucks and a couple of makeshift carriages.

"I travelled in it some 50 miles, disembarking at a small village. The line being uneven and bumpy and our speed not more than the average trot of a horse, I had ample time to view the country. For some 30 miles or so it was a depressing scene. Not otherwise can have been Noah's view from Ararat as the Deluge subsided. The limbs of trees were flung out from the waste of waters as though in mute appeal for mercy, and here and there the banked edges of the fields just showed themselves as though in apology for their uselessness. As far as the eye could see, this scene of ruin spread itself, for the land was flat as the Fens. Most pathetic sight of all, here and there was a peasant wading about with trousers rolled up, trying to ladle out the waters from his little crop and restore it to the chance of life."

MANY ESCAPE IN NIGHT ATTIRE

Houston Conflagration Occasions Heavy Loss and Suffering.

Houston, Texas, Feb. 22.—Fire, which started about 1 a.m., in a one-storey building adjoining the Southern Pacific tracks, swept the populated section of the fifth ward of Houston early yesterday morning. Thousands of persons are homeless and the property loss will run from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000.

At least twenty-five squares in the residence district have been destroyed. There have been no casualties, so far as is known. The weather is cool and there is little suffering.

Most of the burned homes, however, are not of great value, as the fire burned through a large district that comprised cottages of workmen. Many manufacturing plants have been destroyed.

The heaviest single classification of loss is involved in cotton. The estimate of the loss on cotton compresses and the stored staple reaches two million dollars.

The total loss, which is in excess of $5,000,000, is uncovered by insurance. There is no lack of food or shelter for the homeless.

Among the mills, factories and plants either totally destroyed or seriously damaged by the fire are: McFadden Southern Compress & Warehouse Co., Dew Bros., syrup mill; Houston & Liggett Lumber Co., Magnolia Compress, Hudson's Pencil Factory, Houston Packing Co., E. H. Farrell lumber yards, Standard Compress, the Co-operative Manufacturing Co., and Acme Mills.

The burned area is at least a mile and a half long and at points a quarter of a mile wide. It was swept clean by the flames. Nothing was saved. One of the first of the more pretentious buildings attacked was the brick Star and Crescent Hotel. Inmates had been warned of the oncoming flames and all escaped without injury. The flames' roar gave warning of their coming. Hundreds of persons, giving no heed of their night attire, rushed from their homes as they heard the roar of the fire.

Women, carrying babes; women at whose skirts small children clung, gathered in homes of nearby neighbors for refuge, only to be driven out a few minutes later by the fire.

Homes were quickly provided for these people in other residential sections of the city. Clothing and food was prepared by a relief committee.

A Geographical Question.

"Mother," asked Jennie, "where is Atoms?"

"Athens, you mean, I guess."

"No, mother, I mean Atoms, because when a person is in a boiler explosion or an earthquake they always say he is blown to Atoms."

Harry's Airship.

Harry built an airship
To sail up in the sky.
He told his little sister
He meant to sail "on high."

He worked all morning on it;
He worked all afternoon.
He said he wished to finish
His wondrous airship soon.

When it was done he climbed in
And cried to sister dear:
"Look out! I think I'm rising!
You mustn't come too near!"

But not an inch budged airship.
In vain young Harry tried.
He coaxed, he pushed, he lifted;
Then sprang he out and cried:

"Well, just stay there, old airship!
I'd not sail anyway!
I'd rather play with sister
And not go up today!"

Who is Hansard?

Webster's dictionary says Hansard is an official report of the proceedings of the British parliament, so called from the name of the publishers. In Canada, also, Hansard is the official report of proceedings in parliamentary sessions. When you heard speakers referring to Hansard they had reference to the official report of debates, etc., on the floor of the house.

OBITUARY.

A very sad death occurred in Norwood on Monday morning, Feb. 19th, when Eva R., wife of our esteemed townsman, Mr. Wm. Montgomery, passed away after an illness of only six days. Last Tuesday Mrs. Montgomery was taken down with acute peritonitis and from the first her condition was seen to be serious. Everything that could be done was done for the sufferer. The three local doctors were called in and employed their utmost skill, but to no avail and death relieved her of her suffering early on Monday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery have only been married about four years and she leaves her sorrowing husband with three small children the youngest being an infant of a few weeks. Deceased, whose maiden name was Eva R. Kemtp, was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kempt, of Norwood. Mr. Percy Kempt, of Norwood, and Fred, who resides elsewhere, are brothers of deceased. The funeral will be held from the family residence on Wednesday afternoon at 3.30. Place of interment Norwood cemetery.

The sad intelligence was received in Norwood on Sunday morning of the death of one of Norwood's oldest and most highly esteemed residents. Mr. David Foster, who had been taken to the hsopital in Montreal to undergo an operation. The operation was successfully performed on Friday, but on Saturday evening Mr. Foster succumbed. The remains were brought home on Monday afternoon on the 4 o'clock express. Mrs. Foster, who went to Montreal with her husband, accompanied the body. The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30, from the family residence to the Norwood cemetery.

Another death occurred in Asphodel, lot 19, concession 4, when Ellen Knox, wife of Mr. Matthew Knox, on Monday evening, the 1t9h inst., passed into rest. Mrs. Knox, whose age was 78 years and one month, has been of an exceptionally rugged constitution, and only took ill on Sunday, when she was stricken with apoplexy and died the following day. Mr. Robert Knox, of Asphodel, and Mr. Slater Knox, of Chicago, are two sons. Her three daughters are Mrs. Jos. Reynolds, of Asphodel; Mrs. Edward Patterson, of Asphodel, and Mrs. Edward Patterson, of Asphodel, and Mrs. Job Near, Bowmanville. Mrs. Knox is survived by her aged husband, who has been in poor health for some time. The funeral will be held on Thursday to the Norwood cemetery.

We ar epleased to note that the County Council has granted $100 to Norwood for 1912 street improvement.

Mrs Wm. Finlay is visiting her daughter, Miss Beatrice Finlay in Toronto.

Mr. W. J. Miller of Havelock has been appointed manager of the Norwood branch of the Bank of Toronto.

Norwood prices of farm produce are higher at present than they have ever been.

Butter which usually sells at 25c is no w33c. Potatoes can hardly be procured at any price. Those who have them are asking $2.00 a bag. Eggs have been selling as high as 45c a dozen. Hay is bringing $13 per ton which is very reasonable compared with other markets. Dry hard wood is very scarce and is being readily sold at $5.00 per cord.

A SLIGHT ACCIDENT

A slight acciden toccurred on Monday evening on the J. Finlay & Sons C.P.R. siding. The way-freight engine was shunting up and down the siding when it left the track at the bridge, and still remains almost on a balance above the creek. Had the car been running at all fast, it would undoubtedly have been thrown over the embankment. The brakesman, on top of the car, when it left the track jumped and escaped injury.

APSLEY NEWS

Correspondent Writes Regarding The Cheese Factory Meeting

Special Correspondence.

Apsley, Feb. 20.—We understand by an item published recently in the Times that the little secretary of the Wisdom Club has been misinformed of the proceedings of the annual meeting of the patrons of the cheese fatory. If the minutes of said meeting are referred to it will be found all business was done by the patrons of 1911. One of the men present being a cheesemaker, wished to explain an item in reference to bad milk, for which neither patrons nor cheesemaker could be responsible, when one of last year's patrons who does not believe in the old adage, "We are never too old to learn," tried to stop him. We would like the little secretary to ask his Grit informant if a man doing business for 1912 in January is a patron in that month or when he starts to send milk to the factory in the spring. As the little secretary was not present at the meeting himself and out of love and sympathy for his brother Grit, had recourse to the paper for revenge. We will pardon him on the above ground, and in future would advise him not to bark until stung.

C.P.R. Made Proposal.

Montreal, Feb. 21.—It is generally understood here that the proposed new fast line service from Halifax to Great Britain comes from the C.P.R. alone rather than from the three big railways, as mentioned in the morning despatches from Ottawa.

The C.P.R. thinks that its proposition will solve the naval problem of the Government, and money intended for the Canadian navy to be diverted in way of a subsidy to the maintenance of such service. The C.P.R. will build three 24-knot boats and put them on from Halifax to a British port all the year round, making the trip in four and a half days and they will also be built so that the change ito armed cruisers in time of war will be quite easy.

C. C. James Looks Over Job.

Ottawa, Feb. 21.—C. C. James, who has been appointed by the Government to work out a system of agricultural co-operation between the provinces and the Dominion, was in Ottawa yesterday, and had a conference with Hon. Martin Burrell, when they mapped out the work.

Mr. James will commence his duties with the Dominion Government on April 1.

Mr. Burrell is planning a reorganization of the experimental farms of the Dominion, with a view to making them more practical and useful. At present many of the farms are not up to a very high standard. It is understood that in the supplementary estimates will be placed a considerable sum for improvements to buildings on experimental farms.

Guards and Prisoners Fight.

Twenty of the men succeeded in escaping.

A force of cavalry, which was hurriedly despatched to the assistance of the prison guards, had a severe fight with the escaping prisoners.

Railroads Score This Time.

Washington, Feb. 22.—A prolonged contest between railroads carrying coal to Atlantic tide water, particularly Norfolk, Va., and the New England Coal & Coke Co. of Boston, over the charges exacted by the rail carriers for trimming and levelling coal in the holds of ships, was ended by the Inter-State Commerce Commission yesterday, by a decision that the charge of three cents a ton for trimming and 4 1-2c. a ton for both dumping and trimming was reasonable.

The charge of 4 1-2 c. a ton by the Virginia Railroad for trimming alone was declared to be unreasonable so far as it exceeded three cents.

WOMEN MAY AVOID OPERATIONS

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for seven months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. ORVILLE ROCK, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women. Why don't you try it?

OMEMEE

The annual reports of Omemee Presbyterian church were printed at the Mirror Office last week and distributed in the church last Sunday. The report shows the congregation to be in a prosperous condition. Additions were made to membership and an increase in contributions to missions and benevolence as well as to general revenue besides a special offering of $190 on anniversary Sunday to provide for balance on organ installed in February, 1911. Both pastor and people are to be congratulated on the success of last year's labors, making a total amount raised for all purposes of $1,440. The three churches of the Omemee charge have had for the past two years an annual revenue of $2,300.

Mr. Currie will discuss the question of church union next Sunday, 25th February at Lakevale church at 11 a. m., Mt. Pleasant at 2.30 and Omemee at 7 p.m. This is done at the request of some members of his church.

CLEVER CAMROSE

A project unique even in the annals of Western Canada publicity, has recently been endorsed by the Board of Trade of Camrose, Alta., and if the recommendations of that body are acted upon by the Town Council, it should be carried into effect at no distant date. This project is to send a special car, fitted up with an exhibit of farm products, and in charge of twelve townsmen and farmers, to eastern points where members of the party are well known, with a view to obtaining land buyers and settlers. Liberal use would be made of literature, while the travellers would naturally be well posted on all details as to farm properties in the district, as as well as to the distributing facilities at Camrose, its industrial opportunities and coal developments.

It is even contemplated following up the work with a special settler's train leaving Toronto and other points on a fixed date, and running straight to Camrose.

It is understood that Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, has agreed to supply the entire exhibit for the car free of charge. Camrose is in the centre of a rich agricultural district on the Calgary-Edmonton Branch of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

DO YOUR HANDS CHAP?

Zam-Buk Will Give Ease in One Night

For badly chapped hands, cold cracks, frost bite, etc., Zam-Buk is the best known balm. Wash the hands or part affected in water as hot as can be borne. Dry with a soft towel and then smear the Zam-Buk well over the part. If it is the hands, wear a pair of old gloves overnight. By morning the pain will be gone. Then use Zam-Buk a few more times and the cracks will be healed.

Mrs. A. F. Phillips, of Ayers Cliff, Que., says: "I suffered terribly from chapped hands. At times my hands were so sore that I could almost have cried with the pain. I tried Zam-Buk and in a very short time my hands were cured."

Mrs. W. M. Ballent, of Port Hawkesbury, N.S., writes: "Some time ago my hands were very badly chapped. Ordinary ointments did not heal them, and I was advised to try Zam-Buk. To my great delight it healed my hands completely."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for piles, ulcers, blood-poison, varicose sores, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, on receipt of price.

THE RESOURCEFUL CHICAGOAN

His Successful Ruse to See His Wife Off Without a Ticket.

"When all is said and done Chicago people can beat the world in resourcefulness," said an envious New Yorker. "An exile from that city wished to see his wife off on an eastern train that positively refuses admittance to the platform without a ticket. He accompanied his wife to the gate.

"'Just wait around on the platform a few seconds,' he said, 'and I'll come through and help you arrange your luggage.'

"'You can't go through,' said a guileless New York friend. 'If you have anything more to say you'd better say it now.'

"'That's all right,' said the Chicago man. 'I'll be there.'

"Two minutes later he dashed up brandishing a baby's milk bottle in the face of the astonished gatekeeper.

"'For heaven's sake let me through,' he said. 'I put this in my pocket at the last minute, and my wife has gone off and forgotten it. The baby will starve to death if she doesn't get it.'

"The guileless New Yorker, who lacked sufficient wit to see his own wife and three small children off, gasped in sheer envy, while the childless Chicago man, using a milk bottle as a harmless weapon, fought his way through to the platform."—New York Sun.

She Earned It.

The women were raising $100 for some good purpose, and a beautiful forty-nine cent hatpin was to be given to the one who told the most interesting story of how she got her dollar.

The customary sales of bread and cake and needlework were recorded. Some saved their money by walking and one by foregoing a matinee. One washed some dainty table linen for a neighbor. Mrs. Favrel was the last of all.

"How did you get your dollar, dear?" the others asked.

"I asked my husband for it and kept asking him until he gave it to me," she said.

His Ancestry.

King Edward was very fond of his eldest grandson and liked talking to him. When the little prince was eleven his grandfather asked him what he was studying in his history lesson and was told, "Oh, all about Perkin Warbeck." The king asked, "Who was Perkin Warbeck?" and the lad replied: "He pretended that he was the son of a king. But he wasn't. He was the son of respectable parents."—Today's Magazine.

Of this term the lad will have to serve only five years, for when he was sentenced on twenty different counts of forgery, the penalty imposed being five years on each charge, and the sentences are to run concurrently. There were 97 more charges. If he had been sentenced on the same schedule Yatawski would have been sentenced to 585 years' imprisonment. Yatawski realized $1,500 by his illegal transations.

LIVELY RUNAWAY

A rather sensational runaway occurred about two o'clock this afternoon, when the delivery horse of R. P. Carey, the grocer, became alarmed and made a dash out Hunter street to George. The animal was standing with a weight attached outside the store at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer.

Taking the weight with it in its sudden dash, it careened out Hunter street to George, and down George to Charlotte. A passer-by ran out and brought the frightened beast to a walk, restoring it to the owner.

TEDDY TAKES THE PLUNGE

Comes Out Strong For Recall of Judges.

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 22.—Recommendations that judges be subject to removal by popular vote and that the judgment of a court declaring any statute to be unconstitutional should be subject to reversal by a referendum, together with a vigorous denunciation of the highest courts in the country, for their recent rulings in the Workmen's Compensation Acts, were among the salient features of an address delivered yesterday morning by Col. Theodore Roosevelt, before the Ohio Constitutional Convention.

Under the present constitution, a convention may be called at the end of every 20-year period, which may submit to the people a new constitution to become effective when adopted by a majority of the people. Much interest attaches to the present convention, because of the progressive policies which have come to the front during the past few years, and have made a deep impression upon the people of Ohio. Col. Roosevelt is a leading progressive, and his recommendations as to the new constitution have been eagerly anticipated. Yesterday he declared himself in favor of the initiative, the referendum and the recall of officials, including judges.

The trust evil was also discussed at length, and a Government regulation of the big corporations and Governmental control of prices were suggested as the only effective remedies. Col. Roosevelt also declared himself in favor of the "short ballot," the direct nomination, primaries for Presidential preferences, and the election of U. S. Senators by the people. He believed that judges should be liable to removal from office by a majority vote of the Legislature, and by the "recall," and with these safeguards saw no reason why they might not be appointed for long terms of service.

Col. Roosevelt cautioned the convention against putting shackles on the Legislature. The Legislature, he said, should have a free hand, otherwise all attempts at social betterment would probably be thwarted by judicial construction. He favored reducing the number of officers to be elected; few officers charged with great responsibilities could be kept under public inspection and their power for evil could be cut off at any time by the recall. He favored the initiative and the referendum, but thought they should be used sparingly.

The address was conservative in tone so far as dealing with the combinations was concerned. He did not believe that we could restore business conditions to what they were 100 years ago, any more than we could arm soldiers with flintlock muskets or build up an efficient navy with wooden ships. The combinations should not be harried because they were big; but they should be prevented from growing big by unlawful means. He saw no reason why the prices of their produce should not be as subject to Government regulations as are railway rates.

PROTESTANTISM IS NECESSARY

Bernard Shaw on Home Rule for Ireland

London, Feb. 21—The latest contributor to the Home Rule controversy is George Bernard Shaw, who suggests that what's wanted on both sides of the channel is a little more Protestantism. This craven terror of poor old Rome, of the Pope, who is less free personally than any atheist and less powerful than the nearest surgeon is not Protestantism. It's cowardice, that's the unvariable symptom.

The most pressing need in Ireland to-day is the establishment of the Roman Catholic Church. At present the priests levy taxation without audit or responsibility and their charges for their official services for marriages, funerals, etc., would make English farmers gasp. This taxation should be levied by the Irish Parliament, which should pay the priests and regulate the charges. Besides controlling ecclesiastical patronage the factory Acts should be applied resolutely to convert workshops and the like and the inspector of education should exact as high a standard from the convent school as from lay ones. If Orangemen would open their minds to these contemporary facts and practical probabilities and clear their imaginations of thumbscrews and stakes and gagotts and nuns on the rack, we should soon have Irish Protestants asking the Government to take the Roman Church establishment feature of the Home Rule Bill and the priesthood resisting the proposal and clinging with all its might to its present irresponsible power and riches.

Ther is one force and one only that Rome cannot face, and that force is democracy. There is only one chance for priestly tyranny under Home Rule and that is the chance of Protestants insisting that the Irish Parliament shall be denied the power to set the Roman house in order.

MAY BE NEW ERA IN COBALT MINES

A Discovery on Coniagas Shows More Silver

Cobalt, Ont., Feb. 22.—The theory that Cobalt mines were at bottom when the Keewatin formation was reached has been exploded by a discovery made on the Coniagas property. A vein has been traced into the Keewatin, and upon being followed has shown values as high as 2,622 ounces of silver to the ton. Provincial Geologist C. W. Knight, examined the mine, and after carefully examining the formation underground, announces it undoubtedly Keewatin. It was previously believed that the silver values here existed in the diabase and conglomerate only, but the Coniagas discovery smashes this theory, and may possibly mean a new era in Cobalt mining.

The Keewatin was encountered here while drifting on vein number 9. A promising nicholite vein led the management to drift into the Keewatin and after 25 feet of progress the vein widened to five inches of silver. The vein was then followed for 85 feet and on Saturday the essay which gave 2,622 ounces was taken. The Coniagas people will follow the vein further and see if other discoveries are to be made in the Keewatin.

The Pall Mall Gazette, London, declares that Japan and China will soon unite to resent the exclusion of Orientals from America by excluding whites from America.

PASSENGER AND FREIGHT TRAINS IN COLLISION

Stove Upset in Caboose and Cars Were Burned

North Adams, Mass., Feb. 22. — Fierce fire and heavy explosions in the debris made it impossible for wrecking crews early yesterday to reach the scene of the collision of a passenger train and a freight on the Boston and Maine railroad inside the Hoosac tunnel, and the attempts to get to the burned cars were abandoned until the fire has burned itself out.

Already 17 freight cars have been destroyed. Railroad officials say that it would be impossible to reach the wreckage before Saturday or Sunday. That the list of dead will not exceed four is believed, because of the appearance, several hours after the wreck occurred, of M. E. Rathburn, of Rotterdam Junction, N.Y., conductor of the freight train, who was thought at first to have been killed.

The dead are: Arthur L. Simmons, 50, of Williamstown, engineer of electric motor on passenger train; Henry Gregg, 42, of Scotia, N.Y., assistant engineer; Luther Davis, 22, of Greenfield, who was learning to operate the electric engine, and Reuben Kemp, 31, of North Adams, flagman of the freight train.

The cause of the collision has not been determined, according to a statement issued to-day by the railroad officials.

CAN'T GET AT IT.

The accident occurred about 2,500 feet inside the western entrance to the tunnel. Because of the intense heat and the dense smoke from the burning wreckage it has been impossible for the wrecking crews to get within 400 feet of the wreck. Large rocks, loosened by the heat have fallen on the tracks and have made the attempted trip inside the tunnel dangerous.

Conductor Rathburn said that there were only three men in the engine of the train when the crash occurred, although soon after the wreck it was thought that there might have been another train man riding in it.

STOVE UPSET.

The cause of the fire which followed the collision, as explained by him, was the upsetting of a stove in the caboose of the freight train, and the blaze rapidly spread to the other cars.

To-day all trains, that ordinarily would pass through the tunnel, were diverted over the Boston and Albany railroad.

Over $1,250,000 loss resulted from a cotton fire at Bombay.

PREMIER BORDEN PREPARES STATED CASE FOR THE COURTS

Lancaster Bill Will be Sent to Supreme Court to See if Canadian Parliament Has Power to Pass It.

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—The Cabinet has prepared the stated questions which will be submitted to the courts to settle the jurisdiction of the Dominion and the Provincial Governments on marriage in Canada. The form of the questions was finally decided upon by the Cabinet yesterday and the order-in-council was signed by the Governor-General last night. The questions will be laid on the table of the House to-day and will be submitted immediately to the Supreme Court so that there can be no delay in arguing the case and a decision can be reached at the present sitting of the court.

When the Supreme Court decision is rendered it will be sent to the Imperial Privy Council and the Government hopes to have a definite decision within a year. Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., Toronto, will be the main counsel for the Government. The provinces will also have the right to be represented.

Mr. Nesbitt will not argue the case pro and con, but will point out the subject in the dispute the Dominion Government wished settled.

As was announced in the House by Premier Borden at the time of the debate on the bill introduced by E. A. Lancaster, his measure has been made part of the case. The courts are asked to decide whether Parliament has the right to enact the bill or not, and, if not the whole bill, which of the provisions. The questions are in regard to the validity of marriages contracted in Quebec.

The questions, as submitted to the Supreme Court, are as follows:

1. Has the Parliament of Canada authority to enact in whole or in part, bill No. 3 of the first session of the twelfth Parliament of Canada entitled "An act to amend the Marriage Act."

The bill provides as follows: 1. The Marriage Act, chapter 105 of the revised statutes, 1906, is amended by adding thereto the following section:

Every ceremony, or form of marriage, heretofore or hereafter performed by any person authorized to perform any ceremony of marriage by the laws of the place where it is performed, and duly performed according to such laws, shall everywhere within Canada be deemed to be a valid marriage, notwithstanding any differences in the religious faith of the persons so married and without regard to the religion of the person performing the ceremony.

2. "The rights and duties, as married people, of the respective persons married as aforesaid, and of the children of such marriage shall be absolute and complete, and no law or canonical decree or custom of or in any province of Canada, shall have any force or effect to invalidate or qualify any such marriage or any of the rights of the said persons or their children in any manner whatever.

(b) If the provisions of the said bill are not all within the authority of the Parliament of Canada to enact, which, if any, of the provisions are within such authority?

3. Does the law of the Province of Quebec render null and void, unless contracted before a Roman Catholic priest, a marriage that would otherwise be legally binding, which takes place in such province?

(a) Between persons who are both Roman Catholics, or (b) between persons one of whom, only, is a Roman Catholic.

4. If either (a) or (b) of the last preceding question is answered in the affirmative, or if both of them are answered in the affirmative, has the Parliament of Canada authority to enact that all such marriages whether, (a) heretofore solemnized, or (b) hereafter to be solemnized, shall be legal and binding.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley appeared in the role of a peacemaker yesterday afternoon.

The House was in committee on the tariff commission bill.

Geo. W. Kyte (Richmond, N.S.) introduced a "mandatory" amendment compelling that body "to hear the evidence of persons who appear before them for the purpose of making a voluntary statement and who have not been so summoned."

Hon. W. T. White said that to take up their work intelligently, the commission must control their own procedure.

Hon. Wm. Pugsley had an amendment which he thought would satisfy all parties: "The commissioners shall also give reasonable opportunity to persons who may not have been so summoned to appear before them and give evidence on any matter under enquiry by the commission."

Hon. W. T. White made an amendment on similar lines, and it carried.

Hon. Mr. Pugsley later introduced the following amendment which was voted down by 24 to 50.

"The said commissioners shall submit all the information, including the evidence which was taken, to the Minister of Finance, who shall lay it before Parliament within ten days after the opening of the next ensuing session."

Sawmill Burned

Mr. Richard Ferguson's saw mill on 5th of Dummer was burned on Monday morning between three and four o'clock. The fire is supposed to have started from a spark from the engine. The mill was almost totally destroyed, only a small portion of it being saved. There was no insurance. Loss will amount to about $600.

GOVERNMENT'S STATED CASE

SPECIAL TO THE REVIEW.

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—A thumb nail statement of the Ne Temere situation shows that the Hebert case refers only to the province of Quebec. The Lancaster bill refers only to the religion of the parties concerned in the marriage, but the Government's stated case asks if the government has not power to correct all errors and deficiencies in spite of any other organization's claim.

HON. J. C. DOHERTY DISCUSSES JUDGE CHARBONNEAU DECISION

HON. J. C. DOHERTY.

Not Really Reversal of the Judgment of Judge Laurendeau.

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, was seen in reference to the judgment in the Hebert case and its effect in law, as well as on the Lancaster bill, and the reference of the whole matter to the Supreme Court and thence to the Privy Council.

The Minister said the judgment was not really a reversal of the judgment of Judge Laurendeau in the same case, but rather took its place, because it was a judgment by default, no defence being put in. If either party moves in opposition to such a judgment, the case will be reheard, and so this was practically a rehearing.

"Will this make any difference in the reference by this Government to the Supreme Court, decided on at the time of the vote on the Lancaster bill?"

"Not the slightest," replied the Minister. "If this were the decision of a final court it would, but as the case stands now, there are five judgments that such marriage is invalid and three that it is valid. Before to-day's judgment there were five one way and two the other. That's all."

"It makes no difference in the jurisprudence," concluded the Minister, "and will not in any way affect the policy of referring such questions to the Supreme Court of Canada."

Quebec Law Vindicated.

Montreal, Feb. 23.—G. V. Cousins and Arnold Wainwright, attorneys of Mrs. Hebert, said after the verdict:

"The judgment is the vindication of the law of the Province of Quebec—especially concerning this case and the ne temere decree."

L. J. Lefebvre, the attorney of Eugene Hebert, the plaintiff in the application for annulment of marriage, declared:

"I am not ready to state that I will appeal the judgment, because I must see my client first. Nevertheless, I believe there is good foundation for appeal, especially on the desistment.

"The case was proceeded with exparte, and now that the judgment is rendered against us, I do not see why we should not secure a leave to oppose it, just as Mrs. Hebert secured one to appeal against the decision rendered by Justice Laurendeau. When the case was proceeded with exparte we were not givn an opportunity of giving evidence. The case should have been inscribed on the regular roll of the Superior Court and proceeded with in the usual way. I think there is good ground for appeal."

Archbishop Bruchesi first heard the news after he had arrived at the palace from a parochial visit, and was eager to hear the result.

When told of the findings a look of disappointment came over his face.

"I cannot discuss it," said he. "You see my position in a matter of this kind. It is impossible for me to give out a statement."

Bishop Farthing says that the judgment is a most important one, but he is not prepared to offer any criticism on it until he has had an opportunity of carefully reading the full judgment.

BELLEVILLE SNOWBOUND

Kingston and Brockville Also Suffer From Storm

Belleville, Feb. 23.—This city is in the grip of the worst storm in years. The wind blew a gale and the falling snow was piled up in great heaps.

The country roads leading into the city, especially those north and south, are filled. On the line of the Midland Railway, a branch of the G.T.R. here, all trains were canceled. An effort was made to take a light train to Peterboro with two engines, but it became stalled in the snow. All business during the day was at a standstill.

Brockville Cut Off.

Brockville, Feb. 23.—This section has just passed through the worst blizzard of many years. There was an unusually heavy snow fall, accompanied by a stiff gale, piling up drifts which have completely blocked the roads.

Communication with the rural section has been practically cut off and for 24 hours not a train has moved on the B., W. & N.W. Railway.

A plow sent out from here became stalled in drifts 15 feet deep west of Lyn and had to be dug out.

It is thought that nearly all the cuts will have to be cleared by shovelers before the service can be resumed. The blockade is one of the worst the company ever experienced.

Demoralized at Kingston.

Kingston, Feb. 23.—Kingston is in the grip of the worst storm in years. For the first time in ten years the noon express over the Kingston & Pembroke Railway for Renfrew had to be canceled, and all other trains were hours late.

A queer freak of the storm was that early yesterday morning there was hail and rain with thunder and lightning, and citizens were startled.

The street railway has been tied up all day and is not likely to get opened for a day or two. Business in the stores it at a standstill.

BETTER TRANSPORTATION SERVICE NEEDED BY ONTARIO

Associated Boards of Trade Convene at Toronto.

Toronto, Feb. 23.—Realizing the necessity of better transportation, both by rail and water, and especially the latter, the Ontario Boards of Trade at a meeting in the City Hall yesterday afternoon passed a number of strong resolutions, condemning all that would in even the slightest degree be detrimental to trade, and advocated the immediate deepening of waterways in order that the ocean liners might make their way through the great lakes.

This is the second annual convention of the Associated Boards of Trade, the strength of which has greatly increased since its birth a year ago. All the important Boards of Trade in Ontario have representatives in the association, and as representatives from nearly every section of the province gathered together the needs of nearly every point in Ontario were made known to the association.

To-day the Welland Canal question will be brought up, and there is every indication of a big fight between the men of the north and those of south Ontario.

With the hope of lowering the freight rates from east to west and from west to eat the boards passed a resolution urging upon the Government the necessity of building a canal system which would permit the large ocean liners to sail inland. These canals, says the resolution, should not be less than thirty-two feet in depth.

That this system of canals would be of incalculable value to the tradesman and the country at large was shown by the fact that the freight rates in summer time. when the lake vessels are in commission are very much lower than in the winter when the railways have the transportation business in their own hands.

A clause in the resolution calls for an immediate investigation into the waterways question by the Dominion Government.

HEBERT DECISION AGAINST THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH

Judge Finds That English Common Law is Supreme.

Any Qualified Minister Can Perform Marriage and Ne Temere Has no Civil Effect

Montreal, Feb. 23.—Judge Charbonneau delivered his finding yesterday on the motion made last December in connection with the case of Emma Clouatre, Dale River, Mass., and Eugene Hebert, of this city, two Roman Catholics, whose marriage by a Methodist minister in 1908 in Point St. Charles, Montreal, was annulled by Archbishop Bruchesi, head of the Catholic Heirarchy, here, on the grounds that according to the ne temere decree of the church, Catholics could only be married by their parish priest or ordinary, which dissolution was afterwards ratified civilly by Judge Laurendeau in the High Court.

Mrs. Hebert sought to have it established by Judge Charbonneau that Judge Laurendeau was wrong when he found that the ecclesiastical law governed the civil marriage law, that the discontinuance of participation in the suit by Hebert when her application was made did not reverse the judge's finding, and her marriage was legal and her child legitimate according to the laws of the province.

The judge reversed Judge Laurendeau's decision, holding that any officer qualified by the state to perform marriages could marry couples of whatever faith, that the ne temere decree had no civil effect and was binding on the consciences of Roman Catholics only, and that therefore the marriage of Eugene Hebert and Emma Clouatre was valid and binding.

After a long review of the facts of the case Judge Charbonneau went into its merits and said that the plaintiff did not ask by his action that the marriage be annulled as to the marriage tie, but simply that the episcopal decree declaring the nullity be recognized by the court, and that consequently the marriage be annulled as to its civil effects. The learned judge then quoted articles of the code to show that as no bad faith on the part of the defendant had been established the marriage could not be annulled as to its civil effects. Commenting on the episcopal decree, which was maintained by the first judgment, his lordship said:

"It must be noted that the annulling of the marriage is the exercise of judicial power, whether such exercise be called a decree or a judgment, it is to the same effect: judicial power

Painful Gash Inflicted in Back of His Hand

Special To The Review.

An elder son was chopping wood near the door of the house, when the younger fellow coming out, slipped and when down, his hand falling on the block of wood, just as the axe descended. A deep cut was made in the back of his hand. The young fellow was brought to Havelock, for medical attendance.

HON. GEO. P. GRAHAM AGAIN HOUSE OF COMMONS MEMBER

South Renfrew Election Gives Him Majority of 293—Some Polls to be Heard From.

Renfrew, Feb. 23.—The agreement which has all through the past month's strenuous campaign for the representation of the seat in South Renfrew, left vacant by the resignation of T. A. Low, tied the hands of twenty-seven leading members of the Liberal-Conservative Association of the riding, has done its work. As a result of it, Hon. George P. Graham, late Minister of Railways in the Laurier Government, and a defeated candidate in Brockville, in the last election, is now able once more to write "M.P." after his name, and Dr. M. J. Maloney, his opponent, goes down to a second defeat.

All the Conservative party can show for a solid thirty days of strenuous work is a reduced Liberal majority estimated to be in the neighborhood of 300. Two hundred and ninety-three votes, with five polls to hear from, is Hon. Mr. Graham's majority.

One of the most fiercely fought bye-elections in recent political history was consummated when the returns, incomplete on account of the stormy conditions which prevailed all through the riding, announced that Hon. Mr. Graham, who was promised an unopposed election in South Renfrew in return for the unanimous return of T. W. McGarry to the Legislature, and then had to fight for it tooth and nail to obtain his seat after all.

Dr. Maloney did well in Arnprior, where he secured a lead of 122, but this was almost offset by Wilno, which gave Graham 111. At Renfrew the ex-Minister pulled out a lead of 128. Of 35 polling divisions heard from last night, 24 gave majorities to Graham. Divisions which gave majorities to Maloney were at Dacre, 21; Hyndford, 17; Kullaloe Station, 35; Sandpoint, 9; Mansfield, 12; School No. 9, 24; Palmer Rapid, 4; Arnprior, 122; Rockingham, 26; Eganville, 33; and Grattan, 86.

His supporters in Renfrew and, in fact, all through the riding, threw up their hats when they heard the news,

THE REMEDY

The pollution of the Otonabee river which has arised the ire of Monaghan residents, campers and owners of small craft, all of whom have used their efforts to bring about a change in the existing conditions is due to be stopped. The Provincial Board of Health, according to its chief health officer, Dr. J. W. McCullough, will soon order a stoppage of all municipalities dumping untreated sewage into the waters of the Province. Owing to the great abundance of sewage lakes and rivers are becoming foul. A reasonable time will be given to prepare to meet the new order of things, and filtration and intercepting sewers and deoderizing plants will be everywhere required.

PATRIOTISM

New York Tribune—In taking his self-denying step, Dr. Sun Yat Sen secures an additional title to the gratitude of his country. Had he insisted upon himself remaining President, even if he had won in the end, which was unlikely, the nation would have been rent with factional feuds and devastated with civil war. By sacrificing or postponing his own ambition this leader of the revolution probably assures the prompt restoration of order and the abatement of feuds. For so patriotic an act he will not lack reward in future preferment.

MAKING UP AGAIN

Montreal Herald.

Germans appear to be making an effort to restrain the satisfaction they have every right to feel over the visit of Lord Haldane. It is not often that Great Britain goes to such lengths to make sure there is not going to be trouble. It is just possible that the British Cabinet may have come to the conclusion, with more facts before them, that the Agadir incident was not as serious, for Britain, as it seemed to be last summer. A writer in the present issue of the Nineteenth Century, makes the claim that Germany had a perfectly good case at that time. The German Foreign Secretary, it appears, had warned France of what was bound to happen. He saw that the first movement of French troops could not stop short of the occupation of Fez, and said so, but was laughed at. He saw that Germany was going to be sidetracked in Morocco, and was again assured there was no danger. When all his predictions had come true the warship was sent. Even then, it would appear from the admission made by French statesmen, since the treaty was signed, Germany's demands for compensation were confined to areas as to which Great Britain had little interest. Of course, all this may have been true and still the popular feeling in Germany may have made the situation as dangerous as Sir Edward Grey and Mr. Lloyd George thought it to be. Even so, a return to friendship is desirable, if it can be obtained on honorable terms.

Another rather illuminating statement, with a bearing on the subject, is made by Earl Percy, in an article in the National Review. He says that at the time of the crisis, there was talk of sending a British army corps over to Belgium to help France withstand the shock of German armies, which would endeavor to deliver their decisive blow within seventeen days. What Earl Percy now adds is that "the objections raised by the Admiralty to this plan were the immediate cause of the suppression of the principal members of the Board." The more closely it is examined, the less the prospect of a war with Germany pleases a sensible people. There are still those who think there need be no war, if wisdom and prudence are joined with sympathy and understanding. Lord Haldane's visit was inspired by this sentiment.

NOTE AND COMMENT

He introduced a bill empowering the President to build four battleships annually, each to cost less than $6,000,000, exclusive of armament.

Mr. Levy would have the ships carry "as heavy armor and as powerful armament as any vessel of their class, and to have the highest practicable speed and the greatest practicable radius of action." The bill would appropriate $20,000,000 to start the work. It was referred to the committee on naval affairs.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

Vivace went out with us in the electric carriage, and even Mrs. Ess Kay had to admire him as he sat straight up in my lap, like a bronze statue of a dog. "He's a thoroughbred, anyhow," she remarked. "He can't have cost a penny less than $500, so whoever the anonymous giver is, he must be a rich man."

I'm rather hazy about dollars, still, but when I heard that, I felt myself go red. I knew well enough that the giver—who wasn't Adam—was very far from being a rich man, and I couldn't bear to think that he had perhaps squandered some hard earned savings on buying such an extravagant present for me. But the more I thought of it—which I did all the way down to the shops—the more I thought it impossible that a man who had been obliged to cross the Atlantic in the steerage would even have a hundred pounds in the world. Somebody had perhaps given him the dog from a good kennel, when it was a wee puppy, I said to myself, but this, though it eased my mind in one way, made the gift seem all the more pathetic—that that poor, handsome Jim Brett should part with something he must have loved (for who could have Vivace and not love him?) to please me. I should have liked to write a note to the Manhattan club, where he had told me he was employed, to thank him. But he had sent the present anonymously, and I felt somehow as if he hadn't meant or wished me to acknowledge it.

While I was wondering what I should do, the brougham stopped before a shop even larger than Harrod's or the Army and Navy stores. There were lovely things in the windows, things that looked like American women and not like English or even French ones, though I couldn't define the difference if I were ordered to with a revolver at my head.

The petticoats and stockings and belts and lace things and parasols and especially blouses, were so perfectly thrilling that my heart began to beat quite fast at sight of them. I felt as if I must have some immediately, and when Mrs. Ess Kay said that this was "quite a cheap store," I said to myself that I would do something more interesting than watch her shopping.

She had to buy handkerchiefs to begin with, for most of hers had disappeared in the wash at foreign hotels; and Sally wanted veiling. Those were not interesting to me, because they are necessary, and necessaries, like your daily bread and such things, are so dull. I said that I would just wander about a little, as they thought they would be some time, and we made an appointment to meet in half an hour at what they called the notion counter. I hadn't an idea what it was, and didn't like to ask because I had asked so many questions already, but I knew that I could get some one to take me there when the half hour was up.

When you want everything you see, but aren't sure which things you want enough to buy and how many you can afford, it's less confusing to prowl alone. Besides, there was an exciting feeling of independence in strolling about unchaperoned in a shop as big as a village in a strange foreign city.

I really did need a sunshade to go with a blue dress of mine, because my only light one (if I don't count rather a common white thing) is pink. I saw some beauties, and I wanted to ask the price, but the attendants—who were girls with lovely figures and their hair done in exactly the same flop over their foreheads—were so interested in talking about a young man they all knew that it seemed cruel to interrupt them, especially as I mightn't buy the sunshade in the end. However, I did venture to speak, in quite a humble voice, by and by, but the girl couldn't understand a word until I'd repeated everything twice. "A sunshade? Oh, you mean one of these parasawls," she said then. "Excuse me, it's your English accent I didn't quite catch at first. That one's ten dollars and forty-nine cents, and this is eight dollars eighty-nine."

While we were busy doing the dollars into pounds and shillings we got quite friendly, for she was a very obliging girl and didn't bear me any grudge for interrupting, though her friends were going on with their conversation and telling such exciting things about the young man that she must have been dying to listen.

However, my girl hardly paid any attention to them at all, except just to get mixed up in her answers to me once or twice. She said it was very difficult to understand English people on account of their not opening their mouths much when they spoke, and their accent being so strong. I found this odd, because we always feel as if, the English language having been started by us, it is Americans who have an accent, but it seems that a great many people in the States dislike the way we talk very much and consider it extremely affected.

After all the trouble she had taken, I felt dreadfully not to buy anything of her, but the sunshades were too expensive, though she said they were marked down. I took a Japanese fan instead, which pops out at you like a Jack-in-the-box from a fat red stick, and even that was $1.25 when I thought it would be sixpence. On the way to meet Mrs. Ess Kay and Sally at the notion counter, I inquired the price of a good many other superlatively beautiful things, but they were all superlatively high as well, and by the time a very dashing young man, who said he was a "floorwalker," had steered me to the notions, I felt as if I were the only cheap thing in the whole shop. To be sure, there were some embroidered collars and American flag headed hatpins and flowered muslin wrappers which I could have had without ruining myself if I had wanted them. But I didn't, and what I should like to know is, what does a girl do, if she's poor and has to live in New York? Mrs. Ess Kay had said the shop was a cheap shop, so there must be others where even the flowered wrappers and collars and hatpins are more. And, besides, a girl couldn't go through life dressed entirely in such things. However, judging from the girls I have seen so far, they are all very rich, except the lower classes, and of course it's much simpler to do without things if you can just be poor and give up to it comfortably without thinking of appearances, like us.

As soon as I saw the notion counter I knew why they had named it that, only it would be still more expressive if it were called the imagination counter. It was lovely, and looked like thousands of little Christmas presents spread out for every one.

There were a great many pretty people buying things at it, and in most of the other departments where I went with Mrs. Ess Kay and Sally, but when I admired them, and the sweet blouses they wore and the way they carried their shoulders and hips, Mrs Ess Kay sniffed and said there was nobody in New York now—nobody at all who was worth looking at and wouldn't be till October, except those who were just in the city for a day or two of shopping, like us. When I suggested that these charming beings in white muslins and summer silks might be here in that way, she did not think it at all probable.

"How can you tell?" I asked. "They look just as nice as we do."

Indeed, I thought some of them looked nicer, but I've been much too well brought up to make such remarks as that.

"I can tell, because I don't know their faces," said Mrs. Ess Kay decidedly, in a tone that gave a capital letter to her last word, and yet intimated that the poor, unknown (by her) things couldn't possibly be worth a glance.

Now, mother and Aunt Sophy are rather like that. It's almost terrible when they say "Who is she?" But I shouldn't have expected it to be the same in America, if Sally hadn't warned me. I suppose it's quite easy to remember just 400 faces, as you're sure there will never be any more, even if they have children, because they're being cut down instead of going up in number.

When we had been for about an hour and a half in the big shop, we'd finished all we had to do there and must motor to another farther up, before meeting Mr. Parker, who was to give us lunch at a place called Sherry's, at 1 o'clock. On the way, Sally suddenly exclaimed, "Oh, Cousin Katherine, we must initiate this dear child into the mysteries of ice cream soda water, and I'm just yearning for some myself, anyhow."

Mrs. Ess Kay gave the direction to her mechanician, a very young man with eyes that looked positively ill with intelligence and a way of snapping out "all right" when she spoke to him that would make Stan sit up with surprise if his chauffeur did it.

Sally said that the nicest oasis in the desert of London was an American place where you can get ice cream soda water, but I had never had any, and in the burning heat of the New York morning, which flung itself into the shop like a great wave in spite of fierce electric fans, I could have purred in pure delight over the piled up ice cold froth in that tall glass. It tasted like frozen velvet flavored with strawberries, and I should have loved to be an ostrich or an anaconda, so that the sensation might have lasted longer.

THEIR NATURE.

BOYS will be boys, I've heard them say,
And so it must be true,
And some boys will be more than that-
At least by quite a few.
The sufferers would not protest
So loudly or deplore
The fact would they consent to be
Just boys and nothing more.

The future man appears to be
So cunning, so polite,
To look at him you would not dream
That he was not all right,
But when you turn again and look
What is it meets your view?
A whole menagerie, and worse,
Prepared to pounce on you.

Boys will be Indians and bears
And wildcats all in one.
No use for mothers to protest.
They only think it fun.
They will be pirates bold and strong
And hungering for blood,
And if in that they cannot wade
They'll compromise on mud.

Yes, boys will be most anything
That strikes them at the time,
That old folks look upon in fear
And list almost as crime,
But did they not in lawlessness
Discover hidden joys,
Why, then, they would be something else,
For they would not be boys.

Anticipating Her Wants.

"I do think that Mrs. Frayle has the meanest husband in town."

"What's his latest?"

"You see, she wants to go to California this winter, so she has cultivated a consumptive cough all season."

"Yes?"

"And the stingy thing has gone and built a sleeping porch for her on the back of the house."

Warning.

"Girls!"

"Yes."

"You all want to look out. There is a new girl on our street."

"What do we care for one mere girl."

"But she isn't a mere girl. She's a widow."

"Then we'll all fall madly in love with her and talk about her all the time till the boys can't hear anything else for a month but her praises. I think that'll hold her awhile."

The Reason.

"He's a friend to everybody."

"Oh, well, he can afford to be."

"Why afford it any more than anybody else?"

"He never has any money."

Evident.

"She is a perfect lady."

"Do you think so?"

"Sure. Don't you see how she asserts the title with every move she makes?"

Economical View.

"What is your idea of a useful man?"

"One who will eat leftovers for breakfast."

To Keep a Little Fire.

To keep only a little fire in the furnace, as it is often desirable to do in the fall, put in the coal so that it forms a little pile about one foot in diameter near the door and not so that it is scattered all over the floor of the furnace. This "does the trick" admirably.

The Practical Wife.

She cannot cook, she cannot sew,
She cannot even knead the dough,
She cannot scrub, she cannot bake
Or make the plainest pastry cake,
She cannot dust, she cannot sweep
Or make a bed that's fit to sleep,
She cannot mend or patch my pants,
But playing bridge she makes things hum
Which nets us both a tidy sum.

OPTICAL SERVICE
BY
A. A. FOWLER, Eyesight Specialist

In every trade, profession or branch of work, there are found a few men, who from special fitness, or education, or both, are better prepared to serve you in their line than the multitude of others in the same field.

Since Optometry requires especial ability in both professional and mechanical work, men that are fitted to do both equally well are scarce. Therefore you cannot be too particular about the selection of the man to whom you entrust your eyes.

The professional work—the examining and measuring of your eye defects, must be skilfully done. The mechanical part—the making and adjusting of your glasses is no less important.

Every phase of optical work is thoroughly and intelligently done here. From the first step in the examination to the final adjusting of the frame or mounting not a single thing is overlooked or slighted. I do all the work myself, and having had such fine success with most difficult, and neglected eyes, I do not hesitate to say that I can give you perfect satisfaction.

A visit will incur no obligation.

WHAT LOCAL CLERGYMEN SAY REGARDING JUDGMENT IN HEBERT MARRIAGE CASE

The judgment handed out by Justice Charbonneau, declaring that the famous Hebert marriage is valid, has been discussed generally throughout the city to-day. Indeed it is the chief topic of conversation in many circles, and in view of this, the Review approached several of the members of the Ministerial Association for an expression of opinion, feeling that they would be even more vitally interested than many others. The following are the opinions of those clergymen who kindly acquiesced in giving their individual views on the matter—

REV. W. C. RIDDIFORD, PASTOR OF PARK STREET

"The judgment delivered should warrant the government in vigorously working for the enactment of a uniform marriage law, throughout the Dominion of Canada."

REV ISAAC COUCH, PASTOR OF GEORGE STREET

"I cannot help but think that the judgment was the most favorable and only proper one that could have been delivered, and I cannot help but be pleased with the result."

REV. F. J. SAWERS, RECTOR OF ST. LUKE'S.

"All who have any real regard for the laws of our Dominion will welcome the decision of Judge Charbonneau, and hope that the decision will be upheld in any court to which an appeal may be made. The question of the Herbert-Clouatre marriage is not one in which the church affiliation of the central parties is to be considered at all. Rev. Mr. Timberlake was acting not so much as a Methodist minister, as one regularly employed by the state to perform the marriage ceremony. Marriage performed by any one so authorized provided that all legal requirements be fulfilled must be considered valid in the eyes of the law. The church may discipline her own members as she may think fit, but no marriage properly performed by one legally authorized to perform the same, may be set aside by any church as null and void.

If such a thing were possible, confusion and anarchy would take the place of settled government."

REV. JAMES ROLLINS, PASTOR OF ST. ANDREW'S.

"The contention of the Roman Catholic church has been that the ecclesiastical law of that church has the effect of civil law, on the question of marriage in the Province of Quebec, and granting that contention, Mr. Justice Charbonneau declared a certain marriage null and void. The ecclesiastical courts of the Roman Catholic church are now told in the plainest kind of language that they have authority, only in so far as the consciences of Roman Catholics care to recognize their pronouncement. It is one thing for a church to dominate the conscience. It is another thing for a church to proceed to take away a man's civil rights, and the civil rights of his children, because he refuses to let the church dominate his conscience.

"The judgment is of great value as indicating that the civil law of Quebec protects the civil right of its people, and as being a distinct rebuff to judges who were disposed to allow the ecclesiastical court, rights, which under the law they do not now possess. It would have been intolerable had we found that all churches and all individuals were not free and equal before the law.

"One more thumbscrew has been cast to the moles and the bats, and it is devoutly to be desired that when the Privy Council gives its decision on the case, to be submitted by the Dominion Government, it will be impossible for this particular thumbscrew to ever find its way back."

REV. J. R. WEBB.

"Those who are acquainted with the terms of the capitulation of Quebec, and the treaty of Paris, 1763, also of the Quebec Act, will not be surprised at the independent judgment of Judge Charbonneau, in connection with the Hebert marriage, which agrees so fully with the principles laid down by the representatives of the British Government in connection with the position of the Roman Church in this Dominion. It will go far to allay the fears of those who have contracted mixed marriages during the last three years, and will have a salutary effect in repressing the assumptions of the hierarchy in our land. As a result, the priest who slanders those who have fulfilled the law in connection with their marriage should be dealt with by the civil courts in the same manner as others who maliciously villify their fellow-citizens."

ROMAN CATHOLIC VIEW.

In conversation with a prominent Roman Catholic clergyman, respecting his view on the matter, he stated that it simply places the matter in the Province of Quebec, upon the same civil basis as in Ontario, and in no way does it interfere witrh the legislation of the Roman Catholic church in regard to the sacramental side of matrimony.

In Ontario the civil law takes no cognizance of ecclesiastical decrees as it did in Quebec. The judgment therefore of the Montreal judge has nothing at all to do with the church law and as far as Ontario is concerned, the "Ne Temere" stands, and in the eyes of the church, the judgment of Judge Charbonneau doesn't effect church legislation in any way in Quebec or Ontario. It simply places the civil statis of matrimony in Quebec on the same basis as in other places.

ERNIE MARKS' STOCK COMPANY

First Performance Pleased Audience at the Grand

The Ernie Marks Stock Company were delayed and snow bound several hours owing to the severe storm, but arrived in Peterborough and opened at the Grand last night, to a well filled house. The play presented was the four act comedy-drama "Reaping the Whirlwind." Ernie Marks who is a favorite with Peterborough theatre goers, portrayed the part of Bill Watson in a clever manner, and the supporting company were all excellent in their respective roles. The vaudeville specialties were of a high class and pleasing nature which include De Leuna & De Leuna, sketch artists, Lida Gardner, character singer and Franklin A. Brooks, monologist and topical singer who has appeared here several times before, created much laughter. The play for this evening is the five act English comedy drama, "In Convicts Stripes," and will no doubt attract a large audience.

FARMER COMES TO CITY ON HORSEBACK TO BUY FOOD FOR HIS FAMILY

Many Schools In Country Affected By Blockade of Roads—Engineer on Duty 40 Hours—Railway Traffic Conditions Better.

It is sometimes noticed that the times when the cold is felt the most are not always the periods when the thermometers register lowest, but in regard to the storm that has been raging in and about Peterborough for the last few days, and which reached its climax yesterday, the sentiment of the shivering wayfarer and the scientifically accurate barometrical records agree that the combination was the worst wind and snow storm that this district has been subjected to for some time. The barometer went down as low as 28.11 inches, and the snow drifted into such great impassable heaps that even the recollections of the older citizens fail to call up visions of a fiercer blizzard.

One farmer who braved the elements to enter the city yesterday, coming from three miles north of Peterborough on the Lakefield road, states that that road is in the worst state of blockade that it has been in for years. Considering the condition of the road between Lakefield and his farm, it would be undertaking an impossible contract to attempt to journey from his place to Lakefield. "The chief reason that I didn't turn back was because I was afraid to try turning round in the deep drifts," he remarked. In his estimation the storm indicates an early spring.

The roads in Monaghan, Smith, Otonabee and other surrounding townships are completely filled and most of the roads have not been disturbed by even the passage of a single sleigh for the past two days. Some of the farmers, even those near the city, announced through the phone to a Review reporter that they did not intend to come to market next Saturday. The result, will of course, be a big jump upwards of prices in butter, eggs and meat.

DOCTOR HELD BACK.

Dr. McWilliams, of Keene, received an urgent call from Hiawatha yesterday and made a strong effort to answer it, but the large snow drifts proved too much for him, even in his light conveyance and he was forced to abandon the idea of reaching Hiawatha and returned to Keene.

COUNTRY SCHOOLS CLOSED.

Then too, as a result of the storm many of the country schools were forced to suspend their work on account of the pupils not being able to get to the school houses. Included in the large number of institutions that were forced to give their scholars two unannounced holidays are the schools taught by Miss White and Miss Coughlin in Otonabee. Miss Howson, of the Auburn school conducted the usual classes, but with a greatly reduced number of pupils.

SHORT OF BREAD

"We ran out of bread and did not have anything but pastry flour to bake with so I had to get to town and back in some manner," said a North Monaghan farmer, to a Review representative this morning, as he was about to mount his horse to return home. He had a couple of loaves of bread under his arm, while his pockets bulged with provisions. He had ridden three miles to the city and was thankful that he did not live farther away.

"The East and West roads are in worse shape than at any time I have seen them in years," said the husky tiller of the soil. "I do not think that they will be opened for several days yet," he continued, "and I may have to make another trip here on my horse before we will be able to get a sleigh over the roads."

ON DUTY 40 HOURS.

Though the Grand Trunk officials expect to have the passenger trains running near their regular time before many more hours, the only line clear at noon was that to Port Hope. A snow plough arrived at the local station about 11.15 a.m., and the Port Hope train which should have been here at 8.20 a.m., followed in its wake. They both proceeded Lindsayward.

Upon the arrival of the passenger from Port Hope, conductor Jobbit started for Port Hope with his train.

The trainmen state that the present snow-up is the most complete in years. The snow-plough that passed through here had been on the road forty hours and the engineer in charge of one of the engines has been with it during the whole period.

The C. P. R. was more fortunate yesterday than the G. T. R., so far as local service was concerned, getting all their trains through within a couple of hours of schedule time, but the service was crippled last night and this morning.

The 12.10 midnight train, which comes from north Toronto, got stalled about nine miles from Peterboro and did not arrive here until after seven o'clock this morning. The 1.01 did not get here until ten o'clock. At the local hotels, there were travellers, who spent most of the night in the rotunda, awaiting the bus, which was to take them to the midnight trains.

OPEN MEETING AT ST. JAMES' CHURCH

The dreaded white plague, "Tuberculosis," will be the subject dealt with by Dr. Frank Neal, the well-known local authority, at an open meeting for men only, in St. James' Methodist church to-night.

The meeting will commence at eight o'clock and, judging from the interest which has been aroused in Peterborough of late, in the combating and lessening of the ravages of tuberculosis, there should be a large attendance at this meeting.

Dr. Neal, moreover, is eminently qualified to discuss the subject.

INTERMEDIATES DOUBLED THE SCORE ON TORONTO SENIORS

Small Crowd Witnessed Exhibition Contest—Ken Crane Played for Visitors

The smallest crowd of the season, one hundred and fifty people, saw last night's game between the local intermediates and T.A.A.C. seniors, when Captain Park's seven flung it on the Toronto outfit 12 to 6, the half-time score being 5—1.

The condition of the weather had considerable to do with the small attendance, but at that there should have been more to brave the elements. Evidently Peterborough fans are not very enthusiastic over exhibition games, even though crack senior aggregations are billed.

Those who witnessed the contest last night did not see the fast teamwork and general all round good playing that was expected of men in the senior ranks, nor did the Petes extend themselves in the manner the fans like to see. There was practically no combination, though some of the individual stunts were really exciting. Possibly the most pleasing feature of the contest, so far as the local management is concerned, is that they have developed a rover in Fred Kelly.

Kelly was worked at that position last night, Giroux playing on the wing. He performed in grand style as has been predicted several times by camp followers. His grand rushing and back checking was the feature of the game.

Leo Derocher in goal was the real star, as usual. A couple of the visitors remarked that he was a wonder, and one of the best goal tenders they had been up against.

Bond and Bearss figured in several rink length rushes, but neigher scored. They did not use their weight much, resorting to their stickhandling to break up their opponent's rushes. Captain Park was the heavy scorer, notching eight of the twelve Peterborough counters. He was around the visitor's nets like a bee. Several were secured on rebounds, but others were carried right past the defence on the nets. In the second half he pulled off a piece of sensational stick-handling when he came from behind the T.A.A.C. nets with four men on him, and scored. "Ken" Crane, who played centre for the Toronto outfit, during the greater part of the evening, did not follow him very closely and he was running loose most of the time.

The visitors had troubles of their own. They were to have been accompanied by Harvey Sproule, who was to referee. Sproule attended the Midland-Preston game on Wednesday evening and owing to the condition of the roads was unable to make connections for Peterborough and Fred Denison handled the bell. Livingston, the T.A.A.C. manager, while settling the account for supper at the C.P.R. lunch counter at Burketon Junction, missed the train and the players had to come through and shift for themselves.

With the exception of Hunter and Barlett, the two men on the defence, who belonged to Parkdale seniors, Hunter a wing man and Barlett a rover, the team was a T. A. A. C. bunch. Smith has played a couple of schedule games this season, subbed for J. B. McArthur, the regular guardian.

As the two men playing defence were forwards, Crane went back to coverpoint several times and let the others invade the territory around Derocher. Crane got three of the Toronto goals.

In view of the fact that the visitors were in the senior ranks, and the only team to defeat the champion Eatons so far this season, the locals made a very creditable showing when they doubled the score. They have been touted all winter as being a team above the average intermediate, but even their most ardent supporters did not expect that they would tie it on a senior seven in such a decisive manner.

As the Peterborough Hockey Club lost money on the deal last night there will not likely be any more teams here this season unless the fans really want to see more hockey.

The teams lined up last night as follows:

PETERBOROUGH.

	Derocher
	Bond
	Bearss
	Kelly
Coughlin	Park	Giroux
McCamus	Crane	Brown
	Burrell
	Barlett
	Hunter
	Smith.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL WON

The Hockey Team Defeated South Centrals 3-1

A septet from the Queen Alexandra school entered the hockey arena yesterday and defeated the South Central aggregation 3—1, leading at half time 3—0. The Queen Alexandra bunch have never played or even practiced together before, and are justly proud over their victory, more particularly so because the South Centrals have already played several games. Howard Hall in goal deserves half the credit for his team's successful debut, while Richardson for the southern boys was the man who supplied Hall with most the material for some fast net guarding. The Queen Alexandra team will clash with the Centrals next Tuesday.

The teams were:

FIRST OF HOME AND HOME GAMES

Campbellford to Meet T. A. S. Team Here To-night

A large crowd will be attracted to Brock street rink to-night, to see the T.A.S.-Campbellford game. These two teams are tied in their district in the Trent Valley League, each having defeated the other once on the round, a stunt which neither of the other teams succeeded in pulling off. On Tuesday evening last, the score in Campbellford was 2-1, with ten minutes overtime, the Campbellford win tieing the district. The two teams were ordered to play home and home games to-night and Tuesday night, goals on the round to count. The winner will go into the semi-finals.

Both teams are playing good hockey but the abstainers are confident of piling up a good enough lead to take to Campbellford. They played on Tuesday after having defeated All Saints 13-2 the evening before, and the trip was a gruelling one. The visitors are in much better condition than on their former appearance here, the opening game of the league, and will put up a classy fight.

BASEBALL

New York, Feb. 23.—Half a million dollars' worth of baseball talent will be inspected by the managers of the major league clubs within the next few weeks. This enormous sum has been invested in a bevy of bush league beauties who will be put to the supreme test in the southern training quarters. After the wheat has been separated from the chaff it is extremely doubtful if any club finds more than one or two players qualified for fast company, no matter how weak the big league team may be or how anxious is the manager to strengthen his nine.

The American League bought outright $147,383 worth of players from the minors last year, while the National League purchased $135,280 worth. In drafting $38,650 was expended by the younger organization, while its rival spent $45,400, making the total cash expenditure of both leagues $366,713.33. If the purchased players have sufficient ability to stay in the major $72,416.67 must be spent to retain them and $56,200 by the National, making the total outlay $495,330 for the two organizations.

An examination of the statistics reveals the fact that money is no object with the owners in their efforts to strengthen their teams. Pittsburg outstripped the teams of both leagues in paying for new talent, its only outlay being largely augmented, however, by the $22,500 paid over for Marty O'Toole. Cash payments of $46,000, with drafting expenditures of $4,700, and additional payments of $5,000 if certain players are retained, bring the cost of young players to the Pirates up to $55,000.

Band to-night at Street Railway Rink.

THE REASON FOR THE BIG SCORE IN MIDLAND

Both Goaltenders Served Time in The Penalty Box

Teams Played With Five Men in Second Half

Fred Denison and Pete Milloy, of the local juniors, who saw the Midland-Preston game on Wednesday night, returned home yesterday evening. They were greatly pleased with the brand of hockey dished out by the two teams in their battle for the championship. It was not by any means a poor exhibition as the score would suggest, but it was very fast at all stages. Each of the goal-tenders served two minutes in the penalty box for offending, and during those periods each team scored about five goals.

About ten minutes after play started "Eddie" Gould had to retire, owing to an injured knee. A Preston man went off with him. In the second half Nicholas and Rahn had a head-on collision, and the former was unable to continue. A Midland man was dropped with him, leaving five men on each team. This gave the fast skaters and fancy stickhandlers a chance to get away and neither team had much on the other.

The local boys do not think the northerners can overcome the one goal lead in Preston.

REDDY LAMONT WITH T.A.A.C. TEAM

Former Local Shortstop as Cheerful as Ever

"Reddy" Lamont, whom Peterborough fans will remember from 1904 when he played baseball for the local club, holding down short stop, when the games were played at Central Park, accompanied the T.A.A.C. seniors to the city last night, being in charge as trainer. He remained over to-day, intending to return to the city on the 4.29 C.P.R. express. He has had a varied experience since his leaving Peterborough, having been connected with several athletic clubs. He is at present a sporting writer on the Toronto Star. At the beginning of the season he was with the Toronto Canoe Club as well as T.A.A.C., but could not handle both jobs at once very well and he left the paddlers which he thinks have a championship team.

JUNIORS TO MEET INTERMEDIATES

The executive of the Peterboro Hockey Club is considering the matter of pitting the local juniors against captain Park's team, in an exhibition game. The meeting will likely take place next week.

MAYOR BRADBURN ON PERMANENT EXECUTIVE

Municipalities Decide On Name For New Association in Regard to Hydro-Electric Matters—Resolution Favors Salary for Hon. Adam Beck.

Special To The Review

Toronto, Feb. 23—Delegates to the Hydro-Electric convention to-day decided upon the name "Ontario Municipalities Electric Association" for the organization of municipalities taking hydro-power. They will get together as far as possible in the purchase of supplies, and try to standardize the equipment. They forwarded a resolution asking that Hon. Mr. Beck be given adequate remuneration for his services in the past in hydro matters and that he be placed on an annual salary, as chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission.

Mayor Bradburn of Peterboro was placed on the permanent executive of the association. Mayor Geary, Toronto, is president.

SUPREME COURT

Decision In Favor Of Havelock Power Co.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 22.—In the Supreme Court to-day judgments were delivered in two cases argued in on Tuesday last, as follows: Bennett v. Havelock Electric Light and Power Company. Motion to quash allowed, the court having no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal.

The above judgment finally settles a very difficult point of law, and one that has been disputed for the last ten or fifteen years.

Mr. S. T. Medd, has acted for the company in the case, winning out, and Daniel O'Connell for the plaintiffs.

and in speeches and brass band serenades their joy found outward expression. That they had won a notable victory of far more than local interest, they were by no means loath to state and they were equally ready to denounce the methods alleged to have been employed by their opponents.

The returns were, on account of the extent and widely separated nature of the constituency, necessarily very incomplte. In many cases only the majorities in the different polls could be secured, while five polling stations in outlying sections are still to be heard from. Mr. Graham's majority as at present indicated is 293, a figure which the remaining polls will substantially effect. The majority obtained for Mr. Low was 619.

UNION BANK TO INVADE HAVELOCK

Negotiations Underway for Purchase of Suitable Quarters

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Feb. 23.—There appears to be reciprocity in banks between Havelock and Norwood. First the Bank of Toronto with a branch in Havelock, invaded the Norwood field. Now the Union Bank which has a branch in Norwood will possibly retaliate by opening a branch in Havelock.

The manager of the Union Bank in Norwood was in town last week, making a primary examination of the field. Further negotiations have since followed and prospects seem bright for two banks in town.

It is learned by your correspondent that the owner of a business property on George street, has been approached regarding the purchase of a building which would be extremely suitable for the financial institution. Arrangements while not complete appear to be developing nicely.

The Bank of Toronto has taken up temporary quarters in Norwood with Mr. Wm. Miller, late teller in the local branch, as manager. They will erect a more suitable and permanent building in the spring.

HEBERT DECISION AGAINST CHURCH

is a part of public authority and can be conferred only by the law, which entrusts the functions thereof to a certain class of citizens, acting ex officio and by the crown, according to certain laws enacted by the legislative power to that effect. This authority is not here given in the code, nor in the laws proceeding it so far back as the Conquest. As all judicial authority disappeared with the change of allegiance, it would be useless to go beyond the Cession to see what was the jurisdiction of the bishops in such matters or what was the officiality under the old French law."

After stating that this question is now hardly contested, and referring to judgments of the Court of Review rendered in the same sense, the learned judge quotes the following summary of the principles governing the matter as laid down by Justice Cozeau in a case of La Rue vs. Burgess:

"This marriage, or, if you prefer it, this contract, has no other existence but that given it by human law; civil justice adjudicates as to its validity. The action of the civil courts as to said marriage is perfectly independent of all other authorities, even religious authorities."

The learned judge then remarks as follows: "That decree has, therefore, no legal value whatever. It would not even be of any use as proof of one of the judicial facts needed to establish a case, not being in the form of a document to which the law gives any authentic value or in the form of evidence given under oath by an expert in the matter. We should, therefore, conclude that the first part of the Laurendeau judgment confirming the ecclesiastical decree was unfounded in law and that the second part, concerning the civil effect of the marriage, was unfounded as to facts, since there was no proof of that faith, and was also unfounded in law, since the marriage had not been annulled or declared null, either by the religious authority, which was not competent, or by the court to whom this had not been asked.

Then came the main point at issue, and the judge said: "The question in this case is to know whether two Catholics, presenting a license can validly be married before the minister of a Protestant sect, or must be united by the Cure of their parish after previous publication in said parish, or dispensation by the Catholic religious authorities, in a word, is there respected jurisdiction or concurrent jurisdiction of all officers authorized to keep the civil registers, and can the crown license dispense with the publication of banns for Catholics as well as the other religious denominations."

For more than an hour Judge Charbonneau read his judgment in French, in the presence of a large crowd, including many persons prominent in the church and in law, who hung on his words with intense interest. The judge, in delivering this, one of the most important judgments in the legal annals of Canada, preserved an impassive exterior.

The judgment covered nearly sixty typewritten folies, and is notable for its clearness, logic and strength. Reference to the code, the statutes and other authorities are given to guide or support his contentions.

That it will stand even an appeal to the Privy Council, should such be made, is probable, for his lordship—himself intended for the church before he took to law—has taken extraordinary care in the preparation of his decision, and his reputation is that no decision he has rendered has ever been upset by a reference to the supreme tribunal in London.

Counsel for Hebert—the latter a railway employe, of uncertain address—says that an appeal will be taken, but it is probably a matter for further consideration. It is not likely that the church authorities will—openly, at any rate—cause an appeal to be taken, because, so far as the church is concerned, the Hebert marriage continues annulled, no matter what the civil view is.

Judge Charbonneau said that the plaintiff (Hebert) did not ask by his action that the marriage be annulled as to the marriage tie, but simply that the episcopal decree declaring the nullity be recognized by the court, and that consequently the marriage be annulled as to its civil effects. The judge then quoted articles of the code to show that if no bad faith on the part of the defendant be established, the marriage could not be annulled as to its civil effects.

The "nothing doing" sign was out at police court this morning. The proprietor of the Palace Hotel, Mr. Blastorah, had made a charge against two men, one for assault and the other for disorderly conduct. LOCAL DEALERS HAVE SCARCITY IN HARDWOOD

But There is Plenty of Coal on the Way

A famine in hard wood is imminent in Peterborough, due to materialize within a very short period, unless conditions alter considerably inside of a few days.

"But don't alarm the people," was the strict injunction of a local coal dealer, addressed to a Review representative to-day who made a few casual inquiries concerning the outlook.

The real reason of the shortage is that the snow did not come in sufficient quantity this year until after New Years, and consequently farmers who usually leave wood cutting and hauling till the last, were unable to commence their work earlier. The Review informant stated that farmers were in no degree backward now, in asking $7 a load, which is $1 higher than other years.

It will be noticed that very few loads of wood have been seen coming into the city from points outside, this being as noted, due to the lateness of commencing wood cutting operations.

A few of the local dealers have still a supply of hardwood, but it cannot be retained much longer if the continued demand for it keeps up.

This scarcity means that there will be a run on coal, and if people persist in laying in large quantities of this product, although not immediately requiring it, it will simply mean that a scarcity of coal may ensue, such as has been felt in Toronto. Householders therefore, according to the Review's informant, would be wise if they contented themselves with only buying enough to satisfy their present need, until the hundreds of car-loads of coal which are at present tied up at different railways points are under way again. There are hundreds of these car loads which have been simply shifted off to one side to keep the main traffic lines clear. When these commence moving, there will be any amount of coal available, and this let-up is liable to occur any day.

In regard to the hard-wood scarcity, the people will have to content themselves with ordinary slab and mill wood, and tamarack.

LAW OF THE PROVINCE IS VINDICATED

By the Judgment in the Hebert Marriage Case

Church Authorities Have No Jurisdiction Says Mrs. Hebert's Counsel

Montreal, Feb. 23.—"The effect of the Hebert judgment is to declare marriage a civil contract, and a civil contract only, in the Province of Quebec," declared Mr. George V. Cousins, counsel for Mrs. Hebert, when asked for an expression of opinion.

"The judgment further declares that the ecclesiastical authorities have absolutely no jurisdiction on marriage so far as the validity of any marriage is concerned.

"And don't forget to tell your Ontario readers," continued Mr. Cousins, "that the judgment is a vindication of the law of the Province of Quebec. From some of the things I have heard people in Ontario saying they must be under the impression that we in Quebec are governed by laws such as are supposed to have been in the dark ages. That judgment to-day plainly shows what the law really is, and the law itself has been vindicated by it."

HEBERT MAY APPEAL.

Mr. L. F. Lefebvre, counsel for Mr. Hebert, was an interested spectator in the court while his Lordship was reading the judgment.

"I cannot tell you whether I will enter an appeal or not," he said. "I will immediately get in touch with my client, and if he says so, I will enter an appeal. It is all a matter of money, and if he decides to fight to fight the case further, I will do so."

"The ground I would take in an appeal is that when we withdrew from the case when I filed a formal notice that Mr. Hebert would not proceed further in the case against Emma Cloutre, before Mr. Justice Archer, that no judge has a right to proceed 'ex parte,' hear one side of the case only and deliver judgment on that evidence alone. I will contend that the case should have been tried on its merits.

BRUCHESI OUT OF SIGHT.

Practically every newspaper correspondent in Montreal made ineffectual efforts to get in touch with Archbishop Bruchesi or some one else high in authority in the Catholic Church, but his Grace could not be seen, and no one else would even as much as pretend that the Church was even interested in the judgment.

CHURCH WON'T APPEAL.

One who is not a clergyman, but who is interested in the case and says that he knows what he is talking about, stated that the Church will make no appeal.

"The attitude the Church takes," he said, "is that Mr. Justice Charbonneau's judgment is of no more effect that any number of others which declare that the law of the Church is the civil law of the Province of Quebec as far as marriage goes. There are any number of such judgments, and if the matter is allowed to remain as it is without a higher court pronouncing on it, the attitude of the Church will in no way be affected, as it can fall back on those other judgments."

TIMBERLAKE IS PLEASED.

Mr. Timberlake was acquainted with the judgment by a reporter over the 'phone.

"Well, I wasn't expecting all of that," was his first explanation. "I would have been in court, but I knew the judgment was to be delivered in French, and it would have done me no good to be present. I must say I am delighted with his Lordship's finding. I was more than a little afraid that he would not go that far. I think the judgment is a perfectly fair one from a civil, moral and ecclesiastical standpoint."

HAVELOCK HAPPENINGS

Storm King Active—Railway News—Deaths

Special Correspondence.

Havelock, Feb. 23.—Passengers on the west bound express from Montreal on Wednesday night who expected to supper in Toronto found it necessary to appease their appetite with sandwiches and coffee at the local lunch counter, on account of this train being held up five hours by a rear end collision at Blairton, five miles east of here.

An east bound freight broke loose and before flagmen could be sent out, another train following close crashed into it, ditching six cars and destroyed two cars and a van by fire. No one was seriously hurt, but those in the engine of the second train narrowly escaped.

The Havelock auxiliary when called to the scene, cleared the track in a few hours and allowed the west passenger train to proceed.

Only two days ago, a broken flange on a car turned seven box cars into the ditch at Blairton, holding up the local train for several hours and sprinkling large quantities of merchandise around the spot where the wreck occurred.

The local auxiliary was called to Norwood on Wednesday also to replace a derailed car at that point.

EFFECTS OF STORM.

The local train on Wednesday night was over an hour late, the result of the severe drifting snow storm.

Traffic both on road and railway was seriously interfered with by Thursday's storm. A strong wind combined with heavy snow made a bad combination. Heavy drifts throughout the country made travelling impossible. Farmers kept to their homes while the storm raged, while local liverymen who started out on trips to other towns were forced to turn back on account of the blockaded roads. It was even impossible to get to Trent Bridge, three miles distant. While the daily stage from Campbellford did not get through.

The early morning express got through on fair time, while the afternoon train was an hour and a half late. The noon express from the west was three hours behind schedule, although a special led the way pretty well on time.

Considerable difficulty is being found in keeping the C.P.R. yards and switches clear. The men on the auxiliary who went to Blairton to clean up Wednesday night's wreck there found it very cold labor indeed to-day, working in an unsheltered spot.

PIONEER GONE.

W. J. Mellville, assessor for the Township of Belmont, died very suddenly without a moment's illness, on Friday afternoon last. Nearly 76 years of age, he was one of the early settlers of Northern Belmont, where he has spent the major portion of his life. Bereft to mourn his loss is a family of eight, George at home, Henry and James of Belmont, Wm. John of Midland, Mrs Jas. Towns, Mrs. Jas. Dafoe and Mrs. W. H. Dafoe of Belmont, and Mrs. A Wight of Trent River.

The deceased was a school teacher in his early years, being the first teacher at old Havelock and also at Round Lake.

OTHER DEATHS.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Higley who passed away on Friday night last, took place on Sunday afternoon to the Maple Grove Cemetery, services being conducted at the house by Rev. G. A. Real. By a strange coincidence the deceased passed away on the anniversary of her 55th birthday. She leaves to mourn her loss one son, Mr. Sam Higley, of town, Mrs. Westley Hart, of town, Mrs. Eddie, of Alnwick. Mr. Chance Masters, of Percy, John Masters, of Victoria Harbor and Dan Masters of Metheun, were sisters and brothers of the deceased.

In his 73rd year Thomas Caskey one of the oldest pioneers of Blairton, passed to the Great Beyond on Sunday last after suffering from paralysis for the last three years. He had been one of the most prominent citizens of that village. For many years he conducted a general store there and had also been postmaster for a considerable length of time. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon to the Pine Grove Cemetery. The following old friends of the deceased acted as pall bearers—J. L. Aunger, Wm. Rylott, S. T. Wilson, A. Beatty, John Wiggins and J. B. Peoples.

SPORTS.

Havelock juniors went down to defeat at the hands of the Hastings seven on Tuesday night. The score was 10—8 and it took twenty minutes' over time to make the decision.

Havelock has been asked to enter a team in both the senior and junior series and local enthusiasts would do well to commence their organization plans.

Lenten services were conducted in St. John's church on Ash Wednesday evening.

A large attendance and an enjoyable evening were the main features of the L.O.L. dance in the Opera House on Monday night. The British ensign and Orange emblems were among the decorations of the hall, which was prettily decorated for the occasion. Music was supplied by Messrs. Tom McQuaig and James Booth, George McQuaig officiating as floor manager.

The town hall was also the scene of an enjoyable dance by the young people of town on Tuesday evening. Dancing was indulged in from 8 to 12 o'clock.

The congregation of the Presbyterian church voted on the church union question on Sunday last. The results, however, have not as yet been made known.

The acceptance of last year's auditor's report was the main business transacted at a special meeting for the village council on Tuesday night. The report shows that last year's council made a very good financial showing, after the payment of all expenditures a balance of $212.55 being left on hand. On motion of Messrs. Jones and Kindred the auditors were voted $25.00 each for their services.

Weather conditions made impossible a carnival which was booked to take place at the local rink on Tuesday night. The ice was very poor and for this reason it was postponed until conditions are more favorable.

A number of real estate changes have recently taken place in town. James Seeney has sold his residence on George street to Sam O'Connell of Belmont. The purchase price was $1,000. Mr. Wm. Martin has purchased the dwelling of Miss Dora Wilde on Alexandra street for $1,400 while Mr. Sam Wilson has sold his Alexandra street residence to Mr. Wm. Vandervoort.

Rev. Jas. Skene is preaching a series of sermons on the Ten Commandments. On Sunday next he will deal with the fourth.

COLD WEATHER SORES

Some people's skin is so tender that in winter they are never long free from cold sores, blisters, cracks, etc. For such Zam-Buk is really fine. Mrs. P. Drummond, of Thetford Mines, Que., writes—"For three years as soon as cold weather has started my little daughter's face and hands have been covered with rough, watery patches, which before long turned into nasty sores. These would itch and smart terribly. They would remain on her face from fall until spring and we could get nothing which did her any good, until a short time ago I started using Zam-Buk. Now, after Zam-Buk treatment, the sores have entirely disappeared, leaving her skin as smooth and clear as possible."

Zam-Buk also cures eczema, ulcers, piles, abscesses, chapped hands, cold sores, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c box all stores.

LOCAL ODDFELLOWS WERE AT NORWOOD

Officers Were Installed With Bro. Freeburn D. D. G. M. Presiding

Tuesday evening, Feb. 20th, 1910 will go down in the history of Norwood as one of the best nights in Oddfellowship, when a large deputation of Oddfellows from Peterboro, accompanied by Bro. Freeburn, D.D G.M., paid a fraternal visit to Norwood Lodge, No. 252, and exemplified the degrees on a large class of candidates

The Peterboro brethren arrived at Norwood at 8.20 and by 9 o'clock were given a hearty welcome by the local brethren, who had assembled in the hall some time previously so as to dispose of some necessary business and complete final arrangements for the event.

Bro. Brooks, Grand Secretary of the Order, for the Province of Ontario, having arrived in town at noon, took the chair, and later a few complimentary remarks, requested Bro. Freeburn, D. D. G. M., to occupy the chair and proceed with the business of the evening.

Bro. Freeburn, D. D. G. M., Bro. Matchett, P. D. D. G. M., Bro. Gillespie, P. G., Bro. Goodfellow, P. G., Bro. Emerson, P. G., Bro Weiss, P. G., Bro. Evans, P.G., Bro. Craig, N.G., Bro. Merritt, N. G., Bro. Allan, Bro. Taines, and Bro. Hooper immediately took their respective stations and in a very creditable manner conferred the degrees of the Order.

After which the Lodge adjourned for 30 minutes in order that the visitors might share the hospitality of the Norwood brethren by gathering around the banquet table, and it is needless to say that this degree was partaken of with much relish.

After calling the Lodge to order, Bro. Freeburn D. D. G. M. assisted by several of the visiting brethren, installed the officers for the ensuing term.

At the close of which Bro. Wm. Brooks gave the members a very inspiring address, in which he congratulated the Norwood brethren on the successful meeting and also on the fine class of candidates—Norwood Register.

ANNUAL BANQUET BY LADIES' AID

To Officials Choir and Orchestra of George St. Church

The Ladies' Aid of George street church did themselves proud last evening when then they tendered a banquet to the church officials, the choir and the orchestra. This is an annual affair and is looked forward to by those who are included in the invitation list. Last evening's affair was most enjoyable in every way, both as to the edibles supplied in such variety and profusion and to the witty and interesting speeches made.

The tables were daintily spread in the lecture room of the church, being prettily decorated with daffodils and red candles. About eighty guests were present. After justice had been done the good things provided by the ladies, the pastor Rev. I Couch who occupied the chair, made a few introductory remarks regarding the cordiality that existed amongst the different organizations of the church. Then followed the toasts which were proposed and responded to by representative men of the congregation. The older members of the Trustee Board referred to the work of the church of years ago and many were the reminiscences told. Judging from the stories told nearly all the gentlemen were members of the choir, for they nearly all mentioned the fact in their speeches.

The toast list was as follows;

The King, proposed by Mr. Ferguson, and responded to by singing the National Anthem.

Our Church, proposed by Mr. D. W. Dumble, who referred to the earlier days of Methodism and George street church, responded to by Mr. H. C. Stabler, who gave a resume of the financial affairs of the church.

The Official Board, quarterly and official, proposed by Mr. T. W. Robinson, and responded to by Mr. T. M. McFadden.

Our Sunday School, proposed by Mr. William Might responded to by Mr. J. J. Hartley, superintendent of Grace Sunday school, and Mr. Cornish the new superintendent of George street Sunday school.

The Choir and Orchestra, proposed by Mr. E. F. Ackerman and responded to by Mr. J. H. Renwick, organist and choir master and Mr. Miller, of the orchestra.

The Press. This toast was proposed by Mr. F. H. Dobbin, who, as he was in Toronto attending the Publishers' Cost Congress, and not able to be present, had prepared a speech which was read by Rev. Mr. Couch.

The Ladies, this toast was proposed by Mr. W. J. Johnston and replied to by Mr. B. Shortly.

During the evening vocal solos were given by Mr. Deacon and Mr. Dickson and a male quartet, all of which were much enjoyed.

Mr. Richard Winch gave a recitation and made a few witty remarks which were much appreciated.

The Ladies' Aid are to be complimented on the success of their banquet as it was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present.

YOUNG THIEF IS IN TROUBLE

Confesses to Having Stolen From Farmer's Sleigh

Only twelve years of age and yet a thief. Such is the predicament in which a lad of East City finds himself. There is no doubt about the youngster not being guilty as he confessed to the offence when arrested.

The theft was committed when the lad jumped on to a sleigh driven by Mr. John Smithson, of Bensfort, when he was returning to his home on Saturday. While riding on the sleigh close to the seat, he spied a lady's satchel, and pilfered it without being detected. In the satchel besides other things was a purse containing $61. This was a gold mine to the youngster, and he promptly began to part with his ill-gotten wealth. The sum of $20 was given to a chum, and one dollar to another little fellow. A pair of boots and skates were indulged in, and three watches of minor quality. Twenty-six dollars were found on his person when caught.

The lad, however, first aroused suspicion when he proudly displayed five ten-dollar bills to his fellow scholars at his Sunday school last Sunday. In reply to queries as to where he secured the money, his invariable answer was "a boy on the street gave it to me."

The case will be heard to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock by County Magistrate Edmison. The lad apparently had no real idea of the magnitude of his wrong-doing.

APPOINTMENT OF MR. H. STRICKLAND

Chief Inspector for the Hydro-Electric Commission

Toronto, Feb. 23.—The Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario has decided that a code of regulations for the whole of the province to govern wiring and electrical equipments is necessary, and Mr. Harry Strickland, for the past six years chief inspector of the Canadian Underwriters' Association, has been appointed chief inspector for Ontario and will have supervision of the new code of wiring regulations.

There has been dissatisfaction with the methods of the Canadian Fire Underwriters for some time and the double system of inspection has resulted in friction not only between inspectors of the Hydro-Electric and the Association, but among contractors. There will be one code for the whole of the province which embodies a number of the regulations now in the code of the Underwriters, but many others that will be effective without hardship and prevent any collusion between inspectors and contractors.

Mr. Strickland was selected for the new position on account of executive ability displayed in a number of matters where there was conflict between inspectors, contractors and owners of buildings. In this case the office sought the man and not the man the office.

Mr. Harry Strickland is well known in athletic circles and a long distance swimmer. The appointment is regarded by business men and builders as an important one and falling upon most capable shoulders.

The many friends of Mr. Strickland in and about Peterborough will congratulate him on the appointment. He is an old Lakefield boy and it was he, who some years ago, swam the canal from Lakefield to Peterborough.

Band to-night at Street Railway Rink.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly allow me, through the valued columns of your fair and honest paper, the privilege of showing my personal appreciation of the friendly spirit of the Orange Association towards the work Baptists have been trying to do for the last seventy-five years among the French Roman Catholics of Quebec.

As secretary of the Grand Ligne Board of the Peterborough Association, I feel constrained to say, that I am proud of the Orange Association. It has its faults It is not infallible, but it has its good points too, as the following letter reveals:—

W. M Fitzgerald, Esq.,
142 Morse St., Toronto.

My Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of your very kind note containing enclosure of one hundred and seventy-five dollars ($175.00) from the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario West. Enclosed please find receipt.

I should be very glad if you could find an opportunity of expressing through the Executive or other constituted body the grateful appreciation of our Mission for this generous expression of the sympathy and co-operation of the Orange body with us in our work. We cannot but feel that in many aspects our work is one, while perhaps ours may come a little nearer to the individual Romanist, and deals more closely with the personal state of his soul, yet in the struggle for civil and religious liberty, we must of necessity stand shoulder to shoulder, and in this respect the success of one is the success of both. Again thanking you, and through you, your Society for this kindness.

Yours sincerely,
REV. E BOSWORTH,
Secretary Grand Ligne, Que.

Rev. E Bosworth, the writer of this letter will deliver an address at the Park street Baptist church next Sunday evening, and tell the Orangemen of Peterborough what their money is spent for.—Rev. W. C. Riddiford.

W.A.B. WRITES.

Mr. William A. Bailey forwards the following:

W. A. Bailey, Esq.,
Peterborough.
75 Yonge street,
Toronto.

Re yourself vs. Peterborough.

Dear Sir,—Replying to your card enquiring as to when the case would be likely to come on, it is impossible as yet to say, as we are awaiting a reply from the city solicitor's office in Peterborough as to the proposition of settlement made by them and agreed to by yourself in a letter replying to what we had written to you very fully as to what they had stated they would be agreeable to do.

Should we not hear from them soon we will write them again to know the cause of the delay, and will advise you upon hearing from them.

We remain very truly,
HOLMES & HOLMES.

To the Editor of the Review.
Peterborough, Feb. 22.

Sir,—I may say I have agreed to no proposition made by the city.

Yours very truly,
W. A. BAILEY.

STATISTICS FOR EAST PETERBORO' SCHOOLS

Dear Sir,—I have just finished compiling for the Department of Education, the statistics concerning the inspectorate of Peterborough East, for the year 1911, and though I know that such things are usually as dry as a cinder heap, it has occured to me that possibly some of your numerous readers throughout the country might be interested in a few of the figures.

To begin with, there was received, for school purposes, by the 71 rural school sections, the sum of $57,368 from all sources. This includes a balance of $12,741 carried over from the previous year. Of the remainder, $18,422 came from the townships and the county, $8,749 from the government, $11,719 from the school sections, and the rest from various miscellaneous sources. There was a total expenditure of $42,225, of which $29,068 was for teachers' salaries, and $7,960 for buildings and sites. A balance of $15,142 was carried over to this year.

There were 2519 pupils enrolled at the 71 schools with an average attendance of 1311, or about 52 per cent. These were distributed as follows:—

	Enrolled.	Avg.
Asphodel	180	112
Belmont and Methuen	489	225
Burleigh and Anstruther	143	56
Chandos	223	79
Douro	403	224
Dummer	331	182
North Monaghan	181	92
Otonabee	569	341

The figures for the villages are:—

Havelock	319	228
Lakefield	308	251
Norwood	215	151
Totals	842	594

The average is nearly 71 per cent, as compared with 52 in the rural schools.

The total estimated value of all the school property in the rural sections is:

Buildings and sites	$67,650
Furniture and equipment	12,234
Buildings and sites	41,500
Furniture and equipment	5,150

Of the 71 rural schools, 33 are brick, 29 frame, 3 stone, 3 concrete, and 3 log.

There are 71 rural school libraries with 6109 volumes, valued at $2,554.

It is interesting to note that the 213 trustees made a total of 44 visits to the schools. There were 45 visits by clergymen, and 91 other visits besides those made by the inspector.

BELASCO METHOD OF PLAYWRITING: CURIOUS WAYS OF 200-PLAY AUTHOR

David Belasco has written and adapted more than 200 plays. His method of work, therefore, and his ideas on the subject are of interest, and may be useful to others contemplating a career in the theatre.

"How do I make a play?"

It is Mr. Belasco himself who repeats the question.

"Stick close to Mother Nature,' he replies. "The great chest to which the dramatist must go is Nature. It is the bigger drama from which you pick your smaller pieces of life.

"I first make up my mind what period I want for my play. Let us assume it is the early days of California. Very well, then, I get all the books I ever heard of or that my friends ever heard of which treat of this period and I absorb their contents. Not only read them thoroughly, but absorb their spirit. I talk to people who were familiar with the period. If I am fortunate enough to find them among my acquaintances, and, if not, I go out and cultivate such acquaintances.

"Then the plot. I shut myself up in a dark room, I let no ray of sunshine penetrate into my seclusion. An excellent thing for man in almost every other relation of life, sunshine is not conducive to the deepest and most complete concentration. There in the dark, in the quiet dark, I think — just think, think, think. At last something comes—the merest germ of a plot, and from that germ slowly but surely the foundation structure of my play grows. Thus far I have concerned myself only with the main plot. The sub-plots come later, though each one of them must lead up to the main plot.

"Next I concern myself with the motive. One reason why such countless numbers of would-be dramatists go down in defeat is that they do not furnish any sufficient or satisfying motive to account for their dramatic action. Their characters do many interesting things, many most dramatic situations arise in the course of their play's unweaving, their men and women say clever and apropos things— but why? Why? The dramatist, to write with a successful drama, must furnish a compelling motive for everything that takes place on the stage, a motive that is absolutely compelling and which dominates everything and everybody.

"The hero and the heroine. One must dominate, and both must be clear-cut and well limned in my imagination. The other people necessary to unfold my drama I introduce as I need them, and frequently after introducing them I find I can get along better without them and cut them dead the next time they bob up. A good rule for the dramatist is to eliminate everybody he possibly can. No matter how interesting or picturesque, or lovable a character, if he or she can be cut out he should be without mercy and without remorse. In this way do we get simplicity and directness.

"Now we have got the period, the plot, the characters, the compelling motive. It now remains to write the dialogue. I work myself up until I feel each character, and then I dictate and accompany everything with 'business.' One stenographer takes down my words, another stenographer watches my every movement and takes down the accompanying 'business.' Afterward I change certain things — but never my love scenes, my mad scenes, my emotional scenes. That would make them seem warmed up, so to speak. For form's sake I make some directions in my MSS., but these are liable to change from day to day up until the final dress rehearsal of the play In this way, and in this way only, can I get spontaneity, grace, naturalness."

SIR JAMES WELL SATISFIED WITH BOUNDARY NEGOTIATIONS

Mr. Rowell Tries Hard, But in Vain to Secure Passage of Resolution.

Toronto, Feb. 24.—Sir James Whitney postponed discussion of the Manitoba boundary question yesterday in the Legislature despite the urging of Mr. Rowell.

The latter wanted to know if the discussion over this boundary question was not going to proceed.

"Oh, not this afternoon," replied Sir James Whitney.

"Well, when might we expect to continue it?" asked Mr. Rowell. "The situation is this, that the matter is at present before the Dominion Government, and a resolution of this Legislature should be obtained before the Dominion Government has passd upon the matter. The expression of this House might affect the result."

"But what would be the effect if this House defeats the motion?" interjected Sir James.

"Then we think the people of the province would have the right to judge the action of the Government in rejecting such a motion. Perhaps, then, we can go on with the discussion of the Judicature Act," suggested Mr. Rowell.

"No; I move that the House adjourn," replied Sir James, "and I may say that nobody who has occupied the seat I do, has endeavored more than I to accomodate members of the Opposition as regards discussions and everything else. I will leave it to the judgment of this House if the Government is not justified in taking any action it may see fit, when it assumes responsibility for the result of its action. I will even leave it to the hon. gentleman who sits next to the leader of the Opposition."

"There is only this about it," replied Hon. A. G. MacKay, "that the Ottawa correspondence indicates that the Ontario-Manitoba boundary bill is now before the Dominion House and the sooner we get a resolution from this House on the matter the more useful it would be in affecting the result of the deliberations at Ottawa."

An adjournment of the House, however, was agreed to.

J. A. Ellis (Ottawa West) was a busy man yesterday afternoon. He introduced three bills in the Legislature at the request of the Ontario Municipal Association. He wants to amend the Municipal Act by giving municipalities the right to remove dangerous fences, buildings or other structures. This is to prevent any accident such as occurred last year in Hamilton when a large water tank connected with a fire sprinkler collapsed.

Mr. Ellis also wants to amend the Municipal Act by providing that municipalities shall not be liable for accidents on streets, unless the municipality or one of its officials knew that the defect which caused the accident existed. This bill has in the previous session been approved by the municipal committee, but was defeated in the House.

A. A. Mahaffy wants to amend the Municipal Act affecting the licensing of moving picture shows. The law now contains the words "where vaudeville performances are introduced," and the result is that in the case of moving picture shows where vaudeville is not introduced, there is no power to impose licenses.

R. H. McElroy (Carleton) proposes an amendment to the Municipal Act, giving power to county councils after a good roads bylaw is passed in a county, to issue debentures yearly up to $20,000 in each year for building roads. At present county councils can only issue debentures up to $20,000 in one year without submitting to the people for vote. Where a county council has issued debentures up to $20,000 for some other purpose they cannot then issue other debentures for good road purposes without asking the people to vote on the proposition. Mr. McElroy's bill is to remedy this.

Mr. McElroy also has an amendment to the act for the improvement of public highways to provide for the issue of debentures for the expenditure of money in building them.

Hon. J. J. Foy says that $148,084 is approximately the amount of money it has cost the province for statute revision. This was in reply to a question by Wm. Proudfoot of Centre Huron as to the names of all persons to whom payments have been made in connection with the present revision of the statutes, and the total amount paid to each.

There is talk of a bill being introduced at the present session of the Legislature to abolish all property qualifications in municipal elections. The proposed bill is a radical change from the present act, and is intended to permit candidates to run for office who have neither a bank account nor real estate to their credit.

SENATOR MILLER IS NO MORE

Was Seized With Paralytic Stroke Three Weeks Ago.

Ottawa, Feb. 24.—Senator Miller of Nova Scotia, the last surviving member in the Upper House of those appointed by royal proclamation in 1867, passed away in Ottawa yesterday afternoon. He suffered a paralytic stroke some five weeks ago from which he never recovered.

He was born in Antigonish County in 1839 and was a Conservative in politics. His death leaves now three vacancies in the Senate, all from Nova Scotia. The other two were made vacant by the death of Senator Comeaux and Senator McKay.

A NEW RECORD

Pau, France, Feb. 24— Jules Védrines broke the speed record for monoplanes, flying 100 kilometres in 37 minutes, and 200 kilometres in one hour andd 15 minutes. The previous record for 100 kilometres (2 miles) was made by Bathiat, at Douzy, on January 26, when he covered the distance in 41 minutes and 29 seconds. The 200 kilometre record was made at Pau, on January 21 by Maurice Tabuteau, one hour 54 minutes and 21 seconds.

IS PLEDGED TO SUFFRAGE

Lloyd-George Gives His Promise at Big Women's Meeting.

London, Feb. 24.—David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was the chief speaker last night at a meeting of the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies, held in Royal Albert Hall. The demonstration was called to urge support for an amendment to the Government's reform bill providing for the granting of suffrage to women on the same lines that it is given to men. The Government is divided on the question, Premier Asquith and several of the members of the Cabinet, being hostile to it, while Mr. Lloyd-George and other members of the Ministry favor it. The hall was packed with enthusiastic suffragettes, while on the platform were numerous members of Parliament, representatives of all the parties.

During his speech Lloyd-George was frequently interrupted with cries of "Traitor" and "Coward.' He said woman suffrage had not been included in the Government bill because the question was one on which no party had agreed, but that three-fourths of the Liberal members of the House of Commons and two-thirds of the Cabinet would support an amendment to the bill covering it.

If suffrage for women were made a Government measure, the Chancellor added, both the Liberal party and the Cabinet would be hoplessly shattered, but if it were introduced as an amendment to the reform bill, this would enable all its supporters, irrespective of party. to vote for it and a suffrage bill would be carried next year. Mr. Lloyd-George declared the referendum was not applicable to woman suffrage.

NEW RAILWAY BEING PLANNED

Would Only Have Montreal to James' Bay Route

Ottawa, Feb. 24.—A new railway project was introduced to Parliament through the Senate yesterday. The company has a transcontinental name, but only a Montreal to James Bay route.

Senator Beigue introduced a bill to incorporate the Montreal Transcontinental Railway Co. with a capital of $3,000,000, head offices in Montreal, and authority to build from Montreal northerly or northwesterly through the Counties of Hochelaga, Maisonneuve, Laval, Terrebonne, Two Mountains, Argenteuil, Montcalm, Labelle, Wright or Pontiac and to connect with the National Transcontinental or the Grand Trunk Pacific at or near Grand Lake, in Québec.

ENGINEERS TO REPORT ON THE HUNTER ST. BRIDGE

Mayor Bradburn received word yesterday from the Department of Railways and Canals. Ottawa, that their engineer would make a report as to what the Government should do regarding the Hunter street bridge question.

The Mayor took the matter up with the Department, and the above is the result.

ONTARIO BUSINESS MEN PASS SOME IMPORTANT RESOLUTIONS

Crossings Victims Buried.

London, Feb. 24.—Few funerals ever affected London people more than that of the victims of the Grand Trunk crossing accident, held yesterday at Woodland Cemetery. In one casket were the bodies of Mrs. Drake and her baby, and in the other that of Charles Drake. Flowers from all over the city, and many from Hamilton and the Scottish Riters, covered the coffins.

Fell 450 Feet to Death.

Pau, France, Feb. 24.—Lieut. Ducourneau was killed here yesterday in an aeroplane accident. The lieutenant was driving a monoplane at a height of 450 feet, when a propeller blade broke and the machine fell to the ground.

FISHERIES' AGREEMENT

Satisfactory to Both Canada and United States.

Ottawa, Feb. 24.—An agreement satisfactory both to Canada and the United States in regard to the future regalations of the fisheries is understood to have been made, as the result of the recent conference at Washington. Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who with E. L. Newcombe, Deputy Minister of Justice, and Sir Joseph Pope, Deputy Minister of External Affairs, represented the Dominion Government at the conference, returned to Ottawa yesterday.

Mr. Hazen said yesterday that the conference was very satisfactory, but he was not in a position to make a statement.

Newfoundland is still to be consulted and no definite announcement as to the terms will be made until they are communicated with.

CRITICISM OF STRATHCONA TRUST

For the Introduction of Physical Training in Canada.

Montreal, Feb. 24.—There was considerable criticism of the scheme for the administration of the trust established by Lord Strathcona for the introduction of physical training in Canada, at yesterday's session of the convention of the American Physical Education Association, held in the medical building at McGill.

The physical instruction was to be given by drill sergeants, said a speaker, and was to be military in style. Thus immobility and precision in meaningless movements and exercises founded on unscientific motions were to be perpetuated.

What was wanted, it was claimed, was teaching by men and women, who had been trained in physiology.

G. T. P. HOTELS

Further details of the great chain of palatial hostelries which the Grand Trunk authorities expect to have completed with the opening of the G.T.P. in 1914 are now to hand. Plans for the Edmonton hotel are completed and the contract is soon to be let. Provision has been made for more than 150 rooms, and the total cost will be over $750,000. A similar building is planned for Regina, and one of the finest hotels of the entire series will be built in the vicinity of Mount Robson, while the final link will be at Prince Rupert. All will be furnished and filled out in the same artistic and elaborate manner as the Château Laurier in Ottawa, and the Fort Garry now nearing completion in Winnipeg. A grand opening of the entire system is planned for the trip of the first transcontinental train, and it is hoped that negotiations being carried on with the British Government may result in securing His Majesty King George V. as one of its passengers. Such an event would indeed be an auspicious inauguration for Canada's great national line.

EIGHT BABIES POISONED BY HOSPITAL ATTENDANT

Girl Wanted to Make Chrildren Sick, That Nurses Who Were Mean to Her Would Get Into Trouble—Murder Charge Laid.

Special to the Review.

New York, Feb. 24.—A formal charge of murder was to-day lodged against Winnifred Arkets, an attendant at the Brooklyn Infants' Hospital, who confessed last night to the murder of eight babies by putting oxalic acid in their milk. She says she only intended to make the children sick, and so cause trouble for nurses who were mean to her.

Boards of Trade Urge Broad Development Scheme — Want North Settled.

Toronto, Feb. 24.—The expected didn't happen at the concluding session of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade yesterday. The bitter fight between the north and the south over the Georgian Bay Canal proposition lapsed into something similar to a meeting of Quakers, and a resolution advocating the immediate construction of the proposed waterway for the benefit of the eastern portion of New Ontario, was shoved through the session, accompanied by optimistic platitudes and honeyed words, with no dissension whatever.

When the proposition was broached there was an expectation that a warm verbal argument would ensue. It did, for a moment or two, and then it calmed down, when a man from the north arose and spoke in a vein likened to this: "Let's hog the whole thing, Welland Canal, Georgian Bay Canal and any other undertaking of value lying loose!" And with that the resolution with a few additional suggestions was given entirely smooth passage.

What a Georgian Bay Canal would be to the north country was explained in glowing rhetoric by delegates from that province. One thing, it would cheapen coal. At present North Bay, Sault Ste. Marie and all points of any importance are absolutely shy of this fuel, because of inadequate transportation facilities. Besides advocating the much-discussed canal, a resolution with regard to improving French River was passed, and will be forwarded to the Government.

It was with perfect unanimity that the delegates came to a conclusion with regard to the proper colonization of the north country. A resolution was passed urging the Government to take immediate action with regard to expending the appropriation of five million dollars and doing something to bring about rapid settlement of the new land by an English-speaking community. R. Home Smith moved the resolution, which was seconded by C. T. Young of North Bay.

Sir James Whitney was congratulated upon his announcement of an appropriation of $5,000,000 for New Ontario development and the resolution suggested the appointment of a commission, with one salaried resident commissioner, to investigate conditions and prepare a report for submission to the Government on the means of improvement.

The bonusing of industries by municipalities came in for much criticism, which culminated in a resolution of condemnation and a request to be sent to the Government to prohibit the pratcice. The resolution, which was introduced by Col. Raymond of Welland and seconded by L. W. Lyon of Guelph, said: "That granting bonuses to manufacturers, except by way of fixed assessment or freedom from taxation, should be prohibited and that a committee be appointed with a view to having an enactment of legislation." When this was put to a vote only one delegate showed his disapproval.

Responsibility for outbreaks of typhoid fever and general unsanitary conditions in New Ontario towns was laid at the feet of the Government by Delegate Pipe of Cobalt, who presented a resolution on behalf of the northern boards urging that the Government institute some plan of control of townsites before incorporation.'

"Taxation of Mail-Order Houses" was the topic of a resolution placed on the menu by the Goderich Board of Trade. However, it savored of something a little bit too bitter for the convention. R. Home Smith suggested that it be given a hoist, and the executive committee be allowed to consider it and submit it to the next meeting. He said that it could not be given proper consideration as the convention had been depleted in numbers by the fact that a large percentage had gone home. Seemingly, the chief objection to the mail-order business was that it did serious injury to the trade of the rural merchants.

The resolution, in part, said: That this board is satisfied that the large departmental stores and others which carry on business by the system known as the retail mail order and catalogue system, are doing a serious injury to the merchants throughout the province, and as they contribute nothing toward the up-keep of the various municipalities, an effort should be made to remedy or to mitigate this evil. It was suggested that the Legislature pass an act making it compulsory for a house carrying on the mail order business to pay a fixed annual fee to each municipality in which goods are sold and delivered, or pay an assessment on the value of all goods sold and delivered in each municipality other than the one where the place of business was situated.

HON. MR. MATHESON IN THE HOSPITAL

May be Unable to Present His Budget on Tuesday.

Toronto, Feb. 24—Hon. A. J. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer, who was removed to the Western Hospital on Thursday evening, suffering from what apparently was heart trouble, was feeling much better last night. He had planned to present his budget to the Legislature on Tuesday next, but his present illness may require these plans to be changed.

EXCLUSION OF HEBREWS

Christianity the Religious Test at Queen's University.

Ottawa, Feb. 24.—The private bills committee yesterday agreed that, in divorcing Queen's University from the Presbyterian Church, and making it a national institution, Christianity should be the religious test. In so doing, the committee set aside the objections of numerous Hebrew bodies who claimed the clause was calculated to exclude their race from professorships, though the university is declared to be national.

President Gordon told the committee that Queen's had always been Christian, but now was becoming non-denominational. Judicial judgments in England, in the United States and in Ontario upheld Christianity as of the common law of the country.

Edmund Bristol declared that the principle of the bill was to graft on to a state university a religious test eliminated a hundred years ago from Oxford and Cambridge. The trustees did not want it nor did anyone save a few theological professors.

The amendment by Mr. Robb (Huntingdon), to remove the religious test, but to retain the distinctive Christianity definition, was defeated and the claused passed unamended.

ARRAIGNMENT EARLY IN MARCH

Of Men Implicated in Dynamite Conspiracy Cases

Indianapolis, Feb. 24.—Arrangements were completed by the Government yesterday for the arraignment on March 12 of the men indicted in the dynamite conspiracy cases.

District Attorney Miller announced that about 18 of the 54 defendants would go before Federal Judge Anderson here and enter pleas in answer to the 32 indictments. The McNamaras, Ortie McManigal, and probably several of the defendants who are also indicted on the Pacific coast probably will not appear, and John J. McCray, formerly of Wheeling, Va., has not yet been apprehended.

Jail Warden Dismissed.

Ottawa, Feb. 24.—Oscar Beauchamp, warden of St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary for many years, has been dismissed for alleged lax administration.

G. S. Malepart, accountant at the penitentiary, will become warden.

Settlers' Excursions to Canadian North West

Commencing with the first Tuesday in March, and continuing on every Tuesday thereafter during March and April, the Canadian Pacific will run Settlers' Excursion trains to Winnipeg and West.

For the accommodation of settlers travelling with their live stock and effects, a colonist car will be attached to the settlers' effects train. This car will leave Toronto on regular train at 10.20 p.m.; arriving at West Toronto it will be cut off and attached to settlers' effects train, as mentioned above.

For those not travelling with stock and effects, special Colonist Cars will be attached to regular train leaving Toronto at 10.20 p.m. and run through to Winnipeg without change. No charge is made for accommodation in Colonist Cars.

Tourist cars are also run on regular train leaving Toronto at 10.20 p.m. A small extra charge is made for accommodation in these cars. Apply to nearest C.P.R. agent for a "Settlers' Guide" and "Tourist Car" Pamphlet.

BOMBARDMENT BY ITALIAN WARSHIPS

Special to The Review.

London, Feb. 24.—A despatch from Beyrout, chief seaport of Syria, says three Italian warships started to bombard the city shortly before noon to-day. Beyrout has a population of one hundred and twenty thousand.

Colombia Invites Knox.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Colombia yesterday virtually repudiated the action of its Minister, Gen. Ospina, by sending through American Minister Dubois at Bogota, a cordial invitation to Secretary of State Knox to visit Colombian shores on his present trip to the republic on the Caribbean Sea. The invitation was forwarded promptly to Secretary Knox, who is aboard the cruiser Washington on his way south. With him rests the decision whether he will change his itinerary to include a call at the port of Cartegena. This, it is accepted here, he undoubtedly will do.

Vigorous Attempt is Made to Hold up Legislation Promised by Borden.

Ottawa, Feb. 24.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Opposition fought tooth and nail yesterday afternoon to block the Government from carrying out its policy of co-operation with the provinces in the improvement of highways, while professing to approve of the principle of Hon. Frank Cochrane's bill, which was up for second reading.

Sir Wilfrid attacked it on constitutional grounds, raising the point of order, which he backed up by extensive quotations of precedents, that the bill indirectly involved the appropriation of public money which, under section 54 of the British North American Act, could only be done by resolution introduced with the concurrence of the Governor-General and a money bill founded thereon.

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden denied that the bill appropriated one dollar of the public revenue, it merely provided that, if Parliament should at some future time appropriate money for particular purposes, machinery was provided for the manner in which it should be expended. Before one dollar was expended, however, a resolution would have to be brought down in the manner provided in the B.N.A. Act. The speaker ruled against the objection to the bill.

Sir Wilfrid then dealt with the bill itself. The only exception, he said, which he took to it was that the expenditure contemplated should not be left to the caprice of the Government of the day, but should be made on a scale on a well defined principle laid down in the bill itself. Were the older and more wealthy provinces to pay for the improvement of the highways in the newer provinces, or how was it to work out?

He moved an amendment: "That, the bill be not now read a second time, but that it be resolved that, while this House is favorable to federal assistance to highways, it is of the opinion that such aid should be granted on a fixed basis similar to that provided in the B.N.A. Act in regard to the federal subsidy to the provinces." This was lost without division.

The Premier taunted Sir Wilfrid with having a short memory. The only objection he had raised to the bill had been one that had been raised by himself and answered by the Minister of Railways on the first reading of the bill. The Minister had distinctly stated then that the money would be expended either according to the population of the provinces or the amount of the provincial subsidies.

It was not left to the Governor-General-in-council to say what amount should go to one province or the other. The estimates when introduced to the House would provide for the division of the vote.

While the bill might not be complete, said the Premier, owing to the short time which the Government had to prepare its legislative program, and it might be found necessary to make more complete provision for the aid of highways next session. The Government had done its duty in implementing at the earliest possible moment a pledge that it had made to the electorate during the late election, and which had met with the unanimous approval of the people.

"I hope we shall be able to arrange with the Provincial Governments," said Hon. Frank Cochrane, "so that they will make a grant equal to the grant given by the Federal Government, so that we may be able to go on within a very short time and construct these roads. But if any Provincial Government does not wish to contribute I see no reason why we should not go on and do the work ourselves.

"But if they join in with us, so much the better. We will co-operate with them in making specifications. Evidently no specifications can be laid down in this bill. You cannot draw up specifications to cover all roads, because some might cost much more than others."

After the amendment had been lost without division and the bill given its second reading, it went to committee of whole.

Andrew Broder (Dundas) urged the adoption of a system of federal roads, such as obtained in France, where roads were divided into national departmental, municipal and rural.

Hon. Rodophe Lemieux spoke of the benefit of good roads in attracting tourists.

"Let us build trunk roads," said A. S. Goodeve (Kootenay), "and let the municipalities look after their own roads."

W. M. German (Welland) expressed his disapproval of trunk roads. What the farmer wanted was good roads leading from his farm to the railway station in his vicinity, not trunk roads for motorists.

G. H. Bradbury (Selkirk) agreed with Mr. German that local roads were the first need, as did E. W. Nesbitt (N. Oxford).

Messrs. A. K. MacLean, Sinclair, and McKenzie also spoke.

THE KINGSTON BLOCKADE LIFTED

Kingston, Feb. 24.—The city has recovered somewhat from the blizzard, but the country roads are still blocked and no mail has been received from the country side or Cape Vincent, N.Y. The Kingston and Pembroke Railway was able to send out its first train yesterday afternoon, but the Bay of Quinte line is still blocked.

Doctors Condemn Oily Liniments

The Public are Warned to Be Careful of These Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white, ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica, and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache, and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

TUBERCULOSIS EXHIBIT

The opportunity to become better acquainted with questions pertaining to tuberculosis which will be afforded by the exhibit of the Provincial Health Department in the assembly hall of the Collegiate Institute, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week, should not be passed by. Instruction will be given through illustrations, pictures, models and literature, and an interesting feature in connection with the exhibit will be a picture show, in which three films will be used. In order that the pupils of the schools may attend, the exhibit will be open after school hours on each of the three afternoons. Their elders and parents are invited to be present in the evenings. Dr. McCullough, chief health officer, may give an address on Wednesday night.

FOREST RESOURCES

Montreal Gazette

The value of the forest wealth of Canada, is shown in the statement of the Superintendent of Forestry, included in the report of the Department of the Interior. About 2,896,000,000 cubic feet of wood is cut annually. One-half of this amount is used for firewood; three-tenths for lumber and shingles, one-tenth for poles, posts and rails. The 1,430,000,000 cubic feet of firewood cut in 1909 was valued at $45,000,000; the lumber laths, and shingles at $87,500,000; poles, posts, and rails, $11,000,000; pulpwood, $10,000,000; hewed ties, $5,000,000; cooperage materials, $2,500,000; round logs exported, round mining timber, square timber, tanning materials, miscellaneous products, $1,000,000 each item. The total value of the cut was $166,000,000. There is great waste in the wood, the Superintendent of Forestry estimating that only about half of the cut is ever actually put into use. The per capita timber usage is greater in Canada than in any other country, about 400 cubic feet, valued at $22.44 for each person. Twenty different species make up the lumber cut, which in 1909 was 4,900,000,000 board feet, worth at the mill $80,700,000. Only six of these species—namely, spruce, white pine, Douglas fir, hemlock, cedar and red pine—reach a cut of over one hundred million feet per year. These trees constitute 95.5 per cent of the total lumber production of Canada. Spruce accounts for 29.5 per cent; white pine, 27.4 per cent; Douglas fir, 12.3 per cent; hemlock 7.9 per cent; cedar 5 per cent. and red pine, 4.4 per cent. About 94 per cent. of the production is soft wood, the only Canadian hardwoods, of which over 20,000,000 feet are cut annually being birch, maple, basswood and elm. Oak, hickory and walnut are almost extinct in Canada the total cut in 1909 of these valuable woods being less than 10,000,000 feet. Ontario leads the provinces in lumber production with nearly 1,500 millions of board feet, two-fifths of the output for Canada. British Columbia accounts for one-fifth, Quebec for one-fifth, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, for the greater part of the remaining fifth, and Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Alberta and Prince Edward Island for the remainder. In pulpwood, Quebec takes the lead, nearly all of it exported being cut in this province. Over one half the pulpwood domestically manufactured is made in Quebec; about 30 per cent. in Ontario, 11 per cent. in New Brunswick, and 4 per cent. in Nova Scotia. Over four-fifths of the pulpwood cut is spruce; spruce and balsam together supply 99 per cent. the remainder being poplar, hemlock and jack pine. As regards manufacture, the pulpwood annually exported from Canada to the United States keeps running 69 of the 251 pulp mills in that country. In Canada there are sixty mills and if all our pulpwood was manufactured at home, we would have about 130. Nearly 100,000 cords of wood, worth over $300,000 are used yearly in plants, making wood alcohol acetate of lime, and charcoal. And then there is the valuable maple sugar industry in the eastern provinces, another source of wealth. The forests stand chiefly upon lands unfit for agriculture and supply a large number of men with a means of livelihood. they pay amounting to about $100,000,000 yearly. The waste that has been allowed to go on for years is now being checked and the Government seeks through forestry to improve conditions so that without any lowering of their value the forests will produce greater crops than have been the rule under exploitation. In this connection the Canadian Forestry Association has done good work in agitating for reform.

BUILDING IN CALGARY WAS NEVER BETTER

This Year's Permits to Date Have Reached $700,000.

Calgary, Feb. 23—Application has been made to the building inspector's department by Nicholson & Bain for a permit to erect a warehouse on Eleventh avenue at a cost of $60,000.

This is only one of a number of permits for large amounts that have been taken out this month.

Building is brisker than has ever been known in Calgary at this time of year, owing to the phenomenally mild weather prevailing. Up to and including Feb. 15 permits have been issued to the total value of $700,000, and the department anticipates that the permits for this, the shortest month in the year, will exceed the million mark by the end of the month. It is interesting to note the sudden increase in the number of permits for apartment houses, for which there seems to be a special predilection as a means of investment just now.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Work Wonderful Cure

Mrs. Ed. Lloyd, Weak and Worn and Wracked With Pain Found Relief and Cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ardbeg, Ont., Feb. 23. (Special).—"Dodd's Kidney Pills have done wonders for me," so says Mrs. Ed. Lloyd, wife of a well-known farmer living on the line of the C.N.O. Railway near here.

"I was so weak I could hardly walk around," Mrs. Lloyd continues. "I suffered from female weakness and kidney trouble. My heart troubled me so that at times I would almost faint with the palpitations. I was treated by the doctor, but he could give me no relief.

"I was sick all over when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Rheumatism, Lumbago and Neuralgia adding to my sufferings. But Dodd's Kidney Pills helped me almost at once. After taking eight boxes I was completely cured."

Naturally Mrs. Lloyd wants other suffering women to know how she found a cure, and Dodd's Kidney Pills will do for other sufferers just what they did for Mrs. Lloyd, make new women of them.

TO THE EDITOR

VAGRANTS BEWARE!

To The Editor of The Review,

Peterboro, Feb. 23, 1912.

Sir—The remarks by your evening contemporary are only one side of the question—the presentment by the Grand Jury recently in Toronto charging the provincial police with unfairness, is another. The detective the special constable, (I've been one myself) is frequently after a case it is business. As for the C.P.R. are they any too particular themselves? Known as Canada's pricipal robbers! they require a lot of watching. To tell the truth, if those poor vagrants were trying to get the twenty-five cents on the wage sheet, as made out by that company, (it took me two days in Liverpool and cost more in boot leather.) Well! they are to be pitied.

Yours truly,

W. A. BAILEY.

T. & N.O. HAD GOOD YEAR

Earnings Show an Increase of $157,022.38.

Toronto, Feb. 23.—Matters pertaining to agriculture were the principal items on the legislative bill-of-fare yesterday afternoon, with Hon. James Duff the centre of attraction.

Discussions, thick, fast and furious were held over such subjects as "The Noxious Weeds Act," "A tax on dogs and for the Protection of Sheep," and an act to prevent the spread of insect and fungus disease injurious to vegetation.

Mr. Rowell gives notice that he will ask for a return showing all correspondence between the Government or any official of the T. & N. O. Railway, and the officials of the Grand Trunk with regard to the acquisition of running rights for the G.T.R. over the T. & N.O. lines.

Mr. Rowell will also enquire of the Ministry as to whether Hon. I. B. Lucas has been appointed a commissioner to investigate the question of Government ownership of telephone lines in the province; how long has he been engaged in the investigation; has the Government received any report from him on the investigation; and, if not, when is his report expected.

T. Marshall (Monck) will enquire of the Ministry how much the Government paid for the lands on which the new Government House is to be erected, the estimated cost of clearing the grounds, the names of the contractors for this work, as well as what contracts have been let for the building, and the names of the architects and landscape gardeners.

That the total net earnings of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway have increased by $157,022.38 over 1910 is shown by the annual report of the railway, which was presented to the Legislature yesterday afternoon. The total net earnings for the year amount to $593,152.69, as compared with $436,130.31 for 1910. There is also an increase of $16,637.27 in operating expenses over 1910, although there has been a decrease in the percentage form 73.2 to 66.4.

During the year the total revenue from transportation was $1,708,248.02; from sources other than transportation $72,715.81, making a total operating revenue of $1,780,964.83. The operating expenses were $1,181,983.63, as compared with $1,165,361.36 for 1910, making the net operating revenue $598,966.29 and $426,490.66 respectively, which, including ore royalties of $17,060.76 for 1911, as against $458,253.58 for 1910. A falling off of $20,702.36 is shown in ore royalties for the year. In respect of these earnings a check for $515,000 was paid to the Provincial Treasurer, while the 1910 payment was $420,000. The itemized pay roll of the railway for operation shows payments amounting to $748,522.65 and $34,696.24 for construction, which represents a total sum paid for labor of $783,218.89.

There is an attached report from Engineer Ellis, who conducted the James Bay survey, which points out that the line to Cochrane has already penetrated about one-half of the clay belt. To the north of this is the James Bay coastal plain, about 75 miles wide. Mr. Ellis states that the mouth of Moose River provides the only possible situation for a harbor, which has a depth over the bar at low tide of about six feet, and ventures the opinion that the cost of making the roadstead available for vessels of reasonable draught might not be prohibitive.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

There were no men in the shop, only women, and so pretty that you wondered if there were a notice posted up over the door forbidding plain ladies to enter. Two or three had yellow hair, yellower than mine, and Mrs. Ess Kay said they were actresses, who always came back to New York in summer to wait for things to turn up, just as chickens come home to roost, and that they were supposed to be resting.

I had always thought that a banana made you feel more as if you had eaten a large, elaborate dinner than any other one thing possibly could, but I found that an ice cream soda is even more so, and it was lucky for us that we had another hour's shopping to do (Mrs. Ess Kay made it an hour and a half because Potter is only her brother) before luncheon.

The next shop was even more wonderful than the first and would have been a great deal more solemn and dignified and even conventional if the same kind of wooden balls hadn't gone tearing round like mad squirrels in wire cages over the counters with people's money shut up inside them. There were very young youths sitting in tall pulpit things, who caught the balls on the fly in a sporting way and did something to them, but I never could see what, and afterward sent them back with the greenback bills inside turned miraculously into silver and pretty miniature pennies.

When we got to Sherry's, Potter was waiting for us and looking cross. I think persons with turned up noses show crossness more easily than the other kind, and Potter had the expression in his eyes that Vic has when her shoes are tight and mother is in a trying mood at the same time. I shouldn't be surprised if he has a horrid temper, although he thinks of so many funny things. And though he is so nice to me, he can't help saying things sometimes which show that he has a prejudice against England. That seems extraordinary, and shows one how conceited we English really are, for one is quite accustomed to the idea that there may be people who don't care for Americans, but it is odd that Americans may not like us. I suppose it's on a par with the sentiments in our national anthem, which when one comes to analyze them don't exactly suggest a sense of give and take—or, for that matter, a sense of humor.

"Confound their politics, frustrate their knavish tricks," but naturally bless everything in which we are concerned, as we are certain to be above reproach. I'm afraid that's quite of a piece with the calm confidence we have in our own superiority, although I dare say I should never have realized it if it weren't for Mr. Potter Parker and his perky nose.

It began to be less perky when we were all settled at a table in a perfectly charming restaurant, the most restful place to eat in that I ever saw. I can't imagine even a fiend being ill tempered in it for long, and it was deliciously cool, as if we had come into a shadowy green wood after the blazing, brassy glare of the streets.

The big room really was rather like a wood, so the simile isn't farfetched—an open space in a wood, ringed around with tall trees bending their branches low over a still pool. The soothing brown of the wainscoted walls gave the tree trunk effect; the great hanging baskets of ferns and moss that swung from the ceiling were the tree branches, and the many round, snow white tables with green velvet chairs grouped closely around them on the polished floor were the water lilies with green pads floating on the surface of the pond.

Nearly everything we had for lunch was in a more or less advanced state of frozenness, from the bouillon, ever so far along to the ices in the shape of different colored fruits, toward the end. Nevertheless, all of us, except Potter, drank iced water instead of wine whenever we stopped eating for an instant or couldn't think of anything particular to say, and the more we had the more we seemed to want. There was a kind of iced water curse upon us.

It has never occurred to Vic or me to lie down in the afternoon, though she tries to sleep a little sometimes if she's going to a ball. But when we got home, Mrs. Ess Kay and Sally took it quite as a matter of course that we would lie down before going to Coney Island to dine and see fireworks and other things. They were surprised when I didn't want to, but Mrs. Ess Kay said in that case Potter would entertain me while they rested. I told her it wasn't necessary, but Potter wanted me to bet my sweet life that it was just the one proposition on earth for him, so he and Vivace and I sat in the fountain court while Mrs. Ess Kay and Sally went upstairs.

Potter was suddenly a changed man, as soon as he and I were alone together, becoming exactly what he had been yesterday when I first ran downstairs and he introduced himself.

He didn't chaff me about my country and make fun of our government or hint that American men were the only men living who knew how to treat women, as he seemed to delight in doing when his sister and cousin were with us. He began by offering to teach me some of his best slang, but as the lesson went on, it turned out to be rather more like a lesson in flirtation.

I would have been even more startled than I was, if I hadn't already had a little experience on board ship with Mr. Doremus. At home I've often thought it must be very pleasant to be out and able to flirt, but I never had a chance, because, as Vic said, it was her turn first, and the only young man, not a relation, that I ever talked with alone was the curate, who would as soon have tried to flirt with a bishopess as with one of mother's daughters.

But I like Mr. Doremus' kind of flirtation almost better than Mr. Parker's. Mr. Doremus makes you feel as if you were a beautiful young heroine in a play, and you are almost sorry there is no audience to applaud the witty things he says and the smart answers he inspires you to think of, just as if he were giving you a cue.

Potter is different, and instead of an audience you want a kind of perpetual chaperon, not a Briareus creature with lots of hands to applaud.

It is silly, I know, to blush and simper, but I couldn't think of anything else to do, Potter was so alarming, and I wouldn't allow him to tell my fortune by my hand, for it was much too hot. Even if it hadn't been I shouldn't have wanted my hand held; for I do hate being touched by any one I'm not fond of. When I told him that he said it was very simple. What I had to do was to get fond of him, and then it would be all right.

"I shan't have time," I said. "There'll be too much for me to think about, and then I shall be going home."

"How long does it take an English girl to get fond of a man?" said he.

I told him I didn't know anything about that, as I wasn't out, but I supposed it depended on the kind of girl.

AN AUTO IN THE SAHARA DESERT

"We stood on the edge of the desert and looked out over it. Then we talked of other things, neither wishing to be first to suggest the mad idea. Then we read in the guidebook: "Biskra to Touggourt, about one hundred and thirty miles; a track possible for wheeled traffic, but sandy in parts, and swampy in places in bad weather; it would be imprudent to venture upon it on a bicycle or in an automobile." Next day we looked again, and at last one of us put the thought of both into words: "Well, I suppose we shall have to try it!"

The most modest traveller, like ourselves, soon discovers that it is not the sandy plain of his school days. He finds, from time to time, great or little spreading mounds, or dunes, of golden sand—called "barchans"—in which only a camel does not sink ankle deep, and these, wind-created and wind-impelled, move forward almost like live things. Engineers employed in laying our desert railways have made costly, and even fatal, mistakes by not recognizing the fact now established, that "desert dunes are not anchored or stationary hills of sand, but mobile masses, advancing at a very appreciable rate in a definite direction." These dunes begin to move, according to another scientific observer, as soon as a slight breeze blows; the air is perceptibly charged with sand in a moderate breeze; and during storms their progress may be nearly two inches an hour, while their average advance is fifty feet a year. Many a once flourishing oasis is now buried forever beneath the great sand dunes, which "ever slowly widening, silence all"; nothing stops their insidious advance; "in some localities extensive and prosperous settlements have been overwhelmed and blotted out of existence. They form, however, but a minute part of the surface of the desert. This is a mass of gypsum, clay and stones, dotted over every few yards with mounds from six inches to three feet high. The origin of these is a tough bush of a kind of succulent samphire, with a small cream-colored acacia-like flower, and tamarisk with woody stem and gray leaf. These grow very slowly in dense, close bosses, and the sand drifts and packs into them, opening a solid mass. But for these an automobile could travel fast in almost any direction. As it is, to go a hundred yards, a score or more of them have to be levelled, and since it takes five minutes' hard labor with the shovel to level a single one, any lengthy progress is very slow and fatiguing.

States That Parisian Sage is Best Hair Tonic

"I had a bad case of dandruff. My sclap was full of dandruff and it came out thick and scaly. My hair came out badly; often I nearly cried on account of losing my pretty head of of hair.

I heard of PARISIAN SAGE and only had to use two bottles, before the hair stopped coming out, the scalp became clean, and all the dandruff disappeared. The hair became silky and one big reason that I liked PARISIAN SAGE was that it kept the hair smooth, silky, and clean with no traces of stickiness.

I believe this tonic to be the best on the market as there has been no return of dandruff, or hair falling out whatever. I am glad to publicly endorse the use of PARISIAN SAGE. I have often endorsed its use and am glad to do it." 33 E. Bond Street, Corry, Pa.

Montreal, Feb. 24.—Le Devoir, the organ of Henri Bourassa, appeared yesterday with the following appeal spread in large type, seven columns wide, across its front page:

"In 1875, the Federal Parliament decreed that minorities in the west should enjoy complete educational liberty. The law was proposed by a Liberal; the Conservative (Miller) declared that it would forever protect minorities against the tyranny of majorities, at least as long as justice and British institutions prevailed in this country.

"Are justice and British institutions things of the past?"

Montreal, Feb. 24.—A patient arrived at the general hospital yesterday with a case of freezing which was remarkable for more than its severity.

The man's hands were frozen in Edmonton and his ears were frozen in Montreal. He traveled across the continent with his hands swollen double their normal size, and able to do very little to help himself. He arrived here Thursday night and went out for a walk. The storm had followed, however, and Constable Maloney found him yesterday with both ears frozen and his hands frost-bitten a second time.

OPTICAL SERVICE
BY
A. A. FOWLER, Eyesight Specialist

In every trade, profession or branch of work, there are found a few men, who from special fitness, or education, or both, are better prepared to serve you in their line than the multitude of others in the same field.

Since Optometry requires especial ability in both professional and mechanical work, men that are fitted to do both equally well are scarce. Therefore you cannot be too particular about the selection of the man to whom you entrust your eyes.

The professional work—the examining and measuring of your eye defects, must be skilfully done. The mechanical part—the making and adjusting of your glasses is no less important.

Every phase of optical work is thoroughly and intelligently done here. From the first step in the examination to the final adjusting of the frame or mounting not a single thing is overlooked or slighted. I do all the work myself, and having had such fine success with most difficult, and neglected eyes, I do not hesitate to say that I can give you perfect satisfaction.

A visit will incur no obligation.

MISS GLADYS SEWARD AND HER SUCCESSES IN DRESDEN

Miss Gladys Seward is meeting with remarkable progress in her studies at Dresden, as will be seen by the references by musical journals to her work, which are given. Her success is a source of great pleasure to the citizens of Peterborough, and more especially those interested in musical circles.

The following are some comments on Miss Seward's work:

The Dresdent Guide—Miss Gladys Seward, a prominent pupil of Harry Field, greatly distinguished herself as a soloist at the last Symphony concert, her performance giving genuine pleasure and artistic satisfaction, especially in the way of musical achievements. The evenness and smoothness of her runs rival those of her esteemed teacher. Miss Seward altogether is the born pianist, "sans peur et sans reproche." For a thorough comprehension of Beethoven's G. Major Concerto, which she interpreted, she is, as yet too young, anyhow, the technical part was most marvelously mastered. The young lady's sense of rythm and her perfect control over herself (means to say: no stage fright) enables her even to give signs to the orchestra, as one is wont to find only with experienced artists of note. This extremely gifted child-pianist, surely gives great promise in future; in fact, one already wonders at her perfect ease and her pianistic skill demonstrated in her readings. What she lacks for the present is artistic maturity and elevation, all attributes which she possibly cannot possess until experiences in life and some additional years have made her develop mentally. Considering that the Beethoven Concerto is a task even for Eugen d'Albert, or Busoni, or their rivals, Miss Seward may be glad to have done as well as she did on this occasion. Not having been able to stay to hear her solo, I can, however, on trustworthy authority, state that she acquitted herself of her task brilliantly, and to the highest satisfaction of the audience, who spent ample applause on all her presentations. After the Beethoven Concerto Miss Seward had a number of recalls. Her solos were received with storms of hand clappings.—A.G

The Lokal Anzeiger says:—At the Gewerbehaus Saturday concert, conducted by Willy Olsen, a young Canadian lady, Gladys Seward, appeared, who has had splendid successes on former occasions in our concert halls. Miss Seward, who still is, so to speak, a mere child, plays brilliantly, with greatly developed technique and self-possession. Her runs are well balanced and display a skill and practical experience which many might envy her. So confident is she in her work, she even finds time to give nods to the orchestra to follow her intentions, and one enjoys with her her delight in playing.

Beethoven's G. Major Concerto certainly seems easy to her now. Later, she may realize the sublime depths of this great work. It would not be reasonable to expect such a young piano virtuoso to realize the grandeur of Beethoven's spirit. In time she will feel more intensely in the matter. At present we draw attention to this great talent, which will ripen under correct guidance. Her teacher, Harry field, may be proud of the result he has reached so far.

Dresden Anzeiger —At the last Gewerbehaus Symphony concert, we made the acquaintance of a very gifted pianist, a pupil of the esteemed pedagogue, Harry Field. In spite of her extreme youth, she played such great works as Beethoven's concerto in G. major, as well as those from Chopin, Liszt and others, with astonishing technique and remarkable self-possession. It is true her sense has not developed sufficiently to grasp the great master's sublimity of thought, but, speaking generally, it was a most promising performance.

At a late Gewerbehaus concert, Gladys Seward, the talented young pupil of H. M. Field, played the G. Major Concerto of Beethoven, in a manner which reflects credit upon herself and her teacher. If Miss Seward, who is still very young, is not quite able to sound all the heights and depths of Beethoven, she nevertheless evinces enough genuine musicianship and efficient technique with a well developed sense for leading a fine cantilena, to render her playing convincing and satisfactory

Her especial merit just now, lies clearly upon the technical side of her art. When she awakens to more life, and to a warmer musical impulse and feeling she may with such equipment take a high place in the musical world. At present she seems to be posessed of great repose and plays with security and finish, being able now and then to give a warning nod to the orchestra when it does not meet requirements (as on this occasion) so that she saved the whole performance from disaster by her cool, well balanced head.

H M Field is busy with many concert engagements. Not long since he gave a concert in Chemitz, with the aid of Helen Read, who assisted with songs.

In Leipsic he played with the assistance of the singer D'Arnalle. Mr. Field has won excellent notices from the press generally.

A dispatch to the journal "Musical American" says—

Dresden, Jan 2—Gladys Seward, the American (our good neighbors claim Canadians as their own, when they make good) child-pianist, appeared as soloist with the Gewerbehaus Orchestra, under the leadership of Willy Olsen, recently, and gave a fine reading of Beethoven's G. Minor Concerto, and of numbers by Chopin and Liszt. The young pianist conquered her audience completely. Her technical ability and the ease and freedom with which she played point to a successful future for her. Harry M. Field is her teacher.

Ernie Marks Co. to Remain for Further Engagement

The popularity of the Ernie Marks Stock Co. was again demonstrated last evening by a large and well pleased audience at the Grand Opera House. The play presented was the five act English comedy drama "In Convicts Stripes." Ernie Marks as Simon Lazarus, kept the audience in the best of humor throughout the performance. The company supporting Mr. Marks were all up to the usual high standard, and the vaudeville specialties were all entertaining, De Leuna & De Leuna the sketch artists, were very clever. Miss Lida Gardner pleased greatly. Franklin A. Brooks, monologist, made a big hit and sang one of his own compositions at the finish of his act, making the verses from the audience and created rounds of applause. The company will present this evening the farce comedy "Happy Hooligan" and will also remain for the first three days of next week with an entire change of plays and specialties and will no doubt attract large audiences.

FARMERS HAD DIFFICULTY IN COMING TO MARKET

As was anticipated the market this morning was very small, the supply of meat being particularly meagre. Many of the farmers brought shovels with them to the city and a large number were forced to use them before they reached Peterborough. Some of the roads were entirely blocked for long distances, necessitating the farmers driving through the fields, and others that had been opened up in places were partially filled by drifts. Many of those bringing in the produce of the land were almost prevented from reaching the city by the bad roads, but by using the shovels judiciously when the sleighs became engulfed, and by leaving the road and driving through the fields where it was advantageous to do so, they finally arrived at the market.

One of the eager sellers on the market, who hailed from Otonabee, told how he was forced to unhitch the horses and drive them through snow up to their shoulders, then turn back and get the sleigh and bring it through the passage way, thus broken in the snow.

From the Springville direction there was only one sleigh on the market, the roads from that direction being in a bad condition.

On the other hand, the River Road is entirely open, and a load of hay was brought without difficulty for eight miles, to the city. The middle line of Smith is also passable, as a result of the efforts of the country residents, with their implements.

The road from Otonabee between McMartin's Corners and the locks was particularly bad, being filled almost all the way, between the two above mentioned points.

It was rather curious that the farmers after such trouble did not demand an exorbitant price for their goods, but such was the case in almost every line except poultry which are soaring higher than last Saturday.

Potatoes were scarce, but apples were fairly plentiful, although the demand for them was large. Butter did not fall below 37c. even at the closing hours of the market. There were no turkeys or ducks on sale.

The prevailing prices were:—

Pork, front, per lb. 10c.
" hind, per lb. 11c.
Beef, front, per lb. 8 1-2c.

SOCIAL EVENING AT MURRAY ST.

Willing Workers Proved Themselves Good Entertainers

The members and friends of the Willing Workers of Murray street Baptist church, spent a most enjoyable social evening on Friday in the school room of the church, which, owing to the tasteful decorations, had assumed a most home-like appearance. Those present were entertained by an excellent program as follows: — Mr. Huycke, Mr. Pollard, vocal duet; Miss Quinn, Mr. Huycke, instrumental duet; Mrs. Pettit, reading; Miss Childs, Miss Elcome, instrumental duet; Mr. Huycke, solo.

The enjoyment of the games and of the dainty refreshments was augmented by music provided by Cunningham's orchestra. The only disappointment was experienced by those who were unable to attend.

CANADA AS SEEN IN OLD COUNTRY

Glowing References Made to Conditions in This Country

An attractive little booklet, nicely bound and devoted to an exposition of the inducements Canada offers to immigrants from the mother country, has been published by Collings & Co., railway, steamship and emigration agents of North Fincley, London, N. Eng. The words on the outer cover of the booklet read as follows; "Canada, the largest, the richest and the greatest colony of Great Britain."

The boosting and recommendation which Canada receives from the pen of the editor of the little edition, is decidedly flattering and complimentary.

The following is a sample; "While the laboring man is aimlessly toiling away amid the thick smoky atmosphere of crowded centres in this country, there lies a land within a few days journey of England, where the climate is pure and invigorating, where the soil is teeming with wealth, where the rivers, woods and prairies abound with every kind of game and fish, where extensive farms may be obtained free, and where thousands of robust and happy settlers, well satisfied with their own success earnestly invite their struggling brothers and sisters in the Old Country to follow their flag and emigrate."

The publisher of the booklet, Mr. P. H. Collings, visited Canada in April, 1911, and passed through Peterborough. The "Review" on April 29th, interviewed the visitor from the old land, and the account of the interview appears word for word in the booklet.

Scores of testimonials from immigrants now happily settled in Canada, appear in the book, each one testifying to the happiness and contentment of the writer in this country.

Mr. P. H. Collings during his visit to Canada and to Peterborough was most favorably impressed, G. H. Howson, the local immigration agent, is in receipt of a communication from him, notifying him that he is sailing for Canada on April 17th, on the "Royal George," in charge of a party of one hundred immigrants billed for Canada. He expects to make the trip by April 27th. The party includes farmers, mechanics, gardeners, carters, domestic, etc.

PROMOTION FOR MR. W.E. THORNTON

To Take Position With Express Co. at Perth

Many young men have received their early training here in different walks of life, and then they have answered a call elsewhere and it can be said of the Peterboro young men who have left their homes to take higher positions, that they almost invariably make good.

This time it is Mr. Wilbert Thornton, of the Dominion Express Co., who has received a call. For five years he has been connected with the company at the local branch, under Mr. A. G. Carruthers, and as his ability and worth has been recognized, he is to be transferred to the branch at Perth, leaving about March 1st.

Outside the office, Mr. Thornton has made many friends and he and Mrs. Thornton will be greatly missed in the city.

Mr. Thornton's removal from the local office will mean that Mr. Wilbert Taylor, who is next in line for promotion will take his place.

BULGARIANS UP AGAINST IT

Had Hard Time to Make Themselves Understood

To be put off the train at a strange city in a foreign country with only five words of the language of that country at one's disposal, because the railway officials could not understand where you wanted to go is not a situation into which many people would like to find themselves. But that is just the predicament in which two young Bulgarians found themselves this morning when they were motioned from a C.P.R. train to the station platform, having ridden from Manvers.

Though possessing a considerable sum of money, an American twenty dollar gold piece, an Austrian twenty franc piece and about fourteen dollars in Canadian currency, between them, they could not make the ticket agent or Detective Pinchin of the C.P. R., understand their destination, and Detective Newhall was called to the rescue. The officer guided the strangers to the police station where Chief Thompson joined in trying to clear the situation.

By signs and the words Halifax, Montreal and Manvers, it was concluded by the officers that the two young men had arrived in Canada on Feb. 21st, and had been taken to Manvers to work for the C. P. R. Something did not suit there and they started for Montreal again, but without tickets. By the use of the calander it was ascertained that they were nineteen and twenty-one years of age respectively and also that they were brothers.

The lad possessing the Austrian twenty-franc piece had been trying to get a ticket with it and as the officials did not seem to know its value the boy became confused. Detective Newhall by the use of Canadian currency showed him its value with exchange at par. To avoid any trouble he arranged for two colonist tickets to Montreal for them and the C.P.R. detective was called to arrange for their safe journey. Chief Thompson gave them a note to the conductor asking him to see that they got through to Montreal in safety.

As they were leaving they saluted the officers in military style, and they appeared very grateful to those who were able to interpret the meaning of their broken English and gesticulations. They were also supplied with buns and bread before boarding the train.

LA GRIPPE'S VICTIMS

Left Weak, Miserable and Prey to Disease in Many Forms

One of the most treacherous diseases afflicting the people of Canada during the winter months is la grippe, or influenza. It almost invariably ends with a complication of troubles. It tortures its victims with alternate fevers and chills, headaches and backaches. It leaves him an easy prey to pneumonia, bronchitis, and even consumption. Indeed the deadly after-effects of la grippe may leave the victim a chronic invalid. You can avoid la grippe entirely by keeping the blood rich and red by an occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If you have not done this and the disease attacks you, you can banish its deadly after-effects through the use of this same great blood-building, nerve-restoring medicine. Here is proof of the wonderful power of Dr. Williams Pink Pills over this trouble.

M. Emmanuel Laurin, St. Jerome, Que., says, "I was seized with a severe attack of la grippe. I was obliged to stop work and remain in my bed for several weeks, and while I appeared to get over the first stages of the trouble I did not regain my usual health. I suffered from headaches, loss of appetite, and extreme weakness. I did not sleep well at nights, and would arise in the morning feeling tired and worn out. This continued for about two months, during which time I was taking treatment, but apparently without avail. Then I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got a half dozen boxes. By the time I had taken three boxes there was a decided improvement, and actually before I had completed the sixth box I was enjoying my old time health. I was strong as ever, could sleep well and eat well, and no longer suffered from lassitude and headaches. I have proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the pernicious after-effects of la grippe, and can therefore recommend them to other sufferers."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by going to the root of the trouble in the blood, which they enrich, and make red and pure. These pills cure all troubles due to bad blood, and if you are ailing you should start to cure yourself to-day by taking this great medicine. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

DOCTORS AFRAID TO OPERATE

Could Not Remove Stone From The Bladder. Gin Pills Enabled Him To Pass It.

JOLIETTE, P. Q.

"During August last, I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with Stone In The Bladder. He decided on an operation and was assisted by another doctor. They said the calculus was larger than a bean and too hard to crush, and that they could not take it out.

I returned home suffering greatly, and did not know what to do, but was recommended by a friend to try GIN PILLS. I bought a box and found relief from the pain at once. I took a second and third box of GIN PILLS after which I went back to the specialist.

THEY COULD DO NOTHING FOR HIM

He told me the calculus was reduced in size, still he could not relieve me of it, although he tried for two and a half hours.

I returned home and continued to take GIN PILLS as they reduced the pain very much, but I did not expect they would relieve me of the stone, but to my great joy, I passed the stone on October 3rd, and am now a well man and very happy.

I am sending the stone to you so that you can see for yourself what a great work GIN PILLS did for me. GIN PILLS are the best medicine in the world and because they did so much for me, I will recommend them all the rest of my life".

J. ALBERT LESSARD.

Isn't it wonderful? Just think of these simple pills, that even children can take, being able to perform what the greatest specialists in Canada could not do. Surely, the days of the miracle have not passed away, as long as we have Gin Pills. These wonderful pills dissolve stone in the bladder or kidneys because they are a natural solvent for uric acid, which causes calculus. If GIN PILLS are not sold in your neighborhood, send us 50c. for a box or $2.50 for 6 boxes. Sample free if you write us mentioning this paper. National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada Limited, Dept. B Toronto.

MANGA-TONE BLOOD AND NERVE TABLETS are especially for women and girls to make them well and strong and rosy. 50c. box. 113

CAMPBELLFORD FAILED TO SCORE IN FIRST OF SERIES

Abstainers Secured a Five Goal Lead for the Return Game on Tuesday.

When the T.A.S hockey team goes to Campbellford on Tuesday next they will have a five goal lead to play on as a result of last night's game at Brock street rink, when the abstainers won by a 5—0 score, the half-way figures standing 1—0. It certainly looks like the local seven for the round, as the red and white aggregation on their own ice, when in the pink of condition, were unable to beat them by more than one goal and that was notched in overtime.

Neither team showed the form expected of them when they started off last night before the two hundred spectators, the largest crowd to view a Trent Valley League game this season. They all wanted to have a swipe at the puck at the same time and, on several occasions there were as many as eight men in a bunch with the remainder hovering on the outskirts of the melee instead of in their right positions, where they would be able to take a pass. For most of the first half no one seemed to break away and when a man did make a rush his team mates were falling over each other in their eagerness to take the pass.

Grover Halpin, the kid centre of the T.A.S, notched the only counter of the first half on a nice lift, after a scrimmage on a face off. Halpin is a promising youngster and with careful coaching would make a good centre. He is eligible for a couple of years yet for the Junior O.H.A and will likely be seen in a junior uniform next year. He has not learned to play his position very well yet, being inclined to rove, hence he misses passes he would otherwise utilize for counters.

The only time the visitors came near counting in that half was called offside by Referee Waghorne. Patrick Shannon, their cover-point, often came within hailing distance of "Doc." McFadden, but he might as well have had a wooden man at centre as Roe, as he could not shove it anywhere near the goal, even when there was no one but McFadden to beat.

Everyone started at a hard clip after the breathing period, Campbellford with the determination to overcome the one goal lead and redeem themselves for the first half's performance and the abstainers to make the margin good enough to make them safe at Campbellford next Tuesday. For several minutes there was no score though each of the net guardians were called upon to block several times.

McPhee, the rover on the local seven was the man who at last did the trick on a rebound after Halpin had shot at Grant's pads. The same boy scored twice more and Halpin got the fifth, the Campbellford seven failing to get even one.

The following were the lineups. F. C. Waghorne, refereeing;

A. AND D. SEPTET WON FROM HALL'S

Fast and Clean Game at Brock Street Rink

The Trent Valley League game last night was followed with a meeting between the hockey teams of Adamson and Dobbin, and Adam Hall establishments, and the A. and D. septet finished ahead, with a 6—5 score, the figures at the half being 5—2, in their favor. It was a well played contest with Butcher at right, Mitchell in goal and the defence for the winners playing clever hockey. Art Reynolds, of last season's junior O.H.A. team, and Moore, worked well for the losers. There were no penalties. The teams were:

A. and D.—Goal, Mitchell; point, Throop; cover point, Clark; centre, Dayman; rover, Paterson; left wing, Butcher; right wing, Buller.

Mark Kennealley, referee.

START TRAINING FOR BOAT RACE

Oxford and Cambridge Crews Hard at Work

London, February 24.—Though neither of the University eights are definitely settled each president has put his crew through a good deal of practice both in the tubbing line and in the eight work. The boat race is not to be rowed until March 30, but the preliminary stages of the training are by no means the least important, and for advice at this period Cambridge has the services of the famous light blue stroke, Capt. J. H. Gibbon, while Oxford as usual are under the care of Dr. Bourne.

Both crews have undergone numerous changes recently, but matters are settling down now and the composition of each should be provisionally arranged before long.

Oxford at present look like getting into a fixed combination before their rivals. This is undoubtedly owing to the fact that their stroke, R. C. Bourne, has taken up his old position in the boat. His arrival has enlivened the work and with plenty of talent behind him one cannot but expect to see another fine dark blue crew take the water at Putney again this year.

Other likely members of the eight which will eventually represent the university are C. W. R. Littlejohn, A. F. R. Wiggins, L. G. Wormald, C. E. Tinne, and H. B. Wells (cox.) These, with the exception of Wiggins, who was spare man, were all in the 1911 crew. Of the new oars, F. A. H. Pitman and A. H. Wedderburn seem likely.

Unlike Oxford, the light blues are in bad need of a stroke. It seems impossible that the president, R. W. M. Arbuthnot, who occupied that position last year, will do so again, in which case it is difficult to think of any one with sufficient experience and ability. Captain Gibbon, however, is sparing no efforts in this direction, and being an authority on the requirements of the stroke thwart should soon find a suitable man for the post. L. S. Lloyd, last year's spare man, may fill the position, but nothing will be decided for the moment. Other old blues who should be in the boat again are C. A. Skinner (cox.) R. LeBlanc Smith, F. E. Hellyer and S. E. Swann. If only the light blue crew can settle down soon there is no reason why they should not be a good combination for they possess a quantity of good talent.

SPORT TALK

At the Brock street rink yesterday, two Collegiate teams from Form 1B. and Form 1C. met in a game of hockey that resulted in a tie, the half time score being 1—1, and at full time 2—2. The game was even all the way, though O'Brien in goal for the 1B team was kept busy at some stages of the game in blocking shots from Hayes and McCarthey. Moore and Stewart for the 1B seven played the fastest games. The teams were:

	Goal
O'Brien		Lipsett

Moore		Letellier
	Rover
Stewart		McCarthey

The local management are anxiously waiting the announcement of the Canadian League meeting, and it is likely that an effort will be made to raise the salary limit from $1200 to $1500, London, Hamilton and Ottawa managements being in favor of this move.

RAISE THE SALARY LIMIT.

This year will be a vital one in the history of the Canadian League, and the managements of the different teams believe that it will be necessary to raise the salary limit in order to give the right kind of baseball to the fans.

With the exception of Peterborough the teams are nearly all completed, although both Hamilton and London are having trouble with some of last year's players, who are holding out for more money. The local management is busy signing up a lot of new ones, and it would not be surprising to see some of the youngsters grab up the positions which were filled last season by the present hold-outs. Two good shortstops have been signed and Harry Brant will have to travel hard this year if he intends to hold down that position with the team. The management is also casting about for a good first baseman, and a couple of good fielders, while one or two third basemen will also be signed.

A meeting of those interested in the placing of a Canadian League team in this city, is to be held in the Oriental parlors at nine o'clock this evening.

The Ottawa University team defeated Laval last night 13 to 1, and are now champions of the Eastern section of the Intercollegiate Hockey Union. Frank Heffernan starred for the college.

After to-night's game between Orillia and Toronto Canoe Club only two two Ontario Hockey Association fixtures remain to complete the season. On Monday Midland plays in Preston in the intermediate finals, and on Tuesday the Paddlers go to Orillia. Thanks to the practically uninterrupted winter, the season has been one of the shortest and most satisfactory in the history of the Association.

Indoor Baseball

A meeting to discuss indoor baseball is called fo rthe men's recreation room at the armories to-night at nine o'clock. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

From Belleville

Belleville, Ontario—The papers printed in a backwoods town up north of Belleville, refer to Belleville as the "Dead City" The town referred to, has a slight attack of swelling of the "Conkorboko," just at present. In the course of a few years when Belleville annexes this inland burg and designates it, in its enlarged sphere, as Peterboro Ward, the residents of that section of greater Belleville will awaken to the fact that mushrooms, when ripe, are fit to pick. In This New 5-Pound Package, Redpath Extra Granulated Sugar Comes To You Pure And Fresh From The Refinery

Of course you know Redpath Sugar.

For more than half a century it has been recognized as the standard in Canada. Here, in this new 5-Pound Package, you get Redpath EXTRA GRANULATED SUGAR at its very best. Packed at the refinery by machinery, and sealed up tight in these 5-Pound Cardboard Cartons, the sugar is never touched by hand, or even exposed to the air, until you yourself open the package.

Thus it has no chance to pick up foreign flavors in shipping, in storage, or in the open barrel at the Grocer's. Barrel scrapings or other impurities simply cannot get into it.

In the Redpath Package you get sugar as fresh and as clean as if you had caught the crystals as they came from the wonderful machine which completes the refining process.

Besides acting as a perfect protection for the sugar in its journey to your pantry, the new Redpath Package makes a clean and convenient box in which to keep it while being used.

In fact there are just the same advantages in buying Redpath Sugar in the new 5-Pound Package as there are in buying cereals, tea or biscuits in the handy cartons in which they are now generally sold.

Of course every Grocer will also sell Redpath Sugar in bulk or in the 20 lb. cotton bags, to any who prefer it in the old way.

All the leading Grocers will have this new Package on sale. Ask your Grocer for the old reliable Redpath Sugar in the new 5-Pound Package.

GUARD THEIR HEALTH!

Children Who Grow Very Fast Need Careful Watching.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills would make her healthy and happy.

Next to infancy, the years between ten or twelve and eighteen are the most critical in life, especially for the boys and girls who grow too fast. Rapid growth and the physical changes that are taking place render them particularly liable to weakness and disorders of the digestive system, kidneys or lungs that very frequently, when allowed to run on, condemn them to a lifetime of suffering.

It is most important that at this period of life those organs which carry off the body's waste and impurities—the bowels, the kidneys and the skin—should be kept active and vigorous.

Nothing will do this more effectively than that good old-fashioned remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. It acts directly on each of these organs, enabling them to do their work properly, and thus keeps the whole system pure and healthy.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are still made from precisely the same formula as when our grandparents used them, for nothing better has ever been devised.

Made by W. H. Comstock Co., Ltd., Brockville, Ont., and sold by all dealers at 25c. a box. 13

CLASSES WERE ENTERTAINED

Good Time Provided by Young Ladies' Bible Class

Last night in the Sunday school room of the George street church, Mrs. Couch and the young ladies of her class entertained most successfully, the young ladies of Mrs. Stubbs', Mr. E. Logan's and Mr. J. F. Thornton's Bible classes. The entertainment was made up chiefly of fun-making contests, including a singing contest, in which choirs of ten competed and a "dinner party" contest, which was won by Miss Bennett. Much pleasure was also afforded by the new game called "Playing train," in which all of the one hundred guests took part and which was voted by all to be one of the most enjoyable items on the program.

Between the contests the following program was successfully rendered, those taking part being members of the entertaining Bible class:—

Solo—Miss Etta Kemp.

Recitation—Miss Ada Payne.

Violin solo—Miss Hazel Pentland.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the program, by the members of Mrs. Couch's Bible Class, and while these were being partaken of a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Couch and her class, on the motion of Mr. E. E. Logan. The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" brought to a close the very enjoyable evening.

THE PARK ST. PIERROT TROUPE

New Vocal and Musical Organization for the City

A new musical and vocal organization came into existence last night at a well attended meeting of the Mens' Social Club in the parlours of the Park street Baptist church. It is to be known as "The Park Street Pierrot Troupe," the first of its kind ever organized in the city. There will be a chorus of twenty male voices, besides other vocal talent.

The first practice will be next Tuesday evening at the church, unless otherwise ordered by the management.

The officers elected were as follows—

President—Mr. Harry Hill.

Leader—Mr. A. Palmer.

Sec-Treas.—Mr. James Theobald.

Musical Director—Mr. H. Follis.

Committee of Management — Mr. William Laws, Mr. James Garside, and Mr Thos. Marks, with the officers of the society.

The announcement of the date and place of the first concert will be given later.

It has been practically decided to introduce the Home Rule bill in the Commons on March 20.

DR. NEAL SPOKE ON TUBERCULOSIS

At a well attended meeting for men last night, in St. James' Methodist church, Dr. Frank Neal gave a very comprehensive talk on the subject of "Tuberculosis." He took up the predisposing causes of consumption in individuals and in environment, the symptoms of the disease and the mode of treatment of the disease. In doing so he gave some very practical and much needed advice and information on the work that is being prosecuted in Peterborough by the Peterborough Health Association.

Mr. J. H. Moss occupied the chair. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Men's Brotherhood.

Gen. Nelson Miles, U.S. army, saw a man fall dead opposite the White House, Washington, and on reaching him found he was his brother, who was visiting him.

The expected duel between Count Pecci, nephew of the late Pope Leo XIII., and commander of the Papal Palatine Guard, and Prince Altieri is off, because of Papal demand.

A Discovery of Vast Importance

It Is Now Admitted That Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Coughs, and Colds Can Only Be Quickly Cured By Mixing a New Medicine With the Air You Breathe.

Scientists acknowledge that medicated air treatment is the only treatment that will cure these diseases, and that stomach medicines are worse than useless.

Catarrhozone air treatment has been found to be the most effective way to cure all diseases of the throat, lungs, and nasal passages. Its action is so prompt that in less than an hour an ordinary cold is cured, and after a more thorough use of Catarrhozone, Bronchitis, Catarrh, and all diseases of the throat and lungs are completely cured.

Catarrhozone is a very simple and powerful method of treatment. You simply breathe it through the inhaler and it immediately passes over every air cell of the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes, curing and healing as it goes.

Catarrhozone treatment affords little drops of healing for sore places in the lungs, throat, and nasal passages.

WATCH WINDOWS DAILY

ROBERT FAIR & Co. Limited

SOME BIG CHANGES ARE TO BE MADE AT ELLIOT'S STORE

Mr. T. C. Elliot, of the Beehive, informed a Review representative to-day that his store is to be overhauled to provide for increased shelving and other conveniences with the object in view of quadrupling the capacity of the premises. For the present time the stores on either side are not available, but every inch of space in the present large building is to be put to the greatest possible use, and when all the work is completed, the store will be one of the most up to date ready to wear establishments in Canada.

THIRD FLOOR

The floor is to be entirely devoted to ready to wear goods and the improvement here will probably be the most marked as "ready to wear" will in future stand out as the distinguishing feature of Elliot's store. In this department there will be an opening, larger than ever before attempted in Peterboro, high class Parisian dresses costing up to three and four hundred dollars being on exhibition, while the range of lingerie dresses this season will run all the way from $1.50 to $300 each. From this it will be seen that a visit to the store will well repay the ladies of Peterboro. Such a profusion of beautiful high class styles will be associated only with Elliot's for outside the larger cities so high a quality of goods will not be shown. Of this department Miss M. Derry and a competent staff will be in charge.

MILLINERY DEPARTMENT

Miss Noble, who has been in New York studying the Spring styles will occupy the whole of the second floor with a greatly enlarged stock of millinery prepared in her own inimitable manner. Extensive alterations will also be made on the second floor, the south door being made into a show window, the back of which will extend into the store, about six feet.

WINDOW DRESSING

Something new and interesting is promised in the matter of window dressing. An increase will be made to the office staff and Mr. White who has been trained under Mr. Elliott's special care is to look after the sales staff on the main floor. He will greet the people in his usual happy style, as they enter the store and see to it that everyone is courteously received. The management will be pleased to receive their large number of patrons and their friends at any time.

DAN WHETUNG WAS SNOWBOUND

Trip To-day Was the First Since Last Wednesday

Mr. Dan Whetung who drives the Chemong stage, arrived in the city to-day on his first trip since Wednesday last, owing to the severe storm of this week.

Mr. Whetung says that he was unable to even get his sleigh to the road, so great were the drifts. It was one of the worst tie-ups he has witnessed for several years, the storm being one of the old time variety. The farmers took advantage of the calm yesterday, to get some shovelling done and it is now possible to drive from place to place, though it is dangerous for drivers to meet and try to pass in the deep snow.

RUNAWAY HAD COLD BATH

Went Into the River at Spaldings' Bay

A serious accident was narrowly averted this morning when, in turning out to allow another sleigh to pass, a cutter on George street, near King, caught in the street car track and overturned, throwing the two lady occupants out on the track. Luckily the two ladies thus uncermoniously expelled from the conveyance, had time to get themselves out of the way of the street car, and except for a general shaking up are none the worse for their misadventure. The spirited animal attached to the cutter became frightened and making a wild dash away, turned off the road to plunge into the river near Spauldings Bay. The cold splash, however, seemed to quiet him and the spectators with some little difficulty succeeded in getting him to the shore. The cutter was but slightly damaged and the horse suffers only from a few scratches.

COURT OF REVISION

A meeting of the Court of Revision was held last evening at the city hall committee room, with Wm. Langford, Sr., (chairman), W. F. Johnston and B. Morrow, present.

Nine communications were received complaining of over-assessment, and wrong taxation.

SPORT TALK

By an 8-3 score, Frontenacs defeated Eatons last night. Eatons win the round and thereby the Senior C. H. A. championship by four goals George Richardson, the old Queen's and 14th Regiment player strengthened the Frontenacs considerably.

It will probably be news to Peterboro fans that there is a Graham Clarke trophy in the city emblematic of the championship among the Juveniles of the city, age limit, under seventeen years.

This trophy which was donated by Messrs Fred. Clarke and Chris Graham, was last won by the chieftains three seasons ago, and is a challenge cup.

Any club wishing to compete this season would do well to intimate their intentions at either of the newspaper offices.

Dr. Wightman holds the cup for the chieftains.

President A. M. Paton, of the town hockey league, has received word from Col. Hon. Hughes in donating a cup for competition is gratefully appreciated by the executive of the town league and it is proposed to have a number of other good prizes as well.—Warder.

CHRISTENING OF BRIGANDS' BABES

The brigands and bandits of Italy have always evinced an anxious regard for the spiritual welfare of their children. Especially has this been shown to be the case in Italy, where outlaws have been known to invade a village in force and insist that their children should be baptized with all the rites of the Church. They have even resorted to the heroic method of catching a priest and dragging him off to their mountain fastness in order to give their offspring a proper start in life. One of the bishops of the Roman Catholic Church once played an unwilling part in such a brigand christening.

He was travelling through the mountains when brigands came down upon him and carried him off to their stronghold. There he was treated with great consideration. He found a rich repast prepared for him, together with rich wines. The men vied with one another in courtesy, and the only signs the holy man saw of the profession of his entertainers were the loaded guns and long knives that formed their arsenal.

The next morning, after breakfast, the chief of the band said, politely but firmly, to the bishop—

"Christen my bambino; christen him Guiseppe. Receive him into the holy Church or I will have you hanged."

The baby was christened and blessed, and the parents were satisfied. Another meal was had, and with every manifestation of good-will, the bishop was sent forth upon his journey. Not only was no attempt made to rob him, but he was forced to carry away a bag of money for the benefit of the Church. Nor were the good offices of the bishop forgotten for year after year, as the anniversary of the christening came round, a gift for the holy man was left at the door of the religious institution where he lodged.

NEW STREETS IN SOUTH END

They Are Shown on Map of Recent Issue

Many citizens, who never have occasion to visit the southern part of the city many be unaware and unfamiliar with the names of several small streets which have sprung up in that vicinity. A recently compiled map of the city, prepared by the Canadian Publicity Bureau, and issued with the compliments of the corporation of the city of Peterboro, gives the names and location of some of these streets. Four of them, running north off Romaine street, are Kent street, Lynch street, Maple and Pine. Another new thoroughfare is Maude street, running from Lansdowne to Princess, near Lock. This latter is one of the most recently opened.

DIABETES

Is one of the most cruel maladies of which mankind is subject, the many complications arising from time to time, making life seem almost unbearable. For many diseases, medical, scientific, and physiological knowledge and experience gained from years of deep research, has achieved remarkable results, but, up to now, little has been discovered of practical value in the treatment and cure of Diabetes. In fact, people have begun to look upon the disease as well-nigh incurable. Even in the medical profession can be found doctors who are of the same opinion, regarding sceptically any claim to ameliorate or improve the condition of a diabetic patient.

It can, however, be proved that SANSOL'S ANTIDIABETES lastingly cures all cases of Diabetes. Full particulars can be obtained from the Sansol Mfg. Co., Winnipeg, Man.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cured

"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor, and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular, and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night, and couldn't get to sleep again. None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment. It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system, and set things right. It seems as if Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made me young again, and all my color, spirits, vigor, and health of former days have returned to stay."

Every girl and woman should use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly. They help a woman in many ways. Beware of the dealer who asks you to take an inferior pill on which his profit is larger than on Dr. Hamilton's. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone, Co., Kingston, Ont.

LATEST MOVE BY ITALIANS CREATED BIG SENSATION

Sixty Were Killed When Syrian City Was Shelled.

Beirut, Syria, Feb. 26.—A flotilla of Italian warships Saturday morning bombarded this city, killing sixty peaceful inhabitants and wounding a large number of others. They also sank a number of small Turkish gunboats anchored in the port.

Appearing suddeny off the port, the commanders of the Italian gunboat Volturno and the armored cruiser Guiseppe Garibaldi sent to the authorities a peremptory demand for the surrender of the Turkish gunboats in the harbor.

Before the provincial governor could deliver his reply to the Italian commanders or ask for time to negotiate, the cruisers opened a devastating fire. In a short time the Turkish gunboats in the harbor were disabled and in a sinking condition. The custom house was greatly damaged and other buildings also suffered severely.

Three torpedoes finally destroyed the Turkish vessels. The Turks fought bravely but were at a great disadvantage, as they were unable to manoeuvre their vessels and their guns were of small calibre.

During the fighting in the harbor a mob looted the Government arsenal and seized rifles and ammunition. One shell burst close to an American building, but injured no one. All the Americans in the city are safe.

Italian Commander's Version.

Rome, Feb. 26.—The first official statement of the destruction of two Turkish warships Saturday in Beirut harbor was received yesterday from Admiral Favarelli, commanding the squadron, to which the cruisers, Guiseppe Garibaldi and Francesco Ferrucio, the attacking vessels, are attached.

The admiral sent the following despatch:

"I surprised the Turkish gunboat Avnillah and the torpedo boat Angora at daybreak in the port of Beirut. These ships were ordered to surrender, the time limit being fixed at nine o'clock. My decision was communicated to the governor and consular authorities through the Turkish officer who came aboard.

"At nine o'clock a signal demanding surrender was again hoisted. As no answer was given, fire was opened on the gunboat, which replied energetically. At 9.20 the gunboat was silenced, fire having broken out on board. Having suspended fire, I proceeded aboard the Guiseppe Garibaldi to the mouth of the harbor, where an action ensued with the Angora, which was badly damaged. Her destruction was completed with a torpedo.

"The report that the town of Beirut was bombarded is absolutely false. The squadron then departed."

Admiral Faverelli received a despatch from Admiral Direvel, who returned to Beirut in the afternoon aboard the Francesco Ferrucio, to ascertain if the Turkish vessels were entirely out of action. He found one of them still afloat and accordingly opened fire and sunk her with a few shots.

British Cruiser Leaves for Beirut.

Malta, Feb. 26.—British armored cruiser Lancaster left here yesterday under sealed orders, presumably to protect British interests at Beirut.

Expell Italians From Syria.

London, Feb. 26.—Turkey has decided upon the expulsion of all Italians in Syria, according to a special despatch from Constantinople. The order will go into effect immediately, but fifteen days' grace are allowed.

Sensation In Paris.

Paris, Feb. 26.—The Italian action at Beirut has caused somewhat of a sensation here, for France, like other European countries, has important commercial interests and religious and educational establishments in that city. An outbreak of fanaticism, which the bombardment of Beirut is calculated to provoke, is feared, and to prevent as far as possible the natural consequences of such an outbreak, the French Government has ordered the armored cruiser Admiral Charner, which is now at Suda Bay, to proceed to Beirut without delay.

Alarm In Vienna.

Vienna, Feb. 26.—The bombardment of Beirut by Italian warships occasions serious misgivings here. The Vienna papers indulge in sarcastic comments on "Italy's war prowess." Die Zeit urges the powers to take action to prevent Italy from repeating such attacks.

YUAN IS TO BE NOTIFIED

People Are Indifferent to the Proposed Program.

Pekin, Feb. 26.—The Government is preparing an elaborate reception for the delegation of Republicans who are coming here under the leadership of Tang Shao Yi from Nanking, to notify Yuan Shi Kai of his election as President of the Republic. The people, however, seem to be indifferent respecting the momentous visit. Telegrams have been received from various sections of the country, embodying various proposals with respect to the future. It is believed that Yuan Shi Kai is secretly inspiring this with the object of dividing the south on the matter of location of the capital.

While Yuan Shi Kai realizes the imperativeness of uniting the country, he is proceeding confidently in the knowledge that he possesses the means of averting or politically defeating his opponents. Apparently the country is very strongly in favor of Yuan Shi Kai as President. Many soldiers who are not Republicans, have given their full adherence to the President-elect, and Yuan Shi Kai holds the confidence of both Manchus and Chinese, which probably indicates that the suspicions that he was double-dealing for the court's overthrow were unwarranted.

The new Government has decided that the country shall hereafter be officially styled the Great Republic of China, the word "Great" being intended to include Thibet, Turkestan, Mongolia and Manchuria. It has practically been decided to convert the Forbidden City into a Government enclosure, where all the offices will be situated. When the Empress Dowager and the Emperor depart the extensive grounds around the winter palace will be converted into a public park.

TWO GUESTS WERE RESCUED

From Galt Hotel—Damage About $5,000.

Galt, Ont., Feb. 26.—Fire broke out at 7.30 p.m., Saturday, in the Hotel Imperial and destroyed the eastern wings. The damage is $5,000, insured. The hotel is owned by A. J. Cardy, Niagara Falls. The blaze started in the lavatory.

The guests had a narrow escape with their lives. Miss Cowan and Mrs. Hounhan were bravely rescued, the former by James Harrocks, a boarder, and the latter by H. Rowley, a hotel porter.

Three guests descended by a rope ladder from a bedroom, Turner Virgin, Dr. Durran and James Hall. The first named made a thrilling escape from a third storey window. The Hotel Imperial is the oldest existing in Galt and is noted throughout Canada for its fine bowling green.

POSTPONEMENT IN COAL MINERS' STRIKE HOPED FOR

Lloyd-George Will Urge That Notices be Delayed.

London, Feb. 26.—One of the largest mine owners in England, who has taken part in the conferences with the Government, expressed the opinion last night that the only hope of preventing a coal strike, which will involve more than 800,000 miners, is for the Government to persuade the men to postpone their notices.

James Haslam, the Labor member for Derbyshire, and the agent of the Derbyshire Miners' Association, has stated emphatically that this is impossible, as the miners have decided to stand together, and the Welshmen will persist in laying down their tools on Feb. 29 unless their demands are acceeded to. Mr. Haslam added that the Derbyshire miners could settle the whole question in twenty-four hours, but they could not break away from their fellow-workers in other fields.

In other quarters a more optimistic feeling prevails, based on lack of harmony among the Welsh leaders, which may lead to a postponement of the notices. It is understood that Premier Asquith and Chancellor Lloyd-George will endeavor to induce the miners at Tuesday's conference to hold their notices in abeyance temporarily, and the owners to deal with all questions which have arisen, except that relating to the minimum wage, at once, leaving the latter to be negotiated later. In the English districts, in case of a strike, the miners will be permitted to keep the mines clear.

SCOUT MASTERS FAIL TO AGREE

Opinion Divided on the Question of Smoking.

Toronto, Feb. 26.—The first convention of the Ontario Scout Officers' Association was concluded by the Saturday afternoon session, at which papers were read on different points of interest to the movement, and a general discussion took place. The convention was voted a great success and it was decided to hold one annually in the future.

"Camp Sanitation" was the subject of a paper read by A. E. Mercer at the Ontario Scout Officers' conference. The speaker laid stress upon the necessity of taking every precaution to preserve the health of the boys while at camp. At the conclusion it was decided to have the paper printed.

A. Clark of Wycliffe College brought up the question as to whether a scout master should smoke. He was of the opinion that they should not. C. J. Atkinson endorsed this opinion. He thought that a scout master would have a greater influence if he would not use tobacco. The pros and cons of the question were discussed and opinion was pretty well divided.

The following are the officers for the ensuing year: Hon. President, Sir John Gibson; president, W. K. George; first vice-president, Lt.-Col. A. E. Gooderham; second vice-president, J. H. Collinson, Hamilton; Capt. R. S. Wilson, secretary-treasurer, commissioner for Ontario; H. G. Hammond, assistant commissioner and provincial secretary.

Executive, C. W. Henning, Hamilton; Lyons Woolverton, Grimsby; Lt.-Col. D. M. Robertson, Toronto; Noel Marshall, Sir Henry Pellatt, Sir Edmund Walker, Gen. Cotton, J. C. Eaton and James Scott.

DESPERATE ATTEMPT TO BREAK JAIL

Prisoners in London Nearly Succeeded in Getting Away.

London, Feb. 26.—Patrick O'Brien, alias William Maloney, the notorious thug, who robbed two women recently in the city, shooting one of them, and Gordon Lamotte of Strathroy, held on a charge of highway robbery, made a desperate attempt to break jail shortly after seven o'clock Saturday morning.

Turnkey Sproule, who was in charge of the corridor where O'Brien and Lamotte were quartered, was on his rounds and shortly after seven o'clock decided to let them out of their cells. Turnkey Archie Graham was stationed at the door of the main corridor, as has been the custom since O'Brien and Lamotte have been incarcerated there.

Maloney was in the far east cell with Lamotte next and Charles Kennedy, a trusty, in the third. The latter, who helps in the kitchen, was liberated first. Then O'Brien's cell was opened, and later Lamotte's. Turnkey Sproule was bent over and just as the lock was liberated O'Brien, who is a powerful man, dealt Sproule a fearful blow in the back, knocking him down. They stole his keys and rushed to the main quarter. Here Graham held them at bay, and finding it impossible to get past him, the thugs ran into the south exercise yard. In the meantime the police had been telephoned for and they arrived just in time to prevent O'Brien and Lamotte breaking through the big door. They were placed in solitary confinement and will be closely guarded from this time on.

The grant was accepted and a cat will at once be installed and supported upon the $50.

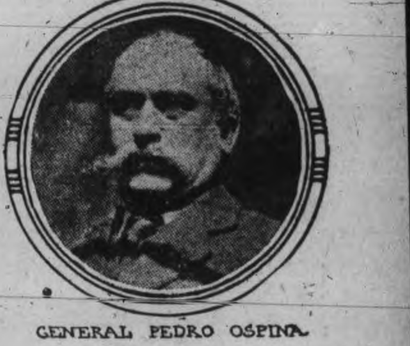
COLOMBIAN MINISTER WARNS SEC. KNOX AGAINST PROPOSED VISIT.

SECRETARY P. C. KNOX.

HUNTINGTON WILSON.

G. CARLOS RESTREPO, PRESIDENT OF COLOMBIA



GENERAL PEDRO OSPINA.

In a startlingly frank note to the State Department, General Pedro Mel Ospina, Colombian Minister to the United States, suggests that the proposed visit of Mr. Knox, Secretary of State, to Colombia during his Caribbean trip is inopportune. His reason for diplomatically rebuffing the Secretary is that the United States refuses to arbitrate the interpretation of the treaty of 1846. Colombia contends that the American policy at the time Panama seceded violated the treaty. It is generally believed that Mr. Knox will not now visit a Colombian port, as

NOTHING FOR ST. CATHARINES

No Chance of City Getting C.N.R. Main Line.

St. Catharines, Feb. 26.—Since the visit to this city and district on Friday of Engineer Wicksteed of the Canadian Northern Railway Co., St. Catharines has practically abandoned hope of having the main line of the company diverted from Thorold to this vicinity. Wicksteed had interviews with representatives of most of the leading manufacturers in the city. He also looked over the surveyed route and the one suggested as an alternative, but finally declared that from this city it would be impossible to obtain a grade that would permit an engine to draw more than twenty-five cars, whereas the grade on the route surveyed will permit of the hauling of fifty cars in one train.

The route surveyed begins the ascent of the mountain this side of Grimsby. It rises near Jordan, then makes a detour towards St. John's, circles back to Decew's Falls within a few miles of his city, then passes on to Thorold, using the present bridges over both canals and continues on to Niagara Falls.

Mr. Wicksteed, however, threw out the suggestion that in all probability the company will begin at once on the construction of an electric spur from Niagara-on-the-Lake through this city to connect with the proposed main line at Jordan.

In such case, the present bridge across the old Welland Canal, now used by the Port Dalhousie division cars, would be used. General Managed Seixas is in Toronto conferring with Canadian Northern officials as to the work of the company in this district during the coming spring and summer.

TO FREEZE OUT TARIFF BOARD

House Committee Will Strike Out Appropriations for Salaries and Expenses.

Washington, Feb. 26.—The House committee on appropriations has decided to strike out the appropriations for the next fiscal year the sums included for the salaries and expenses of the tariff board.

The board will not be legislated out of office, but will be literally starved out of existence after the expiry of the current fiscal year on June 30 next. The House, however, will appropriate a sum of money for statistical research, the results of which are to be at the disposal of the ways and means committee in framing tariff legislation. This step is justified upon the ground that the House of Representatives and not the President is charged with the duty of originating all money bills by the express terms of the constitution.

There has been much complaint during the present session respecting the course of the tariff board in taking up for investigation certain schedules of the tariff to the neglect of others upon which the House desired immediate action.

COL. ROOSEVELT WILL RUN IF HE IS NAMED

Former President Says He is Ready to Represent Republicans.

New York, Feb. 26.—"I will accept the nomination if it is tendered me and I will adhere to this decision until the convention has expressed its preference," is Col. Theodore Roosevelt's reply to the letter of seven Republican governors asking him to stand for nomination.

The much-awaited reply was given out last night at Col. Roosevelt's offices here during his absence on a trip to Boston. It was unexpectedly brief, but definite. It follows:

"Gentlemen:—I deeply appreciate your letter, and I realize to the full the heavy responsibility it puts on me, expressing as it does the carefully considered convictions of the men elected by popular vote to stand as the heads of government in their several states.

"I absolutely agree with you that this matter is not one to be decided with any reference to the personal preferences or interests of any man, but purely from the standpoint of the interests of the people as a whole. I will accept the nomination for President if it is tendered to me and I will adhere to this decision until the convention has expressed its preference. One of the chief principles for which I have stood and for which I now stand and which I have always endeavored and always shall endeavor to reduce to action, is the genuine rule of the people; and, therefore, I hope that as far as possible, the people may be given the chance through direct primaries, to express their preference as to who shall be the nominee of the Republican Presidential convention.

"Very truly yours,
"Theodore Roosevelt."

The seven governors assembled at Chicago two weeks ago and drafted a letter to Col. Roosevelt asserting that there was a popular demand for him to be President again and urging him to declare himself as to whether he would accept the Republican nomination "if it came unsolicited and unsought." For two weeks Col. Roosevelt considered the letter, indicating plainly that he had no intention of making a hasty reply.

The governors who signed the letter were: William E. Gasscock of West Virginia, Chester H. Aldrich of Nebraska, Robert P. Bass of New Hampshire, Joseph M. Carey of Wyoming, Charles S. Osborne of Michigan, W. R. Stubbs of Kansas and Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri.

Efforts of Col. Roosevelt's friends to induce him to make an earlier declaration of his attitude on the Presidential question had been unavailing. His laconic remark to a friend in Cleveland last week that "My hat is in the ring—you will have my answer Monday," was the first real indication that he had in mind an affirmative answer to the governors' letter.

Upon promise that the reply would be given out last night a small army of newspaper men gathered at the colonel's offices early in the evening. Secretary Frank Harper met the reporters punctually and gave out the correspondence without comment. He said he was in no position to comment, and in view of the author's absence in Boston, where he will spend several days, it was impossible to get an elaboration of the statement made in the letter.

News Caused Sensation.

Boston, Feb. 26.—"I think I have made my position clear, I have no plans beyond this night. For to-morrow and afterwards, no one knows what is in store."

This was Col. Roosevelt's response to the appeals made to him last night for some word in regard to his statement. As he spoke, he smiled expansively. Then he added with a chuckle:

"I'm having a quiet literary evening. I havn't talked politics with anyone."

Col. Roosevelt was at the home of Judge Robert Grant, a Harvard classmate, with whom he spent the night. News of his decision spread around the city like wildfire last night and created a great deal of excitement. Judge Grant's home was besieged by a crowd of persons anxious to see the colonel, who was quietly discussing literature within. When at last he appeared at the doorway, he beamed upon his interviewers as though something had made him more than unusually happy.

Roosevelt Third Man?

New York, Feb. 26.—The Press on Saturday published a despatch from Washington. It said: "What is disturbing the Taft Republicans more than any other bit of information brought here is the statement that Col. Roosevelt will run for President even if defeated in the Chicago convention. Men of considerable importance are discussing this to-day."

The story is based upon the alleged conversation of a U. S. Senator with the former President in The Outlook office. Col. Roosevelt is represented as saying:

"The nomination in Chicago must be made by the open voice of the Republican party, and not by manufactured delegates. If the will of the people is not impressed upon that convention then there must be a third party with its own candidate."

BRUCHESI ON THE JUDGMENT

Blames Non-Catholic Ministers for Marrying Catholics.

Montreal, Feb 26.—His grace the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal preached yesterday in the cathedral in order, no doubt, to meet the comments coming from Justice Charbonneau's judgment. His grace commented on the marriage question from the Catholic standpoint, saying that the people of Quebec always supposed that the civil law here confirmed automatically a judgment of the ordinary dissolving of a marriage when the minister is not a competent party. A judgment in the contrary sense had just been delivered and his grace hoped that final decision will be reached in the higher courts. He strongly condemned non-Catholic minister for marrying two Catholics, generally presenting themselves before him with what he called a civil permit. If these ministers had not done this, all this trouble and dissension would have been avoided, and, speaking for the Catholic clergy, Mgr. Bruchesi declared that no priest would marry two Protestants.

Referring to the future, his grace said: "Come what may, the Catholic marriage will always be a sacrament and can never be infringed upon by the civil law."

SCIATICA

EXPECTED DEATH ANY DAY

Another Case Where Life Was Saved and Health Restored by "Nerviline."

It is because he feels it his solemn duty to tell to the world his faith in Nerviline that Victor P. Hires makes the following declaration: "For three years I was in the Royal Mail service, and in all kinds of weather had to meet the night trains. Dampness, cold, and exposure brought on sciatica that affected my left side. Sometimes an attack would come on that made me powerless to work. I was so nearly a complete cripple that I had to give up my job. I was in despair, completely cast down because the money I spent on trying to get well was wasted. I was speaking to my chemist one day, and he recommended "Nerviline." I had this good liniment rubbed on several times a day, and got relief. In order to build up my general health and improve my blood I used Ferrozone, one tablet with each meal. I continued this treatment four months and was cured. I have used all kinds of liniments, and can truthfully say that Nerviline is far stronger, more penetrating, and infinitely better than anything else for relieving pain. I urge everyone with lumbago, neuralgia, rheumatism, or sciatica to use Nerviline. I know it will cure them."

CURED SIX YEARS

There isn't a more highly-esteemed citizen in Westchester than Mr. Hires. What he says can be relied upon. For six years since being cured he hasn't had a single relapse. Don't accept anything from your dealer but "Nerviline." 50 cents per bottle, trial size, 25c; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

UNION LABEL

PEOPLE ARE SATISFIED

It is amusing to follow the frantic efforts of the Liberal press in their endeavor to turn public sentiment against the Borden government. That they are meeting with inglorious defeat is not to be wondered at. The people of Canada knew the danger in which they were placed with the Laurier crowd in control at Ottawa and when the proper time came gave the word that prevented the consumation of an agreement that would have done inestimable harm to the Dominion. And this was not the only danger that was safely passed, when the Laurier government dropped the reins, as subsequent happenings have proven. Since then every weapon which could be invented has been directed against the new government, but the people are satisfied.

CHURCHES AND TELEPHONES

A despatch from Erie, Pa., says:—"In order that the sick, the halt and the lame may hear revival sermons, the telephone company's office at Edinboro, near here, has installed telephones in the church and they are connected with the homes of those who are unable to attend, thus affording an opportunity for them to hear the sermons."

The telephone company may run short of material as a result of its scheme, but it will not necessarily mean that the doctors will enjoy a greater business. There are many others beside the sick, the halt and the lame, who would like to install such a service in their homes and it isn't necessary to go to Erie to find them. Every pastor of a church no matter how hard he may strive to make the Sunday services attractive and interesting comes in contact with this class of people. Their ailment is laziness, but they don't say so.

EMIGRANTS AND AGENTS

The idea has been prevalent in Canada that Emigration Agents in the Old Country are to a great extent responsible for the condition in which many immigrants sometimes find themselves after having spent a short time in this country, they being unable to make any progress whatever. Blame is attached to the agents for the glowing manner in which they refer to Canada, they giving the idea that all an emigrant had to do was to sail across the ocean and all he desired would come his way. But this is not the case as will be seen by the following "hints to emigrants," which are given in a booklet issued by agents in London:—

1.—It is of no use your going to Canada unless you try to adapt yourself to the local conditions and to respect local feeling. You must be content to learn at first, rather than teach. Many emigrants have failed because they forgot this.

2.—You must not expect that everything is done in Canada in the same way as it is in Great Britain. Remember that Canada is a great Dominion with long settled laws, habits and customs, which are not to be changed at the bidding of every new arrival. When you have been in Canada a little while you will value them also.

3.—Every country has its own methods of work, and in Canada you will often find the arrangement of the workshop or the farm and the tools you will use different from those at home. You will soon accustom yourself to the change if you try.

4.—Do not, above all things, try and impress your Canadian employer how much better we do things in England, for it will only make him dislike you and perhaps not care to keep you in his employ. Canadians often resent criticism of their country or its methods, but you should remember that they have been working in Canada long before you were born, and they are more likely than a stranger like yourself to know what suits the country best.

5.—You should be aware of strangers, and always apply to Licensed Agents or Immigration Agents. You should always have enough money on you to meet the necessary travelling expenses, but you should be careful to hide your resources from outsiders.

6.—You should be careful not to buy or rent land from persons about whom you know nothing, until at all events you have examined the land yourself and have taken independent advice.

7.—You must not be too fastidious in accepting employment, for trades are not so sharply defined as at home, though they are becoming considerably more specialised than they used to be. A carpenter, for instance, will often be called upon to act as joiner or wheelwright, or a mason as a bricklayer, etc.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Blind River uproar has subsided. The Postmaster-General was asked by some people to change the name to the French equivalent and others not to change it. It remains the same.

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—An estimate that the wheat surplus of the four leading export countries showed a loss of 435,-000,000 bushels, lifted the market to-day for a brief period, but the rest of the time prices were weak, largely on account of the indifferent cables. Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Feb. 24.—The demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat for May-June shipment continues dull, but there was a fair enquiry from Glasgow for nearby shipment, which orders are difficult for exporters to fill on account of the scarcity of freight and the difficulty in getting wheat forward from the west. There was some demand for oats for shipment and as bids were in line a few loads were sold. A good business is being done on spot in car lots of oats and corn. Flour is fairly active and the demand for bran and shorts is good. Butter is firm under a good demand.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"I guess it depends more on the man in your climate, doesn't it?" asked Potter. "But over here it's sometimes a question of hours for both sides. Why, a chum of mine went out to San Francisco on business which was going to keep him just one day. He met a girl at dinner, fell in love with her while she was eating her soup and told her so before dessert came along. She vacillated over the ice cream, but said yes with the peaches and pears. Next day they got married, and he brought her back east for a wedding trip."

"What did they do about the banns?"

"Oh, Americans have done away with banns since the Revolution, I guess. When we fellows fall in love we're in a hurry."

"Marry in haste, repent at leisure," I quoted primly.

"We don't repent. We just get a divorce. It saves worry. Incompatibility of the affections or fatty degeneration of the temper or something like that—but I don't need to talk of such things to you. Nobody who got a prize package like Lady Betty Bulkeley would part with it while he had a button left on his coat."

"I don't see what buttons would have to do with it," I said, but as I had always been sent out of the room at home directly any one began even to mention divorce, I thought I had better go upstairs and dress for dinner at Coney Island. Mr. Parker begged me not, but I would, and Vivace barked as if he were under the impression that he was a watchdog, so thanks to him I got away without trouble.

Chapter 5

I COULD hardly have supposed that there were as many people in the whole world put together as at Coney Island, and most of them were in pairs, like the animals on their way to the ark. They all seemed to be engaged to each other and delighted with each other's society, or else married and dreadfully tired of it. Or else they had dyspepsia. Or else they had brought too many of their children, for they had droves of very small ones, who bellowed louder than any English children I ever saw and tyrannized over their parents in the most unbridled way.

But Coney Island was fun, and I felt more than ever that I was dreaming—a long, long dream of sands and huge hotels and queer little booths.

For dinner we ate nothing but fish, of so many different kinds and some of them so strange, that I almost feared the dream might turn into a nightmare afterward. I found the clams rather like olives. You hate the first, but when you have had three you feel you would like three dozen, and they are not at all easy to forget.

We went down under the sea and were introduced to horrific monsters, sailed up and down on switchbacks, which made Mrs. Ess Kay ill, but she nobly refused to desert me in such surroundings—a state of mind which made her chin look incredibly square. Eventually, after many adventures by the way, we arrived at the moon, and not only got into the middle of it, but made acquaintance with the inhabitants, none of whom appeared to be over two feet high or to have anything to speak of between their chins and their toes. After that experience, minstrel shows and concerts and persons who told your fortunes with snakes, or ate glass, were rather an anticlimax; still, I enjoyed them all so much that I was incapable of extreme annoyance when we discovered that the Evening Bat had an "impressionist sketch" of me which made me look like an elderly murderess.

We got back to New York almost indecently late, but in the meaner parts through which we had to pass on the way to our gorgeousness the streets swarmed with poor creatures, pallid with heat, evidently preparing to camp out of doors till morning. It was a strange and interesting sight, but made me feel guilty when I recalled it afterward in my great cool bedroom, with my five different kinds of baths.

Next morning I was waked early to find more presents of flowers in huge stacks and to get ready for West Point. I was a little tired from yesterday, and the dry heat gave me rather the sensation of being a scientist's field mouse in a vacuum, so that I should have dreaded even a short journey if we hadn't been making it by water.

It was even better than if we had been ordinary tourists on one of the big Hudson river boats I had heard about, for we were to travel luxuriously in a little steam yacht of Potter's, which he calls the Poached Egg because it can't be beaten. It is not a vulgar yacht, as one might have thought from the name, but a dainty thing that ought to have been the Butterfly, Ye White Ladye or something of that sort. When I said so, Mr. Parker insisted that he would at once rechristen her Lady Betty, which would have a prettier meaning than anything else, and then I was sorry I'd spoken.

I had expected to be disappointed in the river, because nearly everybody I met on board ship tried to impress upon me that we had nothing half so good in England, while as for the Rhine, it wasn't a patch on the Hudson. I even wanted to be disappointed, out of patriotism or spite, which are much the same thing sometimes, but I couldn't. I found the Hudson too grand for petty jealousy. It seemed to me like a great, noble poem, rolling on and on in splendid cadences, and I have heard some music of Wagner's that it reminded me of somehow.

The hills or mountains—I'm not sure which to call them—even the Palisades which have been so dinned into my ears, were not high enough to satisfy me at a first glance, but soon I saw that it was their grouping and their perfect proportion in relation to each other which made them so exquisite. As we steamed on along the green and golden flood between banks that appeared to fall back in admiration I began to love the Hudson so much that I could have shrieked with rage at the great staring advertisements on hoardings. What can the scenery have done to Americans that they should do their best to spoil it? No wonder most of them come over to see ours, which we have the sense to let alone even if it crumbles.

Sally and Mr. Parker laughed at my fury, but I didn't see how they could take it so calmly. "It isn't my scenery, so I don't trouble myself," said Potter when I asked why he didn't get up a secret night expedition to burn or chop down all the hoardings. But I'm sure English people aren't careless like that. Each person thinks the good of the whole country is his business—at least one would suppose so by the way everybody who comes to Battlemead talks politics and affairs of public interest morning, noon and night. It seems, though, in America only policemen and people who live in Washington care about politics really except to get benefits for themselves, and it isn't good form to be too much interested in such things.

Victoria would like this rule, for she has confessed to me that political questions bore her, and she would much rather be talked to about love or motoring or even bridge, but she always reads the newspapers hard for fifteen minutes while Thompson does her hair, if she's going out to a big lunch or dinner, so that she will be up in everything and able to talk brilliantly to members of parliament or stuffy old things in the house of lords.

I calmed down somewhat after I'd recovered from the first shock. There was so much to admire that it seemed a shame to fret. Besides, it was soothing to sit on the yacht's deck under a pale green awning, drinking what I call a lemon squash and Potter and Sally obstinately believe to be lemonade. While Mrs. Ess Kay angrily read nasty paragraphs about herself and hilariously about her friends in a regular highwayman of a paper, Smart Sayings, Sally Woodburn told me charming legends of the Hudson, dear old Dutch things, most of them, which had been made into plays and poems, and I was sorry when we came to West Point at last.

CANALS IN ENGLAND.

They Had Their Origin In a Matrimonial Disappointment.

The British system of artificial inland navigation, which includes several thousand miles of canal, may be said to have had its origin in a matrimonial disappointment. The Duke of Bridgewater, the originator of the system, was engaged to be married just after he had attained his majority. A dispute arising between the couple, the match was broken off. The duke's chagrin changed the course of his life. He gave his first and last ball to the London world of fashion and then buried himself among his coal fields at Worsley. Eschewing the society of women, he refused even to employ them as servants in his manor house.

Disappointed in marrying the most beautiful woman in England, he determined to unite by means of a canal his coal fields with Manchester, then beginning its career as a manufacturing town. In those days good roads were the exceptions, bad roads the rule. The cottons of Manchester and the woolens of Leeds were conveyed from place to place on pack horses, which jogged along in single file. The freight charge from Leeds to London was $63 a ton. When the duke's canal was finished the prices of coal and other commodities in Manchester fell one-half.

The success of this canal started the duke to build one which would connect Manchester with Liverpool. To procure the funds he reduced his personal expenses to £400 a year. So straitened was he at times that the London bankers hesitated to discount his note for £500. Sometimes when "hard up" he would send his steward upon a collecting tour among the tenantry of the ducal estates. The steward would ride from tenant to tenant, getting £5 here and £10 there. When he had collected money enough he would return and pay the canal laborers their weekly wages. In a few years, however, the duke's canals paid him an annual revenue of £80,000.—New York Press.

THE WORD MELODRAMA.

Originally Meant a Play In Which Music Was Introduced.

Nowadays "melodrama" is in general use as denoting a purely sensational play, with an all but impossible hero, heroine and villain among the characters represented. Formerly the word kept more closely in its signification to actual derivation. "Melodrama" is compounded of the Greek words melos, a song, and drama, an action, a play, and was applied to two sorts of performances when it first came into use.

It signified a play, generally of the romantic school, in which the dialogue was frequently relieved by music, sometimes of an incidental and sometimes of a purely dramatic character. On the strength of his "Pygmalion" J. J. Rousseau is credited with the invention of this style. Some of the so called English operas of the older school, such as the once famous "Beggar's Opera" and the once popular "No Song, No Supper," are in reality true melodramas.

In the second place "melodrama" was applied to a peculiar kind of theatrical composition in which the actor recited his part in an ordinary speaking voice, while the orchestra played a more or less elaborate accompaniment appropriate to the situation and calculated to bring its salient features into the highest possible relief. The merit of the invention of this description of melodrama belongs to George Benda, who used it with striking effect in his "Ariadne auf Naxos," produced at Gotha in 1774.—London Globe.

BETTER
OPTICAL SERVICE
BY
A. A. FOWLER, Eyesight Specialist

In every trade, profession or branch of work, there are found a few men, who from special fitness, or education, or both, are better prepared to serve you in their line than the multitude of others in the same field.

Since Optometry requires especial ability in both professional and mechanical work, men that are fitted to do both equally well are scarce. Therefore you cannot be too particular about the selection of the man to whom you entrust your eyes.

The professional work—the examining and measuring of your eye defects, must be skilfully done. The mechanical part—the making and adjusting of your glasses is no less important.

Every phase of optical work is thoroughly and intelligently done here. From the first step in the examination to the final adjusting of the frame or mounting not a single thing is overlooked or slighted. I do all the work myself, and having had such fine success with most difficult, and neglected eyes, I do not hesitate to say that I can give you perfect satisfaction.

PRESENTATIONS TO MISS L. STOCKER

Office Staff of the C. G. E. Regret Her Departure

On Saturday evening a very pleasant social gathering of young ladies took place, when a miscellaneous shower was tendered to Miss Lily Stocker, of the general office department of the Canadian General Electric Company, who left this morning for Toronto to fill a splendid position. For three years Miss Stocker has been one of the most popular and generally liked members of the office staff of the company and by the obliging and willing performance of her duties, and her general likable qualities won the sincere regard of her employers and of her associates in business, generally. It is not exaggerating to state that Miss Stocker's departure will cause a keen feeling of regret to the whole office, and particularly with those with whom she was in constant association during office hours.

At the farewell shower given for her on Saturday evening all the young lady employees of the office were present, with a few other intimate friends. Miss Stocker was deeply touched by the evidences of the esteem with which her friends regarded her. The evening was passed with games and refreshments, winding up with an enjoyable dance.

On Saturday morning Miss Stocker was remembered by the male office staff, by the presentation of a beautiful club bag.

In her new surroundings and position, Miss Stocker will always have the heartiest and most sincere wishes of her former business associates and personal friends in Peterborough.

THE BAPTISTS IN QUEBEC

Rev. E. Bosworth Tells of Grand Ligne Mission Work

There is no doubt about it: the Baptist Church is carrying on grand and successful missionary work among the French Speaking population of Quebec. The very core this fruitful gospel ministry is the Grande Ligne mission, and the work of evangelizing the Roman Catholics there, is being rewarded with no small degree of success.

It was about these matters that Rev. E Bosworth, secretary of the above mission, delivered a powerful and significant message to a large congregation at Murray street Baptist church on Sunday morning.

Possessed of rare pulpit and oratorical powers, Rev. E. Bosworth speaks with an enthusiasm and zeal, which unquestionably reveals where his heart lies. Qualified to speak comprehensively on the work, by twenty years of work at the mission, he expoused in a strong and commanding manner the splendid efforts being promulgated in Quebec, for the conversion of Roman Catholics and the strengthening of the grip of the Gospel throughout the province as a whole.

In a prelude to his sermon, the speaker remarked on the glorious future and possibilities before this fair Dominion. The people of Canada he felt, were laying the foundation of one of the mightiest nations of which history has, or ever will hear. But this foundation must be strong. The national foundation must be right, or what of the national structure. One thought which he strove to impress upon the congregation was the awful responsibility resting upon Canada, in the building up of this great nation. In this national structural work, the Grande Ligne mission was nobly doing its share.

Proceeding to enlarge on his work in Quebec, the speaker stated that two fifths of the population of Quebec were composed of French. The other three-fifths were made up of British and other nationalities. Out of the comparison of these two, the question arose, what was God's purpose in putting these two races together in this land. Without attempting to be presumptive in questioning, or devining God's purpose, the pastor felt that it was unquestionably for the purpose of having the two races jointly develop this nation. They could do and were doing this in three clear ways. First, commercially, the world owes a lot to the French. There were the French Protestants and the Huguenots, who escaped from the persecution in France and landed in all parts of the world. They were a fine patriarchal people, and possessed of many trade secrets. Into Britain they carried the secrets of architectural weaving and glass making, two things which have been developed to the highest possible pitch.

Politically, the French must be considered. There must be some strong political stones in the foundation on which every nation must be built.

Continuing, the reverend gentleman drew some pointed and telling comparisons in the teachings of the Roman Catholics and Protestant religions. He pleaded for the wielding into one of the Protestant and Roman Catholic bodies, a union working in harmony for the advancement of the Gospel of Salvation.

He likened the conditions in Quebec to a field of grain, one portion of which was carefully tended, sowed, plowed and guarded with assiduous care. The other half might be full of mustard and other noxious weeds. When the strong winds came, they would sweep off the latter, carrying the noxious and harmful seeds into the carefully tended and abundant other portion, bearing destruction in its wake

Rev Mr. Bosworth spoke at the Park street church in the evening.

ST. LUKE'S BELL CAME DOWN AGAIN

Was Not So Fortunate as on Its First Fall

A Sunday morning catastrophe might have occurred yesterday at St. Luke's Anglican church, had anyone been in the vicinity at the time. Just as the service was about to commence the bell parted from its fastenings in the belfry and after falling to the roof of the porch, glanced off and struck the pavement below with a heavy clang. The entire top of the bell was broken and will either necessitate extended repairs, or a new piece of metal.

This is the second time a similar accident has happened to the bell, but on the former occasion the bell was not damaged.

WINDING UP OF THE METER CO.

Assets Have Been Sold to A. R. Williams Company

It may be of interest to Peterboro people to learn that the liquidator for the estate of the Peterborough Meter Co., Ltd., which business was moved to Uxbridge some time last year, writes as to the final winding up of affairs. He says that the assets have been sold to the A. R. Williams Co., of Toronto, and the total amount realized from all sources was only $150.00, and excluding the question of the costs of the assignment, the wages claim alone amount to $2581.00. Of necessity there will be no dividend.

THE PRIDE OF THE ARMY

Offering of Ernie Marks Company at Grand To-night

A packed house greeted the Ernie Marks Stock Co. at the Grand Opera House Saturday evening to witness the farce comedy "Happy Hooligan." Ernie Marks as Happy Hooligan, kept the large audience in a constant uproar of laughter from the rise to the fall of the curtain and the supporting company were all excellent in their respective roles, and the vaudeville specialties as usual, very entertaining. De Leuna & De Leuna, sketch artists, presented an act that was highly amusing. Miss Lida Gardner pleased greatly and Franklin A. Brooks, monologist and topical singer, entertained the audience with some good jokes and new songs, which created much laughter. The company will remain for the first three nights of this week, presenting for the first time here the great military drama "The Pride of the Army," and will, no doubt, attract a large audience.

BLACKLISTER PUT SOME AWAY FOR RAINY DAY

Pleaded Guilty to Charge and Was Fined $13.40

Allin Armstrong was charged in police court this morning with having had intoxicating liquor in his possession on February 22nd, while he was on the prohibited list, and, upon pleading guilty was assessed $13.40.

Armstrong did not wish for an audience, and requested that his case be heard privately, but His Worship could not see that the charge was one out of the ordinary, and the offender had to take his medicine before all the railbirds.

Inspector Stewart had Armstrong sworn, and questioned him as to where he procured the "firewater." To the magistrate he said that he drove a dray for White Bros., and had been put on the black list on Jan. 29, for the second time. During the period intervening between his release and Jan. 29th he had procured three bottles of whiskey, and put them away for use when he should go on the "list" again, as he knew that his people intended having the ban renewed on his first offence. He wanted it for an "eye-opener" and to "keep his head level."

"You evidently wanted a hair of the dog that bit you," remarked His Worship. "Had I known that you deliberately provided yourself with liquor with the intention of breaking the law, I should have made the fine $20.00. If you were as provident for your family it would be a great deal more manly," continued the magistrate.

Armstrong was given ten days in which to pay the money.

FIRST OFFENCE.

Two local men were charged with being drunk in a public place, but it was their first offence, and they being penitent, His Worship let them off with a warning.

DEFENDANT ABSENT.

Wm. Lavery, against whom there was a charge of being drunk and disorderly, did not answer to his name this morning, and he will receive a summons from Chief Thompson.

KOREA AND THE YOUNG PEOPLE

Missionary Address by Rev. Mr. Keith at Knox Church

Rev. Dr. Wilkie, of Toronto, who was to have given an address to the Young People at Knox church yesterday evening, did not come and Rev. H. J. Keith, the pastor, occupied the pulpit and took up Rev. Dr. Wilkie's subject, "The Korean Missions and the relationship of the young people of Canada towards them."

The pastor traced the history of Korea from a couple of centuries back and noted the developments along the different lines. He told of the first Christian missionaries to that land and of how they were persecuted until 1887, when Korea was opened to foreigners. He also gave examples of the sincerity of the Koreans, who have accepted christianity.

In concluding the speaker said that in 1907 the motto was "One million Korean souls for Christ." The motto to-day was "Korea for Christ." The people of Canada should keep in touch with the progress of the Gospel in Korea. The young people should not only be interested in the young people of that foreign land, but they should demonstrate it. The question was "What share are we going to have?" "When Korea has been evangelized are we going to be able to point to the district in which we assisted?"

THE ST. GEORGE'S CHORAL SOCIETY

First Concert to be Given in Grand Opera House

The St. George's Choral Society will hold their first annual concert early in April, in the Grand Opera House. It is intended to put on a high-class musical program and the Society are practicing part songs, glees, etc., by Danby, Mornington and other famous composers. The society was formed at the commencement of the present year and has already about seventy members. Practically every church choir in the city is represented in the membership, and although the majority hail from over the sea, membership is open to all ladies and gentlemen interested in choral work. It is the intention of the society to take up some of the higher class of music later in the year. Possibly the Peterborough public will be given the opportunity of hearing one of the oratories, perhaps Handel's Messiah." The committee would like intending members to join as early as possible in order to put in the necessary number of rehearsals for the April concert. The society is entirely undenominational, All Saints' parish hall having been secured for rehearsals through the kindness of the wardens.

WAGE EARNERS

Only $5 needed to start you on the high road to prosperity as a Home Owner instead of a Rent-payer, or as a Wage Saver instead of a Wage Spender. Stop! think, and add up all the money you have earned during the past five years? Where has it gone? How much has been saved? Several wise men bought Lots from me during the past four years, and are now worth from $200 to $1000; some having their Deeds, several others having good Gardens and Cosy Homes with small balances to pay, easily handled. Young Men are buying my Lots and saving money which would be spent if not locked up in this way, and the increase in value is doubling their dollars rapidly. My Bonus offer—Pay $5, and I give receipt for $10, for short time only.

MANY MUSICAL GEMS TO BE HEARD IN "MADAME SHERRY"

Two Performances at The Grand Next Saturday.

Ev'ry little movement has a meaning all its own,
Ev'ry tho't and feeling by some posture can be shown
And ev'ry love tho't that comes a-stealing,
O'er your being must be revealing
All its sweetness in some appealing
Little gesture, all its own.

This is the chorus of that haunting melody which forms the musical theme of "Madame Sherry," the Hauerback-Hoschna musical comedy which has scored such a tremendous success in Chicago and New York and which is coming to the Grand.

If perchance you haven't learned the words, you surely know the tune. If you have not, there's something decidedly amiss with your musical education. Surely you cannot lay the blame at the door of the cafe orchestras, the parlor pianos or the street whistlers. "Ev'ry Little Movement" is a tuneful epidemic. Two weeks after the initial American production of "Madame Sherry" at the Colonial Theatre, Chicago, the score of the piece and especially its theme number, were becoming popular in every part of the country from Boston to San Francisco. By the time "Madame Sherry" reached New York the melody had encircled the globe and the publishers of the score reported sales in London, Paris, Berlin Vienna, South Africa and Australia After its first New York performance the tune was heard on the streets and in the subways.

Acton Davies, critic of the New York Sun, had this to say regarding the musical number: "There isn't a number in Karl Hoschna's entire score that isn't a musical gem in its way, and the motif song "Ev'ry Little Movement" is bound to be as great an epidemic as "The Merry Widow waltz. There is a lilt and swing and abandon to it that makes an absolutely devastating melody. Even the colored Hebe who presides over the ladies' dressing-room at the New Amsterdam succumbed to it at the Wednesday matinee. When a string orchestra repeated the melody during the entre' acts, she simply could not make her feet behave and went polkaing all by herself up and down the corridor. Yes, there's no doubt about it. We are in for another musical epidemic."

"Madame Sherry" will be presented at the "Grand" next Saturday, matinee and evening.

The seat sale opens Thursday

Scene from "Madame Sherry" the greatest Musical Comedy on tour, which comes to "The Grand" next Saturday, March 2, with special matinee at 2 30.

HORSES HAD THE RUNAWAY FEVER

Several Mishaps But No Great Damage Resulted

Some Sunday excitement was furnished yesterday afternoon at four o'clock by a runaway team attached to a double sleigh, owned by Pulkinghorn's livery, which was more spectacular than dangerous.

The sleigh was being driven up George street by a man whosed name was not ascertained, and at the corner of Charlotte and George, it slewed around in the street car tracks. The solitary occupant was dumped out and the team dashed up the main street at a real lively clip. At the Corner of George and Brock, they turned down and back through Chambers street on to Hunter. The outfit turned over on its side, and in that manner was dragged out Hunter and into the home stables. Save for a little damage to the back of the vehicle, no harm occurred.

A little later in the afternoon, a horse and cutter belonging to the same livery, were in a runaway in the vicinity of Nassau. A young lady and gentleman were the occupants of the cutter. Both were thrown out but suffered no injuries. The horse was caught shortly after.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Ayres

Late Winnipeg papers announce the death of Mrs. Ayers, widow of the late Parley J. Ayers, with old Peterborough people of the days of 1850 and afterwards. Few residents of the city will remember Mr. Ayers who carried on the business of axe making in a factory on the river opposite the Quaker Oats buildings. The deceased lady had reached the age of 84 years and had been living, for many years, with her daughter, Mrs T. H. Verinder in Winnipeg, and with another daughter, Mrs. G. McKay, about 20 miles from the city.

The funeral took place on Thursday 22nd inst., from the residence of her daughter in Winnipeg.

George C. Kerr

A very sad and unexpected death occurred in town on Monday, Feb. 19th. George C. Kerr, who was about our streets and in good health about a week before, took a severe cold, and pneumonia set in, which proved fatal. The deceased was well-known as one of our best citizens, quiet and industrious. He was born in Scotland, was a Presbyterian and in his sixty-second year. His son, David Kerr, died in November last, and he felt the loss very much. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Chas. Woods, and a brother, Mr. David Kerr, in Peterborough. The funeral took place on Wednesday to the Union Cemetery. — Cobourg Sentinel Star.

Late Mrs. Coughlin

Mrs Coghlin

Sunday evening there passed away Teresa Winnifred Coughlin, widow of the late Dr. Richard Coughlin, of Hastings, and eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Hurley, of 282 Hunter street. The late Mrs. Coughlin had been suffering from dropsy for several months and shortly before her death was in a favorable condition, the result was that the death came unexpectedly.

She leaves to mourn her loss four daughters, Misses Nellie, Marie, Teresa and Cecelia, and one son, Richard Coughlin. She is also survived by two sisters Miss Lilian Hurley and Mrs. E. J. McCarthy, and one brother, the Rev. Father Hurley, St. Michael's College, Toronto.

The funeral will be held to-morrow morning from her father's residence, 282 Hunter street, to St. Peter's cathedral, proceeding to the Grand Trunk station, where the remains will be sent to Hastings for interment.

ORILLIA YOUNKERS WILL HAVE FIVE GOALS TO OVERCOME

T.C.C. Took First Game of Junior Finals by 7-2 Score

Toronto, Feb. 26.—Before a crowd that packed Ravina Rink to the doors. Toronto Canoe Club defeated Orillia in the junior semi-finals Saturday night by the score of 7 to 2, which given the Canoeists a margin of five for the final game in Orillia to-morrow. The score at half-time was 1 to 0 in favor of T.C.C.

For two teams who were not suited to the sticky going, such as prevailed, the game was a great exhibition, with the back-checking of both teams being superb. Seldom has one seen two teams who checked like these two did Saturday night, the players sticking to each other like hawks the game was not as spectacular as it might have been, but the spectators nevertheless, under the conditions, saw some grand hockey played.

Orillia, with their superior weight, looked to be best suited to the heavy going, but at that, neither team showed to their best form, for the players, when they did manage to break away from their opponents, found the puck difficult to handle, and therefore often over-skated it. Both teams looked to be evenly balanced on the forward line, but the Canoe Club defence helped out their forwards more than Orillia.

The Canoeists had a majority of the play on the night, and in four or five instances just missed the goal by an eyelash. They were, however, fortunate in getting two by Cook from a long range, one going between his legs, after he had stopped it, while another glanced off his hand and into the corner of the net. Orillia were also lucky in their first goal, a pass from the corner glancing off Sidley's skate into the net.

Orillia suffered more through penalties than the Canoe Club, but they deserved it, and they were lucky not to receive a few more, with their slashing in the final five minutes. McNabb was the worst offender, and with him off the defence the visitors were greatly weakened. Mohan and Cook, in goal, were also very troublesome, although the latter, with all his slashing, escaped a penalty. Mohan took up too much time explaining things to the referee, and if reports are true, he was lucky to be playing in the second half, after what he called Referee Hern.

The return game to-morrow night at Orillia should be a tidy battle, and with hard ice, the best ever seen in Orillia. Neither team could do themselves justice Saturday night, and with better ice there can be no excuses on the outcome. Orillia fans want hard ice, and so do Canoe Club, but whether it is soft or hard, the Canoe Club look to be the coming champions, for going on the play Saturday night, Orillia can hardly overcome the five-goal margin.

The teams;

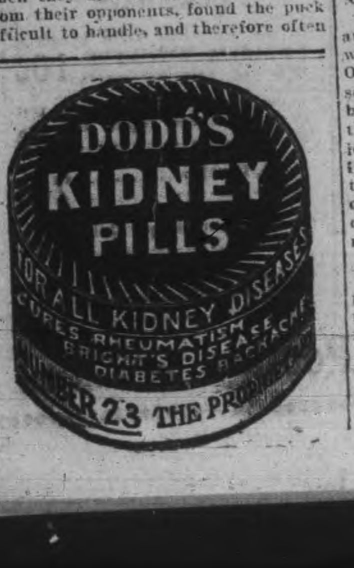
Referee—Wally Hern, Stratford.



CANADIAN BALL LEAGUE

Secretary Robinson and Local Men Discuss Situation

Those interested in the securing of a Canadian Baseball League franchise for Peterborough have two weeks in which to decide whether sufficient capital can be secured amongst the local business men to put a team in the league this season. Providing arrangements can be made with the owners of the ball park, the league, according to Secretary "Bobby" Robinson, of the Hamilton Spectator, who addressed a number of local men at the Oriental parlors on Saturday evening last, will place a team in this city, anyway, and as the franchise goes as a gift now, it is up to local magnates to get busy if they wish to secure it.

Mr Robinson cited the experiences of other towns where there were clubs in the League, and explained the working of the League. The first year a team would be more expensive, as it would be only in the experimental stage, and there would be outfits, etc., to secure.

A committee composed of Mayor Bradburn, Walter Davidson, Dr. Wightman, E. Desautel, F. Trebilcock and Ald. G. N. Gordon were appointed to consider the advisbility of forming a stock company to handle a team. They will meet either Secretary Robinson or President Fitzgerald at some future date and secure further data.

So far as the business men of the city are concerned, a team in the Canadian League could not help but bring them more trade as it would prove a great advertisement. In the summer months with the present attractions Peterborough is becoming a popular excursion city, and when the excursionists could witness a ball game such as is dished up in the Canadian League, they would come oftener, and in larger numbers than before. Then, again, a large number of fans go to Toronto to see baseball, but they would be satisfied with good baseball at home. Large amounts of money could be kept in the city, which is otherwise spent in Toronto and elsewhere every season.

Already there are two or three angling for the managerial job, among them being Abbie Johnston, who has visited the city a couple of times already, and he has expressed himself as being highly pleased with the prospects. He knows where he can get a number of ball players for his team, and it is just possible that he may land the job, though Second Baseman Templeman, of the Berlin Club, is also favored. They are both good men. Johnston had the Guelph team in second place at the opening of last season, and when he left after having trouble with the owner, it dropped to last position.

Judging from the support tendered the two hockey teams by the local fans this season, and every season in fact, they can be depended upon to do their share if a team is placed in this city. Ottawa supporters are highly enthusiastic over the proposition there, and are waiting for Peterborough to fall in line, as the jump to the western cities would be too great if this city or one near were not on the circuit.

GAME TO TAKE PLACE WEDNESDAY

Hastings and Lakefield Teams to Have Hard Game

The postponed game in the Trent Valley League semi-finals, between Lakefield and Hastings will take place on Wednesday evening next at the Brock street rink. Owing to the uncertain train service of last week, the Hastings seven were unable to get here on Wednesday last and it was necessary to postpone the game.

Both Clubs are running excursions and there will likely be some game as it is a sudden death fixture, the winner to go into the finals.

The game is called for 8.30 p. m. sharp.

The T.A.S. seven go to Campbellford to-morrow night to play the return game with that town in the Trent Valley League. They take a five goal lead which looks good enough for the round.

SPORT TALK

From 5 to 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon, a friendly game of hockey was played at the Brock street rink, between the employes of the controller and brass departments of the C.G.E., the score ending in a tie, 6—6.

At half-time the Controllers were ahead 4—0, but were outscored in the second period.

In a Mercantile League fixture at the Brock street rink on Saturday night, the undefeated Bell Telephone seven defeated the Machine Shop aggregation 1—0. They did not have it on the C.G.E. boys very badly at that, and the winning goal was well earned.

Dwyer in goal for the losers was the star performer.

The Machinists lined up as follows; Dwyer, Campbell, A. Coughlin, M. Coughlin, Condon, Thompson, Hillier.

Leo Derocher refereed satisfactorily.

Dr. W. G. Anderson, Yale University gymnasium director, has collected data covering fifty years to prove that athletes are not shorter lived than the student of sedentary habits. He says:

"Comparison of the mortality of specialized athletes with the general graduate who has not distinguished himself in athletics to the extent of winning the "Y" still shows in favor of the athlete. Of 10,922 students from 1855 to 1905 inclusive, 1,406 are dead and 9,516 living. The percentage of deaths here is 12.9 per cent. Of the 207 athletes from 1855 to 1905 only 58 are dead, a percentage of 7.2, or only a little over half the general graduate.

"After an examination of all material collected I presented among other conclusions;

"The Yale athletes does not die young, for is heart disease a leading cause of death.

"Lung trouble is the cause of the greatest number of deaths but the percentage of men dying from these causes is not greater than the expected deaths among non-athletes from similar causes.

"My conclusions showed that the athlete is not short lived, but I do not state that he owed his longevity to athletics."

The Orillia Packet says: Down at Peterborough Denison was watched so closely that he was not able to shine, while here he was let run loose quite often. This was partly due to the threat that he is said to have made that he would "rough" it in Orillia and the Orillians were not wishful to get pounded up before the game with the T.C.C. unless it was necessary.

The "Lindsay Commercial Travellers" challenge the Peterborough "Drummers" to a game of hockey to be played in Lindsay, on Saturday afternoon, March 2nd. The return match to be played in Peterborough the following Saturday. Lawrence C. Blackwell, Secretary.

The New Edinburghs, by defeating the Stewartons on Saturday night, 8 to 4, became champions of the Ottawa section of the Inter-Provincial Amateur Hockey Union. They are now qualified to meet the Montreal Victorias to decide which club shall challenge as champions of the Inter Provincial Union, for the Allan Cup emblematic of the amateur championship of the Dominion.

It took Ottawa 82 minutes to outscore Canadiens in Montreal on Saturday night. The final score was 3-2.

Dopp and Jupp had a merry battle on the boards Saturday night. Jupp who is one of the fastest players in the junior O.H.A., had it on Dopp for speed. but the latter kept hammering away, and gave the Orillia star the greatest checking he has had this season. If Dopp plays the same kind of a game to-morrow, Orillia will never win the championship.—Mail and Empire.

There was considerable interest locally in the Junior final in Toronto Saturday night. When the half-time score came in 1-0 in Canoe Club's favor, many wagers were made that the Paddlers would not win on their own ice by two goals.

ENGLAND TO HAVE BIG AERO FLEET

Competition With Other Nations Under Contemplation

London, Feb. 26.— Great Britain contemplates competing with France and Germany in building up an aviation fleet. It is expected that the forthcoming estimates will contain a liberal provision for the purchase of aeroplanes. Ten have already been ordered, and before summer the army will possess from 24 to 36, which will be built to meet the requirements of the army.

Captain von Simon, a retired German naval officer, who is engaged in the manufacture of Parseval dirigible airships, is in London in connection with the forthcoming contracts. He said that, while aeroplanes are included in their military requirements, Germany, Austria and Russia are putting faith in the dirigibles. Japan has ordered a dirigible airship of 7,300 cubic metres, which is to be delivered in March. The captain asserts that the objection to the dirigible airship is that it is unable to ascend quickly, has been overcome. The latest model rises 5,400 feet in less than fifteen minutes, which is faster than anything an aeroplane can do in that line. One airship travelled from Bitterfield to Cologne and return this week in 14 hours, which is faster than the time made by an express train.

FOUND SINGLE TAX.

Late Thos. Fyshe Was Co-Discoverer With George.

The fact that the late Thomas Fyshe the Montreal banker, was co-discoverer of the single tax theory with Henry George is recalled by a writer in Toronto Saturday Night. Describing a request for an interview on financial matters the reporter says:

"My reception was neither cold nor hot. I explained my business, and Mr. Fyshe gave me little enough satisfaction. While explaining why he couldn't do what I asked him, he expressed in round terms his opinion of certain financial matters. This was better "stuff" even than I had gone to get, and I asked him to allow me to quote him. Neither would he permit me to quote him. But, by that time we were seated and had begun swapping ideas. I recollect, particularly, that questions concerning political economy came up, and I soon found that I had run into a past-master. He was a free trader from the grass roots, and what he thought about the policy of protection would have done you good to hear. He soon saw that I was particularly interested, and as no one in particular came in to interrupt, I think the "interview" lasted fully two hours.

One thing which I have often recalled since was his statement concerning Henry George, author of "Progress and Poverty," and other works on political economy. The conversation had reached the point where the vast accumulations of capital were being compared with the poverty of the masses. He blamed this partly upon the tariff laws and partly upon the legislation permitting the value of natural opportunities and resources to be alienated, through sale or long lease at inadequate prices, from the people to the private interests.

I wanted to ask him what he proposed to do about it, but was afraid to chip in lest I break the spell—in other words, lest he remember I represented the press. However, I presently put the question.

"Why," said he, "all you have to do is to put a tax of such a character on the natural resources of the land that it will off-set the advantages which the private owners are now reaping over and above that which they are creating."

I remarked that that was similar to the proposal known as single tax. "Did you ever examine that proposal?" asked I.

"Did I ever examine it!" he exclaimed, all animation—if it was possible for him to be animated. "Did I ever examine it? Why, I discovered it."

I was naturally a little astonished, and perhaps showed my feelings. Mr. Fyshe smiled a rather inscrutable smile which it seems to me must have been characteristic of him.

"I suppose that sounds strange to you," said he, "but it's nevertheless true. I don't want to take any honor from Henry George, but in justice to myself, I make the claim that I was a co-discoverer of the single tax, with him."

Later on he told me, when and how and under what circumstances the economic idea or philosophy had developed in his brain which was at the same time developing in the brain of George a thousand miles away. Unfortunately for my story, as well as for Mr. Fyshe's health, he was taken ill before he reached Little Metis or shortly after, and from this illness he never fully recovered. My recollecton is, however, that it was while he was general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia that he evolved, on his own behalf, the conclusions set forth in "Progress and Poverty" shortly after by a man who, for years, had been thinking along the same lines.

Mr. Fyshe was born near Edinburgh, in 1845, and was comparatively young at the time of his death, being but sixty-six years of age. After serving in the Bank of Scotland, and later in the Birmingham Joint Stock Bank, he made an engagement with the Bank of British North America, and came to Montreal in its employ. He was largely instrumental in framing the Bank Act of Hon. George E. Foster, which has been the basis of Canadian banking legislation, as well as of that of other countries. Subsequently, he investigated conditions in the civil service, for the Laurier Government, and his report was what might have been expected from him—blunt and outspoken. It probably led to the permanent commission to administer the civil service.

A Different Species.

The young hopeful of a well-known Canadian jurist had lately become very much interested in the study of butterflies and moths. Just before Christmas his father had given him a dollar as a reward for some service and the boy promptly flew off to a bookseller's where he had observed a certain work on sale relating to his favorite study.

He brought the book home in high glee, and speedily became lost in perusing its contents. His father was quite delighted to notice the serious way his young son and heir, was applying himself and asked the boy how he was getting on with his new book.

"Not very well, father. I've read three chapters and can't find a blessed thing about moths."

"Bring the book to me and let me see it," said his father kindly.

On looking at the cover of the book, the judge was extremely amused to read the following title: "Help to Young (Mothers) Moth-ers."

A Veteran Civil Servant.

Montreal lost a veteran civil servant when the new year bells were ringing recently, in the person of Mr. William D. Robb, who resigned the position of city treasurer.

Mr. Robb enjoys the unique distinction of having held office under twenty-one mayors. Advanced age alone has compelled his retirement. Mr. Robb, who is a Scotsman by birth, is 75 years old. He once attributed his long fortitude in office to his custom of resting his figure-haunted brain by writing poetry! Much verse from the ex-treasurer's pen has appeared in various periodicals.

It Was Real.

"My, this must have been exciting!" says Mrs. Bilmers, who is reading the paper. "A twenty foot boa constrictor escaped from the zoo yesterday and was captured after it had climbed halfway up a telegraph pole."

"And I swore off when I saw it as I went downtown!" growled Mr. Bilmers disgustedly.

"What are you muttering?" she asked.

"Nothing. I just said it must have been a ticklish job."—Chicago Post.

DO YOU USE PILLS?

If In Doubt About the Right Pills to Use Read the Following Letter Carefully:

"I am one of those persons whose system requires aid," writes Mr. Young Gledhill, from Picton, "but it is so easily affected by season of the great sensitiveness of the bowels that ordinary drastic pills inflict great injury to the delicate coating, and excite such persistent activity as to be with difficulty checked.

"I wish in the highest terms to express the great value of Dr. Hamilton's Pills in cases like mine, and I am sure also for elderly people and the very weak, there is no pill like them.

"Speaking of my own experience with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I can say they have proved the most stimulating pills for the liver I have found. I have proved their tonic action upon digestion, and the same results have been secured by friends upon whom I have urged their use. LOST CITY IS FOUND IN PERU

Palatial Buildings of the Incas Have Been Unearthed

San Francisco, Feb. 26—A hitherto undiscovered city of the Incas, which has remained lost to history and research for more than 400 years, has been discovered through extensive explorations in Perus, conducted by Professor Hiram Bingham, former master of arts in the University of California, who was director of the Yale university scientific expedition in South America.

In a report received yesterday at the University of California, the lost city was described as being located on a plateau about 2,000 feet above the valley of the river Urubamba, and was covered with a cornfield.

Professor Binghamm in describing the exploration, said:

FOUND PALATIAL RUINS.

"We found ruins of buildings almost palatially constructed of white granite, or, as the Spanish despoilers called it marble; some still more than ten feet above the ground. We were the first white men, I fancy, that had ever seen the city since the time of Pizarro, 400 years ago. The stones of the houses were beautifully joined and the cutting was perfect.

"The buildings were made without mortar. The foundation stones were very large, some being eight feet wide, six feet deep and twelve feet long. We could not bring any of the specimens with us, as the Peruvian government will not let any of the ruins be taken from the country.

"The city is called by the natives Macchu Pinchu. The pre-Inca remains are much more interesting and denote a higher condition of civilization than the Inca relics. No marble could be more exquisitely nua.

"We believe that the city is that mentioned by the Peruvian explorer, Sir Clements Robert Markham, as the hill of the three-windowed temples." The temples were three-windowed. The stones were carved in the Egyptian style.

FACTS, NOT THEORIES.

"As to whether or not they were built by races originally from the far east we can say nothing; our object in going to Peru was to find facts. We have nothing to do with theories. We have learned that the workmanship of these pre-Inca peoples, preceding those whom Pizarro conquered, exceeded in beauty the work of the Incas of Pizarro's time.

"How long they had been in this plateu region we cannot say. Our work has been purely one of exploration. We leave the speculative archaeologist to pronounce on the antiquity of Peruvian civilization."

The ascent of the summit of the second highest mountain in South America, Corumpuna, was one of the accomplishments of the expedition. Only Prof. Bingham and the archaeologist engineer actually reached the top. Concerning this climb Professor Bingham said:

LIVED ON TEA.

"We were practically without food, living entirely on tea. Ordinary food nauseated us. It was very much as if we were suffering from seasickness".

"We had difficulty in breathing and sleeping also. We had taken snowshoes along, but it was not necessary to use them. We wore crampons instead. We learned later that Miss Annie Peck had made a rapid climb of two peaks of the Corupuna. They were not the highest peaks, however, and she made no claim that they were.

"We were at the absolute summit of the volcanic mountain. We found out by leveling that we were higher than any of the peaks. We were right on the verge of the crater, which was clogged with ice and snow. The mountain is twelve miles long and has several peaks. No one, so far as we could learn, had ever gone to the top before."

The father of Professor Bingham was a missionary in the Gilbert Islands.

The crime statistics for Wishaw, Scotland, show a reduction in 1911, of nearly 100 in the number of offences.

GREETINGS TO THE DUKE FROM MASSACHUSETTS MASONS

Text of the Address Recently Presented to the Governor-General From the Craft in New England.

For the first time in Masonic history, the Grand Master of the oldest Grand Lodge of Masons in the world has been tendered the fraternal greetings of the oldest Grand Lodge of Mason in the western hemisphere. This unique event occurred recently at Ottawa, when the representatives of the Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, Col. Everett C. Benton, presented a parchment, illuminated and lettered in gold, to the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada, Most Worshipful Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of England. His Royal Highness, in a felicitous reply, thanked the delegates and the Massachusetts Grand Lodge for their kindly greetings.

The deputation was received in the offices of the Governor-General in the Parliament Buildings, with the royal flag flying at the private standard.

THE PARCHMENT.

The inscribed parchment bore not only the greetings of the Massachusetts Grand Master, but a "cordial and urgent invitation," for the Duke of Connaught in his official Masonic capacity to pay a fraternal visit to the oldest American descendent of the Grand Lodge of England. The greetings read as follows:

To H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, K.G., etc., etc., etc., Most Worshipful Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England:

Most Worshipful Sir and Brother:

The Most Worshipful Grand Master of Masons in Massachusetts, from the east of that Grand jurisdiction where Masonry was first regularly and duly constituted in the continent now honored by the official seat of your Royal Highness, presents his fraternal greetings to the Most Worshipful Grand Master of the oldest Grand Lodge in the world. From that Grand Lodge issued to Right Worshipful Henry Price the warrant under which Masonic authority was first exercised in the western hemisphere, that warrant from which by regular descent the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of Massachusetts derived its inheritance.

MASONRY IN BOSTON.

From the year Anno Lucis 5720 when so far as history records, Masons first assembled in the town of Boston, and from the year Anno Lucis 5733, the date of the warrant of our first provincial Grand Master, until the present day, this descendant of your Grand Lodge has never been visited by the official head of that body to which it owes its Masonic life. As a child, though adult, longs for the cheer, sympathy, and encouragement of a visit from its mother, so would the Masons of Massachusetts appreciate the fraternal pleasures and benefits of a personal visit from him who has for many years graced the Oriental chair of the supreme Masonic authority of England, their successor.

AN INVITATION

For the purpose of drawing more closely the Masonic bonds which bind the old world and the new, the parent and her child, it is my privilege in the name of this ancient jurisdiction to extend to you a most cordial and urgent invitation to pay a fraternal visit to the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in your capacity as Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England. It is, therefore, with pleasure, that through my representatives, Right Worshipful Louis C. Southard, Past Deputy Grand Master, Right Worshipful Melvin M. Johnson, Past Senior Grand Warden, and Worshipful Philip T. Nickerson, presiding master of Winslow Lewis Lodge of Boston, I convey to you not only this official invitation, but also by own heartfelt and cordial assurances of respect, esteem and fraternal regard.

A HIGH HONOR

Being sensible of the high honor which you would confer upon us and the whole fraternity of the United States by the acceptance of this invitation, I most sincerely and earnestly express the hope that you may find it consistent with your pleasure and duty to comply with this request.

I remain, Most Worshipful Sir and Brother, with the greatest respect and fraternal regard,

EVERETT C. BENTON,
Grand Master of Masons in Massachusetts.

Attest—
THOMAS W. DAVIS,
Grand Secretary.

LORD LOUDOUN'S VISIT.

To find an event which approaches this in Masonic significance it is necessary to go back to 1757, when Lord Loudoun, who had been Grand Master of England in 1736, was in Boston. On January 31 of that year he attended the Feast of St. John, and there was an interchange of courtesies, which has some distant resemblance to the present incident.

"It will be understood," said Col. Benton to the Boston Herald, "that the highest office in the English Grand Lodge is always held by a member of the royal family. Long it was filled by the late King Edward VII, while Prince of Wales. But when he was in this country he was not yet of age and not yet had taken degrees in Masonry. Upon his accession to the throne he was succeeded by his brother, the Duke of Connaught, whom a happy circumstance brought across the Atlantic. I was glad to take the first opportunity to send this deputation, a plan which I had cherished since my installation."

MET MANY NOTABLES.

Members of the deputation, the Herald proceeds, tell of visiting Dalhousie Lodge, 52, of Ottawa, whose presiding master was W. M. George Parker, and of the long list of civic and Masonic notables present, among them the Dep. Minister of Mines, M. W. Aubray White, of Toronto, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada and Ontario; Senator William Gibson, of Hamilton, also a Past Grand Master, and now Most Puissant Grand Commissioner of the Supreme Council of Canada; Senator John V. Ellis, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of New Brunswick; Senator Bostock, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of British Columbia; Senator Ross, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Nova Scotia, and Senator Bell, another Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada and Ontario.

DINED BY SENATOR KERR.

At the dinner given the deputation in the apartments of Dalhousie Lodge the toast to the Grand Lodge Massachusetts and to its presiding head was proposed by District Deputy S. A. Luke.

New Tourist Cars

The first of the five new tourist cars supplied for approval of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, by the Canada Car and Foundry Co., was on exhibition at the Bonaventure Station this morning and declared by experts to be not only one of the finest of its type ever turned out, but to be in many respects the equal of a standard Pullman car. Spotless in its fresh coating of cool green paint, the car is as attractive in appearance from the outside as it is from within, where the finish throughout is of mahogany. At the rear is a smoking room and lavatory equipped with nickelene wash stands then comes the kitchen with Kerr's "Regal" range, burning coal. The main body of the car has a seating capacity of 56 persons. In front is a linen cupboard, and the ladies' lavatory, which is also very handsomely equipped. The upholstery is of "Pegamoid" or imitation leather throughout, and the floor covering of linoleum with a narrow strip of aisle carpet. The light is supplied by the Pintsch gas system and electricity, and the heat by the gold Duplex coil heater. The length of the car over end sills is 74 feet. Altogether it can be said with perfect truth that the newcomer to Canada, no matter what his means, is transported in greater comfort, so far as the Grand Trunk Pacific is concerned than were the wealthiest travellers not so many years back, and certainly in a manner that bears favorable comparison with Railway Systems in other parts of the world.

Used Third Degree.

New York, Feb. 26.—Winnifred Ankers, an attendant at the Brooklyn Nursery and Infants' Hospital, was arraigned Saturday in magistrates court in Brooklyn, charged with homicide in connection with the death of eight infants at the Hospital since last Sunday.

The woman's confession came after a grilling examination, during which she broke down when told that they would take her baby away from her if she did not tell the truth. The Ankers woman then told how the babies had been poisoned.

In her confession to the police the Ankers woman said that she put two or three drops of oxalic acid in the bottles of milk prepared for the babies. She said she removed the stoppers of about 14 and dropped the acid in. There were 30 bottles of milk in the ice box and she was still dropping the acid in when she heard some one coming. She stopped for fear of detection.

The Ankers woman is only 24 years of age and has been an attendant in the hospital for the last ten months, since her baby was born. She is an orphan and was adopted by a family named Ankers. Of recent years she is said to have lived a life of uncertain habits.

New York, Feb. 26—Police Commissioner Waldo Saturday preferred charges against Lieut. J. B. Wooldridge and Lieut. John Taylor, of the department, in connection with the Brandt case. Wooldridge is charged with making a false report and conduct unbecoming an officer. The two men will be tried on Feb. 29 at police headquarters.

THE STRAPONTIN.

Found In Parisian Theaters, It Is a Delusion and a Snare.

In every Paris theater there are two or three score "strapontins." You wonder what a strapontin is? Well, it is a folding or strap seat on the aisle attached to the side of the aisle chair of the orchestra or balcony rows. It has neither sides nor back and is without visible means of support except through affiliation and attachment. The unsuspecting American tourist whose stay in Paris is but a matter of days approaches the Parisian box office and is shown the diagram by the middle aged lady with the blond curls. Guilelessly the visitor indicates what he believes to be an aisle seat and congratulates himself on his luck at so late an hour in capturing it.

A few minutes later he has paid his 10 cents for a program and tipped the woman attendant who shows him to his strapontin. It is as devoid of legs or feet, this strapontin, as of arms and vertebrae, a device to be shunned and tabooed. You squirm to make yourself comfortable, to secure some attitude whereby the hardships of the strapontin may be annihilated, but in vain. It drives from your mind the most seductive music, the most dramatic episode fails to affect you, and your thoughts are forced back on the instrument of torture which has cost you the full 10 francs, the price of an orchestra chair.—New York Press.

KANAA BURIAL GROUNDS.

Bolivia's Fearsome Valley of the Shadow of Death.

There is a valley in Bolivia, South America, which might well be called the Valley of the Shadow of Death. It has been inhabited for an indefinite period of years by the Kanaa Indians, who are kindred to the various South American tribes and number now only a few hundred souls.

That they were once a very powerful tribe is indicated by the condition of the land which they as a tribe still inhabit. One cannot travel any distance through their land without coming upon the old and forsaken burial grounds of the Kanaa dead. These places cannot be called graveyards, for the bodies are not buried, but rather placed upon elevated platforms, wrapped in the garments of death and bound to the crossbeams that they may not be displaced.

In one of these burial grounds there will be probably fifty high skeleton platforms, and on each will lie from three to five of the Kanaa dead. The air in that part of Bolivia is very pure and preservative, for it is one of the highest plateaus of the continent, although Kanaa valley is just a little below the plateau's height. A traveler passing through that land at night and by moonlight would be awe stricken at the gloomy vision those graveyards present.

Won by His Wit.

On one occasion a dress rehearsal at His Majesty's theater was prolonged till the small hours of the morning. The company grew very weary, particularly a gentleman who had been with Sir Herbert Tree in a good many productions, but who had never attained to more than a very tiny part. When the time came to rehearse his few lines he was so tired that his voice was anything but distinct.

"What's the matter, Mr. Z.?" asked Sir Herbert in his most sarcastic tones. "Are you saving your voice for the rehearsal?"

"No, Sir Herbert," was the retort; "I've never been able to save anything under your management."

Sir Herbert, an exceedingly witty man himself, was so pleased with the retort that the salary of the small part man was raised.—London M. A. P.

Opposed to Mourning Clothes.

"A southern physician of recognized skill and eminence urges that all outward symbols of mourning should be abandoned," says Munsey's. "For many years he has expressed his views. He has won over a large number of people who see no reason why the heart should advertise its sorrow by the conspicuous insignia of gloom. There are or have been peoples wiser in their generation. The Romans of the days of the republic wore blue as a sign of mourning. It is the proper thing in Asia Minor now. The Turk mourns in violet and the Persian in pale brown. Until a French queen set the present fashion in the latter half of the fifteenth century white was the color of grief in Europe, as it is now in China."

A Generous Actor.

I remember when Toole was playing an exceptionally fine engagement with us that he said laughingly: "Oh, by the way, Calvert, if my wife comes down next week don't say anything about the big receipts. You see, I've a lot of nephews and nieces, and they all expect tips from Uncle Johnnie. Last year they had over £400 from me, and my wife thinks I rather overdo it."—"Sixty-eight Years on the Stage," by Mrs. Charles Calvert.

"Poor fellow!"

"And she has half a million in her own right."

"Ah, that's different."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HOTEL TWENTY-THREE STOREYS

New York, Feb. 23—A hotel that will be 23 storeys high, and which will possess many features, among them, stores underground, is to be erected on the block between 43rd and 44th streets at Madison and Vanderbilt Avenues by the Vanderbilt interests.

The new hotel will not be over tracks like the other buildings embraced in the scheme of covering the railroad yards with gigantic buildings, but it will be opposite the new station, and will connect directly with it underground. It is for this reason that underground shops have been planned for it.

The hotel will easily accommodate 1200 guests. It will have 1,000 rooms.

Senator Miller Buried.

Ottawa, Feb. 26.—A great many friends of the late Hon. William Miller, P.C., K.C., of Arichat, N.S., who died in Ottawa on Friday, paid their last marks of respect to the deceased by attending the funeral, which was held yesterday afternoon from the Senator's late residence. The funeral was marked by a large representation of Senators and members, while there were also a number of personal friends and prominent citizens of Ottawa.

The late Senator expressed the desire in his will that if he died in Ottawa, his remains be interred in this city.

Another Cuban Crisis at Hand.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Another crisis in Cuban affairs apparently is at hand. Reports from the island indicate that the unrest temporarily quieted by U. S. Secretary of State Knox's recent note of warning, is about to break out anew as a result of the Cuban supreme court decision invalidating the law ousting office holders who were Spanish sympathizers during the revolution.

Developments are being awaited with keen interest in official circles here. It is believed that the situation will tax the resources of President Gomez to the utmost.

MAN FROM MARS

Paris, Feb. 24.—The Paris Matin publishes a drawing of a curiously mis-shapen person, given as an approximately representation of an inhabitant of Mars.

The drawing is given on scientific observation by Edmond Perrier, of the Natural history museum, and Camille Flammarion, the astronomer.

Perrier declares the temperature averages 22 degrees. The year is twice as long, birds have luxuriant plumage, and there are huge plants, and ideal flowers.

The picture shows a blue-eyed, long-nosed, heavy-eared being, with a huge head, bulky chest and spindly limbs.

Perriers declares the Martians are acquainted with the noblest delights of intellect, and with the most suave motions of the soul.

Y.M.C.A. MEMBERS ENTERTAINED BY TORONTO BOYS

Enjoyable Time Spent With the Toronto Centrals

The Intermediate and Senior Leaders Corps journeyed to Toronto on Saturday to be the guests of the Toronto Central Leaders Corps and a most enjoyable time was spent. Upon their arrival they were entertained to dinner at the Broadview Branch, by Mr. Gilchrist, late general secretary of the local Association. The boys took a trip out to the West End Association new building, and were conducted through the building by Mr. A. Pearson, one of the Secretaries.

The boys were then taken in tow by the Central men, who led the way to the Toronto University gymnasium where the intercollegiate boxing, wrestling and fencing championships were being conducted, and all enjoyed the contests immensely.

At 6.30 all sat down to a banquet at the Central Building, after the speeches and program were concluded, all adjourned to the gymnasium where two fine games of basketball were played by teams from East Hamilton, West End, and Central teams. At half time between the Central and Hamilton game, the local boys gave an exhibit on of long horse and springboard work, and between the halves of the second game the local boys pleased the large crowd present with some paralell bar pyramids.

Sunday was spent very quietly, all meeting at the building at 10 a.m., and a short walk was taken through the Rosedale district. At four o'clock all attended the men's Bible class. Tea was served in the building at 5.30 by the Fellowship Club, to which all the Peterborough boys were invited. After tea all adjourned to the parlor where an informal song service was held, after which all went to the Strand Theatre where a large men's meeting was conducted, the Rev. Dr Hincks giving a most helpful address. From here the boys boarded a car for North Toronto station and commenced the return journey on the 10.00 o'clock train. The local boys are quite thoroughly convinced that the Central Leaders are "some hosts," and one and all report a splendid time.

REV. DR. D. B. MARSH AT HAMILTON

Hamilton Spactator.

An interesting lecture on the planets was given by Dr. D. B. Marsh before the Astronomical Society last evening in the public library building, Wm. Bruce was chairman and introduced the speaker. After naming the eight planets, Mercury, Earth, Jupiter, Mars, Neptune, Saturn, Uranus and Venus, the doctor confined his talk to the definition of Mercury, which he said, was one of the celestial bodies which could not be photographed successfully, despite the efforts of astronomers. This obstacle was due to its proximity to the sun which continually blinded it, and rendered its true splendor and size insignificant. Yet, considering all this, Mercury could be more readily discerned with ordinary telescopes than any of the other planets. The best time to observe it was when the sun was in its highest meridian. Many authorities have ridiculed this statement, as they have said Mercury could be seen at its best in early dawn or twilight, but more modern discoverers have found that high noon was an opportune time to witness it. Many slides were thrown upon the canvas, demonstrating the evolution of the earth on its axis, and also the relative positions of the various constellations of the heavens, their omens and orbits.

At the conclusion of his talk, Dr. Marsh was tendered a hearty vote of thanks by the assembly.

INDIAN LOST LIFE IN FIRE

Tried to Save Furniture From Burning Home

Prince Albert, Sask., Feb. 26.—A fatal fire occurred at the house of P. J. Hamilton, farming instructor of the Nut Lake Indian Reserve, on February 8th, when an Indian, Kekeeshednes, was burned to death. When the fire was discovered, Mr. Hamilton was away and the only occupant of the house was his daughter, a young woman of 18 years to age, who had a very narrow escape, but managed to get out of the burning building safelyy. The inhabitants of the reserve, who are Soda Indians, were soon on the scene and endeavored to save furniture and papers of Hamilton's. It was while engaged upon this perilous task that Kekeeshednes, a middle aged Indian, lost his life. Nut Lake reserve is about 35 miles north of Wadena.

VATICAN EDICT ON CHURCH MUSIC

Gregorian Chant Must be Adopted at All Sacred Services

Rome, Feb. 26.—The Vatican has issued an order from the Pope to the effect that all religious institutions in Rome must comply with the Motu Proprio of 1093 in regard to the reform of church music. The Pope rules that the Gregorian chant must in future be adopted at all sacred services, and must be accompanied exclusively by an organ. Any other instrument is forbidden. Part singing is abolished, and women are not allowed to sing except as a part of the congregation, hence they are excluded from choirs, with the exception of those of female religious communities, where nuns and school girls are allowed to sing, provided the music is the pure Gregorian chant. All choirmasters and organists are required to pass an examination, which must be held by a special commission on sacred music, without whose certificates they cannot possibly be employed at sacred functions. The rules at present only affect some dioceses, but it is the Pope's intention to gradually extend them to all dioceses in Italy and abroad.

BAPTIST CHURCH IS WRECKED BY GAS EXPLOSION

Dunnville, Ont., Feb. 25.—Sewer gas has caused the residents of Dunnville considerable anxiety of late. A week ago an explosion occurred, blowing the entire side and badly bulging the ends of a dwelling house. About 4 p.m. yesterday an explosion of a similar nature occurred in the basement of the First Baptist Church. Preparations were in progress to entertain the Monarch Knitting Company's hockey team of St. Thomas in the Dunnville Club rooms. W. F. Connors and Ben Johnson had gone into the church basement to get dishes and tables. On entering the basement an odor was detected similar to that of a kitchen which had been shut up for some time. As at different times suppers had been held lately no attention was paid to this odor. Upon entering a small room where the dishes are kept, Connors struck a match and explosion immediately followed, burning both seriously about the face and hands. Johnson being the stronger of the two, assisted Connors to his rooms, at the Victoria Hotel, where doctors were immediately summoned. The basement of the church was badly wrecked, windows and doors being out, plaster, and winscoting also torn loose.

LOCAL AGENCY FOR SCHACHT CARS

Mr. G. K. Rackham, of the Ontario Coal Company, has taken the agency for the Schacht Motor Company of Canada Ltd., of Hamilton, and will look after the sale and interests of the Company, and cars in this city.

Mr. Rackham is confident that the car is among the very best offered and in connection quotes from the Toronto news of Tuesday last, the following—

"A most interesting and to the uninitiated and apparently impossible feat of haulage, by the modern motor car was witnessed on Yonge street during the blizzard between 8 and 9 p.m. on Tuesday last. A heavy seven-passenger touring car met with some slight accident while being unloaded from the railway trucks at the Toronto terminal, and it was decided to tow the car to its garage in the city. Snow had been falling heavily, drifts were piled up, and street cars stalled, when the tow car hooked on to help its injured brother. Bucking through drifts that hurled the flying snow clear over the hood, the little roadster settled to its work. Tow rope after tow rope snapped, until a heavy chain had to be requisitioned and an almost unbreakable connection made between the two cars. Onlookers advised horses, but were laughed to scorn by the crew in charge, and with a solid connection between, their confidence was upheld, for shortly after two cars disappeared in the whirling flakes well on their way home.

On inquiry, our representative was informed that both cars were products of the Schacht Canadian factory at Hamilton, Ont., that the touring car weighed in the neighborhood of 3,000 pounds, while the diminutive car that did the work was one of the company's 1911 standard two-seated roadsters, used by the Toronto branch as a work car, and a work car it surely was.

SARAH BERNHARDT IN NEW PLAY

Her Make-up for Character of Queen Elizabeth

Paris, Feb. 26.—Mme. Sarah Bernhardt is busy rehearsing in Paris M. Moreau's play "Elizabeth," in which she is shortly to appear as the great queen.

Her make-up, if all her aims are realized, will be wonderfully realistic. The other day she sent for Mr. Clarkson to assist her. He went over to Paris and now has returned to London and last evening, writes a representative of the Pall Mall Gazette: I found him surrounded by copies and sketches of the queen which he has taken from portraits in the National Portrait gallery and by histories of costume—in the very midst, in fact, of the engrossing work of making from this material the finished designs he is about to submit to her.

Then too was Pianche's confirmatory note of the great ruff, the jeweled stomacher, and the pretentious petticoats strutting out with tremendous importance. And above all the lines of literary description, the exact sketches from the National Portrait gallery portraits themselves, including those ascribed to Federigo Zucarro and Marc Gheeraedts.

Gheeraedt's portrait is that of the queen at an advanced period of her reign, with the headdress arranged in the form partly of a tiara and partly of a coif, surmounted by feathers and pearls, the hair a reddish gold, the lips were thin, piercing blue eyes and the ears adorned by drops of pearls.

The long oval face in Zuccaro's portrait is similar; but here the ruff is of greater size, with wings, and falls to a point at the waist, and the queen is wearing a crown and no small part of her "bushel of pearls."

These two portraits are forming, to a large extent, the basis of the designs which will be submitted to Mme. Bernhardt, for the period of the play is the latter part of the reign, and it ends with the queen's death, which, Mr. Clarkson mentioned, the actress hopes to make one of her greatest efforts.

It is not the first time that Mr. Clarkson's house has assisted to dress an Elizabethean play. He recalled a similar service for Mme. Ristori, and also for the tableaux which were arranged at Osborne in the reign of Queen Victoria by Princess Beatrice.

Mr. Clarkson is also making the wigs for all the other characters in M. Moreau's play, including Drakes', Raleigh's, Shakespeare's and Bacon's.

BLAME PLACED ON FIREBUGS

Toronto, Feb. 26—Some firebug is at large in Toronto and is making the lives of firemen and policemen miserable by his conduct. On Saturday morning there were four different fires in the downtown section all of incendiary origin.

At 3.30 o'clock a blaze was discovered in a box at the rear of the Star Theatre; shortly before five o'clock Orr Bros.' stable on Richmond street east was slightly damaged and two horses very nearly perished; a pile of rubbish in the rear of 18 Francis street was found to be on fire at three o'clock, and shortly before one some oil barrels in the rear of Harris and Company, 73 King street east, were discovered to be in flames.

Detective Young is working on the case but no arrests have been made yet.

Chimney Fire

The fire department had a call this afternoon at 2.45 o'clock, from Box 16. The cause of the alarm was a chimney at the residence of Mr. John Foster, 218 Wolfe street.

Equestrian Feats

Frightened by a street car, a farmer's horse attached to a cutter, ran up on the pavement on Charlotte street to-day, and performed some circus stunts. One of these consisted in rearing on its hind legs and falling backwards. It looked for a moment good to demolish the fragile sleigh to which it was harnessed, but by stopping the car, the animal assumed a normal behavior and a runaway was averted.

FRIENDS:

It takes an alarm clock to get the attention of some people. There are others who can't "hear a dollar bill drop." If a dollar bill should drop at your feet it would be less important to you than the reading of this "ad." Just imagine we are looking you square in the eyes. We want to say a few words to you straight from the heart. You are anxious to get the most actual value possible to secure for every dollar you spend for clothes. That's why you should investigate the extraordinary values we are now offering. You like to buy goods you can depend upon—the kind you know are right in style, right in quality and right in price. You will find only that sort of clothes here. We are determined that we will gain for this store a host of new customers this season, by the giving of exceptional values. We are succeeding. We are doing the largest business in the history of this store. An investigation will prove to you that this store is giving better values for the same money, or the same values for less money than any other store. You certainly cannot afford to buy a dollar's worth of clothes before you see what we offer. It is better to find out about these values before you buy than later to wish you had.

Drop in to-day, to-morrow, in fact any time. We'll be just as glad to see you if you come simply to look, as though you come to buy. But be sure and give us a call.

ONTARIO IS TOO RADICAL

Theodore Roosevelt Would Not go so Far in Reform.

Boston, Feb. 17.—Standing in the assembly chamber of the Massachusetts capital yesterday, Theodore Roosevelt explained and emphasized his project for the recall of judicial decisions. Col. Roosevelt struck out boldly at those who have criticized his plan.

"Our system of government is a confessed failure," he said, "unless the people are to be trusted to govern themselves."

In discussing his plan for a recall of the decisions of the courts, Col. Roosevelt after pointing out that sovereignty belonged to the people alone, not to the Legislature, the executive or the judiciary, said:

"In the last resort the people after due deliberation are to be and must be the masters and their representatives their servants. I am not advocating the recall of judges, I am advocating a measure which, if adopted, will prevent the necessity of the recall of judges."

"My proposal applies only to the legislative acts which the courts declare unconstitutional. I refer specifically to laws passed in the collective interests of the whole community. If such a law is declared unconstitutional by the court, I ask that the people be given the right, if they choose, to exercise that right themselves to pass final judgment upon the proposition.

"To listen to the arguments of certain worthy individuals, you would think that the purpose was to substitute the gusty passion of a mob for the decision of a court. Just across the St. Lawrence and great lakes from the State of New York lies the great commonwealth of Ontario, part of Canada, a commonwealth with essentially, precisely the same kind of government as New York, precisely the same problems to face in that commonwealth as in every commonwealth of Australia and Canada, as in Great Britain, as in Germany, as in France, as in practically all other great civilized nations. In that commonwealth the court has no power whatever to declare a legislative act unconstitutional.

"Now, I do not want to go as far as that. I think it is better that we should give the courts equal power with the Legislature, but I want to keep the people as the judge between them, when they differ as to whether a given law is within the power and the right of the people to pass."

BOUNDARIES RESOLUTION

Ontario's Boundaries Same as Proposed by Laurier.

Ottawa, Feb. 27.—Premier Borden gave notice of a resolution late last night to extend the boundaries of the Province of Quebec by taking in the whole of the hinterland, in accordance with the resolution proposed in 1908. The resolution provides for the adding to that province of the whole district of Ungava, composing about 480,000 square miles.

The Ontario boundaries, according to the resolution, will be the same as those proposed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and agreed to by Parliament in 1908. The new boundary line will start from the northeast corner of Manitoba and round to the eastern end of Island Lake and in latitude 53' 36" and longitude 93' 40". Thence northeasterly in a straight line to a point where the 89th meridian of west longitude interests the shore of Hudson. Manitoba thus gets both ports, Port Nelson and Fort Churchill.

Ontario's shore line on Hudson Bay, according to the terms of the resolution, will only extend to within 50 miles from Port Nelson.

SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES TABLED IN LEGISLATURE

Total is Brought up to $8,000,000—Large Expenditures for Public Buildings

Toronto, Feb. 27.—Supplementary estimates for the fiscal year ending Oct. 31, 1912, were presented to the Legislature yesterday by Sir James Whitney, in the absence of Hon. A. J. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer, who is ill. Including a grant for the extension of the line through Huron Grey and Bruce, and $2,000,000 to the Hydro-Electric Commission, the supplementaries total $4,077,454.18. The main estimates, presented during the last session of the Legislature, called for an expenditure of $8,090,911.66, so so that the total estimated expenditure for the current fiscal year is $12,168,365.84. In addition to this sum, further supplementary estimates will be presented during the session, bringing the amount up to several hundred thousand dollars more.

Most of the sums contained in the volume presented yesterday are increases in salaries for civil servants. A new position is created, at a salary of $1,800. It is the intention of the Provincial Government to appoint a parole officer, who will visit prisoners parolled from the Central Prison farm at Guelph, and assist them in obtaining employment after their discharge.

Increases of $100 a year are given to all the Deputy Ministers and to several chief clerks and accountants.

For constitutional questions $20,000 additional is set apart. A new registry office will be erected at Kenora at a cost of $8,000, and the completion of the new court house will cost $3,300. Other expenditures at Kenora bring the total up to $26,298.

Large amounts will be spent on the public buildings and improvements, including $200,000 for the purchase of farm land, erection and equipment of the new hospital for insane, to be erected at Whitby. A similar amount is included for the erection of buildings for the provincial prison at Guelph. This amount may be subdivided and charged to capital and maintenance by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-council. Additional buildings and farm land equipment for the hospital for the insane at Brockville will require $50,000, of which $15,680 is a re-vote. A new dormitory building for the institution of the blind at Brantford will cost $65,000, and a similar amount will be spent on the deaf and dumb institute at Belleville.

To replace the kitchen and amusement hall at the London Hospital for the Insane, which was destroyed by fire, there is an item of $25,000. Additional buildings at the Orillia Hospital for Feeble-Minded will cost $20,000. A new residence for the medical superintendent at Woodstock institution calls for $6,500. For electric wiring in the hospital at Mimico $10,000 is provided, of which $9,800 is a re-vote. For repairs to the Hamilton asylum, made necessary by fire, $18,653 will be needed.

On the Parliament and the Departmental buildings $12,219 will be spent this year, including increases in salaries to various employes, and $5,150 to provide salaries for additional watchmen and two boiler inspectors, yet to be appointed.

For the completion of the north wing of Osgoode Hall $21,800 is set aside, containing a re-vote of $13,668. For the new Government House $50,000 is needed, and for the completion of the reconstruction and fireproofing of the west wing of the Parliament Buildings, the new north wing, furnishings, Hydro-Electric equipment, and library fittings, $310,000 is necessary.

New land will be purchased as an additional experimental plot at the O. A. C., Guelph, at a cost of $18,500. Electrical plant will cost $10,000, part of which is a re-vote. The new dining hall will cost $75,000, new dairy stables $15,000, new building for field husbandry and experimental department, an amount to be decided upon later.

The reconstruction of the Ontario Government building in London, in the interests of colonization and immigration, calls for an expenditure of $15,000 this year, more than one-third of which is a re-vote.

For technical education in the province the sum of $34,500 is set apart, of which $3,500 is for the salary of the director, $25,000 for day industrial classes and $6,000 for agricultural training in high schools.

For public and separate school education more than $117,000 will be voted, including $20,000 for rural, public and separate schools in counties, $29,000 for examiners for departmental examinations, $10,500 for continuation schools, $19,000 for public and separate schools in new districts, and other miscellaneous grants.

To provide for a farm director $2,500 is placed in the amounts to be voted. The director has yet to be appointed.

As a result of numerous deputations asking for grants, several special amounts have been placed in the estimates for charitable purposes, as follows:

For institutions mentioned in the statutes, $7,100; sanatoria for consumptives, $11,871.45; industrial schools, $9,825.46; children's aid work, $1,241.23; Alexandra industrial schools, $7,000; industrial refuge for women (addition to provide for feeble-minded), $5,000; building of infants' home, $5,000; total hospitals and charities, $47,038.14.

NO NEWS YET OF RESULT OF COAL STRIKE INTERVENTION

Miners Strike Has Commenced in Several Places—Owners Persuaded to Yield.

London, Feb. 27.—On the eve of the resumption of the conference between Premier Asquith and other Cabinet Ministers and the miners' representatives, which marked the most critical stage of the Government's efforts to avert a coal strike throughout the United Kingdom, the nation is kept actually in the dark as to what has been accomplished in the direction of securing peace since the negotiations opened on Feb. 22. On that date the miners' delegates informed the Premier that they were powerless to agree to anything, or to assume any responsibility, until authorization had been obtained from the miners' federation, which meets to-day in London. As a consequence, the subsequent conferences have been with the coal owners alone.

It was announced last night, however, that the executive of the miners' federation had decided to recommend to the conference the acceptance of the Premier's invitation to meet him and his colleagues and discuss the situation. This invitation was extended to the miners' representatives on Feb. 22, by the Premier, who asked that a committee be appointed from the national federation to hear the whole subject of the controversy, with the Cabinet Ministers.

The conference yesterday lasted two hours, but, conforming to the rule, which has been rigidly observed, with respect to all previous meetings, the official report given out contained not the slightest hint as to what transpired. In the meantime, the strike was actually begun.

A few thousand miners employed in the Derbyshire district ceased work at noon. To-day several thousand more notices expire, and it is not likely that the miners will consent to work until Thursday night, the date fixed for the general strike. On Wednesday 100,000 miners can desert the pits on notices already handed in.

A hopeful feature of the crisis is the absence of incitement to violence on the part of the leaders of the men. No objections have been raised to the employers securing the necessary labor to keep the pits open during the strike. Even in South Wales, where the controversy has been the bitterest, this arrangement has been made and the South Wales' Miners' Federation issued an appeal last night to the men not to go to the colliery premises and to abstain from doing damage in event of a strike.

Unless the owners agree to concede a minimum wage, on which the miners of all sections are inflexible, a national strike would seem inevitable, but there is undoubtedly an optimistic feeling abroad that the Government practically has succeeded in persuading the owners to yield for a few months at least. It is believed in some quarters that the Government has undertaken to reimburse them, if yielding on this important point results in any loss, but it is all a matter of surmise.

The Liberal morning papers anticipate a speedy settlement and an avoidance of a coal strike. The Chronicle believes that the trouble will be settled by Friday. The Daily News hints that unless the owners consent to the principle of a minimum wage the Government will quickly pass a minimum wage bill through Parliament.

BRITISH ASSOCIATION'S ACTIONS CONDEMNED

Protest Made Against Treatment of Canadian Riflemen Because of Their Use of Ross Rifle.

Canada May Not be Represented at the Next Bisley.

Ottawa, Feb. 27.—If Canada is to be represented at the next Bisley meet, the National Rifle Association will have to mend its ways.

This was the direct challenge issued by Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, when E. M. Macdonald (Pictou), on the orders of the day being called, moved the adjournment of the House to discuss the policy of "pin pricking" shown by the N.R.A. in the treatment of Canadian marksmen in connection with the use of the Ross rifle.

"If this sort of thing is continued," said the Minister, "in the first place I doubt if the association (the D.R.A.) will send them, and in the second place I doubt if the men would go."

"It does not rest with the National Rifle Association to define for the Dominion of Canada, what form of rifle or what form of sight we shall use."

He intimated that the Canadian Government had offered to loan them 5,000 to 10,000 long Ross rifles in order to place British and other competitors "on an equality with our boys." So far, however, the association has not seen fit to avail themselves of the offer.

Mr. Macdonald reviewed the history of the trouble, which he ascribed to the hostility of British rifle makers and the fact that the Canadians, through the use of the Ross rifle, had incurred the ill-will of the N.R.A. by winning too much prize money.

He read a couple of letters showing that the average winnings of Canadians had jumped from £420 to £825 when the new rifle was adopted.

The latest regulation, adopted in the autumn of 1911, prescribed that the back sight had to be attached in the same way as it was on the British army rifle. This was a mere pretext to bar the Ross rifle, as it was impossible to attach the sight to it in this manner.

He charged that the N.R.A. were not acting in good faith and asked the Minister of Militia to take the matter up.

In this connection, he read an extract from The Pall Mall Gazette, which compared the new British service rifle with the Ross rifle, to the great disadvantage of the former, which it declared would be obsolete before the force was armed with it.

He also read the sworn statement of Pte. Clifford, the winner of the King's Prize at the last Bisley meet, and referred to the affidavits of five other Canadian competitors, as to the persistent and unwarranted interference of range officers, and particularly Major Silverthorne, with Canadian marksmen.

"This must be stopped," he declared. "If it is not, let Canadians not go over, and let the whole empire know why they do not go over."

The Minister of Militia corroborated Mr. Macdonald on every point, and backed the allegations up with a few emphatic remarks of his own.

There was not the slightest doubt in his mind as to the cause of the animus displayed by the N.R.A. The rifle manufacturers of Britain were behind it, and since the signal success of the Canadians three years ago, when the weapon was first introduced at Bisley, had caused the cancellation of orders for 5,000 Ross rifles. They evidently realized that something had to be done to stop the sale of the Ross rifle to the marksmen of the empire. This regulation as to sights capped the climax. The N.R.A. would have been more straight forward if they had said outright that no Ross rifles, or that only Lee-Enfield rifles could be used.

As to the treatment of Private Clifford, Col. Hughes declared that the "Clifford position," with the butt resting on the ground, had been commended by Lord Kitchener and Lord Roberts.

The Ross rifle, he declared to be "the best military rifle in the world to-day."

On a visit to Washington a year ago, the Minister said he had been given by the U. S. military authorities full details of the new British service rifle. He had obtained the same information from the German military authorities last summer, but when he tried to get it from the British authorities there was nothing doing. It was a "deep impenetrable mystery."

"This is a strange way," he commented, "to treat those of us in the colonies who are interested in Imperial affairs.

W. B. Northrup (Hastings) asked how many of the long-barrelled Ross rifles were in use by the Canadian militia at the time Sir Frederick Borden certified that it was the arm of the service. He questioned the correctness of this certificate, and thought the bottom of the interference complained of was the want of confidence in the rifle the Canadians were using at Bisley doing the real service Ross rifle.

JAPAN THIRD IN POWER

United States Would be Passed in Naval Strength.

Washington, Feb. 27.—Japan by 1916 will have wrested the position of third naval power from the United States, and this country will have difficulty in maintaining itself in fourth place unless it builds two battleships a year.

Secretary Meyer declared this to be a fact in his testimony before the House naval affairs committee. The Secretary urged greater liberality by Congress in dealing with the naval establishment.

The committee is pledged to economy, and although appropriations for battleships have not been acted upon, many members are inclined not to support the Democratic caucus resolution against a two-battleship program. The suggestion for a wireless, however, is not likely, to be entertained.

TORONTO GIRL IS NOW NAMED

In Connection With Action of Mrs. Breen.

New York, Feb. 27.—While three instances of misconduct with two other women are alleged in the complaint of Mrs. Breen, the chief correspondent named is Maude Diehl, a telephone operator of a Toronto hotel.

A detective testified concerning two cases of alleged misconduct on the part of Breen, one at Cobourg, Ont., and the other at Peterboro, Ont. Breen was also charged with having been with Miss Diehl in a Toronto hotel.

Miss Diehl admitted the truth of the detective's testimony concerning her having dined with Breen and gone to his room. She said that there was no impropriety.

Mrs. Helen Lockrie, wife of another detective, testified that the next day Breen said to her:

"It's pretty bad. I expected to get a bunch of money from those people (meaning the Crokers), but I guess it's all off now."

The case goes on to-day.

UNION LABEL

WHICH IS IT?

Which is the meaner the "loner" or the "good fellow"? Here is a live subject for a debate by any young men's clubs associated with the city Churches. The "loner" does'nt necessarily mean the person who walks into a hotel alone, orders a drink, gulps it down, pays the bartender and walks out again. There are various kinds of "loners" and the same can be said of the "good fellow." The former seldom has many friends, while the latter can surround himself with them by very little effort. But the "loner" is despised for what is to all intents his selfishness and he may be the most selfish of human beings looking at the question in that light. And he is selfish in the true sense of the word but what of the "good fellow." He is not charged with selfishness, but in the summing up, which is the meaner?

TERRIBLE TEDDY?

Only the future will decide whether or not Theodore Roosevelt, ex-president, wild animal hunter, story writer, etc., etc., like the pitcher went to the well once too often. He has spoken, and his statement is that he will accept a nomination of the Republican party if the invitation comes his way. Great is the disturbance, and while it is significant in some respects, the outcries do not come unexpected. It is evident that Roosevelt is not the lion he was, when serving his first term as President of the United States. Since then things have changed and the Terrible Teddy is now charged with breaking his word which was to the effect that he would not accept another nomination.

"His candidacy," says The New York Tribune, "because of personal relations, can hardly fail . . . to create a breach among Republicans wider than rival candidacies ordinarily produce, and in a year when the party will need its full strength to win.

"Mr. Roosevelt has torn up his solemn promise of November 8th, 1904," says The New York World.

"Neither the very distinctly recorded pledge not again to be a candidate," says The Sun . . . "nor the ordinary obligations of decent behavior toward the loyal friend, who for some not yet written reason, now incurs his jealous resentment has prevailed over the selfish considerations the hunger for the ears and eyes of the multitude, the invincible ambition to be at the centre of things, the lust for power and primacy!"

"Get out the big posters," remarks The New York Herald. "Have the streets cleared for the parade. Wave the flags and ring the bells. How about the dynamite? See that it is ready. Will the big balloon hold the hot air? Make her staunch and tight. Where are the Abernathy Kids? Is the aeroplane ready, and how about the hydroplane, to say nothing of the submarine?"

The Times says: "For two years he has been scheming and intriguing for the nomination. He has worked for it without ceasing and he has worked in the vulgarest way."

WORDS, WORDS.

Montreal Witness.

Mr. Bourassa, in a brilliant, windy and vituperative speech on the marriage question, reported in the 'Gazette," in an outspokenly admiring way, came to no other point than than that the province ought to have been consulted in the reference to the Supreme Court of a question affecting the delimitation of national and provincial rights, and that the province ought to insist on being so represented. He, however, held that everything with regard to marriage, except divorce, came and should come within the purview of provincial legislation, and showed himself, if one can judge anything from his abundant but not-committal verbiage, to be in favor of the incorporation in the laws of the province, as far as regards Roman Catholics, of every decree of the Roman Church. A large part of the speech reveals him to be a greatly interested reader of the "Witness", but we cannot blame him for not reading it all, as we do not, by any means, read all of the "Devoir." In his negative information as to what was not in the "Witness," he is betrayed into some puerilites He tells how a rabbi in England held a marriage to be null in which an Englishman got married to a Jewess, pretending to be a Jew, and how some clergymen had held many suffragette marriages to be null because the word obey was omitted in reading the service, and yet the "Witness" had made no protest in these cases. He does not say, however, that the law supported either infamy, or separated the parties in either case. The "Witness" would have enough to do to characterize every extravagance of ritualism. The "Witness" had nothing to say about the Ne Temere till it was treated as law. Mr. Bourassa also declares that the "Witness" never told its readers that there never had been in this province a case in which a mixed marriage had been broken by the courts. This is, as our readers know, simply false, as we not only repeatedly said so, but added that it never would be so determined. Upon the latter point we were taken to task by an eminent jurist, who said we had no assurance of that, even had there been no Ne Temere edict, and that admitting that edict, it would be so held. For these two alleged omissions, Mr. Bourassa revealed his brilliant acquaintance with literature, on which he plumed himself greatly, by likening the editor of the "Witness" by name to the most despicable hypocrite in Scott's novels. Is he not a gentleman? . . .

The local trade in oats is fairly active at firm prices, but the demand for other lines of coarse grains was quiet. There was some demand from foreign buyers for winter wheat flour and Leith bid 26 fr. for 90 per cents, which is 6d to 1s per sack out of line. In spring wheat grades business is quiet for export, but the local and country demand is good. A fair trade is passing in rolled oats. Demand for butter is good. Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Feb. 26.—At the Montreal stock yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Feb. 24 were 1050 cattle, 175 sheep and lambs, 1780 hogs, and 375 calves. The offerings on the market this morning for sale amounted to 400 cattle, 50 sheep and lambs, 650 hogs, and 75 calves.

The gathering of buyers was fairly large, including some from Quebec, and considering that the Lenten season is now in full force, there was a good demand, but as the quality of the stock offered did not suit buyers in all cases, they limited their purchases. Good quality steers sold at $7 and full loads of steers and heifers, weighing 900 pounds each brought $6.10 to $6.25 per 100 pounds. Medium bulls were offered at from $4.50 to $5.50 per 100 pounds.

The supply of hogs was very short, and consequently a stronger feeling developed, prices advancing 15c to 25c per 100 pounds. The demand was good and sales of selected lots were made at $7.60 to $7.65 and in some cases as high as $7.75 was realized.

Sheep and lambs were quiet, the supply being limited. The demand for calves was good, and prices ruled higher on account of the small offerings.

Export cattle, bulls, $7 to $7.25; butchers' cattle, medium, $5.60 to $6.60; butchers' cattle, common, $3.50 to $5; canners, $2.75 to $3.25; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.25 to $5.75; butchers, cattle, medium, $3.75 to $4.75; butchers' cattle, bulls, $3.50 to $5.50; milkers, choice, each, $75 to $80; milkers, common and medium, each, $50 to $65; springers, $30 to $45; sheep, ewes, $4.50 to $4.75; bucks and culls, $3.75 to $4.25; lambs, $6.50 to $7; hogs, f.o.b., $7.60 to $7.65; calves, $4 to $10.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

But I wasn't sorry for long. The minute we got on shore at a quaint little landing shoved incongruously in among beautiful wooded hills, the most exquisite scents of ferns and trees and sweet, moist earth came hurrying down to welcome us. Eton is not more beautiful than West Point, and as we drove up the hill under an arbor of trees I saw that the buildings cleverly contrived to look old and gray and picturesque, like ours. The elms in a big green square past the top of the hill had a venerable air, too, so they must have been precocious about growing, for it doesn't stand to reason that West Point can be as ancient as Oxford or Eton. But anyway the elms were there, making an effect that England couldn't improve on, and there were some gray stone barracks and a long line of officers' quarters built of wood and brick. I was glad that we were to stop with Potter, instead of going to a hotel, for I did want to see thoroughly what garrison life is like. Potter has only half a house, though I suppose he's rich enough to buy up all West Point if it were for sale, but he had got a chum of his who lives in the other half to clear out of his part and give it to us for the day and night.

Vic has been to Aldershot, and even to Malta and Gib. But I never have, and I never saw any officers' quarters at home, so I don't know how they compare with American ones. Potter's and his friend's are exactly like a doll's house turned into a museum. The rooms are tiny and most of the furniture is made to fold up, but Stan would be green with envy if he could see their Persian rugs and their silver things and their dozens of meerschaums and their curiosities from all over the world.

It was even better than if we had been ordinary tourists.

I asked Potter what he would do when he was ordered away.

"That depends on where I'm ordered," said he. "If I don't like the place, I'll resign and be a mere cit. It would be easy to get back again into the army if there were any fun going."

"What kind of fun?" I wanted to know.

"A war with somebody, of course," said he. Men have the most extraordinary ideas of fun. But they seem to be alike about that in England and America. They are never so happy as when they are killing something or in danger of being killed themselves. I can't imagine how it would feel to be like that, but I know if they were different we should hate them. And Potter looked so nice in his soldier clothes (which he got into while we were making ourselves pretty for lunch) that I couldn't help thinking it would be a pity for him to leave the army.

His friend was invited to lunch with us, to make up for sacrificing his house. He is nicer than Potter or even Mr. Doremus, but not half so handsome or brave looking, or with such a charming voice as poor Jim Brett, who is not, I suppose, a gentleman except by nature; otherwise he couldn't have been in the steerage.

I thought it was silly to have wire nettings in all the doors and windows, just to keep away a few innocent midges, until we sat out after lunch. There is a pleasant balcony with an upstairs and a downstairs, which Potter and Captain Collingwood call the "piazza," and it would have been delightful sitting there while the men smoked if appalling little animals with a ridiculous number of thin, stick out legs hadn't come buzzing around us. They were saucy looking things, got up in loud suits of black and gray stripes, not in the least like our quiet, respectable midges at home, and they weren't even honorable enough to wait until sunset before attacking you. They pricked horribly, like pins your maid has stuck in the wrong places, and they had a horrid penchant for your ankles. I was sorry I had on clocked stockings! And I apologized heartily to Potter for poking fun at his wire nettings.

Though it was so hot, the air was delicious. It smelt of new mown grass and lilies, with a sharp little spicy tang of the thick Virginia creepers, which made a shadowy green room of the "piazza." Birds were simply roaring with joy in the trees that overhung the house, and Potter and I almost quarreled because he would insist that some huge creatures hopping about on the grass were robins. They would have made three of ours and were much more like quails that had spilt strawberry juice on their breasts.

By and by Captain Collingwood asked if "Lady Betty didn't want to go and see things."

"She's booked to me for Flirtation Walk," said Potter, before I could answer. "Three's a crowd there, old chap." On which I regret to state Captain Collingwood suggested that Potter should teach his own grandmother something about nourishing herself with an egg diet.

"Anyhow, I suppose you don't object to a rearguard for inspection of camp and other features of public interest," he went on, and after some hesitation Potter decided that this would be admissible.

Mrs. Ess Kay and Sally both wanted to lie down (it's strange the fondness American women have for putting themselves in a horizontal position in the daytime!), so Mrs. Ess Kay said that she would commission her brother as chaperon; I needn't be anxious, she assured me, it was quite comme il faut. As if I would have worried about a thing like that!

I was delighted to go, because the most interesting groups had been passing the house, and it was difficult to see all you wanted to through the veil of creepers, without continually craning your neck. Tall, brown faced boys, got up much like glorified Buttons, were sauntering about, holding sunshades over the heads of girls so young that they would have been in short frocks with their hair down their backs, in England. The girls were in white muslin or pale colors, with charming, floppy Leghorn hats trimmed with flowers, and they looked like the daintiest, prettiest of French dolls. But I was a great deal more interested in the youths, who were the cadets—first classmen, Potter said, and would be second lieutenants next year.

I never could take much interest in Eton boys, the few I have seen, for they look such children that one would be positively ashamed to bother with them, but the West Point cadets (though one couldn't exactly take them seriously like regularly grownup men, perhaps) fascinated me from the very first glance through Potter's Virginia creeper. They looked as if they thought a lot of themselves, and the girls they were with had the air of encouraging them to think it. I wondered what kind of things they said to girls and secretly longed to find out.

It seems that in summer the cadets leave their barracks and go into camp, which is a time of year that the girls who visit West Point and those whose fathers are stationed there like very much. We had a glimpse of the tents from the long street of the officers' quarters, and after we had visited a few technical things in which I was too polite to show that I was hardly interested we strolled over to where we could see the little white pyramids gleaming under the stars and stripes.

I had been afraid that all the cadets would have gone away to Flirtation Walk with girls, but to my joy there were plenty left in camp. On chairs under the trees near by two or three ladies were sitting with some white butterfly girls, and a crowd of cadets were talking to them.

"There's a great pal of mine, Mrs. Laurence," said Captain Collingwood. "She would love to know you, Lady Betty. Do you mind if I introduce you to each other?"

"See here, that means we shall be hitched up with all that lot of cadets," Potter objected quite crossly. "What's the good of wasting time?"

I hurried to say that I shouldn't consider it a waste of time, that I should be delighted to meet Mrs. Laurence and also a few sample cadets, if any could be provided for the consumption of an inquiring British tourist.

Captain Collingwood thought that one or two might be found who would not object to the sacrifice, and five minutes later I was having more fun than I had ever had before in my life.

Familiar Quotations.

One of the most familiar quotations from the Bible which are not to be found there upon research is "the lion lying down with the lamb." The spirit of the reference is correct enough, but turn up the passage in Isaiah and you will find: "The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid, and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together." The popular mind has condensed the zoological miscellany, and to the incorrect version alliteration has no doubt contributed.—Exchange.

Denmark's Outdoor Theater.

Denmark has probably the finest natural outdoor theater in the world. It is situated in the royal deer park about six miles out of the capital. There the avenues of mighty trees serve as wings and background to a stage fronted by a beech encircled slope that forms a perfect auditorium. NATIONAL BAD MANNERS.

Must a Polite People Necessarily Be a Decadent One?

A very queer situation involving a question of the great value of bad manners and the important work they perform in the preservation of a nation, and especially the British empire, has arisen in England. King George recently criticised the manners of Englishmen, which, he said, were getting worse and worse, and he suggested that it would be a good thing to include the inculcation of courtesy in the curricula of the schools. And immediately a great many loyal British subjects remade the discovery that Englishmen are not patterns of politeness. They began to deprecate it and say what a pity it is and what could be done to alter it.

The bishop of Worcester made a speech to the boys of Wolverley school in which he recalled a conversation he had with the king on the subject of manners. The king had assured the bishop that Englishmen in point of manners were beginning to compare very badly with distinguished representatives of other nations with whom he came in contact.

And now some of the dignified British journals and periodicals have rushed into the fray with an argument in favor of bad manners. London Truth, for instance, calls attention to the fact that too much courtesy has in all ages accompanied downfall. "Noblesse oblige," it says, "has ruined more people and nations than unwise speculation. France has a name for courtesy; so has Italy; so has Spain. Germany, England and the United States each has a special brand of bad manners. Compare the status of these two groups of countries.

"Bad manners of the national kind are the sign manual of power and have something fibrous in them which does not for a moment excuse them, but which enables the observer to understand them. * * * On the day when George finds himself ruling over a 'polite' nation he will find himself ruling over a decadent nation."

OPTICAL SERVICE
BY
A. A. FOWLER, Eyesight Specialist

In every trade, profession or branch of work, there are found a few men, who from special fitness, or education, or both, are better prepared to serve you in their line than the multitude of others in the same field.

Since Optometry requires especial ability in both professional and mechanical work, men that are fitted to do both equally well are scarce. Therefore you cannot be too particular about the selection of the man to whom you entrust your eyes.

The professional work—the examining and measuring of your eye defects, must be skilfully done. The mechanical part—the making and adjusting of your glasses is no less important.

Every phase of optical work is thoroughly and intelligently done here. From the first step in the examination to the final adjusting of the frame or mounting not a single thing is overlooked or slighted. I do all the work myself, and having had such fine success with most difficult, and neglected eyes, I do not hesitate to say that I can give you perfect satisfaction.

A visit will incur no obligation.

SUMMER IS ON THE WAY

Or Else This Butterfly Made a Big Mistake

A harbinger of summer, which is yet afar off, was discovered this morning in the shape of a poor little butterfly. While breakfast was in progress at the home of Mr. James Gates, 4 Dunlop street. The little winged beauty was flitting around the house as unconcernedly as if revelling in the midst of fields and meadows of the good old summer season. Mr. Gates managed to capture the little traveller and promptly bottled it. When he exhibited it to the Review this morning, the cold air and the unaccustomed weather seemed to have dampened its activities and the little creature lay passive in the bottom of the receptacle. The origin of the butterfly was a mystery to "Jim."

THE GIRL AND THE GAMBLER

Ernie Marks Co. Has Strong Bill for To-night

"The Pride of the Army," a lively little sketch with a military flavor dominating it, and with abundant comedy interwoven, was played to another large and appreciative audience at the Grand last evening by the Ernie Marks Stock company. The performance featured charming little Louise De Luna, in the role of "Polly Trevor, "The Pride of the Army." This little person was a great favorite with the crowd, and her acting was marked by plenty of spirit and vivacity. The climaxes to each act were decidedly superior to many stock company performances and there was a noticeable naturalness and ability displayed by every member of the cast.

The specialties, as usual, were above par. Franklin A. Brooks in monologue made a big hit and had to respond to determined encores. His parody on "Marching Through Georgia" was as popular as ever.

Lida Gardner in a couple of good specialties, was also extremely popular. An improvised little clog by this performer raised storms of applause.

The singing of Miss De Luna was also splendidly received, her clear soprano voice being admirably adapted for the lighter class of musical selections.

To-night the Ernie Marks company will present the best play in their repertoire, entitled, "The Girl and the Gambler."

AN EVENING WITH DICKENS

Clever Impersonations of Novelist's Characters at The Conservatory

The audience in the Conservatory of Music last night, to hear Wm. Sterling Battis, the New York impersonator of Dickens' characters, was not as large as the interesting entertainment merited, and all who witnessed Mr. Battis in his many accurate characterizations were thoroughly pleased with his representation of the famous personages in Dickens' work.

Mr. Battis gave portrayals of Captain Cuttle, Peggoty, Sidney Carton, Sam Weller, Bill Sykes and others, and the pleasure provided by the varied representations was augmented by his "making up" and costuming in the presence of the audience.

Between his roles he delivered a running comment upon Dickens' worsk and characters in general, and the manner in which he dealt with those topics made his observations very interesting particularly in his comparisons of some of the great authors's characters, with other people in Dickens' writings.

The evening was, of course, appreciated most by those of the audience who were readers of Dickens, and in this connection it might be said that as grandfather of little Nell, Mr. Battis was particularly impressive. Also in his revival of the greatest of all Dickens' characters, Sidney Carton, Mr. Battis displayed with wonderful power of reproduction the characteristics of the young man who in the "Tale of Two Cities," gave his life for the man who had married the woman that he (Sidney Carton) loved.

The evening was given under the auspices of the choir of the George street Methodist church, and for an entertainment of that nature no wiser selection than that of Mr. Battis could have been made, he accomplishing the very difficult feat of entertaining, unaided, the audience for two hours without an intermission or interruption.

THE BEST MUSICAL COMEDY AT THE GRAND SATURDAY

Madame Sherry the Well Known Musical Comedy Here on Saturday Next, Matinee and Night.

Nearly everybody has heard of that Musical Comedy that has been the best success for the past few seasons. The announcement that Peterborough is to be favored with an appearance of this popular comedy has been greeted with delight by all. The musical numbers are so well known that all are sure to enjoy the productions.

In "Madame Sherry" which comes to the Grand, next Saturday for matinee and evening performances, there is a wise old uncle from abroad, who finds the nephew he has been sending money to for years for a musical education, associated with an actress in the management of a young ladies' dancing academy. The young man's efforts to provide a ready-to-order family with the assistance of the janitor's wife, the actress and one of the latter's South American admirers, make a neat farce which could be, and has been given without music.

The second and third acts are given aboard a yacht. When the back drop showing the serried brick and stone heights of lower Manhattan begins to move, all landlubbers yearn for smelling salts. The yacht, also the theatre, appears to be sliding merrily into the bay. In the final act, the bright lights of Coney Island are stretched in a gleaming line across the horizon. The effects are unusually good and show that no expense has been spared by the producers.

Whoever started the story that "Madame Sherry" was a show with just one number in it made a mistake. It would be in bad shape now if that were the case, for "Ev'ry Little Movement," with all its fluent melody and poetry, has been very nearly killed by mal-treatment in the cafes and in the flat next door. But when the piece is shown at the Grand Opera House, next Saturday, it will prove to have just about as many enjoyable numbers as there are lines on the musical program. Both as to dancing and music, it is far better than the average musical show.

The advance sale of seats opened this morning and there was a big demand. It looks as if there would be big houses both at the matinee and evening performances. Secure your tickets early and have a good choice.

PORT ARTHUR MAKES MONEY BY OWNING STREET RAILWAY

Ald. Gordon Secures Some Information on the Question.

A strong argument in favor of a municipally operated street railway service, is secured by a glance at some of the figures showing the profit obtained by the Port Arthur and Fort William Electric Railway, which is owned by the municipality of Port Arthur.

Ald. G. N. Gordon, for the purpose of securing information relative to the success and satisfaction which is being obtained by the above mentioned company, wrote to the general manager at Port Arthur and received a reply filled with enthusiasm over the satisfaction and popularity of the municipal management as it prevails in that city. The general manager says that the general public are proud of their street railway, and taken as a whole, there are few systems its equal.

A tabulated statement of the revenue of the company for 1911 was appended to the letter, and underneath a statement of its expenditures. The total earnings amounted to $172,976.75. The expenditures which embraced a large sum expended for extensions, notwithstanding produced a net profit of $55,507.08.

No better argument could be brought forward favoring Ald. Gordon's project of a municipally owned radial railway service for Peterborough than the facts enumerated.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING CALLED FOR THURSDAY NIGHT

Hotel Accommodation is One of the Questions Slated for Discussion.

There promises to be an interesting meeting of the City Board of Trade on Thursday evening, Feb. 29th, at the City Council chamber, when several matters of immediate importance will be brought up. A large attendance of the members is urgently requested at this meeting, the business to commence sharp at eight. Municipal by-laws relating to permanent roadway pavements and the collecting and disposing of garbage will receive careful and thorough deliberation.

The question of more hotel accomodation for the city, is slated for discussion also.

LOCAL COAL DEALERS GIVE FULL WEIGHT

No Attempt Here to Act Fraudulently With Customers

While the people of other cities may be the losers by "short weight" methods of the coal dealers, Chief Thompson informed the Review representative to-day that while he has made investigations, and in some cases has asked the drivers to call at the scales at the market, the loads were found to be full weight, and he had no complaint to make.

CHAMPIONS ARE ACCEPTED

Eatons Will Get Dates for Allan Cup Games

Toronto, Feb. 27.—The challenge of the Eaton Hockey Club, senior champions of the O.H.A., has been accepted by the Allan Cup trustees, and dates will be awarded them to play next week in Winnipeg or perhaps farther west in case the Victorias are beaten in the first cup games by the best club from the Province of Alberta, whose challenge was received first by the trustees.

Secretary Northey of the Cup trustees, promises as early dates as possible to the Eaton Club, his communication reading as follows:

"We have challenges in from the winners of the two Alberta leagues and they have been ordered to play off, the winners going to Winnipeg to play the defenders (the Winnipeg Victorias) for the cup. This qualifying match will probably be played Monday (to-night,) or to-morrow, (Tuesday,) which would make it possible for them to play in Winnipeg the latter part of this week, and, I should think the O.H.A. champions could play the early part of the week following, their challenge being next in order. I will advise Eatons of the probable dates as soon as I know what they are likely to be, so that they can make their preliminary arrangements without any loss of time."

PRESTON TEAM ARE CHAMPIONS AGAIN

Midland Scored First Goal But Final Score Was 6-4 In Favor of Champions---Visitors Were The Better Stick Handlers.

Preston, Ont., Feb. 27.—By defeating Midland by a score of 6 goals to 4 in the second of the home and home games last night Preston intermediates retained their right to the O.H.A. championship. A lead of one goal on the game played in Midland last Wednesday gives them three goals on the round.

As was anticipated, the game was very hardly contested, both teams working their best for every inch of play. Close checking made spectacular performances impossible, and the splendid combination work on both sides evidenced the fact that all the players were trainedv up to the highest pitch in readiness for the final contest.

The rink was jammed to its utmost capacity. About three hundred supporters came down with the Midland team by special train, but many of the rooters from Berlin, Hespeler and Galt favored the visitors. The Preston fans backed their own team to a man.

Preston secured the puck in the face-off, and after an end to end play, Scott, in the nets for Midland, received several wicked shots which he saved cleverly. The first goal went to the credit of Midland, Beatty scoring. Within a few minutes Preston evened up the tally after a scrimmage in front of the goal.

An accidental kick in the groin gave Chase an enforced rest of five minutes but Preston failed to gain any advantage while their opponents' team was crippled. The remainder of the half was evenly contested, perfect team work being a feature. Shrotly before the gong sounded both teams scored, making the half-time score 2 to 2.

If anything Midland appeared to have a little advantage over the home team. Steady play marked the first few minutes after returning to the ice, but the Preston forwards then became aggressive, and after a severe bombardment the puck found the Midland nets. Following a scrimmage Bernhardt scored again with a beautiful shot, making the total stand 4 to 2 in favor of Preston. Gould got his knee badly injured and had to leave the ice for the rest of the game, Walker also retiring to even up. Lavigne added another point for Midland, but from now on Preston showed decidedly better form. Bowman and Mcelroy each placed a goal to their credit, amid wild enthusiasm from the local supporters, while Midland rallied sufficiently to make the last point of the game.

Midland outclassed the home team in stick-handling and skating, but the sure shooting in which Preston excelled, kept the silverware in their possession. Gren Caldwell, of Barrie, satisfactorily refereed the game.

The line-up:

Midland—Goal, Scott; point, Nichols; cover, Gould; rover, Lavigne; centre, Chase; right, Beatty; left, Hastings.

ORILLIA MASCOT IS SON OF FORMER PETERBOROUGH MAN

Last night's Star has the following to say about the Orillia team's mascot:—

The cutest thing in hockey team mascots was sprung on the Toronto public at Riverdale Rink Saturday night by the Orillia excursionists.

At the opening of the game "Riley," the Toronto Canoe Club bull terrier replendent in his brilliant red blanket, led the little Paddlers upon the ice, and there was a delighted cheer, but it wasn't a marker of the roar that went up at half-time, when the Orillians, put their mascot, Master Ansley Webb, a cute little four-year old lad, clad in a complete hockey uniform over the fence. He strolled across the ice to the penalty box, unfeased by the mighty cheers of the crowd and was introduced to Riley. The T. C. C. boys immediately presented the little gaffer with the husky dog—"if he could take him across the ice" Ansley was certainly game enough to try. Riley upset him on his back, first crack, but the boy scrambled to his feet, chased the dog, caught him by the collar, and hauled him half way across the ice. The crowd shrieked with delight as the little Orillia lad tugged away at the powerful white dog. Riley dug his toes in the ice and slid on all fours but the boy dragged him to mid ice before the animal's superior strength prevailed, and he returned to his stand in the penalty box. The Orillia mascot is a son of Ted Webb the well-known Orillia contractor, and one of the staunchest supporters of the team, and the team is certainly proud of the little chap.

Mr. "Ted" Webb went to Orillia from Peterboro about twenty years ago. He is a son of Mr. Edward Webb, Chamberlain street, city, and made a hit with the local Juniors when they visited Orillia in the semi-finals by the courteous manner in which he received and escorted them through the new Tudhope Anderson factory, for which he was the contractor.

Mr. Webb is doing well in Orillia being now one of the most flourishing contractors.

LAKEFIELD HAS SOME TEAM

Defeated Fast Local Seven by 6-2 Score

Seven players representing the Dominion-Montreal Bank Leaguers, journeyed to Lakefield last night and in an exhibition game with the Trent Valley League team of that village, were defeated 6—2.

Stan. Cook and Jack Patterson were the shining lights of the visitors. Cook scoring both goals for the Bankers, while Patterson was right on in goal.

The line-up of the locals was as follows:— Patterson, Fitzgerald, Foben, Elliott, Cook, Clancey and Grant.

SPORT TALK

Peterboro's victory over the T.A.A.C. team goes to prove that there were some teams playing intermediate hockey this season that should have figured in the senior series.—Post.

The question on the streets to-day is "can Orillia overcome that five-goal lead to-night?" The answer from those who saw the Orillia-Peterborough game in Orillia, is that they cannot do it. The "Younkers" are not at their best when on hard ice such as is assured for to-night, while the paddlers claim to be in their element on the hard surface. Here's wishing them luck, however.

The members of the local garrison do not want indoor baseball this winter. At least that was the conclusion at the meeting called at the Armories last Saturday night to discuss the matter, when only a couple of enthusiasts showed up. Dr. McPherson will make another attempt to create an interest, however, and he may have more success another time.

The officers in charge of the garrison athletics have done everything in their power to make the sports a success, but without the co-operation of the members of the Regiment it is almost impossible to get anything in the line of sport going.

The largest crowd of the season to witness a Trent Valley League game will likely attend the Brock street rink to-morrow night, when Lakefield and Hastings play a sudden death fixture. Both towns are reported as running an excursion and with the numerous local people who will be interested in the outcome, there will be quite a following.

The game is billed to commence at 8.30 p.m. sharp.

Leo Derocher is in charge of the T. A. S. Trent Valley Leaguers to-night. With the following players—McFadden, T. Lansfield, E. Lansfield, McPhee, Halpin, A. Coughlin and N. Phelan, he left on the 1.40 G.T.R. train for Campbellford, where they play the return game in the home and home series to decide the championship of the district.

With the exception of Nagle Phalen on left wing, the team is the same as that which put it over Campbellford 5 to 0 here on Friday night last. This will be Phelan's first game and he will put forth his best efforts to make good.

The five goals lead should be good enough for the round.

The Clerks defeated the Lock Works last night in a Mercantile League game 2—1. The winners were without the services of McFadden an Leech and it took them all their time to put it over Joe Huard's bunch. Leo Derocher refereed.

Chaucer Elliott, of Kingston, will referee the Orillia-Canoe Club final in Orillia to-night.

Benjamin Rice, a Kingston bricklayer, was hit by a train at Niagara Falls, but escaped serious injury.

THE FIRST BOOST FOR PETERBORO

The "Spectators" Report on the Baseball Meeting Held Here

The following is an account from the Hamilton Spectator, on the meeting held here in the interests of Canadian League baseball:

Enthusiasm spells success in all things, sports included. The sports of Peterborough are more than enthusiastic over the realization that a Canadian League club will be placed in the Lift Lock city this year. M. M. Robinson, secretary of the league, visited Peterborough on Saturday and Sunday, and reports that everything points to a big year in the eastern city. A big public meeting was held in the Oriental hotel on Saturday night, when the most prominent men, including the mayor and many of the best sporting men of the city, attended, as well as hundreds of citizens.

After the situation had been gone over thoroughly, the gentlemen present were more enthusiastic than ever, and immediately proceeded to get down to hard work by appointing the following committee to take charge of the organization and formation of a stock company to look after the club's interests; Mayor Bradburn, Ald. Gordon, a well-known lawyer; Dr. Wightman, Peterborough's prominent dental man; Rollie Glover, the well-known hockey promoter and member of the O.H.A. executive; Eddie Desautel, Mr. Trebilcock, proprietor of the Peterborough book store, and Robert Hicks, a well-known coal and wood merchant.

The committee are all hustlers and the most popular and respected men in Peterborough, and have the confidence of the public of the city of more than 20,000 inhabitants. The committee will also look after the selection of a manager, and Old Folks Templin, Jo Jo Keenan and Harry Burridge are among those mentioned for the job.

As everyone knows Peterborough is a live little sporting town, and has always supported clean sport in any line, and with a playing field but four blocks from the heart of the city, that part of the question is already perfect. In summertime Peterborough is visited by many vacation seekers, it being but a short distance from one of the best summer resorts in Canada.

The meeting was the most enthusiastic since the idea of organizing a Canadian league was conceived a year ago, and M. M. Robinson states that more enthusiasm was displayed on Saturday night than was manifested in any of the towns on the circuit. For a small city that is going some.

The committee which was appointed will have completed all the details in two weeks' time and will report at the meeting which will be held in the near future.

GIRLS PLAY HOCKEY

Two teams of P.C.I. girls clashed last night in the Brock street rink, and for a space of an hour certainly made the ice fly, as a result of their very careful training under the supervision of Mr. G. A. Ferguson The game resulted in a win for Miss Patterson's "Beauties" who walloped the "Star Seven" by the score 9—4.

Mercantile Leaguers

The executive of the Mercantile League are asked to be on hand sharp at 7.30 Wednesday evening, in the Y.M.C.A. parlor, for the purpose of revising the league schedule.

BASEBALL

The International League schedule was released to-day for publication. The Toronto club opens the season at Jersey City on April 118, and plays a four game series at all the Eastern cities before returning home on May 7, for a similar series with Jersey City, Baltimore, Providence and Newark, in that order, playing in opposition to the O.J.C. races every day but the last day of the meeting.

Toronto has 12 home games in June, 21 in July, 18 in August, and 11 in September. The Leafs will end the season at home on the 21st of Sepetmber with a double-header with Rochester.

Orders have been issued by the head offices of the Grand Trunk Railway that all switchmen must have standard watches which will be regulated every week by the official time keeper of the Company.

ROYALTY TO ROUGH IT

Ottawa, Feb. 27.—Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Princess Patricia and a party from Government House, will have an experience unique to members of the Royal family on Wednesday next. They have been invited by J. R. Booth, the veteran lumber king, to visit one of his shanties on the Madawaska river and see lumbering operations in full swing. The party leaves by special train Tuesday night.

GETS DAMAGES FOR INJURY TO SENSIBILITIES

Jewess Given $150 in Breach of Promise Case

Montreal, Feb. 27.—A marriage contract in Hebrew, was one of the most damaging pieces of evidence that Miss S. Dora Weisman produced in her action against Moses Lubin for breach of promise, which was heard in the Superior Court last week, and which ended on Saturday afternoon, when Mr. Justice Archer awarded the young woman $150 damages. This contract was couched in specific terms, leaving no loopholes for escape, except under a penalty.

"The groom," so runs the contract, "has undertaken to give the bride some presents, as it is the established custom in Israel. The bride has undertaken herself to give to the groom, in money, the sum of $300 clothes for herself and bedding, and other requirements, as is the custom in Israel. . . . Damages by the party who will desecrate this agreement by breaking it to the party, the sum of $200 in addition to the prescribed laws of the country."

Miss Weisman, however, made no mention of the $200 indemnity mentioned in the contract. She sued for $629.27, $400 of which she put under the heading of ridicule suffered, and injury to sensibilities. There was a claim also for $100, said by the bride to have been loaned to the groom on the strength of the promise to marry her. An item of $84.41 represented wages for twelve weeks, which Miss Weisman claimed she could have earned as a finisher of coats and vests. She told the court that at the time of the engagement she was earning seven dollars per week in this capacity, but she gave up her job, at his suggestion, he having promised to pay her board, and reimburse her out of his own earnings.

When the day for the marriage arrived it was postponed at Lubin's request, though Miss Weisman said that she did this most reluctantly. Later he absolutely refused to marry her, whereupon she instituted the present suit against him.

His Lordship found that Miss Weisman had failed to prove that the $100 was loaned to Lubin but allowed her under the circumstances $150 damages.

BRAVE BUT MODEST

At Kirkwall, Scotland, Provost Slater, recently presented Arthur Findlayson, seamen, Thwartelose, Kirkwall, with a framed diploma and a silver medal from the Russian Humane Society for his gallant deed when a seaman on board the Kennet of Leath, January 6th, 1909, at Russia, in saving from drowning a Russian workman, who afterwards died. It was a cold, black, wintry day and Findlayson made three attempts before he found the man.

Provost Slater said Findlayson had been so reticient in the matter that it had taken the Russian Humane Society two years to find him.

Facts About Motherhood

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at the time of child-birth, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when the strain is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

It isn't as though the experience came upon them unawares. They have ample time in which to prepare, but they, for the most part, trust to chance and pay the penalty.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy, and strong.

Any woman who would like special advice in regard to this matter is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. Her letter will be held in strict confidence.

BROKEN MARRIAGE

Toronto, Feb. 27—"I have decided to commit my life, and all the strength which God has given me, to the suppression of all the evils which are identified with priesthood as identified with the Roman Catholic Church," declared the Rev. C. C. Johnson, Sunday night, in a sermon dealing with the subject of 'Confession,' one of the dogmas of the Church of Rome."

He expressed the belief that auricular confession to a priest tended to the deterioration of both the priest and penitent. He further declared that there was no scriptural warrant for confession. Touching on the Ne Temere question, the Rev. Mr. Johnson said: "A woman who had married three years ago, came to me the other day informing me that her husband had left her, stating that he had seen the priest, who had told him that the woman being a Protestant and he a Catholic, they were not legally married. She did not know what she was now, and did not know what to do. I am going to spare no effort to help that woman, and if I get hold of that priest and the man I will land both in the Police Court for I maintain that I, having married the couple, not in the name of the Methodist Church, but in the name of King George, they are legally married, and the tie cannot be broken by any church whatever."

DO NOT TRUST YOURSELF SAYS THE MINISTER

Young Men Should Not Try to Walk Way of Folly

Hamilton, Feb. 27.—Hundreds of people were unable to gain admittance to the Gospel Tabernacle Sunday night, to hear Rev. P. W. Philpot preach on "Unheeded Danger Signals." The pastor took as his text Psalms xix, 13, "This, their way, is their folly; yet their posterity approve their sayings." "This is surely a very serious charge the psalmist makes against society," said Rev. Mr. Philpot. "The complaint is that while we learn from those who have gone before in things that are secular, we close our eyes to their moral failures and spiritual weaknesses. Bible and profane history are replete with examples of failure. Those examples are spiritual red lights warning us of wrecks and shoals where men become wrecks. Why do men permit themselves to be deceived and walk a path so fatal I think it is because we lack consciousness of sin, and are too easy with sin. We take it too lightly. We need a quickening of consience as to wrong doing. It has ever been the aim of Satan to gloss over, and the theatre and the popular novel are its principal agents in this work. They would lead us to believe that the sin is real life instead of death." The preacher cautioned young men not to presume on their eleverness to save them from falling. "Don't trust yourself; your are no better than your fathers," admonished Mr. Philpot. "In my 16 years in this city I have seen a good many young men try to walk the way of folly, and history has repeated itself. They have fallen where others fell."

YOUNG GIRLS AND DANCING

Dances are being held in Guild Hall Milwaukee, under the auspices of St. James' church, and it is prepared to extend the scheme by the opening of a free dancing school for the children of the parish. The plan is adopted as a means of combating the public dance hall which is charged with the ruin of thousands of young girls every year.

Their method of saving girls is going to rouse to indignation a certain type of religious sensibility which would rather see the poor things ruined than have them saved by means not provided for by the tenets of a narrow traditionalism.

It is unfortunate that there are so many people engaged in the work of salvation that are quite unappreciative of certain native instincts — and quite proper ones, too — that go to compose the personal make-up of the people they are attempting to save. This is no criticism upon their integrity or the sincerity of their convictions. Nor is it to forget that safety lies on the side of conservatism rather than on that of a spirit of hasty innovation. But the fact of the case is that there are certain things that young people are going to do; that it is even the law of their physical constitution to do, so that it is a violation of their constitution if they don't do them.

And dancing is one of them. It is as much a matter of nature for a young girl to dance as for a calf or kitten to frolic. It is a species of physical appetite. Even an adult's toes will twitch accompaniment to dance music. This appetite is an ordinance of the girl's being, and if it is repressed at a good point it will break out at a bad point.

A great deal of young deviltry is simply the result of wholesale impulse that has been throttled. More than half of a boy's mischievousness is due to the abrupt and forcible closing of avenues of egress. Any locomotive boiler will explode if too much pressure is put on the throttle. Now, that is evidently the idea of these Milwaukee church men and church women. The girls of Milwaukee are going to dance. Animal spirits that have no vent to govern them are destined to an explosion and when it comes it will come in a way that is disastrous.

One problem that the church has to solve is how to conduct off accumulated physical pressure in a way, and under such circumstances and with such an enviornment that the process may result harmlessly. Any comprehensive scheme of salvation will have to deal considerately with the animal impulse as well as with the moral and spiritual ones.

MARRIED BY JUMP OVER OLD BROOM

London, Feb. 27.—"There are tradition of the marriage ceremony among certain gypsies in England consisting of jumping over a broom or besom, and it is only within the last 50 years that this custom has been extinct in Wales," said T. W. Thompson last night in a fascinating lecture at University College to the Folk-Lore Society on "The Ceremonial Customs of the British Gypsies."

The besom he said, was held by the father of the bridegroom, or bride, and first the young man jumped over it, and then the young woman, whereupon the official would make some such remark as "Now you are married."

Gypsies, he said, invariably marry at an early age, and as the parents are both to lose their daughters the girl frequently runs away with the young man of her choice. In numbers of cases there are no marriage ceremony. "Only people who have lost their character go into church to be married," said one of the Hearns.

Incidentally he mentioned that German gypsies like to have their children baptised as often as possible, and the practice of successive baptism is not unknown in England.

In both England and Germany the food of a gypsy must on no account be touched by a woman's dress. On one occasion, said Mr. Thompson, he was having tea with a family when a boy of 16 refused back a piece of bread at his mother because she had allowed it to touch her dress while she was cutting it. She remarked he was right not to eat it, and she gave it to the dog.

PRETTY MISS IN FREAK MARRIAGE

Winnipeg Girl Left Husband in Departmental Store

Father Will Make Attempt to Have Marriage Annulled

Winnipeg, Feb. 27.—It has developed that the 17-year-old girl, who, under the name of Ida Belle Russell, married George E. Watson, a well-to-do bachelor of Winnipeg, last week, and left him within an hour, was Miss Dorothy Rogers, of 600 Corrydon avenue. Her father is a well-known civil engineer, and did not suspect his daughter was the girl whose curious wedding freak has filled the local papers for the past week.

The girl claims she did it as a joke, corresponding with Watson as the result of a matrimonial advertisement. She left him in a departmental store en route from the ministers house.

As the girl is under age, an effort will be made to have the marriage nullified.

Rogers is a C.N.R. engineer, residing on Corrydon avenue. His daughter is a stenographer in the C.P.R. master mechanic's office. Her parents were informed of the marriage by the Deputy Attorney-General. In response to an advertisement the girl met Watson, a Saskatchewan farmer, in a drugstore, being identified by a red ribbon pinned to a fur boa, walked to the church and was married by Rev. Eber Crummy, of Grace Methodist church. She went to Eaton's store, and asked her husband to wait at the foot of the elevator while she purchased some woman's apparel, and then came down the adjoining elevator.

Miss Rogers is twenty, a pretty, comely English girl. Watson is rough and uncouth, and fifty-two years old.

ANOTHER BLIZZARD.

Second Bad Storm Causes Widespread Suffering.

Toronto, Feb. 27.—The people of many places in Ontario in their struggles against the blizzard of yesterday are wondering if it is a return of last week's tornado.

Locally the storm caused much discomfort on the streets and interfered greatly with the railway traffic.

The blizzard from the southwestern part of the States had its origin in the same place as the storm of last week. The first disturbance was noticed in Utah and gradually gained force and spread to Texas and thence to Oklahoma, where ten lives are reported lost and twenty-five persons injured. Indiana and Illinois also got a goodly share of the snow and high winds.

Southern Ontario, extending from Lake Michigan to Quebec, is under the rage of the storm which is prophesied to last until to-day, turning into sleet and rain in many localities and passing off the upper lakes.

In the west the weather is extremely cold, being 18 below at Winnipeg. Alberta and Saskatchewan are only moderately cold as also are the Maritime Provinces. The wind was going at the rate of 48 miles an hour yesterday.

Kingston Again Blockaded.

Kingston, Feb. 27.—The Bay of Quinte trains were running yesterday for the first time since last Wednesday on account of the big storms. Last night another big storm set in and it looks as if the line will be blocked again. The street car service was put out of business again.

Four Suspects Arrested.

New York, Feb. 27.—Edward Kinsman, alias Collins, who described himself as a prizefighter and a restaurant waiter, was locked up in the Tombs last night, charged with being the principal in the recent robbery of two East River National Bank messengers of $25,000 on the afternoon of Feb. 15. The robbery occurred in the heart of the financial district, while the bank messengers were traveling in a taxicab with $25,000 cash from the Planters' Exchange Bank. Five men participated in the hold-up.

Kinsman, the alleged principal, another man and two women, were arrested at the Grand Central Station late yesterday afternoon as they were about to board a train for Chicago.

Eloped With Boarder.

Brantford, Feb. 27.—"Good-bye, dont' worry, John," is the message which John Drake of Arthur street is said to have received from his wife who disappeared from her home on Saturday last.

Drake has asked the police to search for her, and it is alleged an elopement has taken place with an Ingersoll man who was a boarder at the Drake house for some time.

Drake left for that town yesterday in an endeavor to locate his wife.

Used Pitchfork on Constable.

Belleville, Feb. 27.—John Mack was yesterday afternoon found guilty of interfering and assaulting a bailiff in the discharge of his duties. The accused used a pitchfork on the county constable who accompanied the bailiff, and also tried to use an axe.

Mrs. Mack, who assisted her husband, was also convicted. The man was sent to the Central Prison for six months and Mrs. Mack to jail for four months.

An Italian Dewey.

Rome, Feb. 27.—Admiral Cattolica, Minister of Marine, amid prolonged cheers in the Senate Chamber yesterday, read despatches describing the action at Beirut and the sinking of Turkish warships in the harbor by Italian cruisers.

According to the despatches, the operation was difficult, owing to the limited extent of the harbor and the danger of damaging neutral shipping and buildings along the water front. It was carried out, however, with moderation, but energetically and resolutely.

The greatest credit, the Minister added, was due to the officers and men for their brilliant conduct.

Meteorite Almost Struck Liner.

Boston, Feb. 27.—A narrow escape from being struck by a meteorite was experienced by the Leyland Line steamer Bostonian, which arrived yesterday from Manchester, England.

At five o'clock Saturday morning, Captain Perry reported he saw the meteorite, flashing brilliantly, falling to the southwest of the vessel. There was a loud hissing sound as it approached the water and then with a loud report it fell into the ocean a few ship's lengths from the bow of the steamer. So great a disturbance did it cause in the sea that water was dashed over the decks of the steamer.

Sacred to Their Memory.

"Bosworth has a unique idea that he is going to put into effect in his new house."

"Do you mean having the garage in the basement?"

"Oh, no; that has been done before. He is going to have a splendid den fitted up for himself on the second floor, where, in addition to the various trophies he has won, he will have the walls decorated with the names of all the guides he has shot by mistake."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Cities Escape Expense.

Toronto, Feb. 27.—"In Ontario one-half of the total assessment, or $500,000,000, is on cities alone which maintain their few miles of road; the other half, $500,000,000, is on the towns, villages and townships, which have to maintain 50,000 miles of roadways. Thus it may readily be seen that it is only fair that the cities, as well as the Governments, should help in the good roads movement."

These statements were made yesterday morning by Major T. L. Kennedy of Dixie, Peel County, at the opening of the tenth annual convention of the Ontario Good Roads Association in the York county building on Adelaide street. About one hundred and sixty delegates are registered.

QUESTION OF CHURCH UNION DEBATED AT KNOX CHURCH

Some Excellent Points Were Brought Forward by the Speakers—No Decision Given.

Under the auspices of the Young People's Societies of Knox and St. Andrew's Presbyterian churches and Charlotte street Methodist church, in Knox church last night, the pros. and cons. of the great question which is occupying the minds of the people of Canada at the present time, that of the organic union of the Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists, were ably discussed by Messrs. R. F. Downey, H. B. Cowan, A. McKenzie and Wm. McLaren, the former two representing the Methodists and taking the affirmative in the debate, "Resolved that the time has come, when the Presbyterains, Methodists and Congregationalists should be united by organic union," and the negative by the Presbyterian speakers. The purpose of the discussion was to aid those who are voting on the question to come to a decision. There was no decision given on the debate but each individual is being left to decide the answer for himself, or herself. So well were the merits and demerits discussed by the different speakers that if the points gained by the one side over the other are to be taken as the answer, the voters will probably be as much at sea as ever, but the object of the meeting was accomplished in so far as it secured for the people the opinions of some of the leading workers and thinkers of the local churches.

MR. R. F. DOWNEY.

The leader of the affirmative, Mr. Downey, was called upon after a male quartette had rendered a selection and Miss Sanderson, so.o.st, h.d favored the gathering with a selection.

Mr. Downey said that this was an age of progress and a time when the people were looking about seeking to get greater results with the least expended energy. In religion as well as in other things we were looking for the mode of organization that would obtain for us the best results and church union he thought would be an answer to the problem.

The speaker went on to discuss the history of the origin of church union showing that it was first offered by the Presbyterians in an effort to solve the problem of the overlapping of the different Christian denominations in heathen countries. He spoke of the appointing of a committee to formulate a "Basis of Union" and of how it had worked with the utmost brotherliness, each one wishing to be bound together with a greater bond of unity and peace. "The one great underlying fundamental principal on which this question will be worked out is brotherly love," said Mr. Downey. "The purpose is to carry in a greater and fuller way, the story of God to all the world. When organic union has been accomplished the great workers and thinkers of our churches will be able to work to better advantage towards the accomplishment of this purpose."

In referring to the proposed basis of union, Mr. Downey said, it was not perfect but in all things there should be room for improvement. A question to be decided, among other important ones, was, the term of pastorate. The Presbyterian term is unlimited, while the Methodist term is limited. The policy of Church Union was to take the good points from the laws governing each denomination. The Presbyterians were a little more rigorous in the preparation of their ministers of the Gospel. The aim of Church Union was that every minister should have a University training and that he should be abreast of the times.

MR. A. MCKENZIE.

The leader of the negative did not agree with the proposed basis of Doctrine, Ministry and Church Government. He thought it was a sort of compromise between the three congregations. As to the government the proposed basis did not state whether the governing bodies were to be called Quarterly Boards, General Assemblies, etc., or by other names.

Mr. McKenzie laid stress upon the matter of endowments and legacies. He said that the trustees of legacies bequeathed to the Presbyterian church for instance, could not hand them over for the use of the union church. It had cost our forefathers a great deal to get the church as it was to-day and it would be a pity to throw away that for which they had shed blood. The Presbyterians were always proud of their high standards and these would have to be discarded.

The proposed basis of union had no place in it for prayer which was so essential to the spiritual life and growth of the church. In New Zealand and Austraia, the people were deep thinking and practical and church union failed. In federation only, could he see a solution of the problem confronting the people.

MR. H. B. COWAN.

The third speaker, Mr. Cowan, opened by saying that the prime object was that God's work should be promoted in the best possible way. By church union there would be increased power and more would be drawn to Christ. Our religion was a religion of love. If we failed in love we failed in everything. Because this love had been working we had many outside organizations, such as hospitals and charitable institutions; and the Christian people should work together inside the church as well as outside.

The speaker quoted John R. Mott, who has been around the world, as saying that it was nothing less than a sin to be thus divided at home, though there was not much overlapping in the foreign fields. The heathen people cannot but become confused about the religion offered them when they know that there are different factions at home, not being able to comprehend the nature of the differences here. The Church of Rome was one great reason why the Protestants should be united. How infinitely superior would one great Protestant organization be to these scattered bodies.

Mr. Cowan, in replying to the objections offered by the negative speaker, said that the same had been raised when the Presbyterians of Canada united in 1875, and in 1895, when the Methodists of Canada had united.

MR. W. McLAREN.

Mr McLaren, for the negative, said that it did not do to lose sight of the principles of liberty held so dear to us. The liberties were gained and the principles established by struggles were dear to us. To his mind it was not a question of whether one church was better than another, but simply how we should seek to magnify this outward uniformity. Christ never spoke on uniformity, as it mattered not to Him whether men believed in separate organizations, so long as they were part of the vine.

The speaker said that these organizations were not antagonistic toward each other, but were like the married sisters of one family. The different denominations were all doing good work in their own way, and they all had different methods and different ideals.

Mr. R. F. Downey, in a short reply to the last speaker's arguments, said that the logic of Mr. McLaren's statements would be, let us have many more denominations. The question to be decided was, "Are we doing the best work we can?" Tennyson says "That man is the most free who is bound." The church would be the most free united in the bonds of union.'

NEW ELECTRIC RAILWAY COMPANY LIKELY TO SECURE INCORPORATION

Act Governing the Question Receives Favorable Report From Railway Committee.

Special to The Review.

Toronto, Feb. 27. — The Railway Committee this morning reported favorably on an act incorporating the Kawartha Transportation Company which proposes to construct an electric railway from Peterborough through the various townships to Rice Lake, Apsley, Chemong and other points in that district.

The Company ask for the power to construct and operate an electric railway in the City of Peterborough, and from the City of Peterborough through the Townships of Smith or Douro, in or through the Village of Lakefield and thence through the Township of Smith or the Township of Dummer and Douro to Clear Lake, and from a point on Clear Lake through the Townships of Douro and Dummer or the Townships of Smith, Burleigh and Anstruther to the Village of Apsley, and from the said City of Peterborough through the Township of Smith to Chemong Lake, and from said City of Peterborough through the Townships of Otonabee and Monaghan to Rice Lake, with power to build any part or parts of said electric railway in sections, and with power to construct branches or extensions at different points along the routes and to connect with other railways (electric or otherwise) now operating or under construction, and with power to operate the said railway by electricity or otherwise, and for such other powers as are usually given to railway companies.

Some of the names associated with the petition are Messrs. L. H. Graham, E. R. Tate, Chas. W. S. Dunn, H. G. Fitzgerald of Lakefield, and R. B. Rogers and L. M. Hayes, of Peterborough.

G. T. R. FLYER MADE ITS ARRIVAL THIS MORNING

More Trouble Being Experienced by the Railway Companies

Though there has been no snow accompanying the strong wind that has been blowing for the past couple of days the drifts are again piling up along the various railway tracks and making the railway traffic irregular and uncertain. The ploughs are being used with all possible effectiveness but the trains have been at least twenty minutes behind the schedule time.

The G.T.R. Flyer from Toronto, which was due here at 10.15 last night was held over at Blackwater to make connections, on account of a freight train being stalled in the snow, and landed its weary passengers in the city at 4 o'clock this morning. The 9 o'clock train last night was almost two hours late.

Those travellers who hoped to reach town on the 11.40 this morning, had not arrived in the city at the time of going to press and consequently the 1.40 train for Belleville, which is made up here, but has to wait for the arrival of the 11.40, had not left for Campbellford at 3.30 this afternoon.

The 11.35 C.P.R. train was a little over an hour late and all the trains on that line are running about half an hour behind time.

The ploughs are working in both directions, one coming in with the Port Hope train this morning, opening up the Lakefield road and then leaving again in the Lindsay direction. Another came in ahead of the Belleville train, with two engines and will leave ahead of the Belleville train again this afternoon. The companies are making all possible efforts to keep the lines open.

MEETINGS ARE WELL ATTENDED

Many Children Were Present at John's School House

Yesterday was a most satisfactory day in the short service of prayer and intercession held at St. John's in observance of the mission study series of services now being held in the city by the Anglican churches.

Mr. R. W. Allin in the afternoon began his studies in missions of the Dominion of Canada. The children of the three congregations of the Anglican churches of the city assembled in such numbers in the afternoon as to fill the St. John's school-house to the doors. They were treated to a Lenten talk given by Canon Gould, Rev. A. J. Vale and R. W. Allin, on the mission work in different parts of the Northwest, and among the settlers. The habits and work of missions among the Eskimos was also interestingly depicted.

In the evening a very large study class met being addressed by Canon Gould on "Mohammedanism." The talk was of the deepest interest, and made more illuminative by some per-

OLYMPIC STRIKES DERELICT AND LOSES PROPELLER BLADE

Will Have to be Placed in Dry Dock Again for Repairs.

Special to the Review.

Southampton, Feb. 27— A wireless message from the huge White Star liner "Olympic" says that early this morning, the vessel struck a submerged derelict in midocean, causing the loss of one propeller blade and other damages that will necessitate the boat being drydocked, in order that repairs can be made. The message adds that the liner can make port under her own steam but at reduced speed. This is the second serious mishap met with by the "Olympic" within a short time, the previous accident being a collision with a British gunboat.

FRIENDS:

It takes an alarm clock to get the attention of some people. There are others who can "hear a dollar bill drop." If a dollar bill should drop at your feet it would be less important to you than the reading of this "ad." Just imagine we are looking you square in the eyes. We want to say a few words to you straight from the heart. You are anxious to get the most actual value possible to secure for every dollar you spend for clothes. That's why you should investigate the extraordinary values we are now offering. You like to buy goods you can depend upon—the kind you know are right in style, right in quality and right in price. You will find only that sort of clothes here. We are determined that we will gain for this store a host of new customers this season, by the giving of exceptional values. We are succeeding. We are doing the largest business in the history of this store. An investigation will prove to you that this store is giving better values for the same money, or the same values for less money than any other store. You certainly cannot afford to buy a dollar's worth of clothes before you see what we offer. It is better to find out about these values before you buy than later to wish you had.

Drop in to-day, to-morrow, in fact any time. We'll be just as glad to see you if you come simply to look, as though you come to buy. But be sure and give us a call.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC FOR EASTERN SECTION

Hon Adam Beck Makes Important Announcement in Legislature.

Toronto, Feb. 28.—Hydro-electric power for the whole eastern section of the province is assured by the action of the Government in commencing expropriation proceedings to obtain possession of Chats Falls on the Ottawa River. Between 100,000 and 120,000 horsepower will be developed there. Ontario will soon have as much power in the eastern portion of Ontario as in the west, and the demands of Ottawa, Smith's Falls, Prescott and the whole district west of Kingston will be met.

Announcement to that effect was made yesterday by Hon. Adam Beck, who feels that the Government is entirely justified in its action. "The commission realizes," said he, "that it still has some difficulties to overcome. One of the principal obstacles it has to encounter is the exploitation of the property of the people of this province, and whatever the constitutional rights of the province may be, the commission intends that the people of Ontario shall know to what extent the heritage of the people has been granted or appreciated. It must for once and all be understood that the resources of this province and of every legitimate agency which the Government finds at its disposal, will be used to preserve or regain that heritage, and that in doing so we are not prepared to compensate anyone for gains made which are known to be unlawful or immoral. This is in order that the powers of eminent domain existing in the crown, as representing this province, will be exercised upon such a basis as to render nugatory any attempts at political brigandage or the baser methods of those who seek to prey upon a political party for the advantage of themselves, or of a corporation, no matter how gigantic, which they represent."

Chats Falls was transferred by the crown to Wm. Harty on June 3, 1883. It consists of about 65 acres. On July 29, 1902, Mr. Harty sold one-third of his share to Daniel O'Connor for $167, and on the same day sold another third to C. P. Brophy for $167. On April 22, 1910, Brophy returned to the Hon. Wm. Harty all his interest for the consideration of one dollar. On Oct. 17, 1911, the crown deeded to Mr. O'Connor the Government slide reserve rights for $1,471. This was about three weeks after the Dominion election. Mr. O'Connor thus secured all the control of all water and river bed covered by the slide.

Brophy is superintendent of waterways on the Ottawa River, for the Ottawa Government, and reported that the slide rights were no longer required for Government purposes, when he transferred them to O'Connor.

Previous to this transfer, the city of Ottawa made application to obtain possession of the slide, and the Hydro-Electric Commission co-operated with the city. Last Friday the Provincial Government passed an order-in-council authorizing the commission to expropriate all the properties covered by the foregoing deeds. The plan was prepared, forwarded to Ottawa and registered in the registry office of the County of Carleton on Monday last.

The Hydro-Electric Commission will hear all parties who are interested in the proposed act to amend the Power Commission Act, which was introduced in the Legislature last week by Hon. Adam Beck. The date set for the hearing is Tuesday, March 5, at 10 a. m.

RINK ROOF COLLAPSES

Seven Men Were at Work But Escaped Injury.

Montreal, Feb. 28.—By seven o'clock last night fifteen inches of snow had fallen since seven o'clock Monday morning, and besides seriously delaying trains on all lines, the storm was responsible for the collapse of several structures in the city owing to the tremendous weight of snow on the roofs.

Eight feet of the wooden roof of the Forum Skating Rink collapsed yesterday afternoon while seven men were busy trying to clear away the snow. The accident was preceded by an ominous creaking and splintering of the beams and the men had time to escape, while the forty odd people skating inside also managed to stand from under before the roof came down.

The roof of one of the C.P.R. freight sheds also collapsed at noon yesterday, but fortunately all the men were at lunch at the time. Several engines were injured, and the loss will be some $50,000.

CALGARY OPERA HOUSE

Winnipeg, Feb. 28.—A quarter of a million dollar opera house at Calgary, to break the long jump from Winnipeg to Seattle, is the plan of the Orpheum Vaudeville Circuit, and the new theatre will be built this summer.

DEPUTATION WAITED ON GOVERNMENT

Asked That Part of Roads Grant be Used for Maintenance

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Feb. 28—The Good Roads deputation waited on Premier Whitney this morning and asked that the government devote part of its grant towards maintenance, instead of as hitherto, spending the whole amount on the construction of roads. The municipalities it was pointed out were feeling the burden arising from the cost of the upkeep and repairing. No definite answer was given on this point but the government promised the same grant for highway purposes as last year, with an additional three hundred dollars for printing and distribution throughout the province of the Good Roads report.

U.S. RETAINS THE BALANCE OF TRADE

Export Business Shows Increase of $5,370,000.

Washington, Feb. 28.—The balance of trade still remains with the United States, according to figures issued yesterday of the imports and exports of this country for January and the seven months of the fiscal year ending with last month.

The United States imported $582,000 more in January, 1911, but for the seven months it had decreased its purchases abroad by nearly ten million dollars.

In its export business the United States shipped out during the last month $5,374,000 worth of goods more than was shipped in January last year, and for the seven months ending with January 31 the export record was $49,400,000 above that of the corresponding months of the preceding fiscal year.

CORNWALL IS AGAINST LAW

Health Regulations Not Favored by Civic Bodies.

Cornwall, Feb. 28.—The Cornwall Board of Health, the Cornwall Town Council and the citizens are up in arms against the regulations of the Ontario Provincial Board of Health, which practically prohibit the dumping or draining of sewage into lake, stream or body of water in Ontario.

Recently a couple of local debenture issues for sewers were rendered unsalable because of the action of the chief provincial medical health officer, Dr. McCullough, in refusing to sanction the bylaws, although for nearly half a century Cornwall has been draining into the St. Lawrence.

These regulations afford no protection against the sewage of neighboring provinces and states, but they destroy all existing sewers paid for out of the pockets of citizens of numerous municipalities for a score or more years.

To Head Bisley Contingent.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—It is understood that, in the event of the difference between the D.R.A. and the N.R.A. being satisfactorily settled, and in the event of a Bisley team being sent to England this year, that the command of that team will be offered to Lieut.-Col. O'Grady, commander of the 90th Rifles, Winnipeg.

Brantford's New Y.M.C.A.

Brantford, Feb. 28.—At a meeting of Y.M.C.A. building subscribers here, it was decided to proceed with the erection of a building on the plans originally prepared. The building will cost about $120,000. The cost of furnishing it is estimated at $12,000.

ONTARIO GETS ACCESS TO PORT NELSON IN BOUNDARIES AWARD

Can Also Run Railway to Port Churchill, if Desired.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—Parliament has taken the plunge. Yesterday, Right Hon. R. L. Borden moved his resolution, which has been standing on the order paper for the past two weeks, in reference to the extension of the boundaries of Manitoba, and the financial settlement arrived at. He estimated the total increase in subsidy to the province at $1,349,345, to which $2,178,648 was to be added for arrears, as the settlement was to date back to 1908.

The most interesting statement came, not in committee of the resolution, but when the bill founded on the resolution was up for first reading, when the Premier announced the passage, on Feb. 20, of an order-in-council providing for the conveyance to Ontario for the use of the T. & N. O. Railway of a strip five miles wide from the new boundary of Manitoba to the Nelson River, with a 10-mile water front on that river and a right of way thence to a junction with the Hudson Bay Railway, with running rights over the latter.

The Opposition seemed to be entirely taken back by this announcement and all that Sir Wilfrid Laurier could do was to chaff the Premier on Ontario becoming subject to the jurisdiction of Manitoba.

Hon. Wm. Pugsley urged that complications might ensue with the other provinces. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick might demand compensation for the building of the original line of the I.C.R.

The Premier emphatically declared his intention of eventually restoring the public lands to the western provinces, according to his pre-election promise. In the meantime, it was thought well to place Manitoba on an equal footing with the two other prairie provinces.

The Premier confined his remarks to a short resume of the history of the question and a statement as to the financial terms agreed upon between Manitoba and the Dominion Government.

Reading the Laurier resolution of July 20, 1908, with regard to the extension of the boundaries of Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, in which the boundaries of Manitoba and Ontario were the same as set forth in the present resolution, he explained that, for some time after the question of financial terms between Manitoba and the Dominion had been discussed, but without definite result.

Shortly after the present administration came into power conferences had been had with the Premier of Manitoba and some of his colleagues, and a basis of agreement had been arrived at, as expressed in a letter sent to Mr. Roblin by Premier Borden. The principle here laid down had been worked out in the resolution now submitted to the committee.

Manitoba would, under the bill, receive an approximate subsidy of $1,349,345, made up as follows: Allowance for government and local purposes, $190,000; 80 cents per head on population, $364,491; indemnity for want of lands, $562,500—less swamp and university lands, $149,230—$413,270; net interest allowance for public debt, $381,584.

This he compared with the amount receivable by the prairie provinces,

T. & N.O. WILL NOT BE TAXED

Manitoba Will Assist Ontario in Extending Railwry.

Winnipeg, Feb. 28.—Premier Roblin, in his speech to the Legislature, covering Ontario's claims on Hudson Bay, said:

"In reference to the reports that the Province of Ontario is considering the expediency of extending their provincial railway to Hudson Bay, and using either the Nelson River or Churchill as their treminus, I am sure that I voice the sentiments not only of the members of this Legislature, but of the people of this province as a whole, when I say that Manitoba will do everything possible to assist her sister province in extending the provincial roads under terms and conditions that are as favorable as it is possible for this province to make them.

"The Hudson Bay Railway now being constructed by the Government of Canada will be exempt from taxation, and I am sure that this Legislature and province would naturally support exemption from taxation for all the properties and terminals of any Government-owned road that Ontario may, we hope, construct to Hudson Bay through Manitoba when we get an extension of boundaries.

"I would not confine any exemption by this Legislature from taxation to the road built by Ontario to Churchill or the Nelson River, but make it equally applicable to our sister province, Saskatchewan, to the west.

STRIKE OUTLOOK NOW VERY GRAVE

WHAT BRITAIN PAYS

London, Feb. 28.—The estimates of expenditure for the British army, for the financial year of 1912-13, including both effective and non-effective services, aggregate $139,300,000, or an increase of $850,000 over those of the year 1911-12.

More Miners Stop Work --- No Settlement Reached at the Conferences.

London, Feb. 28.—No settlement of the coal dispute was reached at the various conferences, in which the Premier and members of his Cabinet and the representatives of the mine owners and miners participated yesterday. The official statement of the proceeding issued last night, which some predicted would report that an agreement had been reached, merely records the fact that various conferences occurred, but tells nothing of what was done or said at any of them. It concludes with the announcement that the conferences will be resumed today, from which all that can be deduced is that the Government is still striving to avert a stoppage of the gigantic industry on which the country's commercial supremacy is based.

Between 30,000 and 40,000 miners in Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire ceased work yesterday, in accordance with a notice previously given, and it is now quite evident that, as the time limit provided for in the notices expires, the men will lay down their tools and await the action of the miners' federation.

Until the owners are persuaded to concede the minimum wage principle it is obvious that nothing can be accomplished by bringing the disputants together. From the fact that this has not been done, it is inferred that the Cabinet has not succeeded in inducing the owners, Welsh as well as English, to make that concession.

That the sanguine expectations, widely held, of ultimate success, are not yet altogether justified, is shown by the answer given by James Haslam, member of Parliament and leader of the Derbyshire miners, who attended the conference, to interviewers, in reply to a question concerning the outlook. "There is no outlook at present," said Mr. Haslam. "The Government seems to have gone as far as it can go. The Ministers are very anxious, just as we are, but it is going to be a rum job."

In the view of morning newspapers likely to be well informed the coal difficulty presents a grave outlook, mainly owing to the obduracy of the Welsh mine owners who decline to grant a minimum wage on any terms whatever. Hints that the Government might force a minimum wage bill through Parliament seem to have had the effect of stiffening the backs of the mine owners generally who resent seeing their hands forced in this manner.

In Parliamentary circles, where, presumably, inside information has been obtained, there is an undeniable feeling of optimism, but if Government intervention fails by Friday morning, practically every colliery in the land will be shut down. Meanwhile many thousands are making ready to strike, and the time left to accomplish anything by negotiations is alarmingly short.

The negotiations continued until midnight. Premier had another conference at his official residence with the owners' committee at 9 o'clock, and neither the Premier, Chancellor Lloyd-George nor the president of the Board of Trade, Sydney Buxton, was able to appear in the House of Commons last night, because of the coal situation.

PRIEST MAKES SPIRITED REPLY

Objected to Alleged Efforts to Create Enmity.

Brantford, Feb. 28.—Rev. Dean Brady, parish priest of St. Basil's, made a somewhat spirited reply to some local views expressed relating to the ne temere decree yesterday.

He said that Brantford Catholics relied implicitly on the recent statement of the Bishop of Montreal, that the Catholic Church aimed to regulate the marriage of its own people and to guide its people's conscience. As for other denominations, they could do as they chose, which right was claimed by the Catholic Church. The civil law was of no concern.

Dean Brady objected to alleged efforts to create an enmity among peaceful citizens.

His remarks were made following a meeting of local Orangemen, addressed Monday night by Rev. J. M. Whitelaw, at which protests were entered against the ne temere decree and plans were made for a mass meeting which, it is stated, the Evangelical Alliance of Ontario will conduct.

WANT COMMISSION FOR IMPROVEMENTS TO ROADS

Good Roads Men Also Want Dominion to Give $50,000.

Toronto, Feb. 28.—"That the Provincial Government be requested to appoint a commission to consider the whole question of road improvements in Ontario."

"That the Federal Government be asked to set aside $50,000 to assist in the improvement of highways."

"That a large proportion of the appropriation of $5,000,000 by the Ontario Government be expended for road improvements."

These were the resolutions passed at the Good Roads Convention last night, after much discussion. A number of recommendations relative to the improving of roadways were made and were supported by a deputation which called on Sir James Whitney this morning.

In order to keep highways in proper condition it was believed that drastic measures should be adopted by the Government. Taking the initiative themselves, the members drew up a resolution to the effect: "That after two years' notice, wagons without wide tires be not allowed to be manufactured, and that after seven years wagons without wide tires be not allowed on the highways."

Hon. Dr. Reaume, Minister of Public Works, told the convention yesterday morning that a stricter system of inspection, a more scientific construction of highways and the training of road specialists to act as supervisors, possibly by lectures to university students and at Guelph College, were topics receiving the consideration of the Government.

A series of resolutions were sent to the committee, to be reported upon at the night session.

In the afternoon, Geo. S. Henry, Oriole, spoke on the how, the why

Melbourne, Feb. 28.—Justice Higgins, president of the Federal Arbitration Court, yesterday gave his award in the case of the Brisbane tramway strike. He has declared the anti-badge regulations of Melbourne, Brisbane and Odelaide authorities to be invalid, and has granted an injunction to prevent companies from prohibiting wearing trade union badges on men's uniforms during official working hours. Unionists regard this as a victory of world-wide importance and as establishing the right of the men to wear union badges throughout the Empire.

Gas Distended His Stomach

Caused Palpitation, and Prevented Sleep—When Health Was Gone, Cure Followed Use of "Nerviline."

"My last wish will be," writes Harry P. Pollard, a well-known boot and shoe traveler of Hartford, "that every-one with a bad stomach may learn as I did, before it's too late, that Nerviline is the one remedy to cure. Why, I was in mighty bad shape, my digestion was all wrong, and every night I would waken with a start and find my heart jumping like a threshing machine. This was caused by gas on my stomach pressing against my heart. When I started to use Nerviline I got better mighty fast. It is certainly a grand remedy for the traveling man, keeps your stomach in order, cures cramps, prevents lumbago or rheumatism, breaks up chest colds and sore throat—in fact there hasn't been an ache or pain inside or outside for the past two years that I haven't cured with Nerviline. Do you wonder I recommend it?"

BOARD OF TRADE

There should be a large gathering of citizens at the meeting of the Board of Trade called for to-morrow evening at the City Council chamber. The business and professional men of other cities support their Board of Trade and the same should be said of Peterborough. A Board Trade can do a lot of useful work, and the opportunity in Peterborough is one that should not be allowed to pass by. Important subjects such as municipal bylaws relating to permanent roadways and pavements, the collecting and disposing of garbage, and hotel accommodation will be presented by President Eastwood, to the meeting for discussion. Let us rise above petty things and be big and join hand in hand for the best interests of the city.

ONTARIO CROPS

The report of the Bureau of Industries of the Province of Ontario for the year 1910 just issued shows that the value of the crop for the year was over $4,000,000 greater than in 1909. The report says that in Ontario there are 298 347 acres of orchards, 24,384 acres of small fruit trees, 11,390 acres of vine yards, 57,982 acres of gardens, 41,052 acres of rape, one-half of which is grown in Wellington, Grey and Dufferin counties, 12,021 acres of flax grown in five counties, 1,070 acres of hops, 6,394 acres of tobacco, 254,133 pasture in summer fallow lands, and 3,159,712 acres of pasture.

The total number of acres under crop in 1909 was 9,578,323 and 9,725,684 in 1910. The total of the value of the crop for the latter year was $175,115,742, or over $4,000,000 greater than in 1909.

NE TEMERE DECREE

(Ottawa Citizen.)

To the average man in the street the Ne Temere marriage question is becoming more of a mystery every day. Following the decision of Judge Charbonneau, Archbishop Bruchesi makes the apparently definite declaration that it is not his purpose to interpret the text of human law, but to affirm the principle of the Roman Catholic Church which finds its expression in canon law. He further says that jurists theses or the findings of civil tribunals can ever abrogate that canon law. Nobody, in this country has any intention of interference with the canon law of the Roman Catholic Church or any other church. Consequently, it would appear that there is really no cause for difference in the Ne Temere matter, if we are to accept the archbishop's own statement. The canon law of the Anglican Church opposes marriage with a deceased wife's sister. The canon law of the Roman Catholic Church opposes the marriage of two Catholics being performed except by the parish priest, or failing that, under certain dispensations of the church, properly secured. But, in either case, if Archbishop Bruchesi is properly understood, is the claim made that the canon law invalidates the legality of a marriage entered into under the regulations of the law of the country. This is the whole question at issue, so far as the people of Canada as a whole are concerned. The people of Canada as a whole are interested only in the maintenance of the supremacy of the marriage law as given effect by the license of the crown issued to two persons legally qualified to contract a marriage, and who do contract such marriage in the presence of a clergyman authorized to perform the ceremony and duly register the marriage. What all the fuss is about, is that eight out of eleven judges in the Province of Quebec have held that such is not the case. That in that province an otherwise legal marriage is invalid because it is forbidden by the canon law of the Church of Rome. If Archbishop Bruchesi admits that the canon law has nothing to do with the civil law, there would seem to be an end of the case. As opposed to this, eight judges of Quebec have held that the canon law of one particular church overrides the law of His Majesty the King, in His Majesty's own courts of the Province of Quebec, not in the church courts, with which the people of Canada as a whole have nothing to do. As these judges are on the bench not to interpret ecclesiastical law in the ecclesiastical court, but His Majesty's law in His Majesty's court, there is a pressing necessity that these learned gentlemen should be dealt with by a decision that will govern their conduct as officers and servants of the King.

A Veteran Correspondent.

A veteran among working war-correspondents is Mr. Bennet Burleigh, of The London Daily Telegraph, who has achieved another journalistic triumph over the Tripoli affair. His career has been an amazing one. As a young man he fought on the Confederate side in the American Civil War, and was twice sentenced to be shot by the Federals in the course of the campaign. From the seventies onward he has never missed a big campaign, and we get a striking illustration of his pluck and daring in an incident which occurred at El-Teb, when he volunteered to ride with a message from one of the British squares to another. He had a good horse, and could have made a detour without losing many minutes; but instead he rode straight through the Dervishes, who were between the two squares, thus risking death not only from their spears, but from the fire of his friends.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Feb. 27.—There was an improved demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat for nearby shipment, and the prices bid were 3d higher; but, notwithstanding this fact, there was very little business done on account of the scarcity of ocean room, and exporters generally being well sold out of near-at-hand grain. The demand for May-June shipment was dull. In sympathy with the weakness in the Winnipeg market for oats, prices on spot declined ½c per bushel. A good business was done in flour at steady prices. Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

Mrs. Laurence was sweet and so tactful. She scarcely talked to me at all, except to ask me how I liked America and a few of the things people are obliged to get off their minds when they meet a foreigner, and then she introduced five cadets.

I was terrified for a minute, because until I left home my whole (youthful) male experience consisted of one brother, three cousins and two curates, dealt with separately and with long, sleepy intervals between. I began to wonder how I could possibly manage five tall youths at once and to rack my brains for the right kind of conversation. But before I should have had time to say "knife" to a curate I found myself chatting away with those cadets as if I had grown up with them. I never once stopped to think what I should say next, and neither did they.

Some girls were introduced to me, too, but luckily they didn't seem to expect me to talk to them much, so I didn't. More and more cadets kept coming over from camp and joining our group and being introduced in agreeable droves until I gave up even trying to remember their names.

There was one, though, in the first batch of five whose name was easy to get hold of and keep in mind because it was Smith. Besides, he was the best looking of all, which made classifying him a real pleasure.

The girls who spoke to Mr. Smith called him "captain," perhaps jokingly, and I asked how he could be a captain and yet a cadet unless it meant cricket. Then he explained that the cadets had all the different grades of officers, from adjutant and captain down to sergeant, and wanted to know if there were any other questions I would care to ask. I said that there were lots, but I wasn't sure if I might.

It was difficult to see all you wanted to through the veil of creepers.

"I give you a permit," said he in a military way.

So I began with the buttons. "I should like to know why you have so many—all those rows on your jacket. And it's only the middle row you seem to use for anything."

"We use the others to give away to girls to remember us by," answered my cadet. "It's forbidden, but that's a detail. Or rather it's why the girls like to have them."

I stared. "None of yours are missing."

"Most of 'em are pinned on at present. It's that way with all of us. Our plebs sew 'em on for us at night and use the door for a thimble."

"Oh, what are plebs, if you please? Are you allowed valets?"

"I guess they call 'em fags in your country. There are a lot of them lying around. Shall I have some caught and dragged here? They might squirm a bit, as they aren't used to ladies' society, but"—

I hastily protested against such a cruel exhibition and went on with my questions. I asked what they did in winter and how long they had to be cadets and whether they were in a hurry to be officers.

"Not as long as the girls can put up with us as we are," said my cadet. "Some of them even pretend they like us better."

"I can quite understand that!" I exclaimed. And then they all laughed, and some of them applauded.

"The really important question is," said Captain or Mr. Smith, "whether you are going to be an officers' or a cadets' lady."

I hadn't an idea what he meant, but I remembered Vic's saying that in the lower middle classes they sometimes call a man's wife his "lady." Perhaps, I thought, the expression had been brought over to the nicest people in America in the Mayflower, which they all talk so much about, for certainly some of the people in her must have been cooks or in the steerage; there are too many descendants for the first class passengers alone. After considering for a minute I said in rather an embarrassed way that I wasn't "quite sure yet whether I would be either."

"You must be one or the other, you know, or you'll be like the bat in the fable who was neither bird nor beast, and so was out of all the fun on both sides. I may be prejudiced, but I advise you to be a cadets' lady. And you'd better decide now on account of tonight."

"Tonight?" I repeated, puzzled.

"Yes, on account of making out your card. Say, Lady Betty, if you are going in with us, can I make out your card?"

Then arose a clamor. It appeared that they all wanted to make out the card—whatever it was. I asked if I couldn't have one from each, but it appeared that you couldn't do that. My cadet had spoken first, so he said that he would do it, but the others could give me bell buttons and chevrons and decorate fans for me instead.

"Do you like hops, Lady Betty?" inquired a perfect pet of a cadet, who looked like a cherub in uniform.

"Hops?" I wondered why he should ask me such an irrelevant question, but I answered as intelligently as I could. "I don't know much about them. I think they're graceful, but I don't like the smell."

He looked petrified. "The smell?"

"Yes. It makes one sleepy."

"I guess we won't give you much chance to be sleepy tonight," said he, "at our hop."

Then I understood. But what a funny thing to call a ball—a "hop!"

They explained, too, when they saw how stupid I was, that you were an "officers' lady" if you danced with them and walked with them and flirted with them and didn't bother with cadets, or vice versa. Then I decided at once that I would be a cadets' lady, though I was sorry I had only one night to be it in. They were sorry, too, and showed their sorrow in so many nice ways that I enjoyed myself immensely and quite saw how nice it must feel to be out if you are a success. They wanted to draw lots for which cadet should take me to Flirtation Walk, but I said I had to go with Mr. Parker.

SORES FROM ELBOW TO FINGERS

Zam-Buk Worked a Miracle of Healing

Reverend Gentleman Fully Corroborates.

Miss Kate L. Dolliver, of Caledonia, Queens Co., N.S., says: "I must add my testimony to the value of Zam-Buk. Ulcers and sores broke out on my arm, and although I tried to heal them by using various preparations, nothing seemed to do me any good. The sores spread until from fingers to elbow was one mass of ulceration.

"I had five different doctors, and faithfully carried out their instructions. I drank pint after pint of blood medicines, tried salve after salve, and lotion after lotion, but it was of no avail.

"My father then took me thirty miles to see a well-known doctor. He photographed the arm and hand. This photograph was sent to New York hospital to the specialist; but they sent word they could do nothing further for me and I was in despair.

"One day a friend asked me if I had tried Zam-Buk. I said I had not, but I got a box right away. That first box did me more good than all the medicine I had tried up to that time, so I continued the treatment. Every box healed the sores more and more until, to make a long story short, Zam-Buk healed all the sores completely. Everybody in this place knows of my case and that it is Zam-Buk alone which cured me."

Minister corroborates.—The Rev. W. B. M. Parker, of Caledonia, Miss Dolliver's minister, writes:—"This is to certify that the testimonial of Miss Dolliver is correct as far as my knowledge goes. I have known her for a year and a half, and her cure effected by Zam-Buk is remarkable."

Wherever there is ulceration, blood-poison, sores, cold-cracks, abscesses, cuts, burns, bruises, or any skin injury or disease, there Zam-Buk should be applied. It is also a sure cure for piles. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. per box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse cheap and harmful imitations and substitutes.

Guarding London's Treasures.

London's art treasures are most jealously protected. The National Gallery, in addition to having a secret system of alarms, is patrolled day and night by twenty-two constables and twenty-five employes. At the British Museum the million of pounds' worth of treasures are protected by over 200 assistants, including eight keepers of departments, fifty-three assistants, nine second division clerks, twenty-two chief attendants, ninety-six attendants, five boy clerks, twenty-three boy attendants, forty-three commissionaires and fifty-one laborers, while a number of detectives in various disguises keep on eagle eye on things in general.—London Telegraph.

The Parsee.

The Parsee, untrammeled by his surroundings, is seen in Bombay in all his wealth of height and dress. The men are, without exception, tall, finely formed and stately and possess a robustness and beauty quite at contrast with their Hindu neighbors. Their street costume is a peculiar long white cotton gown, wide trousers of the same material and color and a tall miter shaped hat. They have a general reputation for sobriety, frugality and sagacity, and they seem to thoroughly understand the accumulation of fortunes, in this respect resembling the Hebrews. The wealthiest residents of Bombay are Parsees.

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION
The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.
Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make-up. The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

OPTICAL SERVICE
BY
A. A. FOWLER, Eyesight Specialist

In every trade, profession or branch of work, there are found a few men, who from special fitness, or education, or both, are better prepared to serve you in their line than the multitude of others in the same field.

Since Optometry requires especial ability in both professional and mechanical work, men that are fitted to do both equally well are scarce. Therefore you cannot be too particular about the selection of the man to whom you entrust your eyes.

The professional work—the examining and measuring of your eye defects, must be skilfully done. The mechanical part—the making and adjusting of your glasses is no less important.

Every phase of optical work is thoroughly and intelligently done here. From the first step in the examination to the final adjusting of the frame or mounting not a single thing is overlooked or slighted. I do all the work myself, and having had such fine success with most difficult, and neglected eyes, I do not hesitate to say that I can give you perfect satisfaction.

A visit will incur no obligation.

In Fire Drill Called at South Central School

Parents as Spectators Were Pleased With the Showing

Under the supervision of Chief Howard a "fire drill" was held this morning in the South Central school, and the children turned out in such good order, accompanied by such surprising celerity, that all concerned were much pleased by the result. The fire drill was the result of the anxiety of some of the parents of the smaller pupils in the South Central school, who called upon Chief Howard and asked him to conduct a drill. hTe Chief accompanied the parents to the school in question, and explained the arrangements that had been made in case a fire should break out, and also held the fire drill. The fears of the fathers and mothers were entirely allayed by the very evident precautions against a panic or disorderly exit of the children, should a fire break out.

SHOULDER WAS DISLOCATED

A slight accident occurred Monday morning, when Mr. Edgar Page, who was engaged in some carpenter work on the interior of Grafton & Co's store, fell from the scaffolding and dislocated his shoulder. The scaffold was not high, being constructed to enable the workmen to reach the ceiling, and as a result the injury, though painful, was luckily, not very serious. Mr. Page was attended to by Dr. Eastwood, who drove him to his residence at 561 Gilmour street. The injured man is expected to be able to resume his work in a few days.

INTERESTING AND EDUCATIVE EXHIBIT ON HEALTH QUESTIONS

The opening night of the tuberculosis exhibit in the Collegiate Institute Assembly hall last evening was very well attended. There were an astonishing number of things to see, and the on-lookers were surprised at the extent of the preparations which had been made to cause the exhibit to combine interest and edification. Taking last night's patronage as a criterion, the attendance of the remaining two evenings should be most encouraging.

The hall was arranged to demonstrate to the best advantage the devices and conveniences which have been inaugurated for the prevention and treatment of tuberculosis, and these received the most careful attention of the many interested observers.

Among other things on exhibition is the window tent breathing device, many of which are at present in use and which have been found to give splendid satisfaction. By means of the innovation, the consumptive patient or in fact any user, may obtain all the benefits of sleeping in the open, without being exposed to the climatic conditions.

In another part of the room is a cleverly constructed house of two rooms, which is used to illustrate correct and incorrect systems of ventilation. The lower room has all doors and windows closed. In miniature beds in the room are two dolls, and the atmosphere of a dark, heavy nature. This foul air may be seen emanating from the dolls which are supposed to represent infants.

The upper room is the exact opposite to the lower. The doors and exits are open, and a pure current of fresh air circulates. As a consequence the air in this apartment is clear and fresh, and the supposed infants sleeping in this room are intended to represent perfect sleeping conditions. The exhibit is both entertaining and instructive and crowds surrounded it all evening.

INFANT MORTALITY

A more startling contrivance however illustrative of death's ravages amongst infants was in operation in another portion of the hall. A cylinder shaped affair is circulating and four dolls representing infants are in constant motion around this cylinder. Standing above them is a model of the grim reaper "death" with an upraised sickle in hand. As the fourth doll comes directly underneath the model, the sickle descends and a doll disappears. Above it is the startling message "one child out of every four drops into the grave under one year of age." One side of the wall is completely occupied by thirty-five thousand dolls, representing babies, who die under the age of one in Ontario alone. The Provincial Board of Health believe that fully seventy per cent., of these infants could be saved by proper treatment.

The walls are covered with pictures of sanitoriums, consumptive homes, sketches and plans of ventilation for houses, and in fact everything of interest to be tuberculosis patient.

MOVING PICTURES

The moving pictures are decidedly interesting and will be shown each night. They tell a lesson story of their own, on the question of pure milk and disease bearing flies and were followed with extreme interest.

The whole exhibit which has involved a considerable amount of labor and time is in charge of Messrs. E. H. and G. W. Jones.

It is expected that Dr. McCullough, of the Provincial Board of Health will be in the city for an address to-night.

LAST BILL BY ERNIE MARKS CO.

"Driven From Home" to be Presented To-night.

Popular as ever and full of splendid situations, "The Girl and the Gambler," one of the best plays in the repertoire of the Ernie Mark Stock company was played to a big and appreciative house at the Grand last evening. The well-balanced company again demonstrated their ability, and each member of the cast performed in their customary able and versatile manner. The play, affords good opportunities for a display of strong character parts and especially in the role of "Caleb Swan," the gambler. H. Webb Chamberlain was one of the shining lights. The part of "Tennessee," taken by Louise De Luna, was most ably essayed. The little performer is always popular. She possesses a charming personality and most winning ways. The part of the villain was taken by Milburn Murray and was well carried out.

The comedy share of the performance as usual, fell principally to Ernie Marks, who lived up to his reputation well, in the character of Gawhittiker Hay.

Bright, entertaining specialties were dished out between acts by De Luna and De Luna, Lida Gardner and Frankie A. Brooks.

Lida Garder was especially well received in an impersonation of a young swell, in which costume she sang two amusing selections.

Both Louise De Luna and Franklin A. Brooks were heartily applauded in their song numbers.

The Ernie Marks company conclude their run in the city by presenting to-night the four act drama "Driven From Home."

BIG DAY IS PLANNED

C. G. E. Day to be Celebrated by Big Excursion

If the plans outlined by the committee of shop representatives acting with the Mutual Benefit Society materialize the employes of the Canadian General Electric Company will run a monster excursion to Toronto and Niagara Falls on Saturdy, June 15th. There only remains the approval of the superintendent, Mr. E. G. Patterson, to this date chosen by a representative gathering of the employes at the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday night.

Mr. Patterson has offered an entire Saturday holiday to the employes who were asked to decide for themselves the manner in which they would spend it. Accordingly the different departments of the works were asked to send two representatives from each to last night's night's meeting for the purpose of discussing the proposal.

Mr. R. E. Harding was appointed chairman and Mr. F. A. Shannon secretary for the occasion. There was a large representation of employes not a few of whom came of their own accord.

The decision to hold the excursion to Toronto and Niagara Falls was unanimously supported and every one evinced a genuine interest in the proposal, and apparently felt that the outing would be a splendid success

WILL BE C. G. E. DAY

The tentative plans are, therefore, to celebrate C G. E. Day, as it will possibly be known, by an excursion to Toronto and Niagara Falls. The date June 15th, was chosen, the only provision being that it meet with the approval of Mr. Patterson. Three vestibule trains will be run from the city, leaving the C. P. R. Station at 6.15 a.m., 6.35 a.m., and 6.55 a.m. respectively. At 9.15 the steamer Cayuga will leave Toronto for the sale across the lake to Niagara for those desiring to make this part of the trip. It is fully expected that between 2,000 and 3,000 people will avail themselves of this opportunity for a pleasant outing at a time when the season is at its best.

From the enthusiasm displayed in the discussions last night, the affair should be a big success. Some regard it as a splendid advertisement for Peterboro, apart from the pleasure the excursionists will enjoy. Excursions of the size that this is expected to be, are not met with every day. From the present propects, there is every reason to believe that it will be a success if the proposed plans are carried out. The C. G. E. Mutual Benefit Society are practically taking the lead, and with the shop representatives present last night, will compose a committee that should look after all the details of the outing. Very favorable rates will likely be received and every inducement will be offered the employes to make the occasion a pleasant one.

C. G. E. Day on certain conditions may be made an annual event, and no doubt the success of the first outing will be the principal factor in determining this point.

ANNUAL DINNER

The graduates, undergraduates and benefactors of Queen's University, in this vicinity will hold their third annual dinner at Coleman's grill room on Friday evening, March 1st, at 8 o'clock, after which Principal Gordon will address the Association. Other dairy meetings to be held in Peterborough shortly will be the convention of the Peterborough Cheese and Butter Makers' Association and the annual meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board. Peterborough is rapidly becoming one of the great dairy centres of the province.

LITERARY TALK BY MRS. ROLLINS

Weekly Meeting at Y. W. C. A. Proved Very Interesting

A delightful literary treat was provided last evening at the cosy green room in the Young Women's Christian Association by Mrs. (Rev.) Rollins who gave a highly interesting and scholarly address on some of the great and outstanding literary lights of modern times. Her talk was distinguished by a noticeably thorough acquaintance with the works of those authors whom she discussed, and she encountered no difficulty in making the address one of genuine pleasure. Such world famous intellectual celebrities in the world of letters, as William De Morgan, Thomas Hardy, Mrs. Humphrey Ward and Stevenson, were comprehensively taken up. The productions and writings in both prose and poem of the celebrated Swedish "literateur" Bjernstjerne Bjornson were referred to by the speaker in the highest terms of commendation. The works of the Polish writer Sienkiewicxz were also briefly taken up, also some of the best literary contributions of Herman Suduernamm, the noted German writer. Some of the others referred to by Mrs. Rollins were W. D. Howell, Mark Twain, Walter Olivant, Rudyard Kipling and Count Tolstoi.

Mrs Rollins estimated the values of the productions of these noted writers, when all their efforts were debated and studies, and of the impressions they had made upon modern literature.

A splendidly rendered piano selection by the Misses Gladman was very acceptably received.

There are a thousand and one bachelors here, so if the young girls of Peterborough would come out here they would not go back single. There are lots of good homes waiting for them in the west.

I heard another farmer here say he wished he could know of some girl who would be willing to come out and help his mother and he would willingly pay her way here to have her come."

TWELFTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BATTLE OF PAARDEBERG

Just 12 years ago yesterday at Paardeberg, South Africa, Canada proclaimed throughout the world by the valorous deeds of her sons on the battlefield that her soldiers were fighting worthy of the fair country which they represented. It was at Paardeberg, one of the fiercest engagements of the Suth African war that the Canadian troops first showed their caliber.

Although the Boers under that able leader, Gen. Cronje, who through his fighting ability gained the respect of every true Britisher, surrendered on Feb. 27, 1900, the fighting which led up to his surrender commenced on the 18th of February. On February 16th, Gen. Cronje, with 10,0000 men, started to retreat towards Bloemfontein, with Gen. Kelly-Kenny in full pursuit. Gen. French joined in the pursuit. The Canadian infantry were ordered to cross the Modder river, and from then until the capitulation of the Boers there was contant skimishing. On the night of the 26th and the morning of the 27th, the Canadians advanced to within 55 yards of the Boer trenches. A light in the Canadian ranks and a responding volley from the entrenched Boers commenced what proved to be Gen. Cronje's last stand. The Canadians fell on their faces and the deadly volleys of the Boers passed harmlessly over their heads. Soon, however the Boers trained their firing into the ground and the hasty ditches which the Canadians threw up proved of little use for defence. The morning brought to the view of the Boers the formidable lines of the Canadian muskets, with bayonets set.

The Boers many times outnumbered the dauntless Canadians but the flittering steel threw consternation into Cronje's ranks and the white flag went up. For their service in this engagement the Canadians received the thanks of Her Late Majesty Queen Victoria and the commendation of the military authorities of the world. On the return trip they were lionized in London.

Peterborough held one of the biggest celebrations in its history twelve years ago last night in honor of the glorious tidings. Every whistle in the city sounded forth, bells pealed and popular demonstration was the only thing thought of.

On March 1st, 1900, the long hoped for relief of Ladysmith was effected by Lord Dundonald. A big demonstration was also held in honor of the event on the same night.

OBITUARY

Died at Winnipeg

At the General Hospital, Winnipeg, Man., on Tuesday, Feb. 13th, the death occurred of Albert A. Cane, of Pontypool, Ont., The young man was brakeman on the Canadian Northern at Winnipeg, and was aged thirty years and two months. He suffered intensely for a few days with appendicitis and although everything that love or means could suggest to bring about a restoration to health, it was willed otherwise. Mr. Cane was the youngest son of a family of four sons and five daughters. He spent all his life in Pontypool prior to the last nine years in Winnipeg. He was an ideal son and loving brother, and the widowed mother and family will have the sympathy of an extensive circle of acquaintances. A funeral servie was held in Winnipeg, being in charge of the Railway Brotherhood, of which deceased was a member. The remains was then brought to his home at Pontypool where the funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Wilson. The young man is survived by his mother and his brothers, Jas., of Winnipeg, Edward and Will of Pontypool, and his sisters, Mrs. John Forder, of Cartwright; Mrs. Stanley McMillian, of Wainwright, Alta., Mrs. Geo. Thorne, of Manvers; Mrs. Maynard Coward, Hiawatha, and Mrs. Fred W. Burnham, of Keene. All the brothers and sisters were able to be present at the funeral. Interment was in Pontypool cemetery.

Mrs. J. W. Browett

At five o'clock this morning death claimed one of Peterborough's most respected residents in the person of Mrs. J. W. Browett, at the family residence, 533 Aylmer street, after an illness of but a few months.

The late Mrs. Browett was a valued and beloved member of the Murray Street Baptist Church and an active member of Mr. Elcome's Bible Class. Although, since last December very little hope was retained for her recovery, she bore her illness with patience and fortitude and has at last been called to her reward.

A husband, one daughter, Miss Joy Browett, and three sons, Wilmot, Norman and Dutton, survive to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother.

Rev. J. R. Webb will conduct service at the family residence at eight o'clock to-morrow evening and the remains will be taken to Ingersoll, Ont., on Friday morning, where interment will take place.

Mrs. Mary Babant

The death occurred at 2 o'clock this morning of Mrs. Mary Braban, relict of the late Mr. Frank Brabant, River Road, north. The deceased lady had been suffering only about a week when she succumbed to the attack of bronchitis. Mrs. Brabant was in her 75th year.

She is survived by two daughters, Miss Mary and Miss Eliza, both living at home.

The funeral will be held on Friday morning at nine o'clock, from her home, River Road north, proceeding to St. Peter's cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

Leon Daudet, son of the famous author, slightly wounded the editor of "Gil Blas" in a duel at Paris.

LOCAL SINGERS AT RED MILL

Two local boys, Asa Huycke and Stan Pollard are making a big hit at the Red Mill Theatre, singing in duets that are more appreciated by the large audience that frequents the Red Mill, than the songs of any outside artist. The manager of that popular place of amusement made no mistake when he chose Messrs. Huycke and Pollard, as is amply shown by the hearty praise bestowed upon their singing by all that have been fortunate enough to hear them. The young men will sing every night this week and not only the patrons of home merit, but also lovers of good music will likely take this opportunity of hearing them.

At Prince Rupert

In the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway's terminus on Feb. 1st, the thermometer registered just 64 degrees in the shade, and it is stated that there has been only two inches of snow there during the entire winter, while the temperature has only been below freezing during a single week.

The "Daily News," under a heading, "Prince Rupert Twenty Minutes Ago," puts the matter very trenchantly: "Thermometer in sunshine registered 66 degrees, still rising. Big sacrifice sale of slickers and overshoes."

From this it is very evident that all construction work, or indeed work of any kind, can be carried on throughout the entire year in this summer climate.

ABOUT THE PLAYERS ON THE LOCAL JUNIOR O.H.A. TEAM

The following information concerning the local junior players, semi-finalists in the O.H.A. this season will be of interest to the fans:

JOSEPH DWYER, goal, weighs 158 lbs., is 18 years of age, and claims Toronto as his birth place. He played for Knox Guild in the junior Church League three seasons ago and last season for the C.G.E. Machine Shop in the Mercantile League. This was his first season in O.H.A. company.

FRED B. DENISON, point, weighs 157 lbs., is 19 years of age, and was born in Coldwater, Ont. He learned the game in Peterborough. Four years ago he played with the George Street Juniors and the following season he was captain of the Collegiate O.H.A. seven, and a member of the Strathconas, City League champions. Last year he was with the Port Hope T.C.S. team, Junior Intercollegiate finalists, and played a couple of games with the local Intermediates.

"PETE" MILLOY, cover point, weighs 139 lbs., is 18 years of age and was born in Smith Township. He was a member of the T.A.S. Juveniles when the Chieftains won the championship. Last season he played on the C.G.E. Tool Room team, champions of the Mercantile League. This was his first season in O.H.A. company.

ROLLIE WEIR, rover, weighs 128 lbs., is 19 years of age and was born in Calgary. Four seasons ago he played in the Trent Valley League with Keene and two years ago with the same club in the City League. This was his first season in O. H. A. company.

ARTHUR P. HALL, centre, weighs 140 lbs., is 19 years of age and was born in Peterborough. He was a member of the Chieftains in 1908, when they won the City Juvenile championship and the Graham-Clarke Cup. In 1911 he played centre for the C.G.E. Tool Room seven, champions of the Mercantile League. This is his third season in the O.H.A.

HAROLD CLANCEY, left wing, weighs 139 lbs., and was born in Peterborough nineteen years ago. He is a product of the Mercantile League, having played on the C.G.E. office team in 1909 when they were beaten out in the finals by the Quaker Oats seven; in 1910 when they beat Auburn for the championship, and in 1911 when they were again beaten in the finals, this time by the C.G.E. Tool Room septette. This was his first season in O.H.A. company.

J. O. KENNEALLEY, right wing, weighs 139 lbs., is 18 years of age and was born in Peterborough. He has had practically the same hockey career as Milloy, having started with the T.A.S. Juveniles and played with the Tool Room last year.

STANLEY COOK, right wing, weighs 118 lbs., is 19 years of age and was born near Uxbridge, Ont. Two seasons ago he played with the Milton team, undefeated champions of the Halton-Peel Hockey League. Last season he played Junior O.H.A. hockey with the Milton Club.

It will be seen that of the regulars the first seven named, five made their debut in the O.H.A. this season. The average weight of the eight players is a little over 131 lbs. Four of the eight will be eligible for another season at least.

ORILLIA WON AT HOME BUT T.C.C. ARE CHAMPIONS

Toronto Team Won Round by Three Goals — Score Last Night Was 5-3.

Orillia, Feb. 27.—The best Orillia could do to-night against Toronto Canoe Club was to outscore them by a very faint margin, and one of these goals came in the last minute of play. The Paddlers, therefore, win the junior O.H.A. honors by the score of 10 to 7 in the round, the tally here to-night being 5 to 3 in favor of Orillia, with the teams tied at half time, 1 to 1.

The rink was packed to the doors, many coming from Toronto and outside points, and it was well that the management cut ten feet off one end of the ice and erected extra accommodation. Over 3,000 must have witnessed the exhibition. It was a great exhibition, with the teams having the best of ice to demonstrate their ability. Orillia had most of the play on the night, but, as usual, were poor shots. The Paddlers, on the other hand, were right on, and those that got by Cook were impossible to get. The Paddlers obtained a good lead in the second half when they made the score 3 to 1 in their favor, and after this they were content to play safe, the defence sometimes lifting the puck to the other end. It was a case of one team being content to hold their margin, and the other working like tigers to overcome it, but with the Canoe Club playing extra men on the defence they found it a difficult matter.

The game was a comparatively clean one, although Cook and Mohan, of the locals, when they saw the game was going against them, indulged in a lot of slashing and tripping, that made candidates for the penalty box. Cook, in goal, did some slashing and got away with it. Once Dopp took a headlong dive into the net and lay stunned, and Cook tried to kick him away, a very bad bit of work.

Jupp was the bright star for Orillia, with McNab a good second, although McNab helped out his defence in great style. Romerill and Gooch did excellent work for the Paddlers, both making great individual rushes only to lose the puck on a check or a trip at the mouth of the goal. Neither team exhibited much combination, owing, no doubt, to the great back checking of both teams. The Paddlers got clear by the Orillia defence on a couple of occasions, but Cook would either run out and block the man or else the shot would go wide. Orillia started out in both halves in whirlwind shape, and kept the Canoe Club on the defensive for the first ten minutes. In the second half, especially, the locals had the Canoe Club backed right up and against their own goal. Jupp three times in succession missed a score when right out in front.

This is the first time that the junior O.H.A. championship has come to Toronto since the Marlboros won the honors in 1903. The Canoe Club have a marvelous record for the season, to-night's defeat being the first they have sustained.

Orillia has also only lost one game and that to the Canoe Club in Toronto by 5 to 3, and look at present to have the best chance for next season, as six of their team are eligible another year. Chaucer Elliott handled the game in good shape. Line-up:

MUTTS AND JEFFS TO PLAY FRIDAY

Junior and Intermediate Forwards Will Come Together

The Jeffs and Mutts will line up at the Brock street rink on Friday night as follows:—

JEFFS.
Derocher.
Bearss
Bond
Weir
Kennealley — Hall — Clancey
Giroux — Park — Coughlin
Kelly
Denison
Milloy
Dwyer
MUTTS.

The admission to this game will be 15 cents to any part of the rink.

As will be seen the line ups are composed of Junior and Intermediate players, the Junior defence having the Intermediate forwards and the Junior forwards the Intermediate defence. Great interest is being taken in the game as many supporters believe that some of the Junior material is almost ripe for the Intermediate ranks. There will probably be more rivalry amongst the players than if an outside team were brought here for an exhibition game. They can all be depended upon to do their best and the fans are promised their money's worth in good hockey.

KEENE SEVEN WON FAST GAME

With Hockey Team of Mark St. Church A. C.

A team representing the Mark St. Athletic Club, East City, met a Keene seven at the Brock street rink last night and were defeated 4—2, the half time score standing 2—2. Rollie Weir played for the local seven and the boys from his "old home town" were well pleased that they were able to hold him down. One player on the visiting team even asked how it was that our juniors came to win the district in the O. H. A. He evidently thought that Weir was in his right class when playing amongst a Keene seven.

The East City seven banqueted the visitors after the game.

CENTRALS TOOK ANOTHER WIN

Queen Alexandras Were Defeated by Score of 6-2

The Central School outfit walloped the Queen Alexandra school seven by the score of 6—2 in the Brock street rink yesterday afternoon. The half time score was 4—0. The Central School team had it pretty much their own way, as Hall in goal for the north enders did not capture the rubber as he should have done. Cavanah won the game for his team, time after time rushing the length of the ice and trying a shot. The teams were—

Johnston	Point	Webb
Moran	Cover	Routley
Dinsdale	Rover	Cavanah

WEIRD CONTEST AT BROCK STREET

"Hungry Seven" Gobbled the "Cannon Balls Right From the Guns"

They called it hockey, but it was casting reflections on the good old winter game. An adequate description of the set-to beggars description. Two nondescript looking outfits bearing out their self-imposed pseudonyms, bumped into each other at Brock street rink last night. They called themselves the "Hungry Seven" and the "Cannon Balls." Fifty rooters by persuasive powers kept both teams from flunking when they faced each other on the ice.

From the clink of the gong, wielded by special referee "Ab" Allen, up from Port Hope for the battle, one solid hour of punk hockey was indulged in. The final score six to three in favor of the "Hungry Seven," tells the tale of the hard fought contest. Drops of gore were dobbed about the ice with a shocking disregard for decency.

The teams rejoiced in the following very appropriate names:

Hungry Seven—Goal, "Sliver" Bulmer; point, "Sandy" Trotter; cover point, "Weary" Russell; centre, "Runt" Bain; rover, "Box Car" Brummel; left wing, "Alice" Davidson; right wing, "Go Some" Gilgour.

"Dish Water" Evans had wonderful luck between the nets. The puck seemed to have a particular liking for the tender spots in his anatomy thereby relieving him of the use of his stick and hands in blocking.

There were several stars on each team who, however, prefer to have their names not mentioned owing to the company they were in.

The game was played for the honor in it only.

SUFFERED FROM VIOLENT CATHARTICS

The Warning of Mr. Geo. C. Fox Is One That Should Be Heeded by All.

Few men on the road are better known than genial George Fox, whose friends throughout the West are legion. In the following letter he expresses gratitude for signal services rendered by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. He goes on to say: "Until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills and experienced their wonderful mildness and curative power, I estimated the value of every pill by its activity. Talking about this to a well-known physician I met on the train the other day, he explained there are different kinds of drugs that act upon the bowels, the most active being known as drastic. Except in extreme cases where the life of the patient depends upon speedy evacuation of the bowels, pills should never be drastic. Purgatives cause catarrh of the bowels and inflammation, their dose must be increased, causing even more harm. With such a clear explanation I could see why Dr. Hamilton's Pills are curative and not irritating, why they are mild, yet most searching.

"From my experience I recommend everyone that takes pills to give up the old-fashioned harsh, purging pill, and, instead, to use Dr. Hamilton's. They cure headache, biliousness, constipation, bad stomach, and keep the system in perfect condition."

PLENTY OF EXCITEMENT AT CURLING RINK

Some Hard Fought Games in the Local Bonspiel

The local bonspiel is now in full swing, and the majority of the first round games have already been played off. As predicted several of the contests have been excitingly close, and some of the rinks have displayed a capacity for playing together that makes them look good for the silverware. Skips Colling's rink sprung a surprise by defeating Maitland's rink though the fight was close all through and the game was never certain till after the last end, when Mr. Colling stood one up. Mr. J. H. Renwick's quartette succeeded in slipping it over on Medd's players by one shot, in spite of the energetic attempts of the losers to win the game. Mr. Medd got four shots in to count on the last end, but could not manage to get the necessary five points to save the game. The rink skipped by T. E. B. Yeats was put away easily by Thompson's rink, and Campbell fell an easy prey to W. G. Ferguson's braves who came out on top by the score 11—5. In a hotly contested game A. Hall's rink won from McDermid, and Waddell goes into the second round by Morphet's default. The games were:—

Thompson, skip 17—Yeats, skip 5.
Campbell, sk. 11—Ferguson, sk. 5
Morphet defaulted to Waddell.
Renwick, sk. 13—Medd, sk. 12.
McDermid, sk. 10—A Hall, sk 5.
Colling, sk. 13—Maitland, sk. 12.

WANT COMMISSION FOR GOOD ROADS

and the where of good roads. One of the most important results of good roads would be the betterment of those who remain on the land. Farmers are land poor in the sense that land is so cheap that only half as much is produced from it as would be the case if it cost twice as much.

"Get the money" is the solution of the good roads problem. "First educate the people and you can get the funds. And it is directly up to the Ontario Good Roads' Association to educate public opinion."

L. A. Hamilton, Lorne Park, said: "We have entered on a new era." Speaking from his personal observations, he spoke of the foreign road systems.

France held the premier position in roadmaking. It was taught at a special college to students nominated by the President of France, to take a three years term. They study during the winter months and take part in overseeing roadmaking in the summer. France commenced her good roads one hundred years ago. She now expends six or seven million dollars annually in roadmaking. The millions Canada spent in military upkeep or for a navy could be better spent in roadmaking. If one was justifiable the other was eminently more so. France possessed 340,000 miles of magnificent roads, of which 300,000 were national roads. He had wheeled on his bicycle over 2,000 French roads and they were as smooth as asphalt.

Stone and gravel road construction was discussed by J. M. Young, Harriston; Charles Talbot, C.E., London; James L. Taylor, Hamilton; R. H. Jupp, Orillia; H. G. Blecker, Belleville, and E. A. James, C. E., Toronto.

James A. Bell, C.E., Thompson, spoke on bridge construction. He pointed out that permanent structures go hand-in-hand with roadmaking, as a means of crossing streams. No materials combined equal concrete and steel for such structures. Cheapness of construction should never be considered in comparison with the safety of the public.

Unless steel bridges were kept well painted they will rust through to the danger point. There are lots of bridges in Canada which are rusting through this cause. Rigid inspection is of urgent importance.

Bold Robber Caught.

New York, Feb. 28.—In the arrest in Memphis, Tenn., of Francis Ford, whose real name is declared to be Eugene Splain, the New York police believe that the man who engineered the recent sensational taxicab robbery here and appropriated the largest part of the proceeds, has been captured.

The police assert that Splain rehearsed the robbery in Central Park with his alleged confederates, of whom four are now under arrest here, and of whom three are declared to have confessed.

Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty said last night that he expected to connect Splain with other hold-ups of recent occurrence in New York.

Senate Accepts Bill.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—The declaration of the Government that the inquiries bill would be withdrawn if Senator Kerr's amendment were persisted in had its effect yesterday and the amendments were dropped after some discussion. The bill was then taken in committee.

Tributes of respect to the memory of Senator Miller were paid by Hon. Mr. Lougheed, Sir Richard Cartwright, Senator MacDonald of British Columbia and Senator Power.

The conference of the British Medical Association in London decided to demand better terms under the proposed insurance bill.

TWO INJURED IN FAMILY QUARREL

Father it is Said Came Home in Intoxicated State

Farnham, Que., February 28.—A family quarrel in the home of Reuben Welch, in the parish of Farnham, resulted in serious injury to Louis Welsh, son of the man who now injured himself, lies in his home under arrest on a charge of assault and committing bodily harm.

On Saturday night Welsh returned to his home from Farnham, it is alleged, under the influence of liquor, and when in the sitting room became angered at a whispered conversation that his wife and his niece, Bernada Johnston, were holding together. He wanted to know what they were talking about, and as they declined to satisfy his curiosity, he demanded that they stop talking. Thereupon Louis Welsh, who is a cripple, told his father to stop annoying the women, saying that they could talk in whispers if they chose.

Reuben Welsh, in a rage, it is alleged, went to his bedroom and reached down a gun from the wall and, returning to the room where the trio were assembled, struck his son twice across the head with the butt, which, under the force of the blow, snapped off. The cries of the boy brought both women to his rescue, and they managed to fight the man off, and a doctor was summoned to attend the wounded boy, the father having left the house.

The police authorities were apprised of the happening, and Mr. J. A. Bois-Bedford was summoned, and, going to the houe of the accused to arrest Reuben Welsh, found that the man was in bed with serious injuries to his head and face sustained by falling on the edge of a sewing machine. It was impossible to move him, and Dr. Slack, of Farnham, was summoned to dress the wounds.

The injuries to the boy consisted of two long gashes in the head, which it is expected will not result in his death. The parent is much affected by the affair, and stated to High Constable Boisvert that his son did not retaliate by hitting at him with his crutch, as was reported in some of the newspapers. The preliminary hearing will be conducted at Farnham as soon as the two principals are in a condition to appear.

COUNT NEED NOT PAY BACK LOAN OF $40,000

French Court Says Money Lent to Prodigals Cannot be Recovered

Paris Feb. 28—An example of one of the strangest peculiarities of French civil law is furnished by the First judgment rendered by the First Chamber at the Palais de Justice and published to-day in an action brought to recover a sum of $40,000.

An American had given a pearl necklace to Count Hubert Cahen d'Anvers in order that he might sell it. The sale produced $40,006, and a month ago, the donor sued Count Hubert for repayment of the money, though nearly ten years had intervened.

By refusing to give and order for repayment of the money the court has given no consideration whatever to the delay in bringing the action but has given judgment against the plaintiff on grounds which, apparently, would have been equally good had the action been brought after a delay of a few years.

The following is an extract from the reasoned grounds of the verdict—

"Since the evidence showed that the money produced by the necklace was employed in paying for the expenditure of the defendant on the purchase and upkeep of a racing stable and admitting this to be proved, it must be allowed that he can have gained no profit whatever at the expense of the plaintiff.

"Since the circumstances in which he existed at the time leave it to be inferred that some money went also to lenders, and since in these conditions no proof is given that Count Hubert Cahen d'Anvers drew any profit from the sale of the necklace," the court gave judgment for the defendant.

The point of view of French law according to which there is no legal means of recovering money which one has advanced to someone whom one knows to be engaged in a prodigal kind of existence has been exemplified before, but few judgments have stated the case with such emphasis. One can only wonder what would happen were such an interpretation to be given to a law in America.

DEEDLE-DUM-DEE WAS BIG SUCCESS

Gaby Deslys Interests Paris With Her Dances

Paris, Feb. 28—The Theatre Femina in the Champs Elysees, was crowded when Mlle. Gaby Deslys made her first appearance in Paris since her return from the United States. She appeared in ethereal draperies, and was accompanied by a young American Mr. Harry Pilcer, her dancing partner.

Their first number, entitled "Come and Dance," consists of a series of contortions by the male dancer, whose appeal, to the accompaniment of a very catchy air is so irresistible that his partner yields and joins him in a very lively dance. One of the afternoon's surprises was to hear Mlle Deslys sing in English with a piquant American accent. Her lightning-like gyrations as she was pulled round the stage by her swiftly moving partner roused the audience to the greatest enthusiasm. One encore was not enough, and as the couple gave the dance for the third time, the entire audience hummed the infectious refrain "Swing me round till I tell you no."

PLAYED HIS THUMBS.

The second dance was a sort of "grizzly-bear step" called "Deedle-dum-Dee." It opened with the male dancer on his knees singing an air to which he keeps time in a sort of tiny pantomine by moving his thumbs up and down. Mlle. Deslys, seated on a chair beside him, follows his movements for a time, and then she too drops on her knees. As the dance proceeds, they jump up and follow one another with gliding steps around the stage, singing as they go. Then the pace quickens and Mr. Pilcer swings his partner round with one arm encircling her neck. At the end of a mad whirl he suddenly seizes her and hoists her in the air above his head. "Deedle-dum-Dee" was a great success. The matinee was a triumph for the eagerly awaited dancing novelties from the United States. Mr. Pilcer says he is "just crazy" to go to London and exhibit his steps there.

Prevents Baldness--Banishes Dandruff—Stops Falling Hair and Itching Scalp

PARISIAN SAGE is a family hair tonic and dressing that will do much good in every home.

The man who uses PARISIAN SAGE if only occasionally will never grow bald. Baldness is caused by dandruff germs which dig down into the the roots of the hair, devour its nourishment and cause the root to die and the hair to fall and thin out.

MONEY BACK DANDRUFF REMOVER

PARISIAN SAGE is a scientific hair remedy that not only kills the dandruff germs, but gives the hair roots just the same nourishment that nature gives it.

PARISIAN SAGE first kills the germs; then nourishes the weakened hair roots and causes a growth of healthy hair.

This same nourishment (PARISIAN SAGE) causes the hair to grow vigorous, which means that the hair becomes full of life and lustre, and grows radiant and beautiful.

Thousands are wasting time, losing hair and growing bald because they are using superficial tonics. While they may clean the scalp and make it feel refreshed, they do not get to the root of the hair where the real destroyer of hair, the pernicious dandruff germs, thrives and multiplies.

Try PARISIAN SAGE for all hair trouble; it means death to the germs; life to the hair. It is pleasant to use and so harmless that it can be used by every member of the family from the eldest to the little tot.

Get a 50 cent bottle to-day, and if you are not satisfied that it is just as goo das claimed, your money back without quibbling. Sold by Wm. Madill and druggists everywhere. Girl with Auburn hair on every carton and bottle.

HAVELOCK HAPPENINGS

Special Correspondence.

Havelock, Feb. 28—The town people were shocked on Monday to learn of the sudden death of George, the 16 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Black, who passed to the Great Beyond early that morning. The shock was even greater because of the suddenness of his death, the deceased having been about the same as usual on Saturday last. On Sunday, congestion of the lungs developed, and the young fellow passed out of this life on Monday morning.

The remains were conveyed to Kingston, on Tuesday, for burial, services being previously held at St. John's church here. To the sorrowing parents and sisters of the young lad thus called away in the prime of life, the sympathy of the village is extended.

EXPERIENCE WITH SNOW

A commercial traveller while driving from Marmora, during the heavy snow storm of Thursday night last, had an experience which he will not soon forget. With little knowledge of the road and with a double sleigh carrying his samples cases, he started out from Marmora to Havelock. The snow was heavy, the roads unbroken, while a strong wind accompanied by considerable snow added to the adverse conditions against which he had to contend. When about half the distance had been traversed, he came in contact with an extra large bank. The sleigh stuck and on being urged the horses made a wild plunge that lifted the runners from underneath the box of the sleigh. Then the horses got down and the harness had to be cut to free them.

With stinging fingers as he only wore a pair of gloves, the unfortunate drummer battled through the drifts of the beautiful, until he reached a farmer's house. Shelter was afforded him for the night as with the storm still raging it was impossible to continue the journey.

Next morning he made his entrance into town on the wood sleigh of the kind farmer, and with a firm determination to content himself in similar storms hereafter with holding down the cushions in the hotel sitting room.

"GIRL AND THE TRAMP".

After an hour and a half wait by a good sized audience, the curtain went up at 9.30 p.m. "The Girl and the Tramp" which appeared at the local Opera House on Friday night. Delay on the railroads was the reason for the lateness, but patience was well rewarded in the fact that the audience were well pleased with the performance.

ONTARIO GETS PORT NELSON

the totals of which were: Alberta, $1,260,105; Saskatchewan, $1,551,820.

All allowances, the Premier said, were to be dated from July 1, 1908. The Province of Manitoba had taken the ground that the extension of its territories should have taken place at the same time that the new Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were constituted.

Under this condition, the following approximate arrearages would be payable to Manitoba should the proposed bill become law forthwith:

(a) Annual allowance, in lieu of debt, $381,584; annual allowance already received, $178,947; arrearages each year, $202,637; arrearages for four years (July 1, 1908, to June 30, 1912), $810,648.

(b) Annual allowance in lieu of lands, $562,500; swamp lands' reduction, average, $105,500; university lands' deduction, $15,000; already received, $100,000—$220,500.

Estimated arrearages each year, $342,000.

Estimated arrearages for four years, $1,368,000. Estimated total arrearages, $2,178,648.

The swamp lands to be reconveyed to the Dominion under the bill were estimated at 1,170,883 acres.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier claimed that the Government had not decided on the attitude they would take towards Ontario's claim that its boundaries should be extended to the Churchill River. This was the deduction he drew from the fact that the resolution did not state the precise point at which the boundary was to strike Hudson Bay.

The Premier explained that the boundaries in the resolution were the same as those set forth in the resolution of 1908, except that they had been set forth more explicitly by the chief geographer.

Hon. Wm. Pugsley claimed that the Government was proposing exceptional legislation in dealing with Manitoba, which was one of the old provinces of the Dominion. The idea of confederation was that the provincial subsidies should be on a fixed basis.

Lorne Wismer, a boy, was shot and killed when he dropped his rifle while hunting near Mille Roches.

SACRIFICED HER LIFE FOR OTHERS

Mother Saved Her Four Children And Then Perished

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 27.—A woman named Meza, who had made a heroic effort to save her six children, was burned to death along with two of her offspring, in Lazurne borough, early to-day, when their home was completely destroyed. The husband was absent when the fire started, and the mother was alone with the children. She cried for help and entered the burning frame dwelling four times. On three of the trips she rescued four of the children. One child, a boy of six years, she threw from a second story window, and his leg was broken.

The fourth time the mother rushed back into the flames to bring out the two remaining children the floor gave way, and the woman and the two children were carried down in the debris. Their charred bodies were found when the fire was extinguished.

OSHKIGMONG

Special Correspondence.

Oshkigmong, Feb. 27—Owing to a very severe wind and snow storm last Thursday, the tea and concert which was to have been given was postponed and will take place on the 29th inst.

Mr. Jack Jacobs, one of the noted sports of Chemong, drove into the city the other day with a span of collies. Jack relates some very amusing stories about his trip. Being their first visit to the city and not having sufficient knowledge how to behave themselves in such a big cdanah (town) they exhibited some very awkward manners. Jack discovered when it was too late where he had neglected his attention to the training of his dogs. Had he taken more pains in cultivating their manners Jack would have avoided all the trouble with his team of canines. As the trio were entering the city the dogs probably bewildered by the strange sights would bound from one side of the street and on to the other with the sleigh and its contents behind them, and again the dogs would pull each other in the opposite direction, barking furiously with Jack shouting to them at the top of his voice. They were always ready to challenge any of the city dogs for a square fight which happened to come across their way, and which had come out to see the wonderful team of dogs. Seeing a street car some distance ahead they took after it, probably imagining it was some huge animal, all the while Jack holding on to the sleigh the best he could fearing at any moment he might be dumped out of the sleigh, for the dogs refused to obey the admonition of their master, although he yelled at them with all his might. Here Jack acknowledged his deficiency in the training of dogs. Lucky for Jack that the city dogs were of more milder disposition, otherwise there would have been a rumpus on the main street of the city. Jack managed to drive them to one of the stables and procured a box stall for them, but they being sagacious, managed in some way to open the stall door and Jack found them lying beside their sleigh with a bone between them which was given them by some admirer, picking away. Jack and his dogs got home early in the afternoon feeling fine and fresh.

Mrs. D. Whetung has gone to Hiawatha for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Simcoe, of Rama, are here visiting the later's parents. They relate some thrilling experience on the road. Owing to the storm on Thursday they could not reach Peterborough until Friday. They procured a livery at Peterborough to bring them to Chemong, but owing to much water on the ice the driver had to leave his party and return. Mr. Simcoe and his wife had to walk the rest of the way and reached Chemong early Friday afternoon.

DIABETES

Is one of the most cruel maladies of which mankind is subject, the many complications arising from time to time, making life seem almost unbearable. For many diseases, medical, scientific, and physiological knowledge and experience gained from years of deep research, has achieved remarkable results, but, up to now, little has been discovered of practical value in the treatment and cure of Diabetes. In fact, people have begun to look upon the disease as well-nigh incurable. Even in the medical profession can be found doctors who are of the same opinion, regarding sceptically any claim to ameliorate or improve the condition of a diabetic patient.

It can, however, be proved that SANSOL'S ANTIDIABETES lastingly cures all cases of Diabetes. Full particulars can be obtained from the Sansol Mfg. Co., Winnipeg, Man.

BULLOCK ESCAPES AND FINALLY LANDS ON HIGH TENEMENT ROOF

London, Feb. 27— A bullock, destined to a prosaic end at the hands of the butcher, recently spent a couple of hours of crowded life at Islington in a gallant fight for freedom and only succumbed at last to bullets from a magazine rifle.

While a herd of cattle were being driven from the London and North-Western railway depot in York road to the cattle market, a quarter of a mile away yesterday morning, a Wiltshire shorthorn, stirred by the spirit of adventure, and, possibly, the weight of the driver's stick on its flanks, broke away from its fellows.

Left to itself, a mild scamper as far as the Camden road might have been the extent of its wanderings. But, finding its way barred, it plunged into the first opening which presented itself. This happened to be one of the entrances to a block of "models" known as the Camden dwellings, which stands at the corner of Market road in York road. Usually a door leading through to the yard at the back is open, but it was closed the bullock, pursued by the drovers, began the steep ascent of the stairway.

The astonishing thing is that the animal, weighing nearly three-quarters of a ton, managed to climb the steps. There are fifty-seven of them and the journey is a torturous one, for eight sharp turns are encountered. Fortunately, the staircase was empty at the time. The children had just been packed off to school had it been holiday time there would certainly have been a number of young innocents in the path of the maddened bullock.

INSPECTOR'S DEADLY AIM

The staircase leads to the roof, and this as is often the case in tenement dwellings, is flat. Here the tx, saluting its achievement, it is said, by a beloow, which would have done credit to a bull of fighting ancestry took santuary.

For at least two hours onward the neighborhood was treated to a series of thrills which were unparalleled in its existence, thought that, owing to contiguity to the Cattle market is somewhat variegated.

It did not seem to occur to the drovers that supposing they were able to rope the bullock on the roof they would scarcely have been able to conduct it downstairs alive. They might have made up their minds at once that slaughter was the only way out of the difficulty. But for a considerable time they attempted capture, with the only result that the bullock pranced about the roof, once or twice barely saving itself from a fall into the street about 40 feet below, and did a considerable amount of damage to the brickwork.

A large crowd collected in the street and in the recreation ground close by, from which a safe view of the encounter could be enjoyed. The bullock was having all the best of it, even when a small sporting gun which might have been successful for pigeon-shooting, was produced, and fired.

SEND FOR GUARDS

Facetious parallels were drawn by observers, beyond the danger zone, between the present emergency and the siege of Sidney street, and it was suggested that the Guards should be sent for.

The end came when a Lee-Metford rifle was produced, and Inspector Lynch who is a crack shot, did some shooting. It required three shots to convince the bullock that its adventures were over, and it died game, chargin gits enemies in an expiring effort.

The disposal of the carcass was by no means an easy matter, and the beast had to be cut up into rough joints before it could be removed from the roof, which was done by the rough and ready process of throwing the fragments into the roadway.

T. A. S. HAD ROUGH TIME

District Honors Not the Only Thing to Come Their Way

If by chance any person should at any time, wish to get information about Campbellford, the ten members of the T.A.S. Hockey Club, who went to that town last night to play the return game to decide this district in the Trent Valley League, can give considerable information at least they can give their opinion of fans who will go so far as to injuring players on their way to the penalty box as some Campbellford ruffians are reported to have acted towards a couple of local boys last evening. According to the abstainers, if the referee will show the white feather when bawled out and threatened, the team getting the worst of it may feel rather sore but they will be wise enough to strike his name off their list of desirable referees. They say that when a referee in that frame of mind has to seek protection from the players he has robbed of a victory, with the most glaring exhibitions of partiality to the home-brews, it is reaching the limit. But Peterborough players never refused protection to any referee even though he had robbed them to the full extent of his ability.

When Referee Waghorne blew the whistle for full-time last night, evidently realizing that he would have to penalize all the Abstainers at once if the Campbellford seven were going to win the round, the score stood 3—1 against the visitors. According to some of those who saw the game, the score should have been 3—2 in favor of T.A.S., but the local boys were robbed, so they say, of two counters, while Campbellford was presented with one.

As an evidence of the length of some of the penalties handed out, Captain Lansfield was given ten minutes because he dared to ask the referee for a square shake. As he was ending his wway through the crowd to the penalty timer he was severely "thumped" by the fans. Nagle Phalen was the most unfortunate of the seven, being beaten about the head and face by some husky ruffians and the police force, consisting of one lonely officer, was called to assis him to the dressing room where the officer stood on guard for four minutes before a path could be cleared to the ice again.

Manager Leonidas Derocher made the hit of the night when he struck the ice at the instance of infuriated fans who would not listen to his talk about "robbers."

The Abstainers are now champions of this district, getting the round by a margin of three goals and are now qualified to go into the semi-finals. They will likely be ordered to play to-night"s winners of the Lakefield-Hastings fray about Friday evening next.

The T.A.S. seven lined up last evening as follows;—McFadden, T. Lansfield, E. Lansfield, McPhee, Halpin, Coughlin and Phalen.

THINK THEY HAVE SPANISH ROGUE

Toronto, February 28.—A special cable to the Globe from Madrid says; "With the arrest of a gang of swindlers and the capture of their complete paraphernalia, the Spanish police believe that they have at last succeeded in putting an end to the machinations of a rogue who for the last ten years has been known to the press of Europe and America as "The Spanish Prisoner." His agents at The Hague and in San Francisco have been operating extensively of late.

"The agency at The Hague caused to be published in the Englsih press notices of the demise of certain persons whose ancestors had fled to Holland during the religoius persecution of the middle part of the sixteenth century, and had died without any Dutch heirs. In these cases certian London soficitros became the unconscious agents of "The Spanish Prisoner," and actually transmitted the money necessary to present the claims to The Hague, where it was never heard of again.

"In the house raided by the police in Bilbao were found a collection of photgoraphs, letters and other documents and long lists of Spanish, American and English names with biographical notes attached, showing how it had been possible to conduct the business with so much plausibility.

"Inquiry among the police here who had fortunately inquired of the police before looking up "The Spanish Prisoner," and had therefore been rescued from his machinations."

FRIENDS:

It takes an alarm clock to get the attention of some people. There are others who can "hear a dollar bill drop." If a dollar bill should drop at your feet it would be less important to you than the reading of this "ad." Just imagine we are looking you square in the eyes. We want to say a few words to you straight from the heart. You are anxious to get the most actual value possible to secure for every dollar you spend for clothes. That's why you should investigate the extraordinary values we are now offering. You like to buy goods you can depend upon—the kind you know are right in style, right in quality and right in price. You will find only that sort of clothes here. We are determined that we will gain for this store a host of new customers this season, by the giving of exceptional values. We are succeeding. We are doing the largest business in the history of this store. An investigation will prove to you that this store is giving better values for the same money, or the same values for less money than any other store. You certainly cannot afford to buy a dollar's worth of clothes before you see what we offer. It is better to find out about these values before you buy than later to wish you had.

Drop in to-day, to-morrow, in fact any time. We'll be just as glad to see you if you come simply to look, as though you come to buy. But be sure and give us a call.

BURN Occo SCRANTON COAL

VOL. LXIV., No. 51. PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1912 TEN CENTS PER WEEK.

MILLION MINERS OUT BY TO-NIGHT

Reports to Asquith Say 838,000 Have Already Stopped Work.

No progress towards peace was made at the meeting between the miners and owners this morning and nothing is expected to result from their meeting this afternoon. By five o'clock 838,000 miners were out.

London, Feb. 29.—After negotiations lasting a week, the Government last night in an official communication admits its failure to stave off a national coal strike. True, the negotiations will be resumed to-day, but little is expected from these.

The deadlock is graver than anticipated. It had been supposed that the greatest hostility would arise from the Welsh mine owners and public opinion was veering in favor of the miners, who, it was thought, would be satisfied with the concession of the principle of a minimum wage, leaving the adjustment of the detail to subsequent arbitration or negotiation. It is now seen that the miners themselves are placing the greatest obstacle in the way of a peaceful solution by insisting upon their own interpretation of the terms of the minimum wage.

A meeting of the Cabinet has been called for to-day to discuss the Government's policy, in view of the failure to avert a strike, and it is expected that an important statement concerning the situation will be made to Parliament. The general expectancy is that the Government will introduce a minimum wage bill, and there is also some talk of the intention of the crown to purchase some of the collieries in Wales, so that henceforth it will be impossible to jeopardize the navy's supply of Welsh coal.

By to-night nearly a million miners will have ceased work. The best authorities, however, are strongly of the opinion that the strike will be of short duration.

It is this aspect of the situation which renders the outlook almost hopeless. At the same time it is felt that the Government's efforts have not been wasted. The Government has secured the assent of 60 per cent. of the mine owners of the country to the principle of a minimum wage, thus greatly facilitating its task should it be deemed advisable to resort to legislative enforcement of the minimum scale. According to opinion in the lobbies of Parliament last night, this will be the next step, should the conferences which are to be resumed to-day show that the deadlock is insuperable.

Breaking the rule of secrecy and silence which has heretofore been rigidly observed during the course of the negotiations, an official statement was issued by the Government regarding the proposals submitted by the Prime Minister to the representatives of the owners and miners.

Special to The Review.

London, Eng., Feb. 29. — Seven hundred thousand miners were on strike at four o'clock this afternoon according to the reports received by Premier Asquith. It was certain that the number would be increased to one million by midnight, the date set for the strike by the miners.

AVIATOR'S FALL

San Bernardino, Calif, February 29.—Aviator Harvey Crawford, of Los Angeles, fell 200 feet yesterday but escaped with a few scratches when his aeroplane became unmanageable.

His engine went dead while he was 1,200 feet in the air, and the aviator began to volpane to earth. About 200 feet from the ground "air holes" were encountered, and the airship was dashed to the ground.

THE WINDY CITY ENTERS PROTEST

Against a Proposed Increase of Water Through Canal.

Washington, Feb. 29.—Delegations favoring and opposing a proposed increase of the flow of water through the Chicago drainage canal stormed the White House and the War Department yesterday.

Opposition to the proposed increase of 6,000 cubic feet of water per second over the amount now flowing through the canal was based mainly on the alleged damage it would work to shipping by a lowering of the lakes' level Arguments to that end were made by representatives of shipping interests from American cities on the great lakes. Canadians will be heard by Secretary Stimson on March 27 and for five days the question will be taken under advisement.

The hearing was attended by several Senators, representatives in Congress, members of the Canadian Parliament, representatives of the shipping interests and other interests likely to be affected by the propose increased diversion.

OFFICERS FOR GOOD ROADS

Belleville Man is Elected to Vice-Presidency.

Toronto, Feb. 29.—"This has been the best convention of the Good Roads Association I have ever attended," said W. H. Pugsley at the closing session yesterday afternoon.

Election of officers was the concluding business. A. M. Rankin, M.P.P., Collins Bay, was unanimously elected honorary president. Major Kennedy, Dixie, had no opponent and was elected president. N. Vermylea, Belleville, and W. H. Pugsley were nominated for vice-presidents. Mr. Pugsley withdrew in favor of Mr. Vermylea. Col. J. E. Farewell, Whitby, was made hon. secretary, and G. S. Henry, York County, elected secretary-treasurer. The foregoing with the following five delegates will form the new executive: J. A. Sanderson, Leeds and Grenville; C. R. Wheelock, Dufferin; Dr. Fairbanks, Lambton; N. W. MacKay, St. Thomas, and S. L. Squires, Waterford.

James Armitage, Dunrobin, and W. C. Bush, Port Dalhousie, made brief addresses on county and township roads.

The assessment on counties was changed from $25, as fixed on Tuesday, to $15.

THE PRICE WAS NOT EXORBITANT

Hon. Wm. Harty Denies Having Ask Too Much for Chats Falls.

Kingston, Feb. 29.—When interviewed, Hon. Wm. Harty denied the statement that he had demanded too much from the Ontario Government for his Chats Falls power holdings. He said no substantial price had ever been offered him for his power interests, and that any figures he may have submitted were with the impression that no results would be forthcoming and events had proved that he was right in his views.

He added: "My belief is that, until the last two or three years when the knowledge of the value of power has become so much greater, I do not believe that I would have been able to sell at five or ten thousand dollars if I had put such a price on my share of the holding."

He expressed pleasure at the prospect of the Ontario Government taking over his interests and favored the proposed expropriation proceedings.

Going Ahead With Expropriation.

Ottawa, Feb. 29.—The Hydro-Electric Commission has taken the necessary steps by filing plans, etc., under the Public Works Act of 1910 to vest in the Ontario Government the property known as Chats Rapids, and likely to be needed by the city of Ottawa. Proceedings to ascertain the value to be paid will be taken in due course.

R. A. Pringle, K.C., is acting for Hon. Mr. Harty, and D. O'Connor, to whom the Government sold the falls for a trifle.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Was Launched Last Night by Big Mass Meeting in Albert Hall.

London, Feb. 29.—An anti-suffragette campaign was launched last night by a mass meeting in Albert Hall, which was packed to the doors. The presence of a great number of prominent persons in various walks of life attested to the existence of a weighty opposition to the enfranchisement of women.

Lord Cromer, ex-British agent and consul-general in Egypt, presided, while among those on the platform were the Duke of Norfolk and a large number of members of the House of Commons of both parties.

Lord, Cromer, Lord Curzon, Lord Loreburn, the Lord Chancellor and the Rt. Hon. Lewis Harcourt, Secretary for the Colonies, made speeches, and a resolution was adopted declaring that the enfranchisement of women would be detrimental to their interests and the welfare of the state, and ought not to take place, except it was demanded by a majority of the electorate.

A letter from Premier Asquith was read, in which he said that he believed, as always, that the granting of Parliamentary suffrage to women "would be a grave political mistake."

NAVAL FIGHT OVER SALVAGE

Bitter Criticism of the Admiralty's Own Lack of Salvage Apparatus.

New York, Feb. 29.—A London cable says: The British navy is now engaged in a battle with the salvage forces which has been directing the operations to raise the submarine A3, which was recently lost off the Isle of Wight. The trouble is caused by the bitter criticism of the Admiralty's own lack of salvage apparatus, which caused the authorities to decide to take matters in their own hands. But the Sea Salvage Co.'s boat, under the command of Dr. Carlo Iberte, declined to quit operations, and a skirmish took place Tuesday, the navy being represented by two destroyers, two torpedo boats, one gunboat and several tugs and lighters.

As fast as the rope guiding the divers to the sunken submarine was dropped into position by the salvage boat it was cut by the Admiralty forces.

Seven times this occurred, then Dr. Iberte retired for the night.

CHILDREN CONDUCT SERVICE; BOY PREACHES ABOUT WOMEN'S HATS

BOY PASTOR PREACHING AT CHILDRENS CHURCH SERVICES

Under the direction of the Rev. William Burd, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at Hillsdale, N. J., who recently introduced his Boys' Whistling Club at his evening service, a special church service was given for children.

Floyd A. Burd, a son of the pastor, led the service. He gave out the numbers of the hymns and read the Scripture.

Edwin Joscelyn, a bright young lad, was the preacher, and read about the missionary work being done in Corea. Little girls in the congregation seemed much interested when Master Joscelyn said:—

"Corea is a queer country. Those enormous hats worn by the women make our doorwide productions look like a natty 'ding-a-ling.' The youth just entered into manhood, with his flowing coat, wide pantaloons and hat, more ludicrous than 'the hat my granddad wore,' gives dudedom in the States a handicap and comes in first. The queerest thing of all, however, is that in God's sight these folk are one with us."

The services opened with the congregation singing "I Love the Name of Jesus." Then the children repeated the Apostles' Creed. The Rev. Mr. Burd proposes to have different boys conduct the services each week, so that there will be no chance for criticism.

New Bridge Over Niagara.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 29.—Provincial Inspector of Public Works Thomas Hastings, Toronto, arrived here yesterday to superintend remodelling the interior of the main postoffice. The entire interior of the building will be altered.

It is learned on good authority that the work of building the new steel arch bridge to replace the Michigan Central cantilever bridge over the Niagara River, will be begun early in the spring. Approaches for the new bridge have been building for the past year.

Lively Debate on Hinterland Question Occures in the Legislature.

Toronto, Feb. 29.—Batteries of argument for and against the terms of settlement of the Ontario-Manitoba boundary question made yesterday afternoon's session of the Legislature by far the most lively and interesting of any since the House opened.

Sir James Whitney, in resuming the debate, referred to Mr. Rowell's statement that the Government had presented the case to Ottawa in a dilatory manner and that it was lacking in force of presentation. "Why, the Ontario members of the Laurier Government turned down in 1908, our resolution, which was couched in the same words that my hon. friend, the leader of the Opposition now uses. He borrowed the language from us."

Sir James remarked that events at Ottawa during the past 48 hours had shown that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was "the chief juggler" in this boundary question all the way through.

Sir James referred to the difference of opinion among naval officers, surveyors and explorer about the relative advantages of Port Churchill and Port Nelson. He also said that by the boundary settlement Manitoba was getting an additional 178,700 square miles of territory, making her total area 251,832 square miles; Ontario was getting an additional 146,400 square miles, making her total area 407,262 square miles; Quebec was getting the district known as Ungava, 354,900 miles in extent, making the total area of the province 706,000 square miles.

"I have nothing more to say," concluded Sir James. "The position which Ontario occupied has been put before the House fairly. I have shown the steps we took and the obstacles thrown in our way by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The strip of land to Port Nelson has been secured from the Dominion Government and is free of taxation."

Hon. A. G. Mackay made an excellent address. While, admitting that there were no legal rights for Ontario's claim in the boundary settlement Mr. MacKay maintained that justice, natural rights, moral rights, equitable rights and every other kind of rights entitled Ontario to press her claims just as forcibly as Manitoba had done.

"These are just as high as legal and technical rights," said he, "and I think that the Government has failed to appreciate the importance of obtaining what is only common justice. We on this side of the House are willing to sink our party differences to get Ontario's rights."

The ex-leader of the Opposition deplored the fact that Ontario would be prevented by the boundary settlement from extending northward for an indefinite distance, as Manitoba could now do. "If you let Manitoba, instead of extending her boundary northward, come in and take part of Ontario's hinterland, why not let Ontario take part of Quebec's hinterland?

"If that argument had been advanced," said Mr. MacKay, "Quebec would have been solid behind Ontario in presenting their respective claims. But, while Manitoba is busy asserting her rights and sending briefs to every member of the Dominion Government, the banner province of Ontario was standing with her finger in her mouth and tongue in her cheek, apologizing for her very position.

"I don't think Ontario is being properly treated," concluded Mr. MacKay. "I don't care what Sir Wilfrid Laurier says or Mr. Borden says."

R. R. Gamey also participated in the debate.

LAURIER MEASURE IS DISCUSSED IN SENATE

BRANDT IS FREE

New York, February 29.—Folke E. Brandt, former valet of Mortimer L. Schiff, sentenced to thirty years' imprisonment for burglary in the first degree, was formally released from the Tombs yesterday, details of his bail bond having finally been adjusted. He left the Criminal Courts building immediately, followed by a large crowd.

Bill to Abolish the Navy—Intercolonial Under Commission.

Ottawa, Feb. 29.—The Senate yesterday discussed two important proposals. One was to put the Intercolonial rates under the Railway Commission. The other was to repeal the Laurier Government's naval law.

Senator Casgrain moved that the Intercolonial Railway should, like those of other railways be subject to the control of the Railway Board. He read a resolution passed by the council of the Montreal Board of Trade, urging that the Railway Board be given control on the ground that there is now lack of uniformity in freight rates and the City of Montreal is discriminated against.

After considerable discussion, the motion was allowed to stand until next week.

Senator Choquette moved the second reading of his bill to repeal the Naval Act. Senator Lougheed asked that an explanation be made by Senator Choquette for desiring in so summary a manner to abolish the naval service of Canada, to which Senator Choquette replied that his bill was simple and required no explanation. It simply proposed to do away with the naval service and restore the conditions which existed before.

Senator Lavergne said that he had Premier Borden's promise that the naval bill would be repealed, and Senator David said that when the naval bill was before the Senate, three Liberals had declared against it, and they were held as heroes in the Drummond-Arthabaska election. The opponents of the bill had in the country declared that, if the Government were defeated, Mr. Bourassa had only to hold up his hand and the navy would fade away. The Government had been defeated, but the repeal of the navy had not been moved for. Senator David said that he and others would be consistent and vote against the repeal of the bill they had helped pass.

Senator Cloran protested against the shutting off of the discussion and was informed by the Speaker that discussions were not only shut off, but that there could now be no amendment of the resolution.

Senator Cloran said he desired to second Senator Choquette's motion. The naval bill was dead and was being sent to London for examination. The Conservatives had not carried out their pre-election pledges to repeal the naval law.

DOG SAVES THE LIFE OF BABY

Gave the Alarm and Child Was Rescued.

New York, Feb. 29.—A dog was the hero of the rescue of a year-old baby from drowning in the Hudson River yesterday.

Willie Blake, child of Captain John Blake, of the canal boat Mary Ann, was playing in a big clothes' basket on deck when the basket, baby and all, fell over the side of the craft to land right side up on an ice cake. A terrier, which had been playing with the baby, gave the alarm by barking furiously, and after succeeding in attracting the attention of the baby's mother, darted to the side of the boat and jumped overboard.

The dog swam faithfully on guard beside the ice cake, as it, with its human freight, floated down the river, and was still on duty ten minutes later when a steamboat crew, whose attention had been attracted by the dog's barking, put out a skiff and rescued the chilled but unharmed baby and the nearly exhausted dog.

OLIVER TRIES TO BLAME CAR SHORTAGE ON GOVERNMENT

And Ex-Minister of Interior Was Handled Without Gloves by Mr. Foster.

Ottawa, Feb. 29.—Hon. Frank Oliver did not get much satisfaction out of Hon. George E. Foster in the attempt he made yesterday to fasten on the present Government the responsibility for the losses of the western farmer on his grain, which, he admitted, were largely due to natural causes.

Mr. Oliver's resolution was defeated shortly after midnight by a vote of 84 to 54.

Hon. Mr. Oliver brought up the question of western car shortage on the motion to go into supply. He moved a resolution urging on the Government the desirability of securing for grain shipped to Minneapolis and Duluth for consumption in the United States, the same equality of rates with that shipped to Port Arthur and Fort William, as had already been secured for grain shipped to the former ports in bond for export.

The first effect of the car shortage was a cut of six to eight cents a bushel on the market price. After Dec. 10 panic prices had become the rule, and the loss then would be at least ten cents a bushel. Thirty millions of bushels remaining in the farmers' hands had been damaged by damp and could not go forward because of the blockade. Possibly 15,000,000 bushels of this would be a total loss.

He claimed that the "policy of restriction" adopted by the Government had broken down and had to be revoked, but the change had come too late to save the situation this season.

Hon. George E. Foster wanted to know what was the purpose of the discussion. The first hour of Mr. Oliver's speech had been taken up detailing the natural causes which had been largely responsible for the loss to the western farmer.

"But he can't move a vote of want

Tramps Fired Barn.

Brockville, Feb. 29.—A fire, presumably started by tramps dropping a lighted match, destroyed the barns and their contents of Osborne Shaver, a farmer residing in the Township of Elizabethtown. Twenty-two head of cattle perished. The damage is placed at $4,000 with $1,500 insurance.

"Black Hand" Member Dead.

Kingston, Feb. 29.—The death occurred at the penitentiary of an Italian named Colombo, who three years ago was given a term of ten years at Hamilton for being a member of a "black hand" gang. Death was due to tuberculosis. The remains were shipped to Hamilton.

FRESH EGGS DROP IN PRICE

New York Now Paying Only 59½ Cents.

New York, Feb. 29.—Upstate farmers, who read Sunday of the high price of fresh eggs in New York, have demoralized the market, though not the ultimate consumer, by shipping thousands of cases to commission merchants in this city. Heretofore these shipments have been made by freight, but in this instance the farmers refused to sell at the top of market and sent millions of eggs by express. The price dropped from 35 to 29 1-2 cents, wholesale, within forty-eight hours, and even at the lower figure the present supply is far ahead of the demand.

The result is that for the first time during the winter fresh eggs are a glut on the market. The commission merchants, unwilling to send the eggs back for fear of offending the farmers, predict a still further decline in prices.

SPENT ALL HIS MONEY, THEN ATTEMPTED TO TAKE HIS LIFE

Rochester, N.Y., Feb. 29.—Coming to Rochester from Port Hope, Ont., a few days ago, Wesley Thompson, 32 years old, spent all but 40 cents of the $57 he had earned on a railroad. Without money or friends the young man began to feel blue. Yesterday afternoon he went to the Rescue Mission in Front street, where he stopped last night. It was about 6 o'clock when a man rushed into Patrolman Gabriel and informed him that a fellow was about to kill himself. Gabriel hurried to the mission and found Thompson in the act of raising a bottle of carbolic acid to his lips. Knocking the vial from his hands Gabriel marched Thompson to police headquarters. There he told Lieut. Mehle he wanted to die. He said remorse at spending all his money had driven him to desperation. Thompson will be detained until morning.

Catarrhal Bad Breath

Corrected Quickly by the Use of

Catarrhozone

Catarrh is an inflammation. Where there is inflammation there is always more or less offensive secretion. Inflammation may be of the very active sort, but it is often of the slow kind, and this is the particular form in which the breath is rendered offensive and the presence of the sufferer becomes an offence to every person of delicate sensibility.

Bad breath is in itself sufficient to urge you to correct it, because one dislikes to be unpleasant to their friends, but this form of catarrh is dangerous because it supplies a hotbed for the development of Consumption or of other diseases of the throat and lungs.

Bad breath is an evidence that the microbes have found a good resting place and are carrying on their evil inroads into the health of the body.

Catarrhozone acts at once and destroys these minute organisms, but it does more—it heals the inflamed surfaces in which they found a nesting place and consequently removes both cause and effects of their action.

If we only highly estimated the value of prevention and used Catarrhozone at the beginning of a cold or just before it becomes well seated, the deadly ravages of Consumption would be stayed and the terrible agonies of sufferers of Asthma or Bronchitis completely abolished.

There is no remedy as effective for bad breath, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., as Catarrhozone. Besides being healing and soothing it is germ destroying. Nothing ever offered to the public can compare with it in its promptness, efficiency, and permanency of action, and you can buy it from any dealer in medicine throughout the Dominion of Canada, 25c, 50c, and $1.00 sizes. By mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

UNION LABEL

BRITISH UNEMPLOYED INSURANCE

A measure of a radical nature and at the same time progressive is that dealing with unemployment insurance recently passed by the British House of Commons. It is recognized in England that unemployment on the part of the laboring is a very serious detriment to the general well being of the community in that moneys that have been accumulated in a period of industrial activity and steady employment are dissipated when out of work. Large numbers of mechanics and laborers are thus placed in a position of alternate poverty and some measure of comfort.

It is to remedy to some extent these disadvantages among a very large and crowded population that this method of insurance against unemployment has been devised. It is proposed that the bill become operative on 1st July next but certainly not later than October 1st, 1912. All classes of Canadians will be interested in the provisions of the act which are as follows:

"The scheme of insurance against unemployment embodied in Part II. of the National Insurance Bill, provides for (a) compulsory insurance in certain scheduled trades, and (b) encouragement of voluntary insurance in all trades. The trades in which unemployment insurance is to be compulsory comprise building, construction of works, shipbuilding, engineering, construction of vehicles, iron founding and saw milling. All workmen in these industries are included, except foremen (other than manual workmen), clerks, apprentices, or persons under sixteen years of age.

Contributions to the insurance fund amount to 2 1-2d. from the workman for each period of employment of a week or less, and the same amount from the employer. The state will contribute one-third of the total contributions from workmen and employers. The workman's and employer's contributions will as a rule be paid by the latter, by affixing a special stamp to an insurance book carried by the workman, and in the insured trades it will in general be illegal to employ any workman without obtaining from him an insurance book, and affixing the stamps at the prescribed times.

A workman may be disqualified for receiving benefits on the following grounds: (a) If he has lost employment through stoppage of work due to a trade dispute in which he is directly involved. (b) If he has lost employment through misconduct, or has voluntarily left employment without just cause, for six weeks from the date of losing or leaving employment. (c) While he is an inmate of any prison, workhouse or other public institution, or is resident temporarily or permanently outside the United Kingdom.

A workman may without forfeiting his claim to benefit decline an offer of employment where there is a stoppage of work due to a trade dispute, or an offer of employment at lower wages or on conditions less favorable than those he habitually obtained, or than those generally observed in any district.

No benefit is to be paid during the first week of unemployment, but thereafter a benefit of 7s. a week is to be paid up to a maximum of fifteen weeks in any twelve months. No benefit is paid to anyone below the age of seventeen years, and only half benefit from 17 to 18 years. No more than one week of benefit can be drawn by any man for every five contributions paid by him.

The administration of the scheme will be principally through the labour exchanges, but under special arrangements it may be also administered through labour organizations possible tend to diminish unemploy-benefits. The decision as to how much benefit, if any, a workman may draw will be made by a statutory officer known as an "insurance officer," but there may be an appeal from his decision to a Court of Referees, consisting of one or more members from a panel of representatives of employers, and en equal number from a panel of representatives of workmen, with an impartial chairman.

The main principles with regard to unemployment which underlie the bill are; (1) That provision for unemployment must not be such as to create unemployment, and should if possible tend to diminish unemployment; (2) That compulsory provision for unemployment should be accompanied by arrangements for preserving and encouraging voluntary provision. (3) A number of specified provisions in the bill are inserted with a view to encouraging regularity of employment.

It is esitmated that 2,550,000 work people of sixteen years of age and upwards will come within the compulsory insurance scheme at the outset. The membership of trade unions in the insured trades at the end of 1909 was 462,000, of whom about 350,000 belonged to unions providing unemployment benefits other than travelling pay."

NOTE AND COMMENT

Evening Citizen.

Last night we accused Mr. Burnham, M.P. for West Peterborough, of being a humorist, in that he was supposed to have put a question on the parliamentary order paper, asking the minister concerning Sir Wilfrid Laurier's opinion on a certain subject. It seems that Mr. Burnham did nothing of the sort. He asked the question of Sir Wilfrid himself, which he is permitted to do by the rules of the House (No. 37 et seq.) and by various precedents cited by Bourinot. The practice may be new in this country of asking questions of others than the ministers, but the procedure is nor and is quite regular.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Feb. 28.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat over the cable continues very quiet, owing to the limited demand for May-June shipment. There was a fair enquiry for oats, and bids were in line, but on account of the scarcity of ocean freight exporters could not accept the orders. The demand for feed wheat for local consumption was fair, and sales of car lots were made at 72c, ex-track. Oats were steady at the decline, with a fair volume of business doing. There was an increased demand from foreign buyers for spring wheat flour, but, as the prices bid were 6d per sack below millers' views, no business was done. The local market is fairly active and steady. Demand for bran and shorts is good and prices are stronger. A good trade is passing in butter. Cheese is quiet. Eggs fairly active.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Feb. 28.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Feb. 24 were 775 cattle, 130 sheep and lambs, 1750 hogs and 650 calves. The supply on the market to-day for sale consisted of 400 cattle, 50 sheep and lambs, 700 hogs and 700 calves.

The tone of the market for cattle was strong, owing to the very limited supply offered, which was due to the snow blockade on most of the railway lines and the fact that it has been impossible for drovers of late to get thru the country on account of the snowstorms; but all this is only temporary, and the market will be well supplied with stock again in the course of a few days. In the meantime the butchers and packers have got to pay for it by giving much higher prices for the stock that has come forward.

There were no good steers on the market, but buyers had to pay as high as $6.50 for the best there was, and the poorest sold at $4.50 per 100 pounds. The top price paid for cows of fair quality was $5.50, and bulls of the same quality brought $5 per 100 pounds. If there had been any choice steers on the market, $7.50 could have been made easily for them.

A feature of the trade was the temporary scarcity of hogs, for which the demand from packers was keen, and in consequence the market was somewhat excited and strong, which resulted in prices scoring a further advance since Monday of 40c to 50c per 100 pounds, making a net rise for the week so far of 55c to 75c, with sales of selected lots at $8 to $8.25 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars, but drovers and farmers must not think that these prices can be maintained, as the advance has been purely on the temporary scarcity of stock.

The trade in calves was active, and good prices were realized for the quality of the stock offered, owing to the increased demand, on account of the shortage in the cattle supply. Sheep and lambs were quiet and strong.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $7 to $7.25; do., medium, $5.50 to $6.50; do., common, $4.50 to $5; do., choice cows, $5.50 to $5.75; do., medium, $3.25 to $5; do., bulls, $3.75 to $5; milkers, choice, each, $75 to $80; do., common and medium, each, $50 to $65; springers, $30 to $45.

Sheep, ewes, $4.75 to $5; bucks and culls, $4 to $4.50. Lambs, $6.75 to $7.

Hogs, f.o.b., $8 to $8.25.

Calves, $3 to $10.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

He must have been listening from a distance, though he ought to have been talking with a pretty girl who had no hat, for he came up to me at once and announced that it was time to go now. He rather put on airs of having a right to tell me what I must do, and I didn't like it much, especially before those dear cadets, but it would have been childish to make a fuss. Besides, I was his guest.

I went like a disagreeable lamb sulking on its way to the slaughter; but, thank goodness, I was engaged already for nearly all the dances, and most of them had to be split in two, there were so many cadets for them. (I think, by the by, I shall try to get Stan to take me to Sandhurst some day to see if it is at all like West Point and whether they have hops.)

Potter made fun of the cadets and called them "white meat" and "little things that got in the way." But when I asked a straight question he had to confess that he had been one himself only six years ago. "I was twenty-two when I graduated," he said. "One of the youngest men in my class." Which was the same as telling me that he is twenty-eight now. Ten years older than I am! It makes him seem quite old.

Somehow, although he is so nice to me in most ways, he stirs me up to feel antagonistic, as though I wanted to contradict him and not like things that he likes, and I believe it is the same with him about me, for I make his eyes look angry very often. I felt he was disappointed because I admired the cadets so much and had promised so many dances, and I was in a mood to tease him. But I fancy he isn't the kind who would take teasing well, and the scenery he was showing me was so beautiful that presently I resolved to be good.

We saw Kosciusko's monument, and I would insist upon his telling me things about Kosciusko himself, though Potter didn't seem to think him important. And then we began winding our way along a most exquisite path overhanging the river, always shadowed by trees. Sometimes it was cut through a green arbor, with a light like liquid emeralds. Sometimes it ran high on the rocks. Sometimes it dipped down close to the water, but invariably there was just enough room for two, and no more, to walk side by side.

We met several couples—cadets and girls, young officers and girls—sauntering or sitting down close together in out of the way places. But by and by we seemed to have passed beyond the inhabited zone. Then Potter asked me if I were not tired from so much walking and if I wouldn't like to rest. I said no, and he promptly pretended to be done up, which I thought very silly. But of course I had to sit down by him on a rock with a green, moss velvet cushion.

"This is what I've been longing for all day," said he.

I hadn't, and I was thinking about the cadets. But I agreed that it was beautiful.

"Yes, it is," he answered, looking at me. "I never saw anything so pretty. Say, Lady Betty, you're an awful flirt."

I did open my eyes at that. "A flirt!" I exclaimed. "I never had a chance to try being it."

"I guess you are born knowing. I've been miserable all the afternoon. Couldn't you see my agony?"

"I didn't notice," said I.

"Ah, that's the trouble. You weren't thinking of me. Of course, I oughtn't to have cared for those little boys" (some of them were inches taller than he), "but I couldn't help it. I kept saying inside, 'This is a foretaste of what I've got to suffer when she's staying with Katherine at the Moorings.' I don't know when I've been so unpopular with myself. I don't see how I'm going to get along unless you'll be nice to me, right now."

"I am nice to you," I said. "As nice as I know how to be."

"I could teach you to be a lot nicer. Say, Lady Betty, let me, won't you?"

His eyes, though they are such a pale blue, had that silly, melting look in them that my cousin Loveland's have when he talks to me. "Let you do what?" I asked almost snappishly for a person sitting in such a lovely place.

"Teach you to like me. I fell all over myself in love with you the first minute I saw you."

"Day before yesterday!" I exclaimed. "What nonsense. You're poking fun at me. I don't believe in love at first sight—at least I don't think I do. Anyhow, nobody could fall in love with me in that way."

"Couldn't they, though? That's all you know about it, then. All Americans will fall in love with you like that, and it's just what I want to guard against. I want you to be engaged to me before you go to Newport. Then I shall feel kind of safe."

"Dear me, are you really proposing, and it isn't in joke?" I asked. "I do wish you wouldn't."

"Would I propose to Lady Betty Bulkeley in joke?" he reproached me.

"The idea of proposing to any girl when you've only seen her three times!"

"What did I tell you about my friend in San Francisco? I was working slowly up to this, even then."

"Slowly!"

"Yes, very slowly. I think I've shown a great deal of patience. American girls—the beauties, I mean—are quite hurt if a fellow doesn't propose somewhere along in the first day or two. They think he can't appreciate their real worth and that he deserves what he gets if some other chap walks away with them. Now, I'm not going to sit still on my perch and see anything else walking off with you."

I couldn't help laughing. "I'll call for help if I think there's no danger," said I, "but I can't promise more than that. I didn't come over to America to pick up a husband."

He looked at me rather queerly when I said that, almost as if he thought I had come for that express purpose and was trying to conceal it. But of course he couldn't be so horrid as to suppose such a thing really, and I must have imagined the strange expression. If he only knew I came away so that another girl might be sure to get a husband, and I'm not allowed to go back until he has been got!

"They're just growing around on blackberry bushes and in strawberry patches for you to pick and choose," said Potter, "and that's what worries me. I'm a wildly jealous fellow. I've got two months' leave so as to be with you at Newport, and I tell you I shall see a bright, beautiful crimson if too many dudes come fooling around the shanty. Say, won't you just play we're engaged anyhow and see how you like it?"

But now I was really cross and wouldn't hear a word more of such nonsense, so I jumped up, and he had to scramble up too.

"If you've really proposed—which I doubt," said I, "you must please understand that you've been formally refused. But I forgive you because I believe you must have been chaffing and because it's my first proposal, so at all events I can't die without having had at least one. Now, do be sensible and take me back or I shall have to find my way alone or else ask a strange cadet to pilot me."

That threat found a vulnerable spot, and he was not half bad on the way home—perhaps no worse than the name of the walk allowed.

I was a good deal excited about the ball, as it was my very first. Sally Woodburn had looked at my things and told me what to bring. Not that it was a hard choice, for I have only four frocks with me in which I could go to a dance. The one Sally wanted me to wear at West Point is a little white thing of embroidered India muslin. Thompson made it after one of Vic's, and it is a rag compared to Sally's and Mrs. Ess Kay's gorgeous things. But when Sally had done my hair in a new way (they had left Louise behind, as there was no room for her) and fastened around my throat a lovely string of pearls she brought on purpose I loooked quite nice.

The "hop" was in a great big room which the cadets use for something or other, I forget what, and it was decorated with quantities of American flags. There were lots of girls—the youngest things! Hardly any of them could have been out, but there were even more men; counting officers and cadets, at least two for each girl.

The card which my particular cadet had talked about making for me was a programme, with all the dances and the men's names and illuminations which he had put on himself. It was beautiful, and I told him that I would always keep it. I danced every dance, with two partners for each, and there was a cotillon, afterward with favors to remind the girls who got them of West Point; little flags and buttons and bits of gold lace, but I was very lucky, for some of the friends I had made in camp had smuggled me special things, and I shall have quite a collection of sergeant's stripes and corporal's chevrons, belt buckles and beautiful bright bell buttons with initials scratched on them.

That rates of the American Express Company are three times those of first-class freight rates, was brought out before the Interstate Commission at Washington yesterday, and Vice-President Bradley, of the company, said the sum was not excessive.

LOOKING FOR GOLD.

Londoner Says De Rougement Is In the Ural Mountains.

The whereabouts of that mysterious wanderer, Louis de Rougemont, have been disclosed.

"Yes," said a merchant in London (Eng.) the other day, "De Rougemont is quite well, and I am in close touch with him.

"He is in the Ural Mountains, looking for gold."

"It is quite well for you to laugh," said the merchant, "but a well-known engineer has just been to see me, and tells me that De Rougemont is perfectly right, and has informed me that for gold the Ural Mountains surpass Western Australia and Klondyke.

"Yes," added the merchant, warming up to the subject, "you told me that when you met De Rougemont he was a nervous individual, quite ready to run up the wall, and throw nuts at the public, but in all the things that he wrote there is very little of falsehood. When he told me he had ridden upon turtle, I laughed at him, and remarked that the moment you touch turtle it dives. 'No,' said De Rougemont; 'not if you get hold of its shoulders and hold up its head.'

"He borrowed some turtles from me, and proved his contention at a music hall in the West End, and also by riding a turtle at Southport out to a ship. The humor of it was that he got to the ship, but then lost the turtle, who was quite sick of the job, and also in both cases the insides of his legs were very badly scraped.

"You are quite right in thinking," the merchant continued, "that De Rougemont is quite a remarkable man. He is now eighty years of age, and when I last heard of him one of his acquaintances informed me that in the Ural Mountains he walked forty miles at a stretch, and turned up at the end of the march perfectly fresh.

"I suppose you did not know," he continued, "that De Rougemont is a most confirmed spiritualist? You see this old bureau here?"—pointing to a rather nice piece of Sheraton. "De Rougemont has promised that when he dies—which he expects will be soon—he will give three taps on this particular door, and if I hear it he expects me to be converted to his own ideas on the subject of spiritualism."

NEW DAY FOR OLD MEN.

"Too Young at 60!" the Slogan Now In London.

"Too young at 60!" is the slogan that sent a rejuvenating thrill through the elderly men of London. The words stood out in stalwart letters in the bill of contents of a morning paper, the editorial page of which presented a "middle-aged philosopher" assuring the world that the recent rule of young men is passing and that the "old man triumphant" is returning to his ancient mastery of the earth.

"The new Lord Mayor of London," says the philosopher, "is 81. The winner of a swimming race in the frigid waters of the Serpentine the other day was an athlete of 75. Dorchester is rehearsing a new play by Thomas Hardy, who is nearly 72. The man chosen to save the Unionist party, the Earl of Halsbury, is 86.

"The young man who is dreaming in his fool's paradise must bestir himself or he will awake with a shock to find himself struggling among the debris of the flimsy throne on which he has perched since the closing years of the last century.

"To some of us who are neither exactly young nor definitely old, the question whether youth or old age shall possess the twentieth century is only of philosophic interest. If youth wins we have only to do a few bathroom exercises, part our hair in the middle and be as young as one may safely be without being considered callow; if age wins we have only to wait patiently a few years to have our place among the victors.

"What gave the old men of the latter day a setback? The typewriter, the telephone and the motor car wrought wonderful changes. The old men, conscious of their great power, pooh-poohed these inventions. The young men seized them and flew past the graybeards. 'Too old at 40!' they cried. 'Get on or get out.' The young men in their arrogance thought that they and not their machines had conquered. Now the old men are climbing back into the sea of power. Young men no longer monopolize the machinists; the old men have them, too, and put more force behind them.

"Ten years ago the automobile was associated with extreme youth. To-day witness the gray old boys swishing along the highways. The increasing age of the taxicab drivers is one of the most marked phenomena in the street of London. In every line of life the aged one is resuming his rightful pre-eminence."

New York expects to clear $200,000 a year from the sale of garbage.

— BETTER —
OPTICAL SERVICE
BY
A. A. FOWLER, Eyesight Specialist

In every trade, profession or branch of work, there are found a few men, who from special fitness, or education, or both, are better prepared to serve you in their line than the multitude of others in the same field.

Since Optometry requires especial ability in both professional and mechanical work, men that are fitted to do both equally well are scarce. Therefore you cannot be too particular about the selection of the man to whom you entrust your eyes.

The professional work—the examining and measuring of your eye defects, must be skilfully done. The mechanical part—the making and adjusting of your glasses is no less important.

Every phase of optical work is thoroughly and intelligently done here. From the first step in the examination to the final adjusting of the frame or mounting not a single thing is overlooked or slighted. I do all the work myself, and having had such fine success with most difficult, and neglected eyes, I do not hesitate to say that I can give you perfect satisfaction.

A visit will incur no obligation.

Evidences of Regret at Mr. George Clarke's Departure

Mr. George Clarke, to whom a banquet was tendered by twenty five of his friends on Tuesday evening in Coleman's parlors was again honored last night by the members of the Belmont Club. Mr. Clarke who has been accountant in the Bank of Commerce here, will leave on Tuesday for Forest, where he has accepted the position of manager of the Bank of Commerce there, and the Belmont Club gave a euchre party and social evening in his honor last night.

The club presented Mr. Clarke with an address, and a token of their regard for him, in the form of a beautifully and appropriately engraved, silver napkin ring, which he received with pleasure in a short speech thanking the Belmont boys for their kindness.

Also on behalf of the Peterboro bowling club an address was presented him, regretting his departure, referring to his sociability and comradeship in the highest terms.

If a hearty send-off is of any value to one severing his connections with his friends, Mr. Clarke should commence his duties in Forest with pleasant recollections, and a light heart.

LABOR REPORT

The Local Industrial Conditions in the Gazette

The following is the report to the Labor Gazette on the conditions in Peterboro during January—

The labor market in January was fair. Outside work becoming quieter, compared with the preceding month. In other lines of industry, however, the busy conditions reported last month were maintained. Manufacturers of electrical machinery were exceptionally active. The Quaker Oats Company, has also had a busy season, but finds it hard to get girls to do their work. The International Harvester Company, the Brinton Carpet Company, and the Canadian General Electrical Company are also advertising for girls. All other help is equal to the demand. The Canadian Canoe Company has commenced operations in a new building. The city has just completed a new sewage system and pumping station for the south end of the city. The police commissioners at their annual meeting this month, raised the salary of the chief and men of the force. The city firemen's salaries were raised; first year men to $550, second year men to $600, third year men to $650. A by-law was carried in favor of Hydro-Electric power. A new coal company has started business, and one shipment has been disposed of at a price below that of other dealers. A new company has been organized to manufacture gasoline engines, capitalized at $20,000, the A. W. Parks and Son Company, Limited. The Board of Education asks $65,000 for schools the present year. The demand for Separate schools will increase the amount to about $75,000. There will be two new schools built this year, one in the east ward and one in the west ward. The local merchants express themselves as being very well satisfied with the Christmas trade this year, notwithstanding the absence of sleighing. Building permits for year 1911 numbered 200, amounting to $517,958, or a decrease year 1910, the number was 231, amounting to $517,958, or a decrase for the past year of $172,586. There There was no particularly large contracts in 1911 as in 1910. The grocers in the southwestern portion of the city have decided to close their places of business at 9.00 o'clock in future.

The farmers have been busy during the month caring for stock and marketing produce. Prices for farm products were never higher than at present. In lumbering the outlook is favourable for a large cut. A smelter is to be installed at the Galway lead mine, where the Union Creek Mining Company, the owners of the property have about 600 tons of pure lead ready. A recent sample weighing about two pounds contained eighty per cent lead.

GENEVA MAN SENDS HERE FOR POLISH COCKEREL

No Second Fiddle Played by Peterboro Poultry Association

Peterborough is certainly becoming known as a great poultry producing centre and for this valuable advertising, the Peterborough Poultry Association is to a very large extent responsible. At the last show birds from all parts of Canada were entered for competition and the fact of the prizes not going the way of the exhibitors caused some of the outside poultry men to pause and figure out the reason and when at the close of the exhibition a large percentage of the prizes went to the local birds, it was borne home to them, that while their birds had been taking premier honors in other shows, their best was not good enough to place beside the exhibits of the Peterborough Poultry Association. As an evidence of the fame won by different members of the Association, Mr. H. B. Jackson, of Geneva, Ill., a widely known breeder for exhibition purposes, has written to Mr. George Paxman, asking if he can be supplied with a Silver Bearded Polish Cockerel, and as George is right at home with this variety, the Illinois customer will be accommodated.

THEATRICAL

"ERNIE MARKS' COMPANY"

The very capable and finished presentation of the four act drama, "Driven from Home," or "Over the Fields to the Poor House," at the Grand last evening concluded a very successful engagement of the Ernie Marks Stock Company in Peterborough.

The company during their stay stay have played to pleased and appreciative houses, and the immense patronage accorded them has been so flattering that they announced their intention of returning next season in high class plays and vaudeville. The story of the play last night was exceptionally strong, and the characters were ably depicted. The thrilling story of self-sacrifice which predominates the whole play, on the part of the son, driven from home on a theft charge, purely on circumstantial evidence, is the foundation on which is built a very effective and popular drama.

The specialties last evening were were given by the same artists, Miss Louise De Luna and Franklin A. Brooks, and all were well received.

LECTURE WAS WELL ATTENDED

Dr. J. W. S. McCullough Gave Instructive Lecture at Tuberculosis Exhibit

The tuberculosis exhibit and lecture last evening by Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, chief medical health officer of the Provincial Board of Health, in the Collegiate Assembly Hall, was largely attended. The exhibit of dolls showing the rate of infant mortality among the children of Ontario, was a source of much attraction. The various other interesting guides to health on exhibition were examined closely.

The address by Dr. McCullough was chiefly confined to a discussion of some general rules for the guidance of all on matters of general health. He went thoroughly into the causes of the "white plague" showing the imperativeness of taking strictly sanitary and preventative measures at all times.

The speaker also referred to the milk question and its relation to the mortality of infants. In every case he urged the people to study, and thereby educate themselves on all health lines.

Following his talk, moving pictures were cast upon the screen, showing the ill effects of milk when kept and used in an unsanitary manner. Also a film telling a story of how a fly can carry disease.

Dr. McCullough in speaking of flies considered it a cruel and wanton practice to pull the wings off a fly.

The exhibit will be concluded tonight. No admission fee is charged.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL MEETING

The Trades and Labor Council held the first of the semi-monthly meetings last evening, a good representation from the several unions being present. A report was presented by the committee dealing with the question of old age pensions, and gave the council local conditions and statistics, recommending that the council go on record as favorable to an old age pension system. The report was adopted. The hall committee also presented a report showing that after all expenses had been met in connection with the opening of the new hall, there would be a comfortable balance in the treasury.

It was decided to hold another open meeting and entertainment in the near future and a committee was appointed to take this matter into consideration and prepare a program. Several matters were discussed that will likely be dealt with at the next regular meeting.

MADAME SHERRY AT THE GRAND

Saturday Afternoon and Evening Next—Finest Attraction of The Year—Secure Your Seats Early

Judging from the advance sale for Madame Sherry there will be crowded houses for both the matinee and evening performances. It is not often that we have such an opportunity of having one of the best theatrical attractions.

Every day is bringing "Madame Sherry" nearer to its local engagement. It is hitting the high places on its second transcontinental trip, again leaving in its wake millions of laughing, delighted people and facing as many more expectant audiences as it did last season.

Never before have laughter, music and novelty and beauty of production been so thoroughly and artistically combined as in the case of "Madame Sherry," and all who view the performance admit there's a reason for its wonderful success.

A significant feature of the overwhelming success of the musical production of "Madame Sherry," is the lavish praise the production elicited from New York theatrical reviewers, excerpts from which follow:

Herald—"Welcomed with laughter and applause, it rivals 'The Merry Widow,' and is one of the best musical shows in New York in oh! ever so long."

Evening World—"A younger sister of 'The Merry Widow.' Likely to stay the season out in New York. Huge audience fairly yelled its approval."

Mail—"Madame Sherry's music will go to your toes."

Evening Sun—"Madame Sherry is the talk of the town. 'Every Little Movement' is bound to be as great an epidemic as 'The Merry Widow' waltz."

Town Topics—"Coming from Paris 'Madame Sherry' arrived in a blaze of glory. Not since the 'Widow' of Lehar have we been entertained by any such person as the dainty, bewitching convent girl, Yvonne Sherry, and the reception that was given her foretold a long sojourn in our midst."

Secure your tickets early before all the best ones are gone. 'Phone orders for seats will be held, only till eight o'clock Saturday evening.

THE WEATHER

It was by no means mild weather last night. The official thermometer of Mr. Walter Peters recorded 10 degrees below zero during the night, and this morning at seven o'clock it was eight below.

Went to Keene

Two sleigh loads of St. Andrew's young people enjoyed a pleasant drive to Keene last evening and were entertained at the residence of Mr. Porter. A very pleasant evening was spent, the party returning home about four o'clock this morning.

A Successful Sale

Mr. W. J. Hancock, conducted a sale yesterday for Mr. Nat. Stiles, Ennismore, that was a great success. There was a good attendance in spite of the bad roads. Good prices were realized, one family of mare and four shire colts brought an average of $200.00 each, one selling for $268.00. The proceeds of the sale reached several hundred dollars more than was estimated.

TERRIBLE HEADACHES

Trenton Merchant Driven To Despair By The Pain.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" CURED HIM

TRENTON, Ont. Jan. 29th, 1909.

"I was a dreadful sufferer for many years from Stomach and Liver Trouble—but my greatest suffering was from violent headaches. They were so distressing that I almost had to give up my business. I went to Toronto, consulted specialists and wore glasses, but nothing did me any good and the headaches became intolerable.

I was then induced to try "Fruit-a-tives" and from the beginning, I was better, and in a short time I was quite well again—no more headaches—and I threw my glasses away.

"Fruit-a-tives" not only cured my headaches, but completely cured me of all indigestion, and restored me to perfect health again." W. J. McCOMB.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest cure for headaches in the world and is the only medicine made of fruit juices.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always cure Headaches, Indigestion and all Stomach and Bowel Troubles. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

GOOD TIME AT COLDSPRINGS

On Tuesday evening of this week a very jolly and entertaining evening was spent in Coldsprings Sunday school, an oyster supper being given followed by a good program.

The feature of the evening was the presentation of a sketch entitled "An Only Daughter," by the young people of the school. It occupied about one hour, and was cleverly carried out.

The attendance was very fair considering the weather. A sleigh load of Peterborough young folks took in the affair.

During the intervals in the sketch, Wilson's orchestra rendered a couple of numbers, and two recitations by Thomas Williams were well received. Mrs. Wills, of Peterborough, contributed solos also in a most acceptable manner.

Frank Kitney was chairman of the evening.

HEAVY FINES METED OUT FOR ILLEGAL FISHING

Herrons Must Pay in Ten Days or Go to Jail for One Month—$87.60 the Total.

Walter, Tidy and John Herron, as a result of their being pounced upon by Fishery and Game Inspectors Carson and Watt, on Thursday night, Feb. 15th, in the vicinity of Jackson Park, while on their way to the city with twenty-four lunge and thirteen bass, presumably with the intention of disposing of them in Peterborough, have ten days in which to hand over $87.60 to the court, the penalty in default of payment being thirty days in jail.

The inspectors have heard of considerable illicit fishing of late, but the guilty parties have been slippery enough in their operations to elude them. They made a good haul when they did get a clue, however. This practice of catching and selling game fish out of season is one for which severe punishment will be meted out and those who buy the fish and thereby encourage this piracy, will also be made to feel the leash of the law.

PLEADED GUILTY.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defendants and on their behalf pleaded guilty to seven charges which were pressed by the Inspectors. For Walter Herron he answered to five of the seven and for the other two, one apiece. Chief Game Warden, Capt. Hunter, wished to make an example of these offenders and intimated to Mr. Gordon that he would be satisfied with a fine. Mr. Gordon on that recommendation was satisfied to plead guilty and bide by the finding of the court.

To each charge the Magistrate imposed a fine of $10. Walter Herron therefore has to pay $50 and costs, while each of the others was assessed $10 and costs.

In the course of his remarks his Worship said that this illicit fishing was a most abominable practice. "If the defendants were in court," said the Magistrate, "I would give the heaviest penalty the law imposed, that is imprisonment."

For the benefit of those present, who were interested in the case, Magistrate Dumble, while imposing the fine said; "The evil of catching fish and selling them in the close season is thoroughly known to the people of this town. There are men with that selfish nature who are willing to defy the law and deny the people of their rights and privileges. The fish in the lakes are for sport and not for private purposes and it is against the law to catch bass and lunge out of season. I am sorry that the people who buy these fish are not before me. They encourage this piracy. I wish the government did not, in its generosity, see fit to impose such light penalties."

The Herron's reside on an island in the vicinity of Chemong.

There are about seventeen charges pending against the same parties.

ARENA CO.'S STOCK ON LOCAL MARKET

The announcement was made in Montreal financial circles to-day that the strong group of Montreal and Toronto capitalists identified with the Arena Gardens of Toronto, Limited, which is to control the big skating rink and summer gardens in Toronto, were likely at the beginning of next week to place on the Canadian markets a portion of the stock of the company for subscription.

The capitalization of the Arena Gardens of Toronto, Limited, includes an issued caiptal of $250,000 of 7 per cent. preferred stock, $250,000 of common stock, and $300,000 of thirty-year 6 per cent., sinking fund bonds. Of the capital $250,000 of the 7 per cent. cumulative preference stock will be offered for subscription only, the price being $95 a share and carrying with it a bonus of 40 per cent. of common stock.

It is stated that the new Toronto Arena Gardens is being erected by the P. Lyall & Sons Construction Company, and covers a ground area of 334x190 feet. The skating surface in the rink will be 200x85 feet. The rink will have a seating capacity for over 6,000 spectators, as compared with the present seating capacity of 4,000 in the Montreal Arena. For years past Toronto has been badly in need of just such a building in connection with its hockey games, as also for its horse shows, flower shows, food fairs, etc.

It is officially stated that Mr. Lawrence Solman, who is well known throughout Canada for his management of theatrical and summer amusements, has accepted the position of managing director of the new company.

The offering of the stock on the Canadian markets will be made by the International Bank of Canada, Messrs. Pellat & Pellat, members Toronto Stock Exchange, and the Crown Trust Company, Montreal.

NEXT MEETING FOR AD. CLUB

Subject Is Better Sales and More of Them

Local business men interested in the newly organized Ad. Club in this city are anticipating an enjoyable and profitable time at the next meeting of the Club, to be held on Tuesday evening March 5th. Mr. C. H. Ashley, the Advertising Manager of the Toronto Saturday Night, will be the speaker.

The subject of the evening will be "Better Sales and More of Them." Mr. Ashley, after throwing out his suggestions on this topic, will explain to those in attendance just what the Ad. Club can do for Peterborough.

In connection with the live and progressive Advertising Club in Toronto, of which the local organization is a branch, Mr. Ashley has had much to do, and it is anticipated that he will, from his own experience in the Ad. Club movement, give the local members and others much that is real worth while.

The Club will meet for dinner at 6.15 p.m., after which the speaker of the evening will immediately follow with his address, the meeting being over at 8 o'clock. Further announcement will be made later.

MISSION IS CONCLUDED

Speakers Have Gone to Kingston to Preside at Conference

After a most successful series of services, the mission study classes which have been conducted at St. John's Anglican church, by noted Church of England missionary leaders, were concluded last evening. The first meeting was one of the best of the entire series.

In the afternoon, Mr. R. W. Allin finished his course of study on missions in Canada, before a large audience. The schoolhouse was filled with young people who have during the whole course of services, been most regular in attending. Some splendid pictures of China were thrown on the screen and fully explained.

In the evening, Mr. Allin addressed a very large congregation, on missions of the Church of England throughout the world, but principally in China, Japan and India. At the conclusion of his lecture Canon Davidson expressed the gratitude of the people to Mr. Allin for the splendid service he had rendered to the Anglican people in Peterboro. Mr. Allin appropriately replied stating his pleasure at being able to be of value to the people.

In his remarks Canon Davidson said that the visit of the four missionaries would be the cause of a new era in mission work among the Anglican people of the city. He also thanked them for the large amount of valuable missionary information that they had disseminated in Peterborough.

A men's conference of the three parishes was held afterwards, at which, plans were discussed for the commencement of an aggressive missionary campaign among the congregations of the Anglican churches in Peterborough.

All the visiting divines left the city this morning for Kingston, where they will conduct a similar course in mission study.

FINED FOR KEEPING PARTRIDGE IN WAREHOUSE

Montreal, Feb. 29.—H. Tessier, employe of Gunn, Langlois & Co., pleaded guilty to storing the partridges seized in the warehouse Monday, and was fined $1,206 and costs. He said that he alone was to blame as the principals did not know that he was storing birds illegally in the warehouse.

When J. R. Innes and Game Warden Griffiths went to the police court yesterday they found that as the company doing business as a storage company was a joint stock one, they could not take action against it. They had to find out who was in charge of the storing and lay a charge against him. This resulted as above.

LAKEFIELD DOUBLED THE SCORE ON HASTINGS SEVEN

Drytown Aggregation Lead the Half by 2-0, and Finished Ahead by 10-5.

Lakefield defeated Hastings in a sudden death Trent Valley League fixture at the Brock street rink last night 10—5, with the half-time figures 2—0 in favor of the Cementville seven. By splendid back-checking, especially during the first half, the winners piled up a large score in the early stages of the game. When the team, however, began to fade near the finish, the players made frequent rallies and carried the puck into their opponent's territory, and a couple of times for goals, which seemed to give them a new lease of life.

Referee Leo Derocher kept the play fairly clean throughout, though there was a general feeling amongst the spectators that they would rough it. The Grand Trunk could not supply special trains for either towns and the few loyal supporters who did come landed on the regular, though several drove from Lakefield. Neither team has played here before and the faces were all new to local fans, who, when they had sized up both teams picked Lakefield as the one best bet.

Blewitt, the rover for Lakefield scored the first goal from a scrimmage near the nets. It was after about five minutes of play, the honors being about even. By failing to bore in after shooting, Hastings lost a couple of beautiful chances and in clearing, the Lakefield defence seemed to have the luck all in their favor.

Simpson, the Lakefield centre man, notched the other counter of that half. It was after numerous rushes on the Hastings defence had failed and he lifted it in from outside the defence, Tate being unable to see it. The half ended with Lakefield forcing the play.

SECOND HALF.

Hastings made it 2—1 shortly after play was resumed and Blewitt again recovered the two goal margin by the nicest rush of the game, zig-zagging through the whole Hastings team for his second counter. Burton made it 3—2 before the Hastings blow up came, when Hill, Blewitt and Crawford got two each and Simpson one. The losers tightened down a couple of times while Burton got two more and McMillan one, making the final count 10—5.

Blewitt and Hill starred for the winners, the former being about the best player on the ice. He had a close second in Burton, of baseball fame, who played at cover for the losers.

The line-ups were as follows:—

HASTINGS.
Tate
Pearce
Burton
McMillan
Armstrong Weller Wilson
Hill Simpson Morn
Blewitt
Crawford
Rowe
Hill
LAKEFIELD.

Lakefield now go into the semi-finals of the Trent Valley League. They will likely be ordered to play T.A.S. at some date this week, and the abstainers will have their work cut out for for them to win especially if one game is to be played on the Lakefield rink. The boys from the Cement Works town are not to be despised as Trent Valleyists. Last night they played their first League game of the season and they appear to be in good trim though they did fade a little towards the last of the contest. If they do that against the abstainers they will be in great danger of being swamped as the local lads never let up.

SPORT TALK

Mr. George Moore, of Orillia, will manage All-Star Junior team which will play the Toronto Canoe Club seven, junior champions of the O. H. A., the proceeds to be devoted to charity. The personnel, it is expected will be announced to-day. Moore has already decided upon Jupp and Butterfield of Orillia, runners-up. Fred Denison will be given a place on the team.

There have been a number of instances of rough play in O. H. A. matches both here and abroad this season that should have been looked into by the association. When players so far forget themselves as to use their sticks like bludgeons it is then time that a higher power than the referee should intervene. In both games against the Canoe Club Cox, the Orillia goal-keeper, showed not only a supreme disregard for the rules of the game, but also for true sport, by striking opponents who had accidentally encroached upon his territory. In each case the puck was not in the neighbourhood and there was no excuse for his actions. Players of his calibre should be left at home.—News.

The Eaton team has suggested the following as possibilities for referee or judge of play of the cup games:

Chaucer Elliott, Kingston.
Lou E. Marsh, Toronto.
Gren Caldwell, Barrie.
Wally Hern, Stratford.
A. T. Kinder, Preston.

Among the names mentioned by Winnipeg as possible referees are: Tom Hooper of Kenora, Billy Kean, Billy Breen, and Burke Wood of Winnipeg.

In the games at Winnipeg the Eaton club will have 4,000 supporters and rooters from the Big Store at the Peg.

In the Northern League finals Owen Sound and Mt. Forest played to a tie 6-6 last night in Owen Sound.

Ottawa beat Wanderers 6-4 and Canadiens trimmed Quebec 6-3 last night in the N.H.A.. This win for the Senators, coupled with the defeat of Quebec in Montreal, practically cinches the championship for Ottawa, and the Stanley Cup is nailed down once more.

Some Toronto sporting writers accuse "some pin-headed individual or individuals" of bringing Orillia as a sporting town into disrepute on Tuesday night by throwing pepper into the eyes of Toronto Canoe Club players. Romeril was the only man to get a fair enough dose to do any damage. He could hardly see for several minutes after it was thrown into his face, and he had them washed out with boracic acid after the game. "Riley, the T.C.C. mascot, also suffered," says the same writer, and he surprised the boys by standing on his head in the snow bank and bumping blindly into pedestrians on the road home." The sorest pair of men over the pepper incident were Geo. Moore, the Orillia team's manager, and Mr. Jupp, father of Lovering Jupp, one of the players.

How does this look as an all-star junior team to represent the Eastern section of Ontario—

Goal—Dwyer, Peterboro.
Point—Denison, Peterboro.
Cover-Point—Armstrong, Trenton.
Rover—Weir, Peterboro.
Centre—Dennison, Lindsay.
Right Wing—Cunningham, Cobourg.
Spare—Tripp, Trenton.

If someone could be secured to handle the above septette, they would give the all-star Western team a merry go for their money.

Ottawa, Feb. 27.—At the Ottawa Curling Club rink this afternoon the Liberals avenged their defeat of September 21 last by taking the Conservative curlers into camp by a score of 17 to 9, after an interesting exhibition.

Mr. John Manuel, President of the Ottawas, acted as referee, and the rinks were:

Mr. McRea (Sherbrooke)	Mr. Thoburn (North Lanark)

ALL STARS TO PLAY ORILLIA

Fred Denison Wanted for the Picked Team

Manager Robinson, of the Orillia Rink property, telephoned Fred Denison last night to ask him to play in an all star team against the Orillia Younkers. The team is to be composed of players on teams who have come against the Younkers this season. There will be another of the local juniors on the line, likely Clancy or Dwyer. Mr. Robinson liked the work of both at Orillia. Clancy is fancied after the manner in which he covered Jupp, and it is altogether likely he will be chosen.

Denison will, in all probability, captain the all stars in this game, the date of which has not been settled yet.

Harry Burridge, with Knotty Lee, manager of the Hamilton club in the Canadian Baseball League, are in the city to-day. He and Burridge paid a visit to the ball lot this morning and will talk over the situation with the local people.

TALES TOLD AT THE RINGSIDE

Frank Newhouse, a stocky little athelete who is now umpiring in the minor leagues, has had possibly the most varied career of any man whose livelihood has been gathered in the world of sports. No man living has done as many things or been as many things as Mr. Newhouse, and he had still a great many years to go. That is, unless his Nemesis finally gets him, and to say it mildly there is some Nemesis on the trail of Mr. Newhouse.

When Mr. Newhouse first decided that ordinary trades or professions would not suit his advanced ideas, he was a little slender chap, boy of perhaps 17. The career of a jockey appealed to Mr. Newhouse, and a jockey he became. He rode some creditable races, but he had the misfortune, one afternoon, to get left at the post, sitting calmly on the favorite, and burning up the public money. When Mr. Newhouse rode his mount sadly round the turn many people asked what detained him, but one man, a fat man with a bright red nose and a large diamond, didn't ask any questions. He jettisoned himself across the rail, and smote Mr. Newhouse on the turret. Mr. Newhouse climbed down, mingled with the fat man, and was doing very nicely when the constabulary reached the scene.

Growing too heavy for a jockey, Mr. Newhouse next took up professional cycling and won may a wheeling struggle. He had been a top-notch rider for about a year, when a meet came off near Denver. Mr Newhouse spread-eagled the bunch and was beating them all to the wire when a fat man with a bright red nose and a large diamond threw a cane across the track. Mr. Newhouse summersaulted, arose, went to the fat man, and had just knocked him cold when the law intervened.

Mr. Newhouse next became a pugilist, campaigning with much skill and enlargement of the wallet. One night in Cheyene he was matched to meet a local star. The referee gave Mr. Newhouse the decision wherupon a fat man with a bright red nose and a large diamond, jumped into the ring, blugged the referee with a bottle, and was just bringing the bottle down on Mr Newhouse, when the latter, being disturbed and jarred by such doings kicked him in the dinner-region.

Wrestling engrossed Mr. Newhouse's attention a year later. Young Corbett having convinced him that fighting was no business for a gentleman. He had a royal battle one night in San Francisco. Just as his adversary was going under, a fat man with a bright red nose and a large diamond, turned off the electric switch. The match was called a draw, and Mr. Newhouse, on the way out managed to caress the fat man with a chair leg. Ball playing lured Mr. Newhouse the next summer. His team won the gonfalon in a Class B. League, and on the day they settled the championship, a mob attacked them. The mob was headed by a fat man with a bright red nose and a large diamond. He threw a tomato at Mr. Newhouse which would not have been so bad, only the tomato was in a can.

The police reserves came up in time to pinch two men who were struggling madly on the ground, and the fine was $50 a piece. After that Mr. Newhouse quit active play, and turned to umpiring.

He umpired for four years without a tingue of trouble. Last summer, though it happened. It just had to happen. This is what the Associated Press had the morning after.

"Umpire Frank Newhouse and a baseball fan were arrested after yesterday's game, charged with fighting in the street. Newhouse claims that Newhouse climbed into his carriage and made a violent attack upon him. The fan, who is a stranger here refuses to give his name, but is a fat man, with a red nose and an enormous diamond." And Mr. Newhouse is wondering where his ancient enemy will turn up next.

OLIVER TRIES TO BLAME CAR

of confidence in nature," remarked Mr. Foster. "He won't be able to turn nature and providence out of office."

The shortage in coal resulting from the western coal strike, he declared, played a large part in disorganizing the railway traffic. Nevertheless, 106,000 cars were moved in 1911-12, as against only 63,000 in the six weeks' longer season of 1910-11.

"What is the use, I ask," said Mr. Foster, "of my hon. friend drawing all these dark pictures of how providence has maltreated and abused the farmers of the northwest?"

"But he says the Government might have done something. What did he do himself? He had the northwest in his hand. He slept with it by night and walked with it by day. His Government made it their favorite child, and left it in this condition. (Applause.) Then he comes down like a wolf on the fold and asks why an unoffending Minister of Trade and Commerce has not remedied all this."

"If the present Government does not do more to alleviate conditions in the northwest in five years than you did in fifteen," declared Mr. Foster, "turn us out."

Good Roads Bill.

Ottawa, Feb. 29.—Hon. Frank Cochrane's good roads bill was put through the committee stage in the Commons yesterday afternoon. Clause 6, which gives the Minister power, with the approval of the governor-in-council and the consent of the Provincial Government, to construct and improve highways in any province, had a narrow squeeze, only passing on a vote of 52 to 48.

F. B. Carvell (Carleton, N.B.) claimed that if a Minister was placed in the position of an ordinary road builder, he would be given a power which might be used to gain votes at an election. Under the clause he might undertake the construction of a five-dollar culvert or like trivial work for political purposes.

E. A. Macdonald (Pictou) argued that the clause was contrary to the spirit of the British North America Act. He therefore moved that it be struck out.

Asked Damages and Got 'Em.

Kingston, Feb. 29.—At the high court, before Justice Middleton, Walter A. Telfer v. R. G. Dun & Co., Toronto, an action to recover $50,000 damages for an alleged libel, was heard.

Telfer, proprietor of the British American and Frontenac Hotels, claimed damages for the publication of an item in Dun's Bulletin, on Feb. 2, 1911, to the effect that a bailiff was in possession of the business.

Claim is made by the plaintiff that as a result of the publication of the item his gross receipts have decreased $11,000, that he has been refused credit with dealers he had formerly carried on business with, and that the printed statement was false and unfounded.

The jury returned a verdict for $1,000 and costs for the plaintiff.

COUNTRY TOWN SAYINGS

BY "ED" HOWE.

They are saying of a pioneer who died lately, that as a young man, he once killed twenty-seven buffalo in one day, out on the plains. There is great indignation; people say it was brutal. Don't worry; he never did it. You know how men lie in telling hunting stories.

When there is a big fight going on among Americans, it is usually not owing to oppression; it's because the people love excitement and opportunity to beat the tom tom, and tell how much they believe in liberty, and human rights.

It always amuses me to see a "good mixer" working among the people; it is as interesting as a good pointer dog working among birds.

If you are industrious, and fair, and have a little modesty and sense, no Public Wrong can keep you down.

Why this terrific clamor from some women to vote? For a dollar, any woman can hire a man to vote her Big Principles at the polls; at some polling places the rate is even lower than that.

You needn't pick at me; I'm anxious to do better. I reform a dozen times a day.

It is the business of seven out of ten men to fool you. Look out.

When two young men meet who have not seen each other for some time, they say: "What are you doing now?" And when two elderly men meet, they say: "How's your health?"

The rules by which men achieve success are easy, but it is a big task to be modest. The best of us are looking for opportunity to brag.

Doctors Use This for Eczema

Dr. Evans, Ex-Commissioner of Health, says: "There is almost no relation between skin diseases and the blood." The skin must be cured through the skin. The germs must be washed out, and so salves have long ago been found worthless. The most advanced physicians of this country are now agreed on this, and are prescribing a wash of wintergreen, thymol and other ingredients for eczema and all other skin diseases. This compound is known as D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

Dr. Holmes, the well-known skin specialist writes: "I am convinced that the D.D.D. Prescription is as much a specific for eczema as quinine for malaria. We have been prescribing the D.D.D. remedy for years."

We ourselves vouch for the D.D.D. Prescription for eczema and absolutely believe that it will take away the itch the instant you apply it.

Of course other druggists have D.D.D. Prescription. Go to them if you cannot come to us, but don't accept some big profit substitute.

But if you are suffering from any form of skin trouble we would like to have you come to our store for we have had the agency of this remedy for so many years that we can tell you all about D.D.D. Prescription and how it cures eczema. Or you can get a free trial bottle by writing the D.D.D. Laboratories, 49 Colborne street, Toronto; McDermid & Jury, or E. L. Payne, druggists.

THINKING THEMES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Where will you find absolutely disinterested affection? Without being cynical or seeking sour satisfaction, one may well think with a smile of amusement upon the tincture of self-interest that stains almost every act of courtesy or kindness one meets. The grocer is genial, rubs his hands, and smiles; you know why. All who feel that gratitude which is "a lively sense of favors yet to come" are professionally pleasant: the janitor and the landlord, the school teacher and the politician, the minister and the undertaker. Not that it isn't a good thing to be Pleasant, whatever the reason may be, but there's usually a reason. How many wives and husbands expect and want nothing in return? And for that matter, how much religion would there be, were there no "reward in heaven?" When the young man takes time to be Pleasant to an elderly woman, Goethe's rhyme comes to mind—

"Die Mutter schenk' ich, Die Tochter denk' ich."
I make gifts to the Mother
But think of the Daughter.

Indeed if you are going to cut all the selfishness out of any deed, any smile, and kindness, any man or woman, your surgical skill must be great and your hand steady or you will cut into Life itself.

There is just one utterly pure white love, one unmixed devotion, one unalloyed joy in your presence, one act that stands alone in this fallen and suspicious world as Pure Love and Worship: and that is the Wagging of your Dog's tail when you put your hand on his head. If you could feel toward your God as your dog feels toward you, you might claim real religion.

POTTER'S FIELD.

Where New York's Pauper Dead Rest In Forgotten Graves.

Three times each week a boat leaves an East river wharf for Hart's island bearing its load of the city's pauper dead. About 200,000 interments have been made in the city cemetery since its opening in 1869. For the first four years, or until July, 1874, when trench 1 was made, the number of bodies was known, but not the location of each body. Since then the records show where each of the dead was buried.

An entry in the death book, which is kept in the little office, is all that tells where the burial was made. A numbered incision made in the plain wood coffin furnished by the department of charities is the means whereby the authorities are able to locate a body.

It is of interest to recall the origin of the designation potter's field. The name comes from the New Testament, Matthew xxvii, where the suicide of Judas is recorded: "Then Judas, which had betrayed him, when he saw that he was condemned, repented himself and brought again the thirty pieces of silver to the priests and elders, saying, I have sinned in that I have betrayed innocent blood. And they said: What is that to us? See thou to that. And he cast down the pieces of silver in the temple and departed and went and hanged himself. And the chief priests took the silver pieces and said, It is not lawful to put them in the treasury, because it is the price of blood. And they took counsel and bought with them the potter's field to bury strangers in. Wherefore that field was called the field of blood unto this day."

Hart's island contains about 100 acres and is oval in shape. Not more than a quarter of the island has been used, and half a dozen generations will pass away before the great army of the city's pauper dead will cause any overcrowding.—New York Sun.

LEGISLATIVE BELLS.

There Are 739 of Them In the Capitol at Washington.

Whenever there is a roll call in the house of representatives or any other procedure requiring the attendance of members 500 electric bells start ringing simultaneously. They are operated from a switchboard or call box at the speaker's desk. Similarly in the senate 239 bells are operated. At the capitol these gongs are known as legislative bells.

Four hundred of the house bells are in the house office building and 100 in the house wing of the capitol. There is a bell in the room of every member, one in every committee room and several in the cloakrooms, corridors, lobbies and restaurants. In the senate office building there are 140 gongs and ninety-nine in the senate proper.

On the roll call in either house the signal is given as soon as the first name is called by the clerk. Senators and congressmen who are in their offices hurry to their respective chambers in order to answer to their names. Each house has a different system of signals, as follows:

The senate—One bell, yeas and nays; two bells, call of the senate; three bells, executive session; four bells, adjournment; five bells, doors open after executive session.

House—One bell, tellers; two bells, yeas and nays; three bells, call of the house; four bells, adjournment; five bells, recess.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Canal of Steel.

In connection with the Nile irrigation system at Wadi Kom Ombo there has been constructed a canal of steel 5,200 feet in length whereby water from the service reservoir is distributed to the earth canals. In section this metallic canal is U shaped, twenty feet broad and twelve feet deep. It is made up of seventeen sections, connected by expansion joints, and the riveted steel plates of which it consists are six millimeters in thickness. During the construction the engineers were troubled, among other things, by the unequal expansion of the metal. The expansion was greatest on the side where the sun happened to shine full upon the plates, and the inequality was often sufficient to displace the end of a section about to be joined as much as four inches to one side or the other.—Harper's.

To Detect Picture Thieves.

Herr Erndt, curator of Prince Leichtenstein's picture gallery in Vienna, has invented an apparatus in order to prevent the theft of pictures or other objects of value from public galleries, like that of the "Mona Lisa." The invention consists in an arrangement of delicate electric contacts in the wall behind the frame, so made that the least touch on the frame or any pressure, such an attempt to cut out the canvas, would cause to ring an electric bell in a central office or elsewhere. The bell is in connection with a board containing numbers such as is used in hotels, so that a glance at the board informs the warder of the number and position of the picture which has been touched.—Vienna Cor. London Standard.

Women Bull Fighters Barred.

The Spanish minister of the interior has issued an edict by which women are prohibited from taking any active part in bullfights. The following from the Animal's Friend, London, is the reason alleged: "Although the practice of participating in bullfights is not expressly forbidden by law to women, yet it is so antagonistic to the tender feminine nature that a woman toreador seems an almost intolerable spectacle. Therefore the authorities will no longer sanction any bullfight in which women are to appear in this character."

Glasgow grave diggers have struck for shorter hours and higher pay.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

All Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It is more widely and successfully used than any other remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed. Why don't you try it?

DEEP SEA FISH.

If They Come Too Near the Surface They Will Explode.

Ordinarily one would think that a fish in the sea could go where it wished in the water—that is, that it could go as far down or come as close to the surface as it desired. As there are definite natural laws that prohibit this, of course it is not possible.

Take a deep sea fish. It is under enormous pressure at its proper depth. Let it stray too high, however, and on the pressure lessening the fish gets larger and consequently lighter per unit volume and in consequence is propelled upward at an enormously increasing rate by the buoyancy of the water until at last it has to be expelled from the surface of the sea with great force. In the meantime the fish has suffered an internal explosion, as it were, and its eyes have popped out of its head, and its insides have expanded and made holes in the body. This is why there are no perfect specimens of deep sea fish in any museum. The difficulty could be partly overcome by hauling the fish up gradually, but a heavy weight would have to be attached to the line to overcome the buoyancy of the fish.

On the other hand, take a shallow water fish. It dares not stray too far down, for the increasing pressure would tend to make it heavier if it was at all compressible, but as it is not much so it would remain practically the same volume and would find no difficulty in propelling itself to almost any depth. The increasing pressure, however, would make it harder for the fish to move its organs, and its eyes would be pressed into its head.

For all these reasons there are well defined strata of water in which certain fish are found and no others. This is one method of determining the depth of a former sea where fossils of fish are found on the land. The depth of the sea at that place can be told within certain limits by the fossils.—New York Tribune.

Looked Too Honest.

Sir John Macdonald, speaking of the late Sir John Carling, used to say that no man could be as honest as John Carling looked. His wealth doubtless gave him many advantages, but he was always possessed of an urbanity of manner and kindness of heart that won him a host of friends, not only in his home city, but indeed, with all with whom he came in contact, wherever he went. Physically, he was tall and erect, with a bearing that marked him as a man of culture and wide outlook.

Hon. George E. Foster, who sat for years in Cabinet councils with him under various Premiers, said, on hearing of his death: "He was an able man, with great pertinacity of character, he was a genial man, loved by all; and did a great work in both Ontario and the Dominion in the line of encouraging agriculture. He was the founder of the experimental farms."

A fact not generally known in connection with Sir John Carling's life is that he was to a large extent responsible for the confederation of the Canadian provinces. On one occasion Sir John A. Macdonald and Hon. Geo. Brown, who were at loggerheads over the question of welding the provinces into one nation, happened to be on the same train and Sir John Carling was present also. He got the two statesmen to discuss the question and smoothed over their differences to such an extent that they finally agreed on the policy that resulted in the formation of this great Dominion.

In a marriage, unless both sides do fairly well there will be trouble.

CLERK OF THE HOUSE.

Duties of the Man Who Compiles "Votes and Proceedings."

The two most important officers of the House of Commons who are not members of that body, like the Speaker, but employes, or servants only, are the Clerk of the House and the Sergeant-at-Arms.

The former keeps the records of the House; the other keeps order, particularly in those extremely rare cases in which order can only be preserved by employing force. The Clerk's position is more peaceful but more onerous. He has to do a large amount of work, and of a kind that must be done well and with absolute correctness, or it would be practically useless.

The first essential qualification in a Clerk of the House is thorough knowledge of the rules of Parliamentary practice and procedure. That complex but exceedingly interesting subject he must know from A to Z. The rules governing every form and ceremony, and every step of procedure must be known to him, so that should others falter or stray from the prescribed path—even the leader of the House, who is usually the Prime Minister, or the Speaker himself—the Clerk can assist them over the rough spot, or direct their feet into the way they should go.

For many a year that position in the Canadian House of Commons has been ably filled by men, who not only discharged faithfully and well their important and onerous duties, but who were also ornaments to the House and credits to our National Legislature. For many years the post was filled by that student and experienced Parliamentarian, the late Sir John Bourinot, whose work on Parliamentary Procedure is a Canadian authority.

The Clerk is appointed, and in reality by the Cabinet, the position being one of the plums a Government have to distribute, provided, of course, a vacancy occurs during their tenure of office. The present Clerk was appointed during the earlier years of the Laurier regime, the vacancy having been created by the death of Sir John Bourinot.

Speaking technically, or theoretically, the Clerk is appointed by Commission under the great seal of Canada, and holds his office during pleasure—virtually until his health or age no longer permit him to perform his duties.

He is the recording officer of the House. He takes notes of the proceedings, of the acts performed by the House; or to use the words of an old English rule, he is "to make true entries, remembrances, and journals of the things done and passed in the House of Commons; but it is without warrant that he should make minutes of particular men's speeches."

The old English journals contained short reports of debates, but this ancient rule relieved the Clerk of this difficult task. To-day, both in the British and in the Canadian House, the reports of the debates, commonly known as "Hansard" are made by the official reporters — staffs of the most expert shorthand writers to be found anywhere.

The Clerk's minutes are made up every day in brief and convenient form, are then printed, and are known as the "Votes and Proceedings." They comprise a record of all the proceedings, but omit many of the Parliamentary forms, which are given in full only in the journals, which are extended after the close of a session.

The Clerk has an assistant, who takes minutes of the proceedings in Committee of the Whole, and calls off the names of members on a division, while the Clerk checks the names on the roll, and at the end of the division announces the number of yeas and nays. The Assistant Clerk also reads in English and French the titles of all bills.

Are your hands chapped, cracked or sore? Have you "cold cracks" which open and bleed when the skin is drawn tight? Have you a cold sore, frost bite, chilblains, or a "raw" place, which at times makes it agony for you to go about your household duties? If so, Zam-Buk will give you relief, and will heal the frost-damaged skin. Anoint the sore places at night, Zam-Buk's rich healing essences will sink into the wounds, end the smarting, and will heal quickly.

Mrs. Yellen, of Portland, says: "My hands were so sore and cracked that it was agony to put them near water. When I did so they would smart and burn as if I had scalded them. I seemed quite unable to get relief from anything I put on them until I tried Zam-Buk, and it succeeded when all else had failed. It closed the big cracks, gave me ease, soothed the inflammation, and in a very short time healed my hands."

PLAYED INTO THE THIRD ROUND

Skips Renwick and Thompson Are Going Strong

The local bonspiel at the curling rink is now in full swing, and every evening that the games are in progress the rink is crowded with the interested brithers o' the stane. There was a lot of good stane-siding indulged in last night, particularly in the matches of the second round, between Sturgeon and Thompson, and Waddell and Renwick. Mr. Renwick's rink is certainly a steady one, measuring up to the mark in all cases of emergency. Last night until the ninth end they were forced to straggle along behind Waddell's quartette, but in the last three ends they slid in five shots and won the game 12—9. Thompson displayed some classy work when he defeated Sturgeon's rink by four shots. The result of the above two matches is that Skips Thompson and Renwick have entered the third round.

In the first round contests Fitzgerald pulled the game away from Evans, doubling the score, and Harstone walked over Read into the second round. Lang slipped it over Bowes 15—8 and Taylor played rings around the Davidson quartette, doubling the score without any difficulty. Brightman and Connal played a good game to watch, Connal always looking dangerous, though in the end he was five shots down.

The skips and games were:—

SECOND ROUND.

Sturgeon sk. 14—Thompson, sk. 18.
Renwick, sk. 12—Waddell, sk. 9.

FIRST ROUND.

Fitzgerald, sk. 12—Evans, sk. 6.
Harstone, sk. 9—Read, sk. 8.
Lang, sk. 15—Bowes, sk. 8.
Taylor, sk. 16—Davidson, sk. 8.
Brightman, sk. 13—Connal, sk. 8.

To-night, again, the seven sheets of ice will be occupied, the draw being as follows:

SECOND ROUND.

Foot—Campbell.
McDermid—Fitzgerald.
Lang—Taylor.

FIRST ROUND.

Morrow—Stevenson.

CONSOLATION.

Yeats—Matthews.
W G Ferguson—Morphet.
Medd—A. Hall.
Evans—Read.

To-morrow the games will be played for the Peterborough-Lindsay silverware, the Lindsay curlers being the defendants of the cup and the local men are determined to add it to the array already in the archives of the Charlotte street rink.

The Orillia games are again postponed.

PETERBORO AND THE ANNUAL PRO. HOCKEY STORY

The Hamilton Spectator has the following to say about a professional hockey proposition—

"A dispatch from Berlin states that E. F. Seagram, of Waterloo, is interested in the organization of a professional hockey league which plans to embrace Peterboro, Hamilton, Toronto, London, Brantford, Guelph, Galt, Berlin, Waterloo and possibly Woodstock or Stratford. The idea is all right, but where or when would a professional team perform in this city? The Thistle rink is too small, and would not afford the accommodation necessary, let alone the ice surface. The Thistle rink people have not been approached, so if any plans are being laid by local men they have not as yet shown their hand. Professional hockey, or hockey of some part, would be welcomed in this city, providing that a rink large enough and up-to-date enough was erected. There is no reason why Hamilton should not have a decent rink and a decent team, either amateur or professional. It is to be hoped that the dispatch does not contain the account of a nightmare and we certainly do hope that the promoters will be able to finance the project and give Hamilton something which every little tank-town has—hockey."

It might be said for the benefit of anyone who has dreams of promoting professional hockey in Peterboro that professionalism got a rude jolt here last season, when an attempt mad to run a team under the name of the Petes. Good amateur hockey will take in this city any time over the other variety.

MORE HORSES TAKE THE FEVER

An excited team of horses attached to the front sleighs of a cab, was responsible for a lively scene in the business section of the city yesterday afternoon, when leaving the rest of the hack at Fitzgerald's carriage Works, where it was being repaired, the frightened animals made a lightning dash down Water street to Hunter, then to George street and down George to Charlotte street. Several people made attempts to stop the horses, but they rushed unhindered past all those who tried to catch them, and continued their spurt till they stopped of their own accord, near the G.T.R. station. No harm was done by the horses in their little speed act, though they gave more than one startled pedestrian a cold shiver, and prompted him to dart towards the nearest sidewalk, at a pace almost as lively as their own.

There were 56 civilians and 20 soldiers killed in the bombardment of Beirut.

WANT CARMEN SYLVA TO BECOME A SUFFRAGETTE

Odessa, Feb. 29.— A new letter from Bukarest states that the agitation for women's political rights, at first regarded as a passing craze, has now assumed a concrete form in the Roumanian capital.

A suffragist newspaper has made its appearance, under the title of "Drepturile Femei" ("The Rights of Women") The editor in chief of the new journal is Mme. Eugenie de Reus Janculescu, a lady well known in social and literary circles in Bukarest. The public meetings of the suffragists whose number is daily increasing, are marked by a studied decorum. The general tenor of the discussions and addresses shows unmistakably that many Roumanian women have adopted the more salient tenets and arguments of the British and American suffragists, but so far, they eschew militant methods.

Generally speaking, the movement is looked somewhat askance in official and governmental circles, but it is though slowly, making converts among the enlightened classes, and discreet endeavors are being made to capture the sympathies and moral support of Queen Elizabeth, the popularly idolized Carmen Sylva.

MACEDONIAN HAS FATAL FALL BETWEEN CARS

Was Knocked Off Car and Terribly Crushed

Toronto, Feb. 29.—A Macedonian, by the name of Thomas Snaka, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon about four o'clock, in the Grand Trunk yards in East Toronto. The man was standing on the end of a flat car loaded with sand, which was to be taken some distance down the track. He apparently did not notice the approach of the shunting engine, which backed up to take the sand car away, and was knocked off the car by the jolt. He fell under the wheels and was terribly crushed, one of his arms being cut off.

The train crew went to his rescue, and it was with difficulty that the remains were removed from under the train. The body was taken to the Morgue, and Coroner Dr. Winnett will open an inquest to-day.

Deceased was unmarried and had been in the country for some time. He had a few dollars in his pocket and a bank book showing a credit of $176. The man had been saving money with the intention of returning to his native land soon. He lived with a number of his fellow-countrymen in a construction car in the East Toronto yards.

HOW PIERPONT MORGAN ADDS TO HIS PILE

Washington, Feb. 29 — The house steel trust investigating committee to-day made public the result of the inquiry into the boks and minutes of the U.S. steel corporation, conducted by Farquhar J. McRae, an expert accountant.

The McRae report reaches the conclusion that the steel corporation operated in restraint of trade and prevents competition through a manipulation of prices, through the influence of the so-called "Gary dinners," by control of raw materials and through a system of interlocking directors in various companies.

It also lends to contradict some of the testimony given by steel trust officials.

Some of the figures dealt with in the report are startling. It is shown that J. P. Morgan & Co. received approximately $70,000,000, in cash profits for organizing the big steel combine, and that the net profits of the concern for the first nine years of its existence were more than a billion dollars.

BISHOP FARTHING HITS SOCIETY HARD

Montreal, Feb. 28.—A trenchant expose of the sins of Montreal society women who seek to ape men in their vices, was delivered this morning by Bishop Farthing at the meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the M.S.C.C.

After stating that a blatant agnostic, if not an atheistic socialism was seeking to destroy the purity of Canada's national life, the bishop said that he had noticed that society women were aping men, even in their vices and their revelries and drinking.

"They spend their time," he said, "at lunches and bridge parties. It is a rare thing to find them at home, which they consider 'deadly slow.' Through the smoke-beclouded rooms you can hear the chink of coin as they gamble. Love of dress is a dominant passion with them, and one woman's expenses on luxuries would keep a poor family with ease. Their ostentatious charity is only a small fraction of the money they spend on enjoyment and dress."

THE CAR SHOPS AT CALGARY

The contract calls for the completion of the shops by December 1st next. The Canadian Pacific Railway will commence immediately to lay 12 miles of spur tracks to serve the shops.

PAVEMENTS

It is quite true that London is paved with gold, and a great deal of it; but it is in the same way that Montreal is paved with gold. This is how the London Globe describes the paving process:

They took a little gravel,
And they took a little tar
With various ingredients
Imported from afar,
They hammered it and rolled it,
And when they went away
They said they had a pavement
That would last for many a day.
But they came with pick and smote it
To lay a water main,
And then they called the workmen
To put it back again
To put in a tram cable
They took it up once more,
And then they put it back again
Just where it was before.
They took it up for a conduit
To run the telephone,
And then they put it back again
As hard as any stone.
They took it up for wires
To feed the 'lectric light,
And then they put it back again
Which was no more than right,
There's the pavement full of furrows,
They are patching everywhere;
You'd like to ride upon it,
But its seldom that you dare.
It's a very handsome pavement—
A credit to the town:
They're always taking pavements up
Or putting pavements down.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

The above question will be the subject of debate in the parlors of the Park Street Baptist church to-morrow evening, at the weekly meeting of the Men's Social Club.

The art critics and musical experts having found some valid or invalid reasons against the name of "Pierrot Troupe" being used as a name for a church organization, all men are invited to come and help to discuss in a friendly way the pros and cons, merits and dismerits of this mysterious name so innocently chosen by the dear men, and incidently suggest some other real English name instead of the sweet French appellation. All men are invited. Remember the meeting at 8 p.m.

A Second Carlsbad

According to Mr. H. W. Boles, the president of the Board of Trade of Watrous, Sask., who is at present in the east, a German syndicate which is also largely interested in Carlsbad (now one of the wealthiest cities in the Fatherland, owing to the miraculous cures effected by its waters, but originally no bigger than this new western town on the Grand Trunk Pacific) has applied for permission to pipe the medicinal waters of Lake Manitou into Watrous. and are already building two large sanitoria, on one the lake and the other in the town. FRIENDS:

It takes an alarm clock to get the attention of some people. There are others who can "hear a dollar bill drop." We want to say a few words to you straight from the heart. You are anxious to get the most actual value possible to secure for every dollar you spend for clothes. That's why you should investigate the extraordinary values we are now offering. You like to buy goods you can depend upon—the kind you know are right in style, right in quality and right in price. You will find only that sort of clothes here. We are determined that we will gain for this store a host of new customers this season, by the giving of exceptional values. We are succeeding. We are doing the largest business in the history of this store. An investigation will prove to you that this store is giving better values for the same money, or the same values for less money than any other store. You certainly cannot afford to buy a dollar's worth of clothes before you see what we offer. It is better to find out about these values before you buy than later to wish you had.

Drop in to-day, to-morrow, in fact any time. We'll be just as glad to see you if you come simply to look, as though you come to buy. But be sure and give us a call.
